in knowledge] Gr. to knowledge.

V. 11. Greek nor Jew] From theſe words Epiphanius noteth four ſects or ſorts of religion which one after another bore ſway in the world; from Adam to the Flood, Barbariſme; from the Flood to Abraham, Scythiſme; and after that, Helleniſme, and Judaiſme: But whether Saint Paul had reference unto theſe, it is uncertain: His plain meaning is this, That if we ſpeak of renovation and ſalvation in Chriſt, there is no reſpect of perſons at all; (Act. 10.34.) for every man is accepted according to that meaſure of grace, by which Chriſt dwels and worketh in him. Gal. 3.28.

Chriſt is all, and in all] See Gal. 3.28.

V. 12. Put on] See V. 10.

V. 13. quarrell] Or, complaint.

V. 14. which is the bond of perfectneſſe] Whereby all the members of the Church are perfectly united together, and do ſhew one another all due and brotherly affection. Or, the bond of perfection, that is, the bond which tyeth all Chriſtian vertues together, and perfecteth them. Rom. 13.8.

V. 15. peace of God] See Phil. 4.7.

V. 16. dwell in you richly] Be familiarly acquainted with the Word, let it not paſſe by you as a ſtranger, or lodge and ſojourne with you for a ſhort ſpace; but let it continually abide with you, and give it rich, that is, liberall entertainment, by frequent reading, hearing, meditating upon, and conferring about the Scriptures.

teaching and admoniſhing] Teaching the ignorant, admoniſhing and warning the careleſſe. He ſeemeth not here to ſpeak of publike teaching and admonition, by the explication and application of the Scriptures, in Sermons, Homilies, and other exhortations, which particularly appertain to the Paſtorall function; but a private inſtruction, advice, direction, or admonition out of Holy Scriptures, whereby all the faithfull are to impart their knowledge to others, and edifie and comfort one another.

in Pſalms and Hymnes] See Epheſ. 5.19.

with grace] Gr. in grace; or, gracefully.

V. 17. And whatſoever ye doe] See 1 Cor. 10.31.

in the name of the Lord] Call upon the name of Chriſt when ye do it; or do it to Chriſts praiſe and glory. 1 Corinth. 10.31.

V. 18. Wives, ſubmit your ſelves] See Epheſ. 5.22. Tit. 2.5. 1 Pet. 3.1. Either the meaning is, that it is fit and agreeable to Gods Word, that they ſhould ſubmit; or ſubmit in ſuch ſort, and with ſuch a kind of ſubmiſſion, as is fit for wives, not with a ſervile, but with a conjugall ſubmiſſion.

V. 19. Husbands love your wives] See Epheſ. 5.25.

V. 20. Children, obey your parents in all things] See Epheſ. 6.1.

V. 21. Fathers provoke not your Children, &c.] See Epheſ. 6.4

to anger] Gr. Tec. above that is fitting.

V. 22. Servants, obey in all things] See Epheſ. 6.5. Tit. 2.9. As the Apoſtle exhorteth the Children before, ſo here he will have ſervants obey their Maſters in all things; but with a limitation expreſt, Epheſ. 6.1. viz. in the Lord; in all things warrantable for the maſters to command, and the ſervants to perform.

with eye-ſervice] Gr. in eye-ſervices. See Epheſ. 6.6.

V. 23. it heartily] Gr. from the ſoul.

V. 24. the reward of the inheritance] He calleth it a reward, becauſe he ſpeaketh of ſervants; but addeth, of an inheritance, becauſe that if they faithfully ſerve their maſters, or rather the Lord Chriſt in them, the time ſhall come, when they ſhall be made ſonnes of ſervants, and partakers of the Heavenly inheritance.

V. 25. the wrong which he hath done] Gr. what he hath wronged there is no reſpect of perſons] See Rom. 2.11. Eph 6.9.

CHAP. IIII.

Verſ. 1. J*Uſt and equall*] Gr. equitie. Though there be a great inequalitie between Maſters and ſervants, in reſpect of their outward and civill condition; yet there is an equalitie in reſpect of their ſpirituall, having both one maſter. And thus much the Heathen ſaw by the light of nature; Servi ſunt? imo contubernales: ſervi ſunt? imo humilis amici: ſervi ſunt? imo conſervi. Or it is equall for maſters to do their office to ſervants, as well as for ſervants to do their duty to them.

V. 2. Continue in prayer] See Luke 18. 1. 1 Theſſ. 5. 17.

V. 3. Withall, praying for us, &c.] See Epheſ. 6. 19. 2 Theſſ. 3. 1.

door of utterance] He prayeth, not that God would open for him the gate of the priſon, but a doore of utterance; for he more deſired the free paſſage of the Goſpel, then his owne enlargement. By the door of utterance is here meant a faire and happy opportunity of preaching the Goſpell, or powerfull aſſiſtance, or ability of ſpeech, for which David prayeth, Pſalme 51. 15.

V. 5. Walk in wiſdome] See Epheſ. 5. 15. That is, adviſedly and circumſpectly, that ye neither learn any evill by converſing with them that are without, nor give them any offence at all by your carriage. 1 Cor. 10. 32.

redeeming the time] See Epheſ. 5. 16.

V. 6. with grace] Or, gracious.

ſeaſoned with ſalt] With diſcretion and prudence, that it may well reliſh in the palate of them that hear you; Marke 9. 51. Or, let your diſcourſe be ſavory, avoiding all corrupt communication; for by ſalt the meat is made ſavory, and preſerved from corruption. 1 Cor. 15. 33. Epheſ. 4. 29.

anſwer every man] Whether he be within or without the Church, whether it be to give an account of your faith, 1 Pet. 3. 15. or to comfort and exhort one another. 1 Theſſ. 5. 11.

V. 7. my ſtate ſhall] Gr. things concerning me ſhall.

Miniſter] Or, Deacon.

V. 8. your eſtate] Gr. the things that concern you.

V. 12. labouring] Or, ſtriving.

compleate] Or, filled.

V. 13. a great zeal for you] Gr. Tec. much labour for you.

V. 16. cauſe that it be read, &c.] Laodicea was a neighbour Church to Coloſſe, and the ſame falſe Apoſtles, who introduced errours among the Coloſſians (it is very like) ſet them abroach alſo at Laodicea, againſt which the reading of this Epiſtle in their Church, might ſerve them as a ſoveraigne Antidote.

from Laodicea] The Apoſtle doth not here ſpeak of any Epiſtle which himſelfe had written to thoſe of Laodicea, as ſome conceive: exhibiting alſo a certain Epiſtle which is yet to be found in divers Latine and Dutch Teſtaments, intituled, The Epiſtle of Saint Paul to the Laodiceans; (which Epiſtle is ſpurious and Apocryphall) but of an Epiſtle ſent to him from Laodicea, either by the Church, or ſome Apoſtolicall men there; in which letter there was a further declaration of the aboveſaid errours, or the authours of them, which might alſo ſerve the Coloſſians for further warning and inſtruction, being compared by them with this preſent Epiſtle.

V. 17. ſay to Archippus] This Archippus ſeemeth to be the fellow Miniſter of Epaphras in this Church, whom the Apoſtle would have admoniſhed and quickened; becauſe Epaphras being abſent, the whole burden lay upon him.

ANNOTATIONS

On the firſt Epiſtle of Paul the Apoſtle to the THESSALONIANS.

The ARGUMENT and ANALYSIS.

THe Theſſalonians, though they gladly embraced the Doctrine of the Chriſtian Faith, and continued conſtant in the Profeſſion thereof, yet were much diſcouraged and diſmayed at the perſecutions raiſed againſt the godly for the Truth-ſake, by the Jews, and for the loſſe of ſome eminent profeſſours, and their dear Friends, whom God had taken out of the World. Whereof the Apoſtle having notice, writeth this Epiſtle unto them, to build them in their moſt holy Faith, and to comfort them againſt the ſcandall of the Croſſe; which is the common lot of the godly, and the fear of death it ſelf, which he ſheweth to be nothing elſe, but a paſſe to immortall bliſſe; whereof they ſhall not be partakers onely, who ſhall be alive at Chriſts coming, but all other that die in the Lord. In the meane while, they ought ſo to carry themſelves in all holineſſe of converſation, that they may be thought worthy the glory that ſhall be then revealed.

The ſpeciall contents of the Epiſtle are

1. Commendations of their ſincerity and conſtancy, Chap. 1.
2. Declarations of his faithfull and powerfull Miniſtery, and love to them, Chap. 2. 3.
3. Conſolations in time of perſecution for the Goſpel, and againſt the terrour of death, to which, he oppoſeth the glory of the Reſurrection and Chriſts ſecond comming to judgement, Chapter 2. from Verſe 13. to Verſe 17. and Chap. 4. from Verſe 13. to the 10. Verſe of the 5. Chapter.
4. Exhortation to duties of
    1. Chriſtian charity, Chap. 4. Verſe 1. to the 12.
    2. Piety, Chap. 5. Verſe 11. to the 25.

CHAP. I.

Verſ. 1. S*ilvanus*] Saint Jerome is of opinion that Silvanus (through the errour of ſome that tranſcribed this Epiſtle of Saint Paul) was put for Silas; and by comparing this Chapter with divers paſſages in the Acts of the Apoſtles, it ſhould ſeem, that he who is called here Silvanus, was no other then Silas, and he might be ſometimes called by the name of Silas, and ſometimes of Silvanus, as S. Paul himſelf was ſometimes called Paul, ſometimes Saul.

and Timotheus] There are three reaſons alledged by Salvianus and others, why the Apoſtle addeth Silvanus and Timotheus in the inſcription of this Epiſtle: the firſt, that the Theſſalonians might know, that they were all three together, who are joyned in this inſcription when the Apoſtle dictated this Letter. Secondly, to ſhew their conſent in doctrine, and that what they had taught before ſeverally, they now deliver joyntly. And thirdly, that the Epiſtle might carry the more authority, being ſent from three ſuch eminent Paſtors. See Gal. 1. 1.

V. 2. We give thanks to God] See Philem. 4.

V. 3. your work of faith] Your faith which is not a dead, but a living faith, working through love; although faith be oppoſed to the workes of the Law, by this Apoſtle (Rom. 3. 28.) who concludeth, that we are juſtified by faith, and not by the works of the Law; yet is faith a work of grace, and of the Goſpel, and ſo is called by Chriſt himſelf, John 6. 29.

and labour of love] The duties of true love, exerciſed and practiſed by you, without ſparing your ſelves in hard and dangerous times and occaſions.

patience of hope] Your voluntary and conſtant patience under the Croſſe, for the Goſpel, which is upheld by the aſſured hope of a farre exceeding and eternall weight of glory; 2 Cor. 4. 17.

in our Lord] Gr. of our Lord.

in the ſight of God] Either the meaning is, what time ſoever we preſent our ſelves before God, to pray unto him, we remember you: or this may be added to ſignifie the truth and ſincerity of theſe vertues in the Theſſalonians.

V. 4. Knowing] By Gods bleſſing upon our labours, in your true converſion, and the fruits of true faith, brought forth by you, that you are elected of God.

beloved, your election of God] Or, beloved of God, your election.

V. 5. but alſo in power] Either powerfully teſtified by miracles, or a moſt powerfull working upon your hearts.

and in the holy Ghoſt] Either he meaneth the extraordinary gifts of the holy Ghoſt, or the teſtimony of the Spirit, aſſuring them of their effectuall calling.

V. 6. with joy of the holy Ghoſt] A ſpirituall joy wrought in you by the holy Ghoſt.

V. 8. Word of the Lord] The Goſpel is ſo termed, either becauſe the Lord is the Author, or, the object of it; for it is both à Domino, and de Domino.

V. 9. entering in we had] That is, what loving entertainment, and kinde acceptance we had from you, and how cheerfully you embraced the Goſpel. Act. 17.

ſerve the living and true God] God is ſaid to be the true God in oppoſition to all falſe Gods, Joh. 17. 3. but, the living God, partly in oppoſition to idols, which were images of dead men, and themſelves liveleſſe being ſenſleſſe ſtocks; or to teach us, that God hath life in himſelf, and is the Author of all life, both of nature, grace and glory.

V. 10. wrath to come] Chriſt delivereth us from the wrath of God, both preſent, and to come; yet the Apoſtle nameth onely wrath to come, as S. John Baptiſt likewiſe doth, Matth. 3. 7. becauſe that is the moſt dreadfull wrath, and the deliverance from that, the greateſt and moſt illuſtrious deliverance of all. Apoc. 6. 16, 17.

CHAP. II.

Verſ. 1. IN vain] The meaning is, either that he preached not vain things unto them, as Poeticall fictions, or curious ſpeculations, but true and neceſſary doctrins: or that his preaching among them was not without fruit, but through the operation of the Spirit, fruitfull and effectuall: in which ſenſe the ſacred ſymbols or elements are truly affirmed by Proteſtants not to be κενὰ, the word here uſed, that is, bare vain, or empty ſigns, becauſe the Spirit worketh by them, and they really exhibit to the ſoul that which is ſignified by them.

V. 2. ſhamefully entreated] Cruelly beaten with rods, and after caſt into priſon, and his feet ſet faſt in the ſtocks, Acts 16. 23, 24. as if he had been a vagabond, a rogue: but the more diſgrace the enemies of the Goſpel put upon him, the more God honoured him by miraculouſly ſhaking the foundation of the priſon, and looſening his and all his fellow-priſoners bands, and converting the Gaoler himſelf to the Chriſtian faith.

bold in our God] That is, truſting in Gods help, who powerfully aſſiſted us, and as it were owned us. The poſſeſſive our here, as my elſewhere, Pſal. 18. 2. Eſa. 25. 1. Dan. 9. 18, 19. Luke 1. 47. Phil. 3. 8. Rev. 3. 12. ſhew the ſpeciall affiance, which the faithfull have in God, which becauſe the Romaniſts diſclaim, they ſhew they underſtand not the nature of true juſtifying faith.

with much contention] Gr. in much ſtrife. With much fervency of zeal, and ſtrong conteſtation with all gain-ſayers of the truth. For it is not ſufficient to hold the right faith, or preach it; but we muſt ſtrive and earneſtly contend for it, Jude 3.

V. 3. not of deceit] The heretikes and falſe Apoſtles, propoſed to themſelves chiefly three ends, applauſe, gain, and voluptuouſneſſe: the firſt they ſought to attain by ſoothing their hearers, and colloging with them; the ſecond by crafty fetches, and cloakes of covetouſneſſe; the third by ſowing pillows under mens elbows, and preaching doctrins tending to carnall liberty; from all which the Apoſtle cals God himſelf to be his compurgatour, from the firſt verſ. 6. from the ſecond verſe 5. from the third ver. 3.

V. 4. Allowed of God] As God hath thought us fit to be truſted with the preaching of the Goſpel, and given his approbation to our miniſtery: ſo we ſeek to approve our ſelves to him, in all things, and not to men, as the falſe Apoſtles do, who are time-ſervers and men-pleaſers.

trieth] Or, proveth.

our hearts] Jer. 17. 10. Acts 1. 24. Rom. 8. 27.

V. 5. nor a cloak of covetouſneſſe] For the ſincerity of his teaching and actions he calleth them, but for the ſincerity of his intentions, he calleth God to witneſſe. The word in the Originall προφάσει, ſignifieth a faire and ſpecious pretext, which they commonly uſe to beguile their hearers with, who go about under hand to make a gain and a prey of them.

V. 6. been burdenſome] Or, uſed authority. When we might have taken upon us, and exerciſed our Apoſtolicall authority, and required of you ſuch maintenance and chargeable entertainment, as might befit the Ambaſſadours of Chriſt, yet we tooke a contrary courſe, we put you to no coſt at all, nor came unto you with a rod; but with the ſpirit of meekneſſe, 1 Cor. 4. 21.

V. 7. gentle among you] Tenderly affected, as a nurſe which beareth with a froward childe, and patiently taketh all paines with it, as if ſhe were the mother.

V. 8. our own ſoules] Either to have imparted and communicated unto you all our ſecreteſt intentions, and the very bottome of our hearts: or we would have been contented even to have laid down our lives for you, ſo farre were we from going about to make any gain or advantage of you.

V. 9. labouring night and day] See Acts 20. 34. 2 Theſſ. 3. 8.

be chargeable] See 1 Cor. 4. 12.

V. 10. how holily] Holily in reſpect of God, juſtly in reſpect of men, unblamably in reſpect of our ſelves: or holily in our miniſteriall function, juſtly in our civill affaires, and commerce, and unblamably in reſpect of our private carriage with our familiar and moſt intimate friends. This text ſeemeth to be parallel to Titus 2. 12. for holy anſwereth to godly there, juſtly to righteouſly, and unblamably to ſoberly.

V. 11. charged] Gr. teſtifying.

as a father doth his children] Before he compared himſelfe to a nurſe which tenderly affecteth, and carefully attendeth and cheriſheth the infant committed to her: but becauſe a nurſe cannot be of the like naturall affection as the parent, nor hath the like power to doe it good, nor authority over it, he improveth the former metaphor, and withall amplifieth his love unto them, by reſembling his care over them, and affection towards them to that of a father: and truly Paſtours are as ghoſtly fathers, both in reſpect of their fatherly affection, and fatherly power, and eſpecially, becauſe in Chriſt Jeſus they beget us through the Goſpel, 1 Cor. 4. 15.

V. 12. That ye would walk worthy of God] See Epheſ. 4. 1. Phil. 1. 27. Coloſſ. 1. 10.

V. 13. word of men] Who are ſubject to errour, and as themſelues, ſo their words are impotent and weak, but as the word of God, which is mighty in operation, and ſharper then a two-edged ſword, Heb. 4. 12. Or ye received it as the word of God with reverence, and religious attention, and full aſſurance of the truth thereof, yeelding both your aſſent and obedience thereunto.

V. 14. as they have of the Jews] What in particular the beleevers among the Jews ſuffered of their countreymen is ſet down, Heb. 11. 32, 33, 34. not only reproaches, but alſo ſpoyling of their goods, with other grievous perſecutions.

V. 15. killed the Lord Jeſus] He preventeth an offence which might be taken, for that the Jews eſpecially, above all others, perſecuted the Goſpel, that is no new thing, ſaith he, ſeeing they ſlew Chriſt himſelf, and ſtoned his Prophets, and have baniſhed me alſo.

perſecuted us] Or, chaſed us out.

contrary to all men] Who are of a froward and perverſe diſpoſition, oppoſing themſelves againſt all men, in reſiſting the courſe and ſucceſſe of the Goſpel among the Gentiles, and as much as in them lyeth, hindering the ſalvation of all men: juſt of the temper of thoſe Lawyers, againſt whom our Saviour pronounced a dreadfull woe, Luke 11. 52. who neither entred themſelves into the Kingdome of God, nor ſuffered any others to enter.

V. 16. fill up their ſinnes] The Jews intended not by perſecuting the Church of Chriſt; to fill up the meaſure of their ſins, and ſo to draw vengeance from heaven upon themſelves: but the Apoſtles meaning is, that God in his juſt judgment permitted them thus to make up the full meaſure of their owne, and their forefathers ſins, becauſe he intended to ſweep them away with the beſome of deſtruction, in the hand of the Romanes. In the phraſe and manner of expreſſion he alludeth to, Gen. 15. 16. & Matth. 23. 32.

come upon them to the uttermoſt] Or, ſuddenly fallen upon.

V. 18. Satan hindered us] By his agents and inſtruments, raiſing up new ſtirres and troubles in other Churches, where our preſence was required to compoſe them, and thereby we were hindered from coming to you. Or by laying blocks in our way through manifold perſecutions ſtirred up againſt us, ſtopping up all paſſages to you.

V. 19. our hope] In theſe words he paſſionately expreſſeth his love to them, ſaying, you are my hope, that is, they from whoſe growth in the knowledge of Chriſt through my miniſtery, I hope I ſhall receive praiſe of God; and ye are my joy, that is, they who bring me much joy and comfort; and my crown, that is, ye are they for whom by my faithfulneſſe in the exerciſe of my miniſtery among you, I ſhall receive a crown at the laſt day, 2 Tim. 4. 8. 1 Pet. 5. 4. Or, ye are the crown of my rejoycing or glorying, that is, I more rejoyce and glory in you then in a crown.

rejoycing] Or, glorying.

CHAP. III.

Verſ. 1. COuld no longer forbear] Before he compared himſelf to a Father, Chap. 2. ver. 11. and here he ſheweth how his bowels yearned towards the Theſſalonians, as his children; and becauſe he would not leave them comfortleſſe, he left himſelf helpleſſe, ſending his fellow-labourer Timotheus unto them, and ſtaying himſelf alone at Athens.

V. 2. to eſtabliſh you] The troubles and afflictions which befell the Apoſtle their teacher, were likely to unſettle the faith of the weak, and diſcourage them in their holy courſe he had ſet them in; therefore out of wiſdome and love he ſendeth Timotheus ſeaſonably unto them, both to ſtrengthen them in their faith, and comfort them in their fears, and arme them againſt the temptations of Satan.

V. 3. for your ſelves know] From my mouth, for at one and the ſame time that I preached unto you Chriſt crucified, I forwarned you that you were to bear his croſſe.

appointed thereunto] The word in the Originall κείμεθα, is the ſame with that which Simeon uſed when he bleſſed our Saviour, ſaying, Behold, this child is ſet for the fall and riſing of many. (Luk. 2. 34.) The godly are ſet as a mark, at which the arrowes of perſecution are ſhot: for in the Decree of their predeſtination to life, God hath ſo ordered, that they be conformable to the Image of his Sonne, firſt in their ſufferings, and after in glory, Rom. 8. 17. 29.

tempter have tempted you] Or, had. By tempter he meaneth the devill. See Matth. 4. 1.

be in vain] Or, had been.

V. 8. For now we live] Notwithſtanding all our croſſes and afflictions, and that death doth hunt us continually; yet are we glad, and rejoyce, and our ſpirit is revived when we heare of your conſtancie in the truth.

V. 9. our God] See 1 Theſſ. 2. 2.

V. 10. perfect that which is lacking in your faith. The word in the Originall, καταρτίσαι, ſignifieth to make even, and conſequently to perfect: for an even number is a perfect number, and an odde number imperfect. The Apoſtle before commended them for their ſtedfaſtneſſe in the faith; they wanted not conſtancy therefore; what they knew they ſtedfaſtly believed, and conſtantly profeſſed: but it ſeems they were not fully inſtructed in all points, but needed either a farther information in ſome doctrines of faith, which they had not yet learned; or a reſolution of ſome doubts which might trouble and perplex their conſcience: theſe lackings in their faith were partly ſupplyed by Timothie his ſending unto them; and partly by the Apoſtle in this Epiſtle: and it is very probable, that what he prayed for ſo earneſtly day and night, God granted unto him, a proſperous journey to the Theſſalonians, that he might water where before he had planted; and finiſh the building where he had ſo happily laid the foundation.

V. 11. direct] Or, guide.

V. 13. ſtabliſh your hearts] See 1 Cor. 1. 8. Chap. 5. 23.

unblameable] See 1 Cor. 1. 8.

holineſſe] Gr. Tec. righteouſneſſe.

CHAP IIII.

Verſ. 1. BEſeech you] Or, requeſt.

exhort you] Or, beſeech.

by the Lord Jeſus] Gr. in. That is, by the command of the Lord Jeſus: or, in the Lord Jeſus, that is, in the Name of the Lord Jeſus.

V. 3. the will of God] He meaneth the object of Gods will, or his commandement, which is, that we endeavour to keep our ſelves holy, both in body and ſoule; and carefully ſhun all pollution both of fleſh and ſpirit, 2 Cor. 7. 1.

your ſanctification] Or, holineſſe. The word in the Originall ἁγιασμὸς, ſignifieth ſometimes ſanctification, as Matth. 6. 9. 2 Theſſ. 2. 13. Sometimes ſanctimonie, or holineſſe, as Rom. 6. 19. It may be taken here in either ſenſe: for if we refer it to the former words, the meaning is, This is Gods revealed will, or word which ſanctifieth you, as Joh. 17. 17. if it be referred to the latter words, it may be well rendred your holineſſe: for abſtaining from all filthineſſe, is a great part of our holineſſe.

from fornication] He taketh here fornication generally for all uncleanneſſe committed alone, or with others, men, or women, ſingle, or married: as alſo all inceſtuous marriages within the degrees prohibited, 1 Cor. 5. 1.

V. 4. poſſeſſe his veſſel] Or, keep. Some of the ancients, as Saint Auguſtine l. de nupt. c. 8. underſtand our wife, or the body of our wife; applying this exhortation peculiarly to married folks, that they keep their bed undefiled, and that they wrong not one another in that kind. For though ſuch defrauding and wrong be done never ſo ſecretly; yet God, to whoſe eyes all things are naked, taketh notice thereof. But by the antecedents and conſequence, and ſcope of the place, it ſhould ſeem, that the exhortation is generall; and that by Veſſel, here he underſtandeth the body of every man, or woman, which is σκεῦος, as a veſſell, or utenſill of the ſoul, which we ought not to proſtitute to any manner of uncleanneſſe; but uſe and govern it holily and chaſtly; keep it in honour, and in holineſſe, as the veſſels were kept clean and ſweet, which were dedicated to the ſervice of the Sanctuary.

V. 5. luſt of concupiſcence] Gr. paſſion. In the Originall it is ἐν πάθει ἐπιθυμίας. which ſignifieth a paſſion or diſeaſe of the mind, whereby a man is inſlaved to beaſtly and inordinate deſires; ſo the word is uſed, Rom. 1. 26. πάθη ἀτιμίας.

V. 6. and defraud] Or, over-preſſe, or, over-reach. Either by falſe weights or meaſures, or lying words, or fraudulent intentions, or over-reaching policies and devices: for though theſe things come not, at leaſt uſually, within the walk of mans juſtice, yet God will meet with ſuch perſons, and revenge all ſuch wrongs done to our brethren.

in any matter] Or, in the matter.

V. 7. unto holineſſe] Gr. in.

V. 8. that deſpiſeth] Or, rejecteth. Theſe wholeſome and Apoſtolicall counſels and commands, or he that maketh light of ſuch fraudulent dealing above mentioned, ſlighteth God himſelf, and rejecteth his holy commands.

V. 9. taught of God] See Joh. 13. 34. and 15. 12.

V. 11. do your own buſineſſe] In theſe words he reproveth two vices; idleneſſe and curioſitie; idleneſſe, in neglecting their own buſineſſe; and curioſitie, in intermedling with other mens affairs, which vice he reproveth alſo elſe-where, 1 Tim. 5. 13.

V. 12. walk honeſtly] Or, decently. See Col. 4. 5.

of nothing] Or. of no man.

V. 13. which are aſleep] Act. 7. 60. 1 Cor. 15. 20.

ſorrow not] He forbiddeth not Chriſtian ſorrow for the dead, but heatheniſh; not moderate, but exceſſive, and immoderate; either in reſpect of time, or the meaſure of our grief: we may water our plants for our deceaſed friends, but not drown them.

no hope] To wit, of the reſurrection of the dead: ſuppoſing that their departed friends are utterly loſt, and periſhed, and they ſhall never ſee them again.

V. 14. them alſo which, &c.] See 1 Cor. 15. 23.

ſleep in Jeſus] The dead in Chriſt who continue in faith, whereby they are graffed into Chriſt even to the laſt gaſpe.

God bring with him] He will raiſe their bodies, and joyn their ſouls unto them, and ſo bring them with him to heaven; or to ſee the face of God. And it is to be obſerved, that the Apoſtle here ſpeaking of the reſurrection, maketh no mention at all of the reſurrection of the wicked to condemnation; but onely of the reſurrection of the elect to life and glory: and the reaſon hereof is two-fold. Firſt, becauſe his purpoſe was in this part of his Epiſtle to comfort the Theſſalonians, verſ. 18. whereas the doctrine of the raiſing of the wicked to their condemnation and everlaſting puniſhment, is a doctrine of terour. Secondly, becauſe he directeth his ſpeech here to them who lived and dyed in the faith of Chriſt; who as members of Chriſt ſhall be raiſed with him to everlaſting glory, and never experimentally know any reſurrection to condemnation.

V. 15. by] Gr. in.

word of the Lord] Some underſtand this word of the Lord to be the Promiſe of Chriſt, Mat. 24. 31. and Joh. 5. 28, 29. Some take it for a peculiar revelation of Chriſt to Saint Paul, when he was rapt up into the third heaven, 2 Cor. 12. 4.

alive and remain] In theſe words the Apoſtle doth not imply that he and thoſe to whom he wrote, ſhould continue living in the fleſh untill the day of judgement; for the event ſhewed the contrary: but dividing all the faithfull into two ranks, thoſe that were already dead, and the reſt which were yet living; he reckoneth himſelf among the living, as then he was, and the ſecret he revealeth unto them, is this, That the dead which have long lyen in their graves, and their bones reſolved to duſt, ſhall notwithſtanding by the mighty power of God, be aſſoone brought before Chriſt, and glorified, as they that ſhall be alive at his ſecond coming, 1 Cor. 15. 51, 52. Or he ſpeaketh of theſe things as though he ſhould be one of them, whom the Lord ſhall finde alive at his coming, becauſe that time is uncertain, and therefore every one of us ought to be in ſuch a readineſſe as if the Lord were coming at every moment.

V. 16. with a ſhout] Gr. in. ἐν κελεύσματι. The word doth properly ſignifie ſuch voyces and cries, as are uſed by Mariners, or gatherers of the vintage, to encourage one another to joyn their ſtrength together, and go on cheerfully with their work.

CHAP. V.

Verſ. 1. Times and ſeaſons] For the yeer, moneth, day, or houre, in which the Sonne of man ſhall come to Judgement, as it is curioſity for you to enquire, ſo it is not given to any man or Angel to reſolve you therein; or preciſely determine the times and ſeaſons which the Father hath put in his own power, Mat. 24.36. Mark 13.32. Act. 1.7.

V. 2. the day of the Lord, &c.] See Mat. 24.43, 44. 2 Pet. 3.10. Rev. 3.3. and 16.15.

thief in the night] It cannot be from hence gathered, that Chriſts coming ſhall be in the night, as ſome have imagined; but that his coming ſhall be ſudden, and unexpected; it ſhall ſteal upon men when they dream not of it, Luk. 12.39, 40.

V. 3. Peace and ſafety] Generall ſecurity is a fore-runner of the day of Judgement, Luk. 17.27. when the light of the truth is taken away; when the heart of the good man of the houſe is at reſt, and his eyes are darkened that he cannot ſee, and all his ſenſes are drowned in worldly pleaſures: when the world like Laiſh, (Judg. 18.7.) is moſt ſecure and cares for nothing, or thinks of nothing; then will the Sonne of man come to Judgement, then ſhall deſtruction ſuddenly fall upon them.

a woman with child] Women that are with child, though they may have certain ſignes, that the time of their delivery is neer, yet they cannot know the very day and houre; ſo likewiſe though Chriſt in the Goſpel hath given us many certain ſignes of the approach of his coming, yet not of the day or houre.

V. 5. children of the day] See Rom. 13.12.

V. 6. let us not ſleep] Returning to exhortation, he warneth us which are enlightned with the knowledge of God, that it is our duty not to live ſecurely and deliciouſly, leſt we be ſuddenly taken in a dead ſleep in pleaſures; but on the contrary, wiſely to have an eye to the Lord, and to take care that our hearts be not oppreſſed with ſurfetting and drunkenneſſe, and the cares of this life, and that day come upon us at unawares, Luk. 21.34.

V. 13. very highly] Gr. over and above.

for their works ſake] He calleth the paſtorall function here, as 1 Tim. 3.1. a work κατ᾽ ἐξοχὴν, partly to ſignifie that it is a moſt laborious function; for faithfull Paſtours like lamps ſpend the oyle of their lives to give light to their flock: partly in reſpect of the excellencie of their work, wherein they are fellow-labourers with God to bring men unto ſalvation. 1 Cor. 3.9.

V. 14. exhort] Or, beſeech.

warn them that are unruly] Or, diſorderly. We muſt have conſideration of every mans condition, and affection; and as the diſeaſe is, ſo muſt the remedy be uſed of admonition to them that are diſorderly; conſolation to them whoſe heavy ſoules under the burden of their croſſes; of ſupport to weak conſciences, and of meek patience towards all who are diſeaſed in mind, and troubled with any ſpirituall maladie.

V. 15 See that none, &c.] See Prov. 17.13. and 20.22. Mat. 5.44. Rom. 12.17. 1 Pet. 3.19.

V. 16. Rejoyce evermore] Carnall joyes are but like a blaze of a fire nouriſhed with ſtubble, which ſoon goes out: they who rejoyce in their goods, in their children, in their peace and worldly ſafety, in their honour and preferments, (Eccl. 7.6.) or their deſcent of their pedegree, their joy is tranſitorie; but thoſe who rejoyce in the holy Ghoſt, and the comforts of the Spirit, their joy is everlaſting. Wherefore though ye find many troubles in the world and cauſes of grief, (Phil. 4.4.) yet ſtill rejoyce in the Lord, and comfort your ſelves with the hope of a better life; and even when you ſorrow and mourn for your ſinnes, rejoyce in this, that you ſorrow after a godly manner, and that the more abundantly you ſow in tears, the more plentifully you ſhall reape in joy.

V. 17. Pray without ceaſing] See Luk. 18.1. Col. 4.2. Be inſtant and conſtant in prayer, becauſe we ſtand in continuall need of Gods help, either to give us ſomething that is good, or to deliver us from that which is evill. The Apoſtle biddeth us pray continually, Col. 4.2. not that we ſhould ſpend all our time in prayer, and do nothing elſe, as the Euchites and the Meſſilians taught, but that we ſhould be ready to pray upon all occaſions; and whenſoever we have opportunity to lift up our hearts to God either in ſet and compoſed prayers, or ſudden and heavenly ejaculations.

V. 18. In every thing give thanks] Whatſoever God ſends receive it thankfully; in proſperity give thanks unto him, becauſe he crowneth you with temporall mercies; in adverſity, becauſe he thereby tryeth your faith and patience, and gives you a ſight and ſenſe of your ſinnes; in wealth, becauſe he affordeth you thereby means of doing much good; in want, becauſe he taketh away from you many nouriſhments of vice, and teacheth you to depend upon him and his promiſes for your ſupply and ſupport, and not upon outward means and helps: in all the paſſages of your life, for his care and providence over you; and at your death for his delivering you from the miſeries of this life, and preſently receiving you into his heavenly kingdome.

for this is the will of God] A thing acceptable unto God, ſuch as he liketh well of, 1 Theſſ. 4.3. Rom. 12.2.

V. 19. Quench not the Spirit] Stop not the motions of the Spirit in your ſelves, nor reſtrain the gifts thereof in others. The ſpeech is Metaphoricall, taken from the fire of the Altar, which never was to go out. The Spirit is compared to a fire both in reſpect of the light that it giveth to the underſtanding, and the heat and fervour to our affections. When we feele this fire within us, either in our private meditations, or at the hearing of the Word, we muſt endeavour to keep it ſtill burning, and if it ſlack in us, we muſt ἀναζωπυρεῖν, ſtirre it up in us, 2 Tim. 1.6. by ſuch means as God hath ordained for that end.

V. 20. Deſpiſe not propheſyings] Contemne not the preaching of the Word, how mean ſoever the Preachers gifts ſeem unto thee, ſet not light by the declarations and applications of the Scriptures, either by ſuch as have the Extraordinary gift of propheſying, 1 Cor. 14.1, 5. Or by the ordinary gift which the Miniſters of the Goſpel receive by impoſition of hands, 2 Tim. 1.6. In this Prohibition the Apoſtle meeteth with thoſe, who thought themſelves wiſe enough of themſelves, and that they had no need of any ſuch help, Heb. 10.25. 2 Pet. 1.19.

V. 23. whole ſpirit and ſoule] Either he taketh the ſpirit for the underſtanding, and the ſoul for the will and affections: or the ſpirit for the rationall part of the ſoul, containing in it both the underſtanding and the will; and by the ſoule the ſenſitive and locomotive facultie.

ANNO-

ANNOTATIONS

On the ſecond Epiſtle of Paul the Apoſtle to the THESSALONIANS.

The ARGUMENT and ANALYSIS.

THe Apoſtle being hindered from coming to the Theſſalonians, according to his deſire and promiſe, to ſupply the want of his preſence, writeth this Epiſtle to them; wherein he comforteth them in their affliƈtions, eſpecially by Arguments drawn from the righteous judgement of God, and the certain expeƈtation of his ſecond coming; the ſignes whereof he foretelleth, and with divers godly precepts, both to flie the company of diſorderly perſons, and to give him notice of ſuch, to exercise his Apoſtolicall power upon them, with prayers and ſalutations, he concludeth his Epiſtle.

The parts whereof are three, anſwerable to the Chapters.

1. Patheticall, expreſſing great love to the Theſſalonians, and joy for their Faith and perſeverance, Chap. 1.

2. Propheticall, deſcribing the ſtate of the Church, and the Revelation of Antichriſt, the man of ſin, before the day of the Lord come, Chap. 2.

4. Pareneticall, perſwading them by his example to labour in their Callings, and to ſhun idleneſſe, as alſo to avoid and cenſure thoſe who ſhewed themſelves refraƈtory to his Godly and wholeſome Admonitions, Chap. 3.

CHAP. I.

Verſ. 1. IN God our Father] As God is in his Church by his ſpeciall grace, ſo the Church alſo is in God by his power ſupporting it, as the Apoſtle ſpeaketh, Act. 17. 18. In whom we live. Or the meaning is, which by faith relyeth on God our Father; or which is gathered by God our Father, is being often taken for did.

V. 3. We are bound, &c.] See 1 Theſſ. 1. 2, 3.

your faith groweth exceedingly] There is no ſurer argument of the ſinceritie of our faith and charity, then the growth of both, and our proficiencie in Chriſtianitie: we may not ſtand at a ſtay, but go on forward in our holy race. In particular, our faith groweth, and is increaſed either in regard of the object, when we apprehend more profound myſteries of faith then before; or in regard of the ſubject, when we are more confirmed in thoſe myſteries we apprehended before, and give a more full aſſent thereunto, without any ſtaggering or doubting. Our charity encreaſeth either intenſively, by a greater fervour of our affection to God and our brethren; or extenſively, by doing good to more, and more and more abounding in works of mercy.

V. 4. faith in all your perſecutions] Your confidence in God, that he will enable you to bear them, and graciouſly reward you who ſuffer for his Names ſake.

V. 5. a manifeſt token] He openeth here the fountain of all true comfort, to wit, that in affliƈtions which we ſuffer of the wicked for righteouſneſſe ſake, we may behold, as it were in a glaſſe, the teſtimony of that Judgement to come, and the iſſue thereof, which will be moſt acceptable and deſireable unto us, but moſt dreadfull to Gods enemies.

counted worthy] He ſaith not, that we may be worthy, for the ſufferings of this preſent time are not worthy the glory which ſhall be revealed, Rom. 8. 18. but we ſhall be by God in his great mercy accounted worthy, and that for Chriſts ſake, in whoſe quarrell we ſuffer, Digni dignatione Dei, non dignitate noſtra.

for which ye alſo ſuffer] This he ſaith, not that the faithful conceive, that they merited this kingdome by their ſufferings, but becauſe they knew that they ſhould never attain it, unleſſe they patiently ſubmitted to Gods good pleaſure, and willingly endured all ſorts of perſecution for the teſtimony of a good conſcience. For we muſt through many tribulations, enter into the Kingdome of God, Act. 14. 22.

V. 6. righteous thing with God] It is moſt agreeable to juſtice, that wicked perſecutors ſhould not go unpuniſhed, but receive according to their works; and it is juſt alſo, that they who have unjuſtly ſuffered of the wicked in this world, ſhould be righted in another world, and greatly rewarded by God; partly becauſe they ſuffer for his cauſe, partly becauſe he hath promiſed them ſuch a reward, Matth. 5. 10, 12.

V. 7. troubled] Gr. afflicted.

when the Lord Jeſus ſhall be revealed from] Gr. in the revelation of the Lord Jeſus from. See 1 Theſſ. 4. 16.

his mighty angels] Gr. the angels of his power.

V. 8. taking] Or, yeelding.

know not God] Which know not God in Chriſt: for there is no knowledge of God unto ſalvation without the Goſpel of Chriſt. Moſt fearfull therefore is the caſe of all Infidels, who are utterly ignorant of, or wilfully reject the Goſpel; as alſo of all ſuch Chriſtians in name, who have received the knowledge of the Goſpel, but yeeld not obedience thereunto: for though they deny not Chriſt in their words, yet they deny him in their works, Tit. 1. 16.

V. 9. everlaſting deſtruƈtion] Not only the fire of hell is everlaſting, as the Origeniſts themſelves confeſſed, being convinced by the expreſſe words of our Saviour, Matth. 25. 41. but the damned ſhall be everlaſtingly tormented in it, Jude 7. Rev. 14. 10.

from the preſence of the Lord] The puniſhment of the damned is two-fold, the puniſhment of ſenſe, ſet forth by flaming fire; the puniſhment of loſſe expreſſed in theſe words, From the preſence of the Lord, and the glory of his power.

V. 10. glorified in his Saints] Not only in himſelf, but in his Saints alſo, whoſe glory, as it cometh from him, ſo it redoundeth alſo to him, Rom. 11. 36.

admired in all them] When the world ſhall ſee them, who are accounted the off-ſcourings of all things in this world, then ſhine as ſtarres for evermore, in whoſe brightneſſe and conformity to the glorious body of Chriſt, his infinite goodneſſe and mercy ſhall be then admired of all.

V. 11. count] Or, vouchſafe.

of this calling] By calling, he meaneth not the very act of calling, but that whereunto they are called, to wit, the glory of that heavenly Kingdome, ſo is the word taken, Ephe. 4. 4. Phil. 3. 14.

CHAP. II.

Verſ. 1. BY the coming of our Lord] A kind of religious adjuration; the meaning whereof is, As truly as you look for the coming of the Lord; or, I beſeech you by this dear account that ye make of the coming of our Lord, and of that glory which we ſhall enjoy by, and in him. So the Preposition [illegible] is uſed by the Poet, Il. μ. [illegible]

V. 2. ſhaken in mind] Or, moved from our mind. The word σαλευθῆναι properly ſignifieth to be toſſed in the Sea with a Tempeſt: and his meaning is, that they ſhould not be tranſported by any violent blaſt of falſe doctrine from the truth of the Goſpel, or from their right ſenſe and judgement.

neither by ſpirit] We muſt take heed of falſe Prophets, who go about to deceive for the moſt part after three ſorts; for either they beaſt of feigned Viſions, and Propheticall Revelations, or by conjectures and ſophiſticall reaſons of their own, or they uſe counterfeit Writings; with which three the Apoſtle meeteth in this verſe; the firſt he taxeth in the firſt, by ſpirit, the ſecond in the next, by word, the third in the laſt, by letter, as it were, from us. (Although ſome conceive, and not improbably, that the falſe Apoſtles forged not any letter of the Apoſtle, but falſly gloſſed upon ſome paſſages in the former Epiſtle to the Theſſalonians, from thence inferring erroneouſly, that the Apoſtle ſhould intimate, that the day of judgement was then at hand.)

V. 3. falling away firſt] Some underſtand by the word Ἀποστασία, a falling away of many kingdoms from the Roman Empire; but the word Apoſtaſie in the New Teſtament, is taken for a falling away from the truth of doctrine, and the purity of the Goſpel: and ſuch a kind of generall and univerſall revolt, and defection from true faith, love and obedience to the Goſpel of Chriſt, is foretold to come to paſſe in the latter daies, by the Apoſtle, 1 Tim. 4. 1.

man of ſinne] An Hebraiſme, ſignifying, a man notoriouſly ſinfull, and a loſt ſonne, or a ſonne of perdition, ſuch a one as Judas is termed, Joh. 17. 12.

V. 4. exalteth himſelf above] Not onely above all that are called gods, that is, Kings and Princes, to whom that ſtyle is given; but alſo above the true God, croſſing and contradicting his Word and ordinance, and oppoſing Chriſt and his doctrine, and offices; whence he hath his name Antichriſt, although he ſhall pretend nothing leſſe; therefore alſo two hornes are attributed to him, like the horns of the Lamb, Rev. 13. 11.

is worſhipped] ἢ σέβασμα, the Greek word, doth ſignifie that which is held in the higheſt degree of reverence, whether religious or civill, as is the Majeſtie of Kings.

he as God] He ſhall be honoured with the honour that is due unto God, he ſhall be carried upon the ſhoulders of men, and waited upon by Kings and Princes; he ſhall take to himſelf the ſupreme Authority and Prerogative which appertains to God, and not ſtick at the very Title of God, and be adored upon the Altar at his conſecration. See Concil. Later. ſeſ. 4. Tu es alter Deus in terra: and Extravag. Jo, 22. in gloſ. Dominus Deus noſter Papa.

ſitteth in the Temple of God] That is, reigneth and domineereth. In the phraſe the Apoſtle alludeth to Ezek 28. 2. By the Temple of God he meaneth, the Aſſembly of men which ſometimes were the ſpirituall Temple of God; that is, his undoubted true Church, and ſtill beareth that title. Saint Auguſtine and others interpret εἰς τὸν ναὸν, not in the Temple of God, but againſt the Temple of God; and they conceive hereby to be meant, that Antichriſt ſhall riſe up againſt the Church of God. Both waies it may be applyed to the Antichriſt of Rome.

V. 6. what witholdeth] Or, holdeth. That which now did hinder and keep him back yet at preſent, untill the time prefixed by God. This (by the judgement of Tertullian, Hierome, and Chryſoſtome, and other ancient Doctors of the Church) was the Romane Empire, which ſubſiſting and flouriſhing then, withheld the manifeſtation of Antichriſt, who ſhall riſe upon the ruines of that Empire. Revel. 13. 1, 11. & 17. 9, 10, 11.

V. 7. myſtery of iniquity] The word myſterie was written on the Popes Miter. See Caſaub. not. in Teſt. Nov. there the myſterie of iniquitie is oppoſed to the myſterie of godlineſſe, 1 Tim. 3. 16. and it ſignifyeth the ſecret riſing of Antichriſtian dominion, whereof ſome foundations were ſecretly laid in the Apoſtles times by Satan and his inſtruments, who by deſire of preheminency in the Church, 3 John 9, 10. and by introducing of falſe and ſuperſtitious doctrine, began to build his Romiſh Babel.

V. 8. that wicked] In the Greek ἄνομος, properly ſignifieth a lawleſſe man, he that holdeth himſelf ſubject to no law; and this title well beſitteth him, who in the Canon Law is ſaid to be ſolutus omni lege humana; and again, nec totus clerus, nec totus mundus poteſt Papam judicare, aut deponere; and that if he fall into damnable errour, and draw thouſands of Souls after him to perdition, no man may here ſay, Why doth he ſo? Diſt. 40.

ſhall conſume] The word ἀναλώσει, doth properly ſignifie to waſte and conſume by little and little, till a thing come to nothing; ſo ſhall Chriſt conſume Antichriſt by little and little, in his own time, [illegible] by degrees, in Chriſtendome.

with the ſpirit of his mouth] See Eſa. 11. 4. Hoſ. 6. 5. Rev. 2. 16. By the pure preaching of his Goſpel, whereby the Spirit of the Lord is powerfull in the hearts of men, Eſa. 11. 4. Heb. 4. 12. for the Miniſters of the Word are as a mouth, whereby the Lord breatheth out that mightie and everlaſting Word, which ſhall bruiſe his enemies, and break them in ſunder like a rod of iron.

deſtroy] Or, bring to nought.

brightneſſe of his coming] At the day of judgement, for then he ſhall come in flaming fire, 2 Theſ. 1. 8. and then ſhall the beaſt, and falſe Prophet be put to death, and caſt into the lake of fire, Revel. 19. 20.

V. 9. with] Gr. in.

lying wonders] Gr. of lie, or, falſhood. Either falſe and counterfeit ſignes and wonders, or true ſignes and wonders, miranda, non miracula, wrought by the power of Satan, to confirme erroneous doctrines and lies, and to maintain his ſervants in their reputation, and purblinde men in their falſe conceits and ſuperſtition: ſuch are Popiſh miracles (falſly ſo called) being either lying prodigies, or prodigious lies.

V. 10. with] Gr. in.

V. 11. ſhall] Gr. Tec. doth.

ſend them ſtrong deluſion] God, by withholding his grace, ſhall blinde their eyes, who wilfully ſhut them againſt the truth; or for their obdurate malice and incredulitie, ſhall give them over to Satan, to captivate their minds and underſtandings, and powerfully ſeduce and deceive them. 1 Kings 22. 22. Job 12. 16. Eſay 19. 14. Ezek. 14. 9. Rom. 1. 24, 28. 2 Cor. 4. 4.

believe a lie] Forged and falſe doctrines.

V. 12. damned] Gr. judged.

pleaſure in unrighteouſneſſe] That is, in lies, as appears by the oppoſition to truth; and moſt juſtly are they condemned, who liked lies ſo well, that they had pleaſure in them; which is the greateſt madneſſe that may be.

V. 13. through] Gr. in.

ſanctification of the Spirit] Either through the ſanctification of your ſpirit, your hearts being purified by faith; or, through ſanctification wrought in you by the Spirit of God.

and belief of the truth] Faith which [illegible] not upon lies, but upon the truth of God, which is the Goſpel.

V. 15. hold the traditions] The doctrines [illegible] inſtructions, which we delivered unto you, either by word of mouth, when I was preſent with you, or by my Letters in my abſence; to both yield like credence and obedience.

CHAP. III.

Verſ. 1. P*Ray for us*] See Epheſ. 6. 19. Col. 4. 3.

may have free courſe] Gr. may run.

and be glorified] As the Word of the Lord is diſhonoured and condemned when it is either not believed, or not obeyed; ſo it is glorified, and God by it, when it is mixed with faith and obedience in the hearers, Heb. 4. 2.

V. 2. unreaſonable and wicked men] Gr. abſurd. Froward and perverſe men, both falſe Hypocrites which cloſely undermine the Goſpel, and thoſe publike oppoſers of the truth, which perſecute us for the profeſſing of it.

for all men have not faith] Gr. faith is not of all men. It is no marvail that the Goſpel is oppoſed and hated by ſo many, ſeeing that faith is a rare gift of God; notwithſtanding the Church ſhall never be deſtroyed by the multitude of the wicked, becauſe it is founded upon the faithfull promiſe of God. Matth. 16. 18.

from evill] Or, that evill one. Either from the Devill, that wicked one, his ſnares and temptations, or from any evill thing that may hurt you.

V. 5. into the love] Or, to the love.

the patient waiting of Chriſt] Or, the patience of Chriſt.

V. 6. in the Name of the Lord] In Chriſt his behalf.

withdraw your ſelves] Have no Familiar communion with ſuch, after due knowledge is taken of them by the Church, and they, being admoniſhed, remain diſobedient ſtill. Matth. 18. 15, 17. 1 Cor. 5. 11.

walketh diſorderly] This may be taken, either in generall for all kinde of evill carriage and miſbehaviour, whereby ſcandall is given to the Church of God; or of that particular diſorder, whereof he maketh mention verſ. 11. of thoſe who attend not on their own calling, but curiouſly enquire into the lives and manners of others, and thruſt their Sickle into anothers harveſt.

V. 7. follow] Gr. imitate.

V. 8. for nought] That is, not paying for it, though if he had not paid for it, he had not received it for nought, for the labourer, as our Saviour teacheth, Matth. 10. 10. is worthy of his hire: and they who minister carnall things for spirituall, minister not for nought, but make a gainfull exchange. Yet the Apostle, to give a good example of painfulnesse to others by following his labours in his Ministeriall function, for which he might have required due maintenance from the Thessalonians, took pains day and night at his profession, which was Tent-making, thereby to supply his wants, and spare the Churches, Acts 18. 3.

chargeable to any of you] The Greek word signifieth burdensome; not that indeed the affording comfortable maintenance to their faithfull Pastours, is, or ought to be accounted a burden to their flocks; but because most men, who are worldly minded, esteem it so.

V. 10. that if any would not work] He saith not, If any do not work, for some would work if they could get any imployment; some are not able to work, through age and naturall infirmities; yet God forbid that either of these should starve for want of food: but the Apostle forbiddeth any such to be relieved by the charity of the Church, who are in want through their own idlenesse, who may have work, and are able to performe it, but will not take any pains for their living.

V. 11. busie-bodies] There are none more busie in other mens matters, then they who neglect their own, 1 Pet. 4. 15.

V. 12. eat their own bread] The bread which they earn by their labour, and not that which is given them of Almes.

V. 13. be not weary in well-doing] Or, faint. See Gal. 6. 9. Take heed that some mens unworthinesse cause not you to be slack in well-doing.

V. 14. by this Epistle, note that man] Or, signifie that man by an Epistle. Set a brand upon him, as Rom. 16. 17. marke those which cause divisions & offences contrary to the doctrine which you have learned. Or, give me notice of him by Letter, that I may take some course with him.

V. 15. as an enemy] We must so eschew familiarity with excommunicated persons, that we diligently seek all occasions and means that may be, to bring them again to the right way.

admonish] Or, instruct.

V. 16. Lord of peace] Prayers are the seales of all exhortations, wherewith the Apostle concludes all his Epistles.

ANNOTATIONS
On the first Epistle of Paul the Apostle to TIMOTHY.

The ARGUMENT and ANALYSIS.

THe Apostle in the former Epistles, propounded generall Doctrines and Instructions to all Christians, both concerning Faith and Manners: But in these ensuing Epistles to Timothy and Titus, he delivereth peculiar precepts to the Ministers of the Gospel, as well those who are in place of Authority, as Timothy and Titus, as inferiour Pastours, Presbyters, and Deacons: And though he had other fellow-Labourers, as Silas and Luke, and Mark and Tychicus: Yet he writeth to these two only, because the other were for the most part with him: But these were appointed by him to govern those Churches in which he had laid the Foundations of Christianity.

The parts of this Epistle are answerable to the eminent Parts and Gifts of the Authour, who was both an Apostle, and a Prophet, and a Pastour of the Church.

1. As an Apostle he prescribeth Canons concerning publike prayer, and the habit and carriage of Women in the Church, Chap. 2. Concerning the Office of Bishops, and Deacons, Chap. 3. Concerning the censuring and reproof of all Degrees, the Ordination and maintenance of Elders, choice and provision for Widows, Chap. 5. Concerning the duty of servants, and particular charge of the rich, Chap. 6.

2. As a Prophet he foretelleth the Apostasie of many in latter times, whose devellish doctrine he relates, and confutes, Chap. 4.

3. As a Pastour.
   1. He instructeth Timothy in the right end and use of the Law, and the main scope also of the Gospel, Chap. 1. As also in the Doctrine of the Church, and the blessed Truth, therein taught and professed, Chap. 3. And of the lawfull use of all Creatures taken with thanksgiving, Chap. 4.
   2. He exhorteth him to proficiencie in his Ministeriall Function, Chap. 4. To constancy in his Profession, observance of his Precepts, especially, That he eschew all vain bablings, and disputes of Sophistry, and continue in the simplicity of sincere Doctrine, Chap. 6.

CHAP. I.

Vers. 1. BY the commandment] Gr. according to the commandment.

our hope] Hope is here taken for the chiefe object of our hope, which is Christ, by whose merits we hope to obtain remission of our sins, and eternall life.

V. 2. own sonne] He calleth him his own Son in the faith, either because he was a means and instrument whereby Christ was perfectly formed in Timothy, or because he served him as a sonne doth his father, viz. in the ministery, or because he resembled the Apostle both in his preaching, and in his life, as a naturall sonne is like his father.

grace, mercy, and peace] Grace is the fountaine from whence mercy and peace flow; for the free good-will of God, whereby he hath chosen us in Christ, procureth us mercy in the forgivenesse of sinnes, and by the apprehension of this mercy we have peace of conscience.

V. 3. at Ephesus] Gr. in Ephesus.

teach no other doctrine] The chief Pastours of the Church, who were endued with Apostolicall authority, as was Timothy, were to forbid any to preach, not only doctrine that was contrary, but that which was beside that which the faithfull have received from the Apostles, Gal. 1. 8, 9.

V. 4. Neither give heed to fables] See Chap. 4. 7. and 6. 4. 2 Tim. 2. 23. Tit. 1. 14. and 3. 9. The doctrine of faith is corrupted, not only by false opinions, but also by vain and curious speculations, which are reputed as godly edifying.

and endlesse] He calleth them endlesse, not because in the Genealogies there was no end, neither upwards nor downwards; but because those of the Jews, who embraced Christian religion, were ſo addicted to theſe Genealogies, that they might have a pretence of claiming kindred of Chriſt, that they made no end of drawing down their lines of diſcent from David, or from Abraham: or becauſe the queſtions moved concerning Genealogies, by reaſon of the ſlender proof and ground they had for them, could receive no determination or end.

miniſter] Gr. exhibit, or, yeeld.

V. 5. Now] Or, But.

end of the Commandment] That is, the perfection and complement of the Law, Rom. 13. 8. Or the main ſcope and drift of the Commandments of God, both in the Law and Goſpel.

charity, out of a pure heart] There is neither love without a good conſcience, nor a good conſcience without faith, nor faith without the Word of God.

V. 6. having ſwerved] Or, not ayming at.

V. 7. whereof they affirme] Or, concerning what things they undertake to make good, or confirme.

V. 8. if a man uſe it lawfully] Gr. Tec. ſhall uſe. The Law is given to excellent purpoſe, if we make ſuch uſe of it as we ought, not ſeeking to be juſtified by the obſervation thereof, but to be directed by it in our obedience, as a perfect rule of life, and to be brought by it to Chriſt, Gal. 3. 24.

V. 9. righteous man] The Law is not made for the coertion, reſtraint, condemnation, or puniſhment of the righteous, but of lawleſſe and diſorderly perſons.

for ſinners] Such as make ſinne all their employment and occupation, ſuch as goe on in their ſinnes with pleaſure and delight.

murderers of fathers] He ſetteth down ſome of the moſt enormous ſinnes, not as if the Law did not condemn as well all the reſt, to the very leaſt; but onely to convince thoſe hypocritically zealous of the Law, who were themſelves obnoxious to horrible vices; ſuch as they are, which the Apoſtle inſtanceth in.

V. 10. men-ſtealers] Or, making ſlaves of men.

ſound doctrine] Or, wholeſome. That is, not tainted with hereſie. Or, wholeſome, that is, which brings health to the ſoul.

V. 11. glorious Goſpel] Gr. Goſpel of glory.

V. 13. injurious] Or, wrong-doer; or, contumelious traducer.

V. 15. a faithfull ſaying] πιςὸς, that is, ἀξιόπιςος, a firme truth, a ſure foundation, upon which we may build our beleefe.

Chriſt Jeſus came into the world, &c.] See Matth. 9. 13. Mark. 2. 17.

I am chief] Though Saint Paul were now a convert, and a Saint, yet he ranketh himſelf among the greateſt ſinners, in regard of his former life which had been ſtained with the foul ſins of blaſphemy againſt Chriſt, and perſecution of the profeſſors of the Goſpel unto death.

V. 17. eternall] Gr. of ages, or, worlds.

for ever and ever] Gr. to worlds of worlds, or, ages of ages.

V. 18. by them] Gr. In them.

warre a good warfare] A good warfare; as a Chriſtian, againſt the world, the fleſh, and the devill; as a faithfull Miniſter of the Goſpel, againſt all falſe Apoſtles, and corrupters of the true faith, 2 Tim. 4. 7.

V. 19. Holding faith] That is, the profeſſion or doctrine of the true faith, as appears by the oppoſition to the blaſphemings of Hymeneus and Alexander.

good conſcience] An upright conſcience, that directeth a man in all his doings to that whereof he hath been inſtructed out of the Word of God.

ſome having put away] Some whom God for giving reins to a licentious courſe of life, againſt the dictates of their own conſcience, hath puniſhed, by taking away the light of his Spirit from them, that in the midſt of their courſe they ſhould loſe their moſt precious ſpirituall merchandiſe, and be drowned in error and hereſie, after the manner of thoſe who in a Seatempeſt ſuffer ſhipwrack.

V. 20. Hymeneus and Alexander] Some do hold this Alexander to be he of whom mention is made Acts 19. 33. whereof there is no certainty; yet being joyned here with Hymeneus, it is moſt probable, that he was guilty of the ſame blaſphemous hereſie, for which Hymeneus is taxed, 2 Tim. 2. 18. viz. the denyall of the reſurrection of the dead.

whom I have delivered unto Satan] By Eccleſiaſticall excommunication; whereof ſee a further declaration upon 1 Cor. 5. 5.

learn not to blaſpheme] That they may conſider themſelves better, and come to the acknowledgement of their errour, which is the end and ſcope of Eccleſiaſticall diſcipline: Or, if they did not recant their errours, they might do leſſe hurt to the Church, and by their puniſhment be a warning to other blaſphemers and ſeducers; for the Greek word παιδευθῶσι, ſignifieth not only to be taught, but to be chaſtened and corrected.

CHAP. II.

Verſ. 1. Exhort] Or, deſire.

ſupplications, prayers] Either theſe words are Synonymaes, all ſignifying the publike devotions of the Church in her ſervice and Liturgie; or, they may be thus diſtinguiſhed: by δεήσεις, are meant ſuch prayers as we make in our neceſſities and diſtreſſes, to prevent and avoid evils that may befall us, or are come upon us; by προσευχάς, ſuch prayers wherein we ſue for good things at Gods hands, namely, ſpirituall and temporall bleſſings; by ἐντεύξεις, ſuch prayers wherein we intreat for the good of others.

for all men] That is, all kinds of men, Jews, Gentiles, bond, free, faithfull, infidels, friends, enemies, great men and mean ones, publike and private; or, as the word is often taken in Scriptures, as Matth. 4. 23. πᾶσαν νόσον, all diſeaſes, that is, all ſorts of diſeaſes. Luk. 11. 42. πᾶν λάχανον, all manner of herbs.

V. 2. For Kings] He mentioneth Kings particularly, either becauſe the Kings and Magiſtrates were then enemies to the Church, and perſecutors of the Saints of God, and ſome might peradventure make ſcruple whether they ought to pray for ſuch; the Apoſtle therefore reſolves they ought; and yeelds a double reaſon for it, the former in this verſe, that through Gods bleſſing upon their Government we may enjoy peace, (Jer. 29. 7.) The latter in the fourth verſe, becauſe God excludeth no ſorts or conditions of men from the means of ſalvation. Or, he nameth Kings in the firſt place, becauſe they are higheſt in dignity, and upon the good uſe of their power very much dependeth the ſafety of the Church and Common-wealth.

authority] Or, eminent place.

honeſty] Or, comelineſſe.

V. 4. all men to be ſaved] By as much as appeareth unto us by his will revealed in the Goſpel, he excluding none by name, neither nation nor condition whatſoever, Matth. 28. 19. Mark. 16. 15. Or, all, may be taken, not pro ſingulis generum, but pro generibus ſingulorum. Verſ. 1.

knowledge of the truth] That is, the doctrine of the Goſpel, as the word is taken, John 5. 33. & 8. 32. & 18. 37.

V. 5. between] Gr. of.

the man Chriſt Jeſus] The Apoſtle doth not adde man to exclude the divine nature from his Mediatourſhip: for he is God revealed in the fleſh, 1 Tim. 3. 16. and God hath purchaſed his Church by his blood, which through the eternall Spirit he offered without ſpot unto God, Heb. 9. 14. but to expreſſe that nature in which he paid the ranſome for us, mentioned in the verſe following; and to ſhew that our Mediatour being a man, all ſorts of men have by faith free acceſſe unto him and his offering, Heb. 2. 10.

V. 6. a ranſome for all] All that do believe in him, Matth. 20. 28. Joh. 3. 16. and 10. 15. Rom. 1. 16. and 3. 22.

to be teſtified in due time] Or, a teſtimony. Gr. Tec. for all in due time. The word μαρτύριον, is left out in the Greek Copie written by Tecla, and the ſenſe is full without it, Who gave himſelf a ranſome for all in due time; but if we retain the word becauſe moſt copies have it, the meaning is, That the ranſome he paid was a reall teſtimony of his Mediatourſhip betwixt God and man, whereby he reconciled both. Or the meaning is, That though their ranſome were paid at one time, yet it is teſtified to ſeverall Nations καιροῖς ἰδίοις, at ſeverall ſeaſons appointed by God for their converſion.

V. 7. Whereunto] See 2 Tim. 1. 11.

ordained a preacher] Gr. Tec. truſted to be a preacher.

teacher of the Gentiles] See Gal. 2. 7, 8.

V. 8. pray every where] Devotion is not now confined to one place as the ſolemn ſacrifice and ſervice was in the time of the Law; but as occaſion is offered we are to pray every where, looking not ſo much to outward circumſtances, as to the inward devotion of the heart, lifting up our hands to God in holineſſe, charity, and faith.

V. 9. women adorn themſelves, &c.] See 1 Pet. 3. 3.

broidered hair] Or, plaited. Women ought to deſire rather inward then outward ornaments, and in adorning themſelves outwardly, they muſt have a care that it be done in a faſhion that may argue neither wantonneſſe nor curious niceneſſe, nor waſtfulneſſe, nor pride, 1 Pet. 3. 3.

V. 11. ſilence with all ſubjection] Gr. in. Learn of their own husbands, not to take upon them to teach them: but in modeſt ſilence to receive inſtruction and command from them, 1 Cor. 14. 34.

V. 12. I ſuffer not a woman, &c.] See 1 Cor. 14. 34.

ſilence] Gr. quietneſſe.

V. 13. Adam was firſt formed] Adam had the prioritie in his creation, the woman was made after him, and for him, and of him, Gen. 2. 7. 21, 22. 1 Cor. 11. 8.

V. 14. Adam was not deceived] Immediately of the devill as Eve was: neither doth the ſtory it ſelf ſay that Adam was deceived by Eve, but onely that he took the forbidden fruit of her and did eat, Gen. 3. 6.

was in the tranſgreſſion] The woman was firſt and deepeſt in the tranſgreſſion, and a means to induce her husband to ſinne, wherefore alſo by way of puniſhment ſhe was more ſtraitly ſubjected to her husband, Gen. 3. 16.

V. 15. in child-bearing] Or, by child-bearing. If διὰ be taken, as it is moſt commonly, to ſignifie by, or through, then the meaning is, That though painfull child-bearing were part of the puniſhment inflicted upon Eve and her ſex, for her firſt tranſgreſſion, in eating the forbidden fruit, and tempting her husband to ſinne likewiſe; yet ſhe and all faithfull women ſhall be ſaved by Maries bearing the holy child Jeſus. For as κτίσις, ſignifying creation, is taken by a metonymie for the creature, Rom. 8. 19, 20, 21, 39. ſo alſo τεκνογονίας, for τέκνου γεννηθέντος, child-bearing, for the child born, the bleſſed fruit of the Virgins wombe, Luk. 1. 42. But if the prepoſition διὰ be taken for in, as Rom. 4. 11. πιστευόντων δι' ἀκροβυστίας for ἐν ἀκροβυστίᾳ, and in many other places, then the meaning is, That notwithſtanding by child-bearing and ſubjection to man, God hath imprinted on women the mark of the puniſhment inflicted upon Eve, and all women that conceive and bring forth children; whence ſome peradventure might have conjectured that in regard of this curſe, there was no hope of ſalvation for women unleſſe it were for the unmarried, or thoſe that were childleſſe: yet the Apoſtle teacheth that this ſhall not hinder their ſalvation, if they abide in the faith, nor the bodily evils and ſorrowes that they endure to ſtop the operation of the Spirit of grace in them. Or, bearing and breeding children is an ordinarie way through which women go to heaven, Chap. 5. 14.

CHAP. III.

Verſ. 1. A True ſaying] Gr. faithfull. See 1 Tim. 1. 15.

If a man deſire] Not ambitiouſly affect, but finds in himſelf a fitneſſe and willingneſſe to take upon him that office, moved thereunto by a holy and ſincere affection to conſecrate himſelf unto God in the ſervice of his Church, and to employ and improve there thoſe gifts which he hath received of him for the edification of Gods people.

a biſhop] That is, the office of an over-ſeer, which word may either have relation to the flock of Chriſt onely, and in that ſenſe it belongeth to all Paſtours who have cure of ſouls: Or, to the Paſtours themſelves alſo, as well as the flock, and in that ſenſe antiquity hath appropriated the word to ſignifie the chief Presbyter, or Miniſter, who had a ſuperintendencie over a whole Church compriſed within a Citie, or Dioceſſe, in which there were divers inferiour Paſtours. See the note upon Philippians 1. 1.

a good work] See 1 Theſſ. 5. 13.

V. 2. A biſhop, &c.] See Tit. 1. 6, &c.

blameleſſe] The word ἀνεπίληπτος, ſignifieth not faultleſſe, for there are no ſuch in the world, but ſuch an one who hath not been, or cannot be appeached with any crime, a man of an unoffenſive life, a man that is not tainted with any common blemiſh, 1 Cor. 1. 8. Luk. 1. 6.

the husband of one wife] He that is to be choſen a Biſhop muſt not neceſſarily be a married man, but neceſſarily be no polygamiſt; that is ſuch a one who hath been husband but of one wife at once, Hieron. Epiſt. 82. c. 2. For though polygamie were a common practiſe among the Jews, yet is was ever held a ſcandall and a brand among Chriſtians: therefore none who had that brand upon him ought to be choſen either Biſhop, or Deacon, verſ. 12.

apt to teach] Not onely men endued with ſufficient knowledge to teach, but ſuch as are willing and ready upon all occaſions to inſtruct the people of God.

V. 3. Not given to wine] Or, not ready to quarrell and offer wrong, as one that is in wine.

filthy lucre] He forbiddeth in a Biſhop not onely covetouſneſſe, which is afterwards taxed, but the taking of any baſe courſe, or uſing any unworthy means, to improve his eſtate: in which kind the Biſhops of Rome of all other are moſt notoriouſly faulty, who make a gain of all ſorts of ſinne, even thoſe that are not to be named among Chriſtians.

not covetous] Gr. not a lover of ſilver.

V. 4. gravitie] Gr. comelineſſe.

V. 6. a novice] Or, one newly come to the faith. νεόφυτον. Not a man newly planted, or engraffed into Chriſt by baptiſme; or not ſuch a one who hath newly entered into the ſtudie of Divinity.

lifted up] Gr. puffed up, or ſwollen with.

fall into the condemnation of the devill] Leſt by reaſon of his ſudden advancement to that degree, he take occaſion to be proud, which will undo him, and ſo he fall into the ſame condemnation that the devill himſelf is fallen into. Or leſt he be ſubject to the cenſure of calumniating perſons.

V. 8. grave] Or, honeſt.

V. 9. Holding the myſtery of the faith] Either deeper and more abſtruſe and hidden points of ſaving knowledge, or in generall the doctrine of the Goſpel which is a myſtery indeed, for fleſh and blood cannot reveale it unto us, nor can the moſt learned perfectly comprehend it, 1 Cor. 2. 7.

V. 10. uſe the office of a deacon, being] Or, miniſter, and being.

V. 11. grave] Or, honeſt; or, modeſt.

V. 12. deacons be the husbands] See verſ. 2.

V. 13. uſed the office] Or, miniſtred.

good degree] Deſervedly obtain the honour to be preferred to an higher office in the Church.

boldneſſe in the faith] Or, liberty of ſpeech. Greater courage and holy boldneſſe in the profeſſion of the Goſpel: for the teſtimony of a good conſcience, and the faithfull diſcharge of the miniſtery makes a man bold as a lion, whereas the contrary ſtops a mans mouth, and makes him a coward in Chriſts quarrell.

V. 14. ſhortly] Gr. ſooner.

V. 15. houſe of God] As the Catholike Church is as it were the whole houſe of God; ſo every particular Church, as this of Epheſus was, in which Timothie reſided, was a part thereof, and by a Synecdoche may be called the houſe of God, becauſe God dwelleth therein by his word and Spirit, 1 Cor. 3. 16. Heb. 3. 5, 6.

the living God] See Rom. 9. 26. 2 Cor. 3. 3. 1 Theſſ. 1. 9.

piller and ground of the truth] Or, ſtay. Some referre theſe words to them that follow, verſ. 16. and thus make the conſtruction. The pillar and ground of truth, and without controverſie great is the myſtery of godlineſſe, viz. God, &c. Others referre them to the words immediately going before, the houſe of God, which is called the pillar and ground of truth in reſpect of the profeſſion, and maintenance of the true religion of God, which it both ſupporteth as a pillar, and maketh it openly known to others, as the Magiſtrates uſed to hang and affix their Orders and Proclamations on pillars, or other places of ſtrength and firmneſſe; and here conſequently is declared the office and duty of the Church in publiſhing the ſame truth, and defending it againſt all errours, contradictions, and corruptions whatſoever. Or it may be referred to Timothy, as it is by divers of the Ancients, and read, he being a pillar and upholder of the truth, Gal. 2. 9. Rev. 3. 12.

V. 16. myſtery of godlineſſe] Not barely of ceremonies, as were thoſe myſteries of the law of Moſes, nor of vain and profane ſuperſtitions, as thoſe of the Gentiles; but moſt holy indeed and truly religious, whereby God is ſerved in ſpirit and truth.

God] That is, the eternall Sonne of God, as the word is taken, Joh. 1. 1. Act. 20. 28. Rom. 9. 5.

was manifeſt] Made his Divinitie known, Luk. 24. 19. Joh. 1. 14.

in the fleſh] That is, in the humane nature which he aſſumed into the unitie of his perſon, Joh. 1. 14. Rom. 1. 3. Heb. 2. 14.

juſtified in the Spirit] In or by the Spirit, which is to be underſtood of the divine nature of Chriſt, whereby he hath raiſed himſelf again from the dead; and conſequently alſo was approved to be righteous and innocent, notwithſtanding he was condemned both by Jews and Gentiles as a malefactour. Or declared to be the Sonne of God, Rom. 1. 4.

ſeen of angels] As of his Meſſengers and Miniſters, both at his nativitie, Luk. 2. 14. and at his temptation, Matt. 4. 11. and at his paſſion, Luk. 22. 43. and at his reſurrection, Luk. 24. 4. and at his aſcenſion, Act. 1. 10.

preached unto the Gentiles] Gr. among.

received up into glory] To the right hand of his Father, from whence he poureth out the gifts of his Spirit upon the Church, and manifeſteth his glory by ſigns and wonders, Mar. 16. 19, 20. Act. 1. 2. and 2. 4. 33.

CHAP. IIII.

Verſ. 1. S*Pirit ſpeaketh expreſſely*] In the Scriptures concerning apoſtaſie from the faith in generall, and ſeduction by falſe teachers, Matt. 24. 23, 24. Luk. 18. 8. but to me by ſpeciall revelation, that the falſe Prophets ſhall broach ſuch falſe and damnable doctrines in particular as are after mentioned.

ſeducing ſpirits] Either he meaneth devils, who are lying ſpirits, or wicked or ungodly men who are the devils inſtruments, to ſpread errours and hereſies, as the word is taken, 1 Joh. 4. 1.

V. 2. ſeared with a hot iron] Either branded conſciences, or ſtigmatized with the marks of many foule and enormous crimes; A metaphor taken from rogues who are burnt in the hand; hand, or ſome other part of the body. Or conſciences ſo inſenſible of their own dangerous eſtate, and of the fearefull judgements of God, as dead and hard fleſh ſeared with a hot iron, whereby Phyſitians conſume rotten fleſh to ſave the ſounder parts.

V. 3. Forbidding to marrie] This prediction is verified at this day in the Romiſh Church, which forbiddeth any in holy Orders to marrie. It is true, the Manichees, Eucratites, and other Hereticks diſparaged marriage, and diſallowed it in thoſe they called their perfect ones: but we read of none that by laws and canons prohibited marriage ſave the Biſhops of Rome, and ſuch as adhere unto them.

to abſtain from meats] Either theſe words have a reference to the former words, verſ. 1. doctrines of devils, and all the words between are to be encloſed in a parentheſis, and ſo the coherence is giving heed to doctrines of devils, namely this, to abſtain from meats, &c. Or elſe, there is an Ellipſis, and the word κελευόντων, or ſome ſuch like is to be underſtood; a like example whereof we have above, Chap. 2.12. γυναιξὶ διδάσκειν οὐκ ἐπιτρέπω, ἀλλὰ (ſupple ἐπιτάττω) εἶναι ἐν ἡσυχίᾳ, and 1 Cor. 14. 34. Or like that 1 Cor. 3. 2. For the meaning, the Apoſtle doth not condemn it for an hereticall practiſe to abſtain from certain meats out of a meer politick reſpect to ſave the breed of cattle, or medicinable, to avoid ſome diſeaſes; but upon pretence of holyneſſe, or conſcience, as if ſome meats were uncleane in their own nature, or at leaſt leſſe holy then others, Col. 2.21.

V. ſanctified by the word of God] It is made pure and holy in reſpect of us, ſo that we may uſe it with a good conſcience as received at the Lords hand.

and prayer] That our meats may be ſanctified to us, we muſt firſt confeſſe and acknowledge that God is the Creatour and giver of theſe creatures which we uſe. Secondly, that we are of the number of thoſe who through Chriſts benefit have recovered that right over all the creatures which Adam loſt by his fall. Thirdly, by our prayers we crave of the Lord that we may uſe thoſe meats with a good conſcience, which we receive at his hands. Fourthly, we make an end of our eating and drinking with thankeſgiving to God, as we beginne it with prayer.

V. 7. unto godlineſſe] It is not onely requiſite that the Miniſter of the Word be ſound in doctrine, but alſo, that his life be godly and religious.

V. 8. bodily exerciſe profiteth little] Or, for a little time. Some hereby underſtand, the exerciſes of thoſe that ſtrived for prizes, by wreſtling, running, or the like; of which the Apoſtle ſpeaketh, 1 Cor. 9. 25. But the Apoſtle here treating of good works, others do more fitly underſtand this of externall exerciſes of mortification whereby the body is tamed and kept under; as watching, abſtinence from ſuch and ſuch meats, lying hard, and the like; which are otherwiſe lawfull in themſelves, and indeed may have ſome uſe; but little in compariſon of godlineſſe, in regard that all the benefit that can accrue thereby, is but to ſubdue the members of the body, and curb the outward motions and actions thereof, 1 Cor. 9. 27. They are no way able to purifie the heart, and the inward man, as a lively faith and the true fear and love of God doth, Rom. 8. 13.

promiſe of the life that now is] Of the bleſſings of this preſent life, ſo far as they conduce to our eternall happineſſe, and of the life to come abſolutely.

V. 10. Saviour of all men] God in generall not only ſaveth all men, but beaſts alſo, Pſal. 36. 6. Saviour here is taken for protectour or preſerver, becauſe he conſerveth all men in their naturall and temporall being in generall: but he is ſaid the Saviour eſpecially of thoſe that believe, becauſe he is the conſerver of them in their eternall and ſpirituall being: he conſerveth all creatures in their eſtate, men in their waies and callings, but the faithful in the ſtate of grace: he preſerveth all creatures from diſorder and utter confuſion, all men from manifold calamities and miſeries, but the faithfull from the power of ſin and death.

V. 14. Hands of the Presbyterie] Or, Eldership. Some by Presbyterie underſtand the office of a Presbyter, which Timothie received by impoſition of hands; but the word πρεσβυτέριον, is never taken in the Scripture for the office of a Preſbyter; but for the company of the Elders, who here laid hands upon Timothie, when he was ordained: for though he were ordained by S. Paul, 2 Tim. 1. 6. yet this ordination was performed in the aſſembly of the Elders, and with the laying on of their hands alſo: agreeable whereunto is the Canon of the fourth Councell of Carthage, and the practiſe of the Church of England and other reformed Churches at this day.

V. 15. to all] Or, in all things.

V. 16. Take heed to thy ſelf] To thy life and carriage, that it be inoffenſive; and to thy doctrine, that it be ſound.

ſave thy ſelf] Thy Miniſtery ſhall be an effectuall means both to ſave thy ſelf and others: for faith is by hearing, and hearing by preaching, and therefore the miniſters of the word are ſaid to ſave themſelves and others; for that to them the Lord hath committed the word of reconciliation.

CHAP. V.

Verſ. 1. NOt an elder] In reprehenſions we muſt have regard to the degrees both of ages and ſexes, and conſider all as in a ſpirituall conſanguinitie with us.

V. 2. with] Gr. in.

V. 3. Widows indeed] He ſpeaketh of ſuch Widows who were ſervants to the Church, and appointed to be maintained by the publike contribution: ſuch as were paſt all other labour, and deſtitute of all comfort both of husband, and of children, and nephewes, or any other kind of allies, to relieve them.

V. 4. Shew pittie at home] Or, kindneſſe. Let thoſe children and nephewes in a thankfull dutie indeavour to repay their parents care and love: which the Greek elegantly expreſſe by a Metaphor taken from the Stork (ἀντιπελαργεῖν) which feedeth her aged parents, and carrieth them upon her ſhoulders, and in that regard, in Hebrew is called חסדה, that is, pious and mercifull.

V. 6. in pleaſure] Or, delicately.

dead while ſhe liveth] Such a widow is a kinde of monſter half dead and half alive, dead in reſpect of the actions of the ſpirit, though vigorous, and alive in reſpect of the fleſh; or alive to the world, but dead to God. In a like ambiguous ſenſe wee are to underſtand thoſe words of our Saviour, Let the dead burie the dead, Mat. 8. 22. that is, Let the dead ſpiritually, bury the dead corporally, as the Jews in that their elegant ἀντιμεταβολή, Cum ego à te diſcedo vivens morior, at cum tibi adhæreo moriens vivo.

V. 8. houſe or kindred] denyed the faith] Though not in words, yet in his deeds, and hath caſt away both humanitie and religion, and therein is worſe then an infidell, who take care of their own, and love thoſe that love them, Mat. 5. 46.

V. 9. taken] or choſe.

wife of one man] That is, which hath had but one husband at once, or if her husband had ſent her a bill of divorce upon his repudiation of her, hath married no other.

V. 10. waſhed the Saints feet] This was an office of courteſie performed to ſtrangers in thoſe hotter countreys, Gen. 14. 32. and 43, 24. Luk. 7. 44.

V. 11. younger widowes refuſe] Take them not into the colledge of widowes or deaconiſſes, which are to be maintained at the Church charge.

V. 12. Having damnation] Or, being liable to juſt cenſure.

caſt off their firſt faith] Or, former, as Revel. 2. 4. Making themſelves lyable to juſt cenſure and blame, becauſe they have violated that promiſe and engagement, wherein they bound themſelves to the continuall ſervice of the Church.

V. 13. buſie-bodies] See 2 Theſſ. 3. 11.

V. 14. younger women marrie] I ordain that the younger women be left to their libertie to marrie, and not tyed by covenant or agreement to the publike ſervice of the Church.

to ſpeak reproachfully] Or, for their railing.

V. 15. turned aſide after Satan] They have been led by him to wanton courſes, to the great ſcandall of the Church.

V. 17. Elders that rule well] See 1 Cor. 9. 14. Gal. 6. 6. He meaneth not Elders in age, but in office, that is, Biſhops, or Paſtours that are imployed in the government of the Church, as well as preaching.

double honour] Both of reverent reſpect, and comfortable maintenance (ſtipendia honoraria) as appeareth by the verſes following.

labour in the word] In the originall it is κοπιῶντες, which ſignifieth a toylſome labour, and hereby he commendeth thoſe who beſides their care and paines in governing, diligently and conſtantly preached the Word.

V. 18. Thou ſhalt not muzzle the Oxe that treadeth, &c.] See Deut. 25. 4.

Oxe that treadeth] In the Eaſtern Countries it was not the manner to thraſh out Corne as we do, but their Oxen trod it out; to which the Apoſtle allegorically compares the laborious Paſtours of the Church, who expounding the Scriptures, after a ſort cruſh out that Corne of which the bread of life is made, 1 Cor. 9. 9.

The labourer is worthy of his reward] See Mat. 10. 10.

V. 19. an elder receive not] Or, presbyter. Do not only not condemn him without ſufficient witneſſes, as thou oughteſt not any man according to the Law of Moſes, Deut 19. 11. but do not ſo much as receive an accuſation, or give any credit to it; the reaſon is, that ſuch men being in publike offices of governing the Church, in which they muſt exhort and admoniſh every one, and correct thoſe that are unruly, they may eaſily get the ill will and hatred of many. Alſo the receiving an accuſation againſt them, maketh them to be ſuſpected, and it tendeth to the ſcandall of the Church. Beſides, their ſacred caling is to be held in reverence, and they who have been thought worthy of it, ought not to be ſuſpected of any notorious default or guilt without very good evidence and ſtrong proof.

Before] Or, Under.

V. 21. without preferring one before another] Or, without prejudice.

V. 22. Lay hands ſuddenly on no man] Admit not any into the Miniſtery without ſufficient examination and good proof both of his ſufficiencie in learning and godly converſation.

partaker of other mens ſinnes] Either of thoſe that would make choyce of an unfit perſon into the Miniſtery, or of the Miniſters themſelves, who if they prove ill and unworthy of that ſacred function, the blame will light upon thee, who by the laying on of thy hands admittedſt them into the Church.

pure] Or, chaſte.

V. 24. Some mens ſinnes are open before hand] Or, manifeſt. Either theſe words are referred to the laſt judgement, as the ancient Fathers underſtand this Text, and then the meaning is, that ſome men ſinnes are notorious, and may be judged and cenſured in this life, others are ſecret and hidden, the judgement whereof is reſerved to the laſt day. Or, they relate to the examination before admittance into the Church, and then the meaning is, ſome there are who offer themſelves to ordination, whoſe ſcandals are or may be known before-hand, who are to be repelled from the Miniſtery; others offences are not known till after they be ordained; on the other ſide the learning and good parts of ſome are ſo well known, that they may be received at the firſt meeting without feare of doing amiſſe in it; but if there be any who are not ſo well known, a ſmall delay or pauſe will not hinder them, or obſcure their vertues, but rather after full and exact tryall of them, make them more conſpicuous.

CHAP. VI.

Verſ. 1. UNder the yoke] To wit, of ſervitude under Maſters that were infidels. This ſervitude was a heavie yoake, lying not ſo much upon their bodies, as upon their ſouls, inſomuch that they were forced to ſerve them who ſerved not the true God; who notwithſtanding ought to be hereby ſatisfied, that touching thoſe things which appertain to everlaſting life, they are no way ſubject to them.

be not blaſphemed] For if they ſhould refuſe to ſerve their Maſters, though infidels, under pretence of their Chriſtian liberty, this would occaſion their Maſters to reproach Chriſtian Religion, as if it taught them contumacie and diſobedience.

V. 2. becauſe they are brethren] Their fraternitie in Chriſt ought not to abate ought of their due reſpect and obſervance to their Maſters: for this ſpirituall conſanguinity doth not alter their outward and civil eſtate and condition.

faithfull] Or, believing.

V. 4. He is proud] Gr. is puffed up.

doating] Or, ſick.

ſtrifes of words] Frivolous queſtions and quarrels, rather about words then matter, and by words he meaneth all thoſe things which have no pith in them, and whereby we can reape no profit.

V. 5. Perverſe diſputings, &c.] Or, gallings one of another.

V. 6. Godlineſſe with contentment is] Not onely becauſe it enricheth the ſoul and giveth true contentment, but alſo becauſe it hath the promiſe of outward bleſſings, 1 Tim. 4. 8.

V. 7. For we brought nothing into this world, &c.] See Job 1. 21.

V. 8. And] Gr. But.

V. 9. and a ſnare] Of the devill, who by means of this their inordinate deſire to grow rich, doth tempt them to take many unlawfull courſes, and keepeth them thereby as with a ſnare, that they cannot get againe out of the intanglings of the World.

drown] Or, plunge.

V. 10. money] Gr. ſilver.

erred] Or, been ſeduced.

pierced themſelves through] Chriſt compareth the deceitfulneſſe of riches and cares of the world to thorns, which prick not the fleſh onely, but pierce through the minde and heart, and wound the ſouls and conſciences with manifold hurts and ſmart pain, Matth. 13. 22.

V. 11. O man of God] All righteous men are the ſervants of God, but the title of man of God implyeth more: for in Scripture it is atributed onely to men of eminent ſanctitie, who had more familiarity and inwardneſſe with God, as Moſes, Samuel, David, Elias, Elizeus, and here Timothy. A man of God is he who is wholly devoted unto God, and his chief employment is to bring Meſſages from God, as Prophets do, and bring men unto God, as the faithfull Miniſters of the Goſpel do.

V. 12. Fight the good fight of faith] Either contend thou earneſtly for the maintenance of the true Faith and Goſpel, Jude 3. Or, fight the good fight of Faith it ſelf againſt all temptations of the Devill, perſecutions of the world, and oppoſitions and contradictions of hereticall teachers and great Wiſards of this world, 2 Tim. 4. 7.

lay hold on eternall life] A compariſon taken from thoſe that run for a prize, and as they approach neer the mark they ſtretch forth their hands to apprehend and touch it, verſ. 19.

profeſſed a good profeſſion] Either he underſtandeth the ſolemn vow Timothy had made in his Baptiſme, or at his ordination, wholly to dedicate himſelf unto, and imploy his uttermoſt endeavours to the ſervice of God.

V. 13. I give thee charge] A vehement kind of adjuration to obſerve and keep all the premiſes faithfully, with his eies fixed upon the coming of Jeſus Chriſt, whoſe glory we are to ſet againſt the vain gliſtering of this world, and his power againſt all the terrours of the wicked, 2 Tim. 4. 1.

Pilate witneſſed] See Matth. 26. 64. Matth. 27. 11. John 18. 37.

V. 15. the King of kings] See Rev. 17. 4. & 19. 16.

V. 16. Who onely hath immortality] Eternally ſubſiſting of himſelf, and by no other. Angels and the ſouls of men are immortall, but by participation onely from God, as the Moon and Starrs ſhine continually, but with light derived from the Sunne.

dwelling in the light] Poſſeſſing ſuch perfection and excellencie in himſelf as none is able to comprehend, as the word light is taken, 1 Joh. 1. 5. Or dwelling in that increated and infinite glory of divine Majeſtie, the ſight and knowledge whereof no creature is able to attain unto.

whom no man hath ſeen] See Joh. 1 18. 1 Tim. 1. 17. 1 Joh. 4. 12.

V. 17. uncertain riches] Gr. uncertaintie of riches.

V. 18. willing] Or, ſociable.

V. 19. Laying up in ſtore, &c.] See Matth. 6. 20. Luk. 12. 33.

good foundation] That is, a certain and infallible argument and ground of hoping for eternall life; not as if the liberality of the rich did merit the ſame; but in regard of the promiſe of God made to all thoſe that in faith apply themſelves to the practiſe of good works, Matth. 10. 42. Gal. 6. 8, 9. Heb. 13. 16. 1 Pet. 2. 5.

V. 20. keep that which is committed] The precious treaſure of ſound and wholſome doctrine which is committed to thee, as a pledge, to keep it ſafely thy ſelf, and carefully tranſmit it to poſterity; and withall the talent of thoſe gifts which appertain unto the preaching of the ſame.

oppoſitions of ſcience falſly] Made againſt ſound doctrine out of erroneous grounds and principles of ſciences ſo termed, but falſly. In which words, the Greek Fathers conceive that he pointeth at the Gnoſticks, a certain ſort of hereticks, who have their name from ſcience, and profound knowledge, which they arrogated to themſelves.

ANNOTATIONS
On the ſecond Epiſtle of Paul the Apoſtle to TIMOTHIE.

The ARGUMENT and ANALYSIS.

SAint Paul being ready to lay down his Earthly Tabernacle, ſendeth for Timothie to come unto him, and to bring with him ſuch things as he moſt needed: Withall, he foretelleth his own Martyrdome, and the Crown of Righteouſneſſe which he ſhould thereby receive, and fully inſtructeth Timothie how to carrie himſelf in the Government of the Church, after his departure.

The Epiſtle it ſelf is partly
1. Commendatory of Timothie himſelf, and his parents, and Oneſiphorus, and others, Chap. 1, 2.
2. Exhortatory to Chaſtity, Faith, Charity, Peace, and Meekneſſe, Chap. 2. To undaunted fortitude, in withſtanding all oppoſition againſt the Truth, and to the ſtudie of the Scriptures, Chap. 3. To diligence in his Paſtourall Function, Watchfulneſſe, patience, and to godly prudence, and conſtancy in his Holy Profeſſion to the end, Chap. 4.

CHAP. I.

Verſ. 1. P*Romiſe of life*] Eternall life hid in Chriſt, which God hath promiſed to all that believe in him.

V. beloved ſonne] He calleth Timothie his ſonne in a naturall, civill and ſpirituall, or Eccleſiaſticall reſpect: Firſt, in a naturall, becauſe Paul was now aged, and Timothie but a young man. Secondly, in a civill or morall, becauſe Paul affected him as if he were his own ſonne, and Timothie ſerved him as a ſonne doth his Father; Phil 2. 22. Thirdly, in a ſpirituall or Eccleſiaſticall, becauſe Paul ordained him a Miniſter of the Goſpel. See 1 Tim. 1. 2.

V. 3. forefathers] Not his immediate forefathers, who bred him up in Phariſaiſme, but his Anceſtours Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob, &c. who ſerved God in the ſame true religion, for ſubſtance, which the Apoſtle now profeſſeth. Acts 23. 1. and 24 16.

with pure] Gr. in pure.

V. 5. call] Gr. calling.

V. 16. ſtirre up] Gr. kindle again; or, quicken, as fire burneth under aſhes. ἀναζωπυρεῖν, ſignifieth to rekindle, or revive; for the gift of God is as it were a certain lively flame kindled in our hearts, which the fleſh and the Devill go about to put out; and therefore we on the contrary muſt labour, as much as we can, to foſter and keep it burning. In the metaphor the Apoſtle ſeemeth to allude to the type of the Prieſts in the Old Teſtament, by whoſe miniſtery the holy fire on the Altar was cheriſhed, (that it might not go out) and as it ſlaked, blowne to a brighter flame.

the gift] Some by this gift underſtand the gift of Miracles, which he received by the impoſition of the Apoſtles hands; and that by the laying hands of the Presbyterie, 1 Tim. 4. 14. he was admitted into the holy miniſtery; but becauſe there is no proof in Scripture, or undoubted Antiquity, that Timothie had the gift of Miracles, it is more probable, that by gift is here meant that Ghoſtly power or office which Timothie received at his ordination, by the laying on of the Apoſtles hands on him, in the preſence of the Presbyterie, who all gave conſent thereunto, and teſtified it by putting their hands upon him alſo, 1 Tim. 4. 14.

V. 7. ſpirit of fear] The meaning is, rouze up the gifts of God in thee, and ſuffer not them to be ſlaked or abated by carnal fear, for ſuch a fear doth in no wiſe proceed from the working of the Spirit, but is quite contrary to the ſame which the Apoſtle doth mention here; leſt Timothie might be affrighted with the affliction of the Church, and of Pauls in particular.

but of power] Of courage and reſolution to go through with the work of the Miniſtery, not withſtanding all oppoſitions and dangers.

of love] Of a holy love of God and Chriſt, wherewith the faithfull being inflamed, do chearfully undergo all manner of troubles and adverſities for his ſake.

ſound mind] Whereby the holy Ghoſt doth reduce the troubled minde to tranquillity, and baniſh all turbulent paſſions, ſuch as fear is. Or the ſpirit of moderation and diſcretion, that we bring not cauſleſſe troubles upon our ſelves, and when they come upon us, break not out into a rage or impatience.

V. 8. afflictions of the Goſpel] Be a chearfull partner with me of thoſe troubles and afflictions which follow the profeſſion of the Goſpel. Theſe are called afflictions of the Goſpel, becauſe as Chriſt ſuffereth in the perſecution of his Members, ſo the Goſpell after a ſort ſuffereth, when the preachers thereof are oppoſed, diſgraced, ſilenced, and impriſoned, or any way hindered from the free and powerfull preaching thereof.

V. 9. not according to our works] See Tit. 3. 5. Not for the merit of our works, but for his own mercies ſake; or, not according to works done by us in time, or foreſeen by God before the world was; for theſe works, as in time they flowed from the grace of God, ſo they were foreſeen likewiſe no otherwiſe then as effects of his grace in us, and conſequently not as cauſes or inducements to God, to elect us to eternall life.

before the world began] Gr. ſecular times, or, everlaſting. See Epheſ. 1. 4. Tit. 1. 2.

V. 10. who hath aboliſhed death] By taking away the fear and ſting of the naturall death in all true believers, 1 Cor. 15. 55. Heb. 2. 15. and freeing them from the guilt and puniſhment of the eternall and ſecond death. Rev. 2. 11. and 20. 6.

life and immortality to light] Hath given us a full and clear ſight of immortality, whereof before we had but as a glimpſe; or ſhewed us a clear way to life and immortalitie.

V. 11. Whereunto I am appointed a preacher, &c.] See 1 Tim. 2. 7.

V. 12. believed] Or, truſted.

keep that which I have committed] Either my precious ſoul which I have committed to his care and cuſtody to bring it forth glorious at that day of his appearing: Or, my eternall life, happineſſe and crown of glory, which I have as it were depoſited with him by faith and hope.

V. 13. forme of ſound words] Gr. wholeſome, or, healthfull ὑγιαινόντων, ſuch as conduce to the health of our ſouls, rather wholſom then delicate; or words not tainted with, nor ſavouring of any errour or hereſie, falſe or corrupt doctrine.

V. 14. committed unto thee] See 1 Tim. 6. 20.

by the Holy Ghoſt] Though it be a hard thing to do it, conſidering what enemies lie in wait to rob us of it: yet the Spirit of God is mightie, who hath endued us with power and vertue to keep it.

V. 15. turned away from me] Leaving me in my trouble and affliction, and being aſhamed of my bonds.

V. 16. my chain] See Epheſ. 6. 20.

V. 17 ſought me out] By this it appeares, that Saint Paul was not in priſon, for then Oneſiphorus needed not to have made any great ſearch to finde him; yet was he not free, but committed to the cuſtodie of the keeper, with whom he might go abroad to diſpatch his affairs; and therefore in the verſe going before, he ſpeaketh not of chains in the plurall number, but of a chain in the ſingular, with which he was tyed to the ſouldier that kept him. Vid. Senec. l. 1. de tranquil. an. c. 10. Eadem catena tam reum quam militem tenet.

CHAP. II.

verſ. 1. MY ſonne] See Chap. 1. 2.

in the grace that is in Chriſt Jeſus] Be ſtrong and couragious in the maintenance of the Goſpel of Chriſt: or confidently relie on the favour of God, wherewith the Father embraceth us for his ſonne Chriſt Jeſus ſake.

V. 2. among many witneſſes] Or, by many witneſſes. Either the things which thou haſt heard confirmed by many witneſſes and teſtimonies of holy Scripture, as the word witneſſes is taken, Heb. 12. 1. Or, which thou heardeſt of me at thy ordination among the whole Presbyterie: Or, not ſpoken in a corner, but publikly in my preaching, before many witneſſes.

V. 3. endure hardneſſe] Or, ſuffer affliction. The Miniſtery of the Word is a ſpirituall warfare, wherein no man can ſo ſerve that he may pleaſe his Captain or Generall, but he muſt forgo and part from all hinderances which may draw him from it, and alſo endure much hardneſſe and be put to many a hot brunt.

V. 4. No man that warreth] Warriours and ſouldiers buſie not themſelves with merchandizing, handicraft works, husbandrie or houſhold affairs; but are alwaies attending their watchings, marchings, and other ſervices and commands of their Leaders and Captains: ſo neither muſt a faithfull Miniſter of the Goſpel trouble or diſtract himſelf with any worldly matters and affairs that may hinder him in the faithfull diſcharge of his ſacred function.

entangleth himſelf] Gr. is entangled.

V. 5. ſtrive for maſteries] The Miniſtery is like to a game, or ſtriving for the maſterie, wherein no man is crowned unleſſe he ſtrive according to the lawes that are preſcribed, be they never ſo difficult or painfull.

V. 6. The husbandman, &c.] Or, The husbandman labouring firſt, muſt be partaker of the fruits.

V. 8. Remember that Jeſus Chriſt] He confirmeth two principles of our faith which are alwaies aſſaulted by heriticks; the one, that Chriſt is the true Meſſias, God incarnate of the Virgin Mary, and made of the ſeed of David; and the other the higheſt Article of our Creed and myſtery of our ſalvation, his reſurrection from the dead.

V. 9. but the word of God is not bound] Though they may confine me, and binde me faſt, yet they cannot bind and fetter the Goſpel of Chriſt, that word of his ever is and ſhall be free, not onely preached by thoſe who are at libertie, but even by me and other ſervants of Chriſt who are reſtrained and in durance.

V. 10. endure all things[Not in their ſtead, or that my ſufferings may be imputed unto them, but I indure afflictions for thoſe offices, which I do towards the furthering of the ſalvation of Gods elect.

V. 11. if we be dead with him] See Rom. 5. 8. If we be afflicted with him, and perſecuted even to death for his ſake, we ſhall alſo live together with him eternally, and moſt happily in heaven.

V. 12. If we ſuffer] See Rom. 8. 17.

if we deny him] See Matt. 10. 33. Mark. 8. 38.

V. 13. If we believe not] See Rom 3. 3.

he abideth faithfull] Though we alter never ſo much, yet God is the ſame, moſt juſt and faithfull in all his promiſes, and undertakings, Rom. 3. 3. Mal. 3. 6. Jam. 1. 17.

V. 14. ſtrive not about words] μὴ λογομαχεῖν. Not to ſtrive about words onely, when the controverſie is meer verball or nominall, and no way reall, or not at all importing faith or good manners: or, ſtrive not with words bandying contumelious ſpeeches, or bringing no better proof then vaunting words and boaſtings.

15. rightly dividing] By adding nothing to it, neither over-ſlipping any thing, neither mangling it, nor renting it in ſunder, nor wreſting of it; but marking diligently what his hearers are able to bear, and what is fit for edification. The Metaphor is taken either from the cutting and ſquaring out of the ſtreets and high-waies, and ſetting out the bounds of mens lands and poſſeſſions: or from the Prieſts of the Old Teſtament, who having ſlain the beaſts that were to be ſacrificed, did joynt and divide the ſame in an accurate manner: or from houſe-keepers that cut out and divide to every one in their families their ſhare and portion of meat, 1 Cor. 3. 2. Luk. 12. 42. Heb. 5. 12.

V. 16. increaſe] Or, proceed.

V. 17. eate as doth a canker] Or, gangrene. γάγγραινα from γράω, ſignifying to eat, as the diſeaſe called a Wolf or a Canker doth, which if it be not looked to in time groweth incurable, and not onely conſumeth the part where it is, but ſpreadeth farther in the fleſh: ſuch is the nature of hereticall doctrine, if it be not ſtopt in the beginning, and cured by ſolid confutations, and Eccleſiaſticall cenſures inflicted upon thoſe that are obſtinate, it will ſpread far, and run over the whole body of the Church, and corrupt the ſame, 1 Cor. 5. 7. Gal. 5. 9.

Hymeneus and Philetus] He nameth here the chiefeſt of thoſe prophane, and vain bablers, that being known they might be the better ſhun'd.

V. 18. erred] Or, miſſed the mark.

reſurrection is paſt] It is probable they taught that there was no other reſurrection but the ſpirituall riſing of the ſoul from the death of ſinne; or the renovation of the condition of the world under the Goſpel, according as the word reſurrection is ſometimes taken.

overthrow the faith of ſome] That is, infect them with their hereſie, and thereby ſubvert their orthodox faith.

V. 19. Neverthelеſſe] Although ſome ſlide away from the truth, we muſt not be offended thereat, as if the ſalvation of the elect were not ſure.

the foundation of God] The eternall election, which is the firſt ground-work of the ſalvation of the faithfull, laid by God himſelf, cannot be ſhaken in ſuch ſort, that the elect of God ſhould be ſeduced by the like hereſies, and fall away from faith, Matth. 24. 24.

having this ſeal] The Book of life in which the names of the elect are written is confirmed as with a ſeale, and the number of the elect in the fore-knowledge of God is ſealed up as in a Book.

Let every one] Though the Lord hath eternally fore-known thoſe that are his, yet not ſo that we preſuming upon that Decree ſhould caſt away all care of our ſalvation, and let looſe the reines to all carnall liberty. For on our parts who are thus mercifully fore-known and elected to ſalvation, there is required a holy and a conſcionable obedience, and a carefull endeavour to pleaſe God in all things, and ſhunne all manner of ſinne.

V. 20. and ſome to honour] See Rom. 9. 21.

V. 21. If a man therefore purge] Cleanſe himſelf from theſe hereticall and impure doctrines, and keep himſelf unſpotted of the world by the grace and vertue of the holy Ghoſt that dwelleth in him, 1 Pet. 1. 22. 1 Joh. 5. 5.

veſſel unto honour] The counſell of God ſhall be fulfilled in him, and he ſhall be really and effectually according as he is ordained unto it of God, a veſſel of honour. Or, he ſhall ſhew and approve himſelf to be ſuch a veſſel indeed. The like expreſſion we have Joh. 15. 8.

V. 23. fooliſh and unlearned] See 1 Tim. 1. 4. Tit. 3. 9.

V. 24. muſt not ſtrive] Muſt not be of a contentious diſpoſition, nor at all ſtrive about fooliſh and unlearned queſtions, verſ. 23.

patient] Or, forbearing. To winne them through our patient bearing with them, but not to pleaſe them, or excuſe them in their wickedneſſe.

V. 25. oppoſe themſelves] Gr. ſet themſelves againſt him, or, are ill affected to him.

repentance to the acknowledging] The knowledge of the truth goeth before repentance, yet true repentance goeth before the publike recantation of their errour, and particular acknowledement of that truth they before gain-ſayed and oppoſed.

V. 26. recover] Gr. awake.

ſnare of the devill] Hereticall doctrines are the ſnares wherein the devill intangleth the underſtanding of ſeduced men, as vitious provocations are the ſnares wherein he intangleth the wils and affections of diſſolute perſons.

taken captive] Gr. taken alive.

at his will] Gr. to.

CHAP. III.

Verſ. 1. I*N the laſt daies*] See 1 Tim. 4. 1. 2 Pet. 3. 3. Jude 18. The end of the world is the harveſt, and when the ſins of Antichriſt and of all his followers ſhall be ripe, then will the Angel thruſt in his ſickle and mow the earth, Apoc. 14. 16. 18. 1 Tim. 4. 1.

perilous times] Gr. hard. We may not hope for a Church in this world without corruption, but there ſhall be rather great abundance of moſt wicked men, even in the very boſome of the Church, who notwithſtanding ſhall make a ſhew and countenance of great holineſſe.

V. 2. lovers of their own ſelves] Such perſons have been in all ages of the Church, but towards the end of the world, being as it were the lees and dregs of time, there ſhall be almoſt none but ſuch: theſe vices being ſpread over the whole face of the Church, and the mentioned evils become Epidemicall.

covetous] Gr. lovers of ſilver; or, money.

boaſters proud] See Rom. 1.29,30.

V. 3. falſe accuſers] Or, make-bates.

V. 4. high-minded] Gr. puffed up.

V. 5, Having a forme of godlyneſſe] Or, formalitie. Not μορφὴν, but μόρφωσιν, not the true forme and eſſence of godlineſſe, but an outward conformation thereunto, a reſemblance, vizard, or ſhew of holineſſe; mens religion conſiſting in a formall profeſſion of godlineſſe, (Tit. 1. 16.) without expreſſing the power and efficacie thereof in their lives: Or, in externall geſtures, behaviours, rites, and ceremonies, without the pure inward worſhip of God in ſpirit and truth.

V. 6. women laden with ſinnes[Silly women are more eaſily deceived, and thoſe of them are more apt to be miſled in their judgements which are given up to lewd and wanton courſes. Joſephus Antiq. Jud. 2. obſerveth, that the Phariſees had their Gynæcea, Colledges or meeting of women; and Saint Ierome ad Cteſ. that Simon Magus had his Helena, Marcion his female forerunner, Apelles his Philumena, Montanus his Maximilla, Donatus his Lucillia, Elpidius his Agape, Priſcillian his Galla, Arius the Prince his ſiſter; and generally all arch hereticks ſome ſtrumpet or other, by whom they ſpread the poiſon of their hereſie.

V. 7. Ever learning] The Apoſtle taxeth not theſe women for endeavouring by continuall learning to improve their knowledge; but for curious inquiring into every noveltie of doctrine, and following now one teacher, now another, having no care to attain to ſound and ſaving truth.

V. 8. Jannes and Jambres withſtood Moſes] The names of the chiefe of the Egyptian ſorcerers that ſtrove with Moſes, whoſe names are not expreſſed, Exod. 7. 11. yet are here related by the Apoſtle, either out of ſome Jewiſh writers, not now extant, or from ſome ancient tradition. Howſoever, certain it is, that theſe Magitians names were famous, or rather infamous, for Numenius the Pythagorean Philoſopher, and Artabanus the Hiſtorian make mention of them both, and Plinie in his Naturall Story, l. 3. c. 1. nameth one of them, to wit, Jannes. See Euſeb. de præp. Evang l. 9. c. 3.

reprobate concerning the faith] Or, of no judgement. Whoſe doctrines are abominable before God, and ought to be rejected of all; or, who have loſt all right and ſound judgement in things that belong to the Faith, Rom. 1. 18. 26. Titus 1, 16.

V. 9. proceed no further] He addeth a comfort, that God will at length pluck off all the vizards of Hypocrites and falſe teachers.

folly] Or, madneſſe.

V. 10. thou haſt] Or, thou haſt been a follower of.

fully known] Thou knoweſt throughly, not onely what I taught and did, but alſo how I was minded and diſpoſed.

V. 11. afflictions] Gr. ſufferings.

V. 12. ſhall ſuffer perſecution] Gr. ſhall be perſecuted.

V. 13. worſe and worſe] 2 Pet. 2. 20. 22.

deceiving, and being deceived] Deceiving others by their ſophiſmes and faire ſhew of holineſſe, and being deceived by Satan.

V. 15. from a child] There is nothing more profitable then to be exerciſed in the Scriptures from our infancie; for the veſſels that are at the firſt ſeaſoned with the ſavour of life, ſeldome or never loſe it, Prov. 22. 6. And though while they are very young, they cannot come to much underſtanding, yet the having of Scripture phraſe and texts by heart, is very uſefull, and will much ſtead them after they come to riper yeers, and are able to dive deeper into the meaning of thoſe things they retain perfect in their memories from their childhood.

wiſe unto ſalvation, through faith] Although the Scripture ſufficiently inſtruct us unto ſalvation, yet we cannot be ſaved without a lively faith working through love, therefore he addeth, through faith: Or, by Scriptures he meaneth the Scriptures of the Old Teſtament which it is like were onely extant when Timothie was a child, the knowledge whereof could not ſave Timothie without faith in Chriſt, whereby he believed the accompliſhment of all thoſe things which were fore-ſhewed in the Old Teſtament, both by predictions and types.

V. 16. All Scripture is given] See 2 Pet. 1. 21. Or, the whole Scripture, as the word is taken, 1 Cor. 13. 2. and elſewhere. Every part of Scripture is divinely inſpired, 2 Pet. 1. 20, 21. and is profitable to ſome of theſe ends, to furniſh the man of God to ſome good works: but the whole Scripture is profitable to all thoſe ends, to furniſh him to every good work. The parts of the Scripture as they were delivered, were ſufficient for the inſtruction of thoſe to whom they were delivered; and now the whole is moſt ſufficient for us, and all Churches to the end of the world.

V. 17. man of God] The Miniſter of God in his Church, 1 Tim. 6. 11.

perfect] Gr. accompliſhed.

throughly furniſhed] Or, perfected.

furniſhed unto all good works] That is, to all the ſervices of his profeſſion, to thoſe works of his calling, he mentioned before, namely doctrine of the principles of Chriſtian Religion, reproof of errours and falſe doctrines, correction of life and evill manners, and inſtruction in the precepts of a holy life and Chriſtian converſation.

CHAP. IIII.

verſ. 1. I Charge thee therefore] Gr. teſtifie, or, denounce. This is my principall and chief charge of all.

before God and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt] This deep kinde of charging Timothie, in ſo vehement and patheticall a manner, ſheweth how urgent and important the matter is, how ſimply neceſſary diligent and conſtant preaching is in a Miniſter of the Goſpel, and how fearfull his caſe is, if he fail in this duty of his function.

judge of quick and dead] See 1 Cor. 15. 51. 1 Theſſ. 4. 17.

V. 2. in ſeaſon out of ſeaſon] Upon all occaſions, with a holy importunitie. There is no contradiction in theſe commands, both may and ought to be done by a faithfull Miniſter of God, who preacheth in ſeaſon, when God offereth him a fair opportunity, and the hearers deſire, Nehem. 8. 1. and call for the Word, and the argument he handleth, is ſeaſonable for the time. Out of ſeaſon, when a door of utterance is opened unto him, that he may preach, but his hearers are not willing to hear, either becauſe they are ill affected to the Word, or diſtracted by other buſineſſes, or they like not to hear ſuch points touched or medled with at ſuch a time, when yet he knoweth it to be needfull for the health of their ſouls, to hear ſuch doctrines handled, or duties preſt.

V. 3. ſound doctrine] Gr. wholſome. See 1 Tim. 1. 10.

V. 4. ears] Gr. hearing.

V. 5. watch thou] Or, be ſober. The wickedneſſe and falling away of the world ought to cauſe faithfull Miniſters to be ſo much the more carefull and vigilant; and ſo likewiſe the taking away of thoſe who laboured with them before in that office. Verſ. 6. John 1. 1. Col. 4. 17.

make full] Or, fulfill.

ready to be offered] To be ſacrificed or Martyred. The word in the Originall σπένδομαι, ſignifieth properly libation, or a drink-offering; and he alludeth to the pouring out of bloud, or wine which was uſed in ſacrifice, and ſeemeth withall to intimate the manner of death wherewith he was to glorifie God, which was not by being offered as a holocauſt by fire, as Polycarp, and many others were, but by a death wherein his bloud was ſhed or poured out, namely beheading.

departure] Gr. diſſolution. See Philip. 1. 23.

V. 7. fought a good fight] Gr. that good fight. See 1 Tim. 6. 12.

I have finiſhed my courſe] I am come to the period of my daies; Vixi, & quem dederat curſum fortuna, peregi. And in this metaphor he ſeemeth to allude to the manner of his whole life, which after his converſion was ſpent, as it were, wholly in running from place to place, ſpeedily to diſperſe the doctrine of the Goſpel, and now he was come to the laſt Stage or Goal at Rome, where he was to receive his Garland, after the manner of thoſe who ran for prizes. 1 Cor. 9. 24. 25.

kept the faith] The true doctrine of faith; or the gift of ſaving and juſtifying faith; or the faithfulneſs which he promiſed Chriſt in the diſcharge of his Apoſtleſhip, Rev. 2. 10.

V. 8. a crown of righteouſneſſe] A reward of juſt and holy works, an incorruptable Crown of glory, which though it be a Crown of mercy, Pſal. 103. 4. and a gift of grace, Rom. 6. 23. yet he calleth it here a Crown of righteouſneſſe, which the righteous Judge ſhall give him, the more fitly to follow the metaphor taken from runners or wreſtlers for prizes, at their ſolemn exerciſes or games in Greece, in which there were certain Judges appointed to obſerve thoſe that proved maſteries, and give juſt ſentence on the Conquerours ſide, if he ſtrove lawfully, and fairly wonne the prize. And the meaning of the Apoſtle is, that he had kept the laws of proving maſteries, and ſo acquitted himſelf in running and wreſtling, that he might juſtly expect the prize. Beſides, eternall life may be rightly termed a Crown of righteouſneſſe, both ex parte Dei, who promiſeth it to every one that overcometh, Revel. 2. 10. & 3. 21. and ex parte rei, becauſe it is juſt and righteous with God to render unto them, who have endured for his ſake toylſome labours, painfull torments, and diſgracefull reproaches, eaſe, joy and glory. 2 Theſ. 1. 6, 7.

love his appearing] That they may ſee him in glory, who ſuffered ſo much for them in this world, and that they may receive from him their everlaſting reward.

V. 10. loved this preſent world] Hath given over to tend on me in my affliction any longer, chuſing rather to follow his worldly occaſions, and provide for his own ſafetie and profit.

V. 13. cloke that I left at Troas] φαιλόνην, which ſome take for a riding Coate, or travelling Cloak, as if it were made by a tranſpoſition of letters, from the Latine penula; but the moſt ancient Syriac interpreter takes it for domum, or, repoſitorium ſcriptorum, and Heſychius a moſt exquiſite Greek Grammarian inclineth to that opinion, that by it the Apoſtle meant ſcriniolum, a little Desk or Coffer, wherein he laid his books or writings.

V. 14. Alexander the Copper-ſmith] Covetouſneſſe is the bane of religion. Two of the greateſt enemies Saint Paul had, were two Smithes, the one a Silver-ſmith, Acts 19. 24. and this Copper-ſmith here, and both of them, as it is conceived, maligned and oppoſed him, and his preaching for the ſame reaſon, becauſe the Apoſtle taught they were no Gods that were made with hands, and thereby hindered their gain, and marred their Handicraft, which was to make ſilver, or Copper Shrines, & Images to the Heathen gods and goddeſſes.

the Lord reward him] Gr. Tec. ſhall reward him. This is not a curſe, proceeding from anger, or a revengefull heart, which is contrary to the doctrine of Chriſt, Matth. 5. 44. and of Saint Paul himſelf, Rom. 12. 14. but a Propheticall commination out of a godly zeal, and a prediction inſpired by the holy Ghoſt, of the puniſhment which was ready to be executed upon him. See Pſal. 5. 10. & 109. 7. & deinceps. With this interpretation agreeth the Greek Copie of great Antiquity, written, as it is ſuppoſed by Tecla, wherein the Verb is not ἀποδώη, but ἀποδώσει. the Lord reward, but the Lord ſhall or will reward him according to his works.

V. 15. our words] Or, our preachings.

V. 16. anſwer] Gr. apology, or, defence of my ſelf.

that it may not be laid to their charge] It is not ſufficient for us to maintain the truth our ſelves, but we muſt aſſiſt them who ſtand up for the truth, and not timorouſly ſhrink from them when they are in trouble for it.

V. 17. ſtood with me] Gr. by me, or, aſſiſted me.

mouth of the lion] Out of great and imminent danger of death. Some by the Lion underſtand the Emperour Nero, ſo called for his rage and cruelty; as generally Tyrants and powerfull enemies of the Church are called. Ezek. 19. 2. Pſal. 35. 17. and 91. 13. Proverbs 28. 15. Jerem. 2. 15. & 47. And Marſyas certifying his Patron at Rome of the death of Tiberius, uſeth this phraſe, τέθνηκεν ὁ λέων, the Lion is dead. Joſephus antiqu. l. 18. c. 16.

V. 18. every evill work] From forſaking or wronging the truth, or doing any thing out of cowardly fear that may blemiſh this my holy profeſſion.

V. 20. at] Gr. in.

ANNOTATIONS On the Epiſtle of Paul the Apoſtle to Titus.

The Argument and Analysis.

In the Iſland of Creet (now Candie*) the Foundations of a Chriſtian Church were laid, and the Wals rear'd up: But the Roof was wanting. Some abuſes were reformed, but not all: In ſome Cities there were Godly Paſtours, but not ſo through the Whole Iſland. For which cauſe Saint* Paul left Titus there to ſupply what was lacking, and appoint Elders in every Citie; and to the end he might the better perform this task, he furniſheth him in this Epiſtle with wiſe and godly directions; whereof

CHAP. I.

Verſ. 1. According to the faith] Either the doctrine of faith which the Elect of God have ever believed from the beginning; or according to the faith which was wrought in the Elect, and whereby they are led to the acknowledgement of the ſaving truth of Chriſtian Religion.

V. 2. In hope] Or, for hope.

before the world began] Or, ſecular, or, everlaſting times. See 2 Tim. 1. 9. 1 Pet 1. 20.

V. 4. own ſonne] See 1 Tim. 1. 2.

common faith] That which before he called the faith of the Elect, he here calleth the common faith; as Jude v. 3. the common ſalvation, that is, the ordinary means of ſalvation, or the faith communicated to all the Elect through the whole world; or the faith common to me and thee, for there is but one way of ſalvation, common both to the Paſtour and the flock, to the father in Chriſt, as the Apoſtle was, and the ſonne begotten by him in the Goſpel, as Titus was.

V. 5. left I thee in Crete] Crete is an Iſland in the Mediterranean or Mid-land Sea, now called Candie; of which ſee Acts 2, 11. & 27. 7, 12.

ſet in order] Either to correct and amend what was done amiſſe, or farther to ſupply and perfect whatſoever was lacking of things behoovefull to the Church.

ordain elders] Gr. appoint. That is, Paſtours, one or more in all places, where there is a convenient number of the faithfull.

had appointed] Gr. gave order to.

V. 6. If any be blameleſſe] See 1 Tim. 3. 2, &c.

V. 7. a biſhop] See Phil. 1. 1. 1 Tim. 3. 2.

V. 9. as he hath been taught] Or, in teaching.

exhort] Gr. Tec. comfort thoſe that are in affliction.

V. 11. Whoſe mouthes muſt be ſtopped] Either by ſolid confuting their errours, or by ſuſpenſion and Eccleſiaſticall cenſures.

V. 12. a Prophet of their own] Some will have this allegation to be taken out of Callimachus his hymne in praiſe of Jupiter; where the firſt part of this verſe is found; but Callimachus was no Prophet of the Cretians: the Apoſtle therefore certainly meaneth Epimenides, who himſelf was a Cretian, whoſe Poem is called a book of Oracles or Prophecies; among whom this whole Verſe is found, viz. the Cretians are alwayes lyers, that is, crafty companions, falſe in their words and deeds, as the Latine Proverb, Cretizare cum Cretenſibus, declareth; Evill beaſts, that is, fierce, intractable, and dangerous to deal withall; and ſlow bellies, that is, given to ſloth, and idleneſſe, and luxurious gluttons. Which cenſure of the Cretians, the Apoſtle here confirms, not to diſcredit thoſe Iſlanders, or blaſt their reputation, but to diſcover the maladies of that people to him, whom he there left as a Phyſitian, to cure them by ſound and wholeſome doctrine.

V. 13. ſharply] Gr. cuttingly, touching them to the quick.

V. 14. Not giving] See 1 Tim. 1. 4.

commandements of men] The Apoſtle forbiddeth not ſimply to give heed to the commandements of men: for elſewhere he requireth us to obey the lawfull commands of our ſuperiours in Church and Common-wealth: but to the traditions of thoſe of the circumciſion, whom he taxeth, verſ. 10. and generally of ſuch men as walk not with a right foot to the Goſpel; for it is not here ſaid ſimply the commandements of men, but of ſuch men as turn from the truth, and therefore we muſt turne from them.

V. 15. Unto the pure all things] See Rom. 14. 20. That is, all meats and other creatures of God. For the ceremoniall Law of Moſes which made a diſtinction of clean and unclean meats, being abrogated by the Goſpel, the uſe of all thoſe things is pure and holy to the faithfull, being themſelves pure, that is, cleanſed by the blood of Chriſt, and ſanctified by his Spirit; whereas on the contrary, the ſpirituall uncleanneſſe of unbelievers maketh, that the very things otherwiſe permitted by Moſes, become unclean to them, Hag. 2. 13.

their mind and conſcience is defiled] Impurity and uncleanneſſe doth not conſiſt in the outward abſtinence from any meats, or the eating of them, but it lyeth within the ſoul of man, and the faculties of the ſame, which are all of them unclean and defiled with ſinne in the unbelievers. Thoſe two parts of man which may ſeem moſt pure and free from ſinne, viz. the mind, which retaineth yet ſome light of knowledge, and the conſcience, that applyeth this light, to teſtifie, diſcern, and judge of mens actions good or evill; now by that inward and in-bred corruption of ignorance and perverſneſſe, is become impure to man, the former hindring the knowledge of the latter conformity to the will of God; by the former he tempteth God, and by the other he offendeth and reſiſteth him ſo long as he continueth in his unregenerate eſtate.

V. 16. reprobate] Or, void of judgement.

CHAP. II.

Verſ. 1. S*Peak thou*] The doctrine of faithfull Paſtours muſt not only be generally pure and ſound, but particularly and diſcreetly applyed to all ages, and ſexes, and callings, according to the diverſity of circumſtances.

V. 2. ſober] Or, vigilant.

V. 3. holineſſe] Or, holy women.

falſe accuſers] Or, make-bates.

given] Gr. ſubject; or, enſlaved.

to much wine] δεδουλωμένας ſignifieth more then given to much wine, it implyeth as much as overcome or enſlaved: whereby it appears, that as the men of Crete were given to their belly and luxurious feeding, chap. 1. 12. ſo the women alſo were given to their palate and more liberall drinking of wine, even to diſtemper: an odious vice in men, but much more in women.

V. 4. ſober] Or, wiſe.

V. 5. obedient] See Epheſ. 5. 23.

V. 6. ſober-minded] Or, diſcreet.

V. 7. A pattern of good works] A faithfull Miniſter muſt preach the Goſpell, as well in his life as in his Sermons: ſo Saint Peter (Ep. 1. ch. 5. ver. 3.) requireth the Elders to carry themſelves, not as Lords over Gods inheritance, but as enſamples to the flock.

V. 9. ſervants] See Epheſ. 6. 5. Coloſſ. 3. 22. 1 Pet. 2. 18.

anſwering] Or, gain-ſaying.

V. 10. adorn the doctrine of God] As the evill lives of profeſſors is a great obloquie and blemiſh, ſo on the contrary, their godly converſation is a great honour and ornament to the Doctrine of the Goſpel.

V. 11. grace of God] The exceeding mercy and goodneſſe of God: or the Doctrine of the grace of God, exhibited to us by Chriſt, and comprehended in the Goſpel.

that bringeth ſalvation, &c.] Or, that bringeth ſalvation to all men hath appeared.

hath appeared] ἐπεφάνη illuxit, hath clearly manifeſted it ſelf, or ſhined forth as a light in the darkneſſe of the ſhadowes of the Old Teſtament, and of the ignorance of heatheniſme, Eſa. 42. 7. 16. 18. Acts 26. 18. Rom. 13. 12. Epheſ. 5. 8. 1 Pet. 2. 9. 1 Joh. 2. 8.

to all men] Without diſtinction of Nations, ſex, age, or condition, 1 Tim. 2. 4.

V. 12. Denying ungodlineſſe] That is, renouncing and forſaking them. Under the name of ungodlineſſe he compriſeth all breaches of the firſt Table; under worldly luſts, all inordinate deſires againſt the ſecond: which are called worldly, both in reſpect of the object, becauſe they are converſant about ſuch things as belong to the preſent eſtate of this life and world, and in regard of the ſubject, viz. ſuch luſts as are found and reign in worldly and unregenerate men, which are deſcribed, Epheſ. 2. 2, 3. & 4. 17, 18, 19. 1 Pet. 4. 3. 1 Joh. 2. 16.

we ſhould live ſoberly] As in the former words were compriſed all the negative, ſo under theſe three adverbs all the affirmative precepts of the Law, which have a three-fold reference: the firſt to our ſelves, the ſecond to our neighbour, the third to God. Soberly, in reſpect of our ſelves; righteouſly, in reſpect of our neighbours, and holily or godly, in reſpect of God. Hæc tria perpetuo meditare adverbia Pauli, Hæc tria ſint vitæ regula ſancta tuæ.

V. 13. Looking] See 1 Cor. 1. 7. Phil. 3. 20.

bleſſed hope] The bleſſed recompenſe of reward which we ſtedfaſtly hope for, everlaſting life and glorie, which we ſhall be fully poſſeſſed of at the ſecond coming of Chriſt, which ſhall be with great majeſtie and glory, Col. 1. 5.

the great God] To the confutation and confuſion of all that deny the Deity of Chriſt, the Apoſtle here calleth him not onely God, but the great God, that is, immenſe, and of infinite power: for as life when it is attributed to God, ſignifieth immortality, and wealth all-ſufficiency, and age eternity, and ſtrength omnipotencie, ſo greatneſſe immenſitie.

V. 14. redeem us from all iniquity] From the guilt, puniſhment and power of all ſinne.

purifie unto himſelf] Purifie by faith in our juſtification, by charity and other graces of the Spirit in our ſanctification: or, purifie, that is, ſanctifie or conſecrate to himſelf.

a peculiar people] A people exempt and ſeparate from the reſt of the world, a people whom he receives into his ſpeciall favour and protection, whom he eſteems as his chief treaſure and pretious Jewels. Mal. 3. 17. 1 Pet. 2. 9.

zealous of good works] Not onely carefull to ſhew forth good works, but bearing a fervent affection to them, and earneſtly ſtriving that none may out-ſtrip or excell you in them.

CHAP. III.

Verſ. 1. T*O be ſubject*] Rom. 13. 1. 1 Pet. 2. 13.

principalities and powers] Some conceive that there were divers in Crete and other parts who were infected with the doctrine of Judas Galileus, of whom Gamaliel ſpeaketh, Acts 5. 37. who denyed that any ought to be called Lords ſave God; and that the people of God ought to pay tribute to none: and for this cauſe the Apoſtle both here and elſewhere preſſeth the doctrine of obedience to all civil Magiſtrates under the name of principalities and powers.

V. 2. brawlers] Gr. fighters.

all meekneſſe] Though all ſinners are not alike to be handled, but on ſome we are to have compaſſion, others to ſave with fear, pulling them out of the fire, Jude 23. yet the Miniſters of God muſt do nothing in rage or paſſion, but with the ſpirit of meekneſſe, ſhewing all meekneſſe to all men, Gentiles as well as Jews, enemies as well as friends, and that eſpecially out of this conſideration, that the beſt of Chriſtians before their converſion were as bad as the worſt of them whoſe carriage is moſt offenſive to the Church, v. 3.

V. 3. we our ſelves] 1 Cor. 6. 11.

V. 4. kindneſſe and love] Or, pitie. See Chap. 2. 11.

V. 5. Not by, &c.] 2 Tim. 1. 9.

works of righteouſneſſe] That is, ſuch as are done according to the Law of God, which is the rule of all righteouſneſs: ſo that here all works are excluded from being meritorious cauſes of our ſalvation, not onely the works of the Ceremoniall Law, but alſo morall; not onely done before our converſion, but after; for here the mercy of God is ſet againſt all works done by us, and to it alone is our ſalvation aſcribed.

waſhing of regeneration] By the regeneration and renewing of the Holy Ghoſt, which is like unto a Bath of water, whereby the filth of our ſins is waſhed away and cleanſed, Ezek. 36. 25. 26, 27. whereof the Font of Baptiſme is a ſign and ſeal. See the like manner of ſpeech, Rom. 4. 11. 1 Pet. 3. 21.

and renewing of the Holy Ghoſt] The renewing, which the vertue of the Holy Ghoſt worketh, who applyeth the blood of Chriſt to the ſoul of the faithfull as the expiation for ſinnes, whereupon a man is made a new creature, regenerated according to the image of God in righteouſneſſe and holineſſe.

V. 6. abundantly] Gr. richly.

V. 8. maintain good works] Gr. go before others, or, excell in good.

V. 9. avoid fooliſh queſtions] 1 Tim. 1. 4. 2 Tim. 2. 23.

V. 10. A man that is an heretick] An obſtinate defender and ſpreader of erroneous doctrine, repugnant to the foundation of faith, and tending to the diſturbing and diſtracting of the Church.

after the firſt and ſecond admonition] This word comprehendeth not onely warning given by the Church, but inſtructions reſolving of his doubts, clear refutations of his errours, friendly exhortations both in private and publike.

reject] Do not trouble thy ſelf to diſpute any more with him, for that were to caſt holy things before dogs, Matth. 7. 6. give no more eare to his replies, cavils, and objections, but according to thy office excommunicate him, hold him for a profane perſon, and as a member cut off from the body of the Church, Rom. 16. 17. 1 Cor. 5. 13. V. 12. to Nicopolis] A Citie in Macedonia, which had that name, as ſome affirm, given it from νίκη, and πόλις, becauſe at that Citie, as S. Jerome writeth, Auguſtus got a famous victorie againſt Antony and Cleopatra.

V. 14. maintain good works] Or, profeſſe honeſt trades.

ANNOTATIONS On the Epiſtle of Paul to PHILEMON.

The ARGUMENT and ANALYSIS.

THis Epiſtle was Written by the Apoſtle Paul unto Philemon, one of his Fellow-Labourers in the Miniſtery of the Goſpel, in the behalf of one Oneſimus, a Servant of his, who had Withdrawn himſelf from his Maſters ſervice, and had alſo, as it ſeemeth, wronged him in his Temporall Eſtate: But comming to Rome Where Paul then abode under reſtraint, had been by his Miniſtery converted; and after he had been for a while detained there, to attend upon him, was With this ſent back to his Maſter. The Apoſtle therein intreating him to admit him into his ſervice again, remitting to him his offence formerly committed, and engaging himſelf to make good Whatſoever damage he had ſuſtained by him. The Epiſtle though Written upon ſuch a private occaſion, yet is ſo penned, as it carries with it, the lively Character of an Apoſtolicall Spirit, and contains very pregnant expreſſions of Pauls good eſtimation, and entire affection to Philemon, tender bowels of compaſſion towards a ſincere convert, and hearty deſire of the Welfare of thoſe whom he hath occaſion any way to mention in the ſame.

CHAP. I.

Verſ. 1. PRiſoner of Jeſus Chriſt] That is, for Jeſus Chriſt, as v. 13. bonds of the Goſpel, Epheſ. 3. 1. Which circumſtance he toucheth upon, the rather to move Philemon to pitie and compaſſion, that he would not deny his earneſt requeſt in the behalf of Oneſimus, and thereby add affliction to his affliction.

V. 2. beloved] Gr. The. ſiſter.

Apphia] Theodoret affirmeth that this Apphia was Philemons wife; & in the ſubſcription of this Epiſtle in a very ancient manuſcript theſe words are, To Philemon and Apphia, Maſter and Miſtreſſe of Oneſimus. And if ſhe were not Philemons wife, it is not like the Apoſtle would have put her in the inſcription in this letter, which he wrote in behalf of Philemons ſervant.

Archippus] This Archippus is conceived to be the ſame of whom the Apoſtle ſpeaketh, Col. 4. 17. to whom Oneſimus delivered Saint Pauls Epiſtle to the Coloſſians, who being Paſtour at Coloſſe might prevail the more with Philemon, one of his flock, at whoſe houſe he lay.

V. 4. I thank my God, &c.] See 1 Theſſ. 1. 2. 2 Theſſ. 1. 3.

V. 5. toward all ſaints] Either he taketh faith in a larger ſenſe, and ſo it may extend to ſaints. For although we believe not in them, yet we believe them, as we read Exod. 14. 31. They believed the Lord and his ſervant Moſes. Or elſe the words towards all ſaints, are to be referred to the word love, and towards the Lord Jeſus to the word faith; and this is made more evident by the Syriack tranſlation, in which the words are tranſpoſed after this manner, hearing of thy faith, and thy love which thou haſt towards the Lord Jeſus, and towards all ſaints, Col. 1. 4.

V. 6. communication of thy faith, &c.] That is, the fruits of thy faith. In ſome copies it is, may be made evident, ἐναργὴς, not ἐνεργὴς, and that ſeemeth to be the true reading: howſoever the ſenſe is much at one, I pray that the charitable actions which proceed from thy faith may be a clear evidence, and give an effectuall demonſtration of the holy graces that are in thee.

by] Gr. in.

in] Gr. to.

V. 7. bowels of the ſaints] Thou haſt comforted the ſaints at the very heart, and given them much eaſe and refocillation in the heat of perſecution.

V. 10. for my ſonne] Gr. concerning.

Oneſimus] See Coloſſ. 4. 9.

V. 11. unprofitable] He evidently alludeth to the name ὀνήσιμος, Oneſimus, which in Greek ſignifieth profitable: while he was thy ſervant before and an unbeliever, he was contrary to his name, utterly unprofitable; but now upon his converſion he will make good his name, and prove truly Oneſimus, that is, profitable to thee and me.

V. 12. mine own bowels] As if he were my own ſonne, begotten of mine own body, 2 Sam. 16. 11.

V. 16. both in the fleſh and in the Lord] Both in worldly and civill reſpect, and alſo ſpirituall. It may be alſo that Oneſimus though a ſervant, yet was ſome way of kin to Philemon.

V. 19. with my own hand] This is as it were a bill or obligation wherein he promiſeth to pay the damage Oneſimus had done unto his Maſter, that it might not ſtand in the way of his reconciliation.

albeit I do] Gr. that I may not ſay.

I do not ſay] I might requeſt thee to put up that debt or damage in exchange of thoſe ſpirituall gifts which thou haſt received by my means, whereby thou art obliged to me for the ſalvation of thy ſoul, but in this I will gladly forgoe my own right, intending to give thee full and entire ſatisfaction for any damage thou haſt ſuſtained by Oneſimus.

ANNOTATIONS
On the Epiſtle of Paul the Apoſtle to the HEBREVVS.

The ARGUMENT.

THe Apoſtle Paul obſerving, that the Hebrews (at leaſt a great and conſiderable part of them) were ready to fall from the faith of Chriſt into their former Judaiſme, by reaſon of thoſe cruell perſecutions which they ſuffered, hence took occaſion to write this Epiſtle unto them; wherein he laboureth to confirme them in that faith which they had received, and to ſtirr them up to ſtand ſtedfaſt in it; and that by divers arguments: as firſt, from the excellency of Chriſts nature, perſon, and offices; but chiefly of his Prieſtly office above that of Aarons. Secondly, from the danger of Apoſtaſie, Thirdly, from the excellency and great power of faith. Fourthly, from the gracious effects and fruits of affliction. And then concludes the Epiſtle with exhortations to divers Chriſtian duties, both generall and particular.

CHAP. I.

Verſ. 1. GOD] That is, the Father; for when the name [God] is mentioned in the Scriptures, with relation unto the Sonne, thereby we are to underſtand God the Father.

at ſundry times] Or, by, or, in ſundry parts. The Originall word ſignifieth thoſe ſeverall parts or degrees wherewith the doctrine of the Goſpel was revealed unto the Fathers; that it was not at once altogether revealed, but a little, and a little; now this, now that, as God in his wiſdome ſaw moſt requiſite.

divers] Thereby is meant thoſe ſeverall and different kinds or ſorts of revelation, whereby the word God was revealed, as ſometimes by Angels, ſometimes by viſions in the day, ſometimes by dreams in the night, &c. ſometimes more plainly, ſometimes more obſcurely, Num. 12.6.

in time paſt] That is, both before and under the Law.

by] Or, in. Both prepoſitions, both in the Hebrew and in the Greek, are promiſcuouſly taken one for the other; yet this latter ſeems to be more emphaticall in this place, intimating that God moved their hearts and tongues. Mat. 10. 20. 2 Cor. 13. 3. 1 Pet. 1.10,11,21. A king ſpeaketh by, he doth not ſpeak in his Ambaſſadour; God doth both.

V. 2. in theſe laſt dayes] Eſ. 2.2. Mic. 4.1. Acts 2.17. 1 Pet. 1. 20. See the Notes on Gen. 49.1.

ſpoken] That is, fully and plainly.

by] See verſ. 1.

Sonne] Deut. 18.15. compared with Acts 3. 22. and 7.37. Mat. 17. 5. John 1. 18. That is, his naturall Sonne, coeſſentiall, or of the ſame eſſence with the Father, called therefore the onely begotten, John 1.14. & 3.16. for others are called the ſonnes of God by grace and adoption, John 1,12. Rom. 8.14. Gal. 4. 6.

appointed heir] That is, ordained Poſſeſſor, Lord, and Diſpenſer; which is not to be underſtood of that eſſentiall dominion or Lordſhip which he had common with the Father and the holy Ghoſt, being God equall with them; but of that oeconomicall, diſpenſed, or delegate dominion or Lordſhip, whereunto he was foreordained before the foundations of the world, being appointed the Mediatour of the new Teſtament, and wherein he was actually conſtituted and placed, after that he had finiſhed the work of mans redemption, Pſal. 89.27. all things] Whether they belong to this life, or the life to come: ſo that whatſoever we want, we muſt ſeek in and through him, John 3.35. & 13.3.

by whom] Prov. 8.27—30. John 1.3. 1 Cor. 8.7. Col. 1.16. Heb. 1.10. It is not as by an inſtrument or inferiour cauſe, but by him, as by his eternall wiſdome, and by way of a conjoyned, cooperating and equal cauſe; ſo that by this particle [by] is meant only the order of working; it is the Father by the Sonne, and not the inferiority of cauſes.

made] That is, created, as John 1.3. Col. 1.16.

the worlds] That is, the worlds continuation through its ſeverall ages, and all things viſible and inviſible, meaſured by time, or whatſoever hath any duration or ſucceſſion. Chap. 11. 3. Neh. 9.6.

V. 3. Who being, &c.] Wiſd. 7. 26. John 1. 14. Phil. 2. 6. Col. 1.15.

brightneſſe] Or, ſent forth light. The ſpeech is metaphoricall, taken or borrowed from a lightſome body, and the beams or ſplendor which it ſends forth; God the Father being herein compared unto the lightſome body, God the Sonne unto the beam or ſplendor ſent forth; and ſo are the words following, wherein God the Father is compared unto a Seal, God the Son unto an impreſſion reſulting from the Seal. Now the Sonne of God may be called the ſent-forth light of his Fathers glory, and the imprinted form of his Eſſence or Perſon; either in reſpect of his Deitie, and then thereby is ſignified, both the manner of his eſſentiall generation; viz. that it was eternall from his Father, as alſo his conſubſtantiality with the Father; that is, that he is of the ſame eſſence with him: or elſe in reſpect of his incarnation, or manifeſtation in the fleſh, becauſe in Chriſt manifeſted in the fleſh the Glory and Majeſty of God the Father ſhined forth, which otherwiſe was inviſible, and could not be beholden.

expreſſe image] Or, imprinted forme. See the former note.

upholding] That is, continuing their natures and governing of them. Numb. 11.14. Deut. 1.9.

by the word] That is, by his powerfull word, or by his words of power, by his mighty command, and according to his own will and pleaſure, Chap. 11.3.

When] Or, after that. Here the Apoſtle gives another reaſon why Chriſt was made heir of all things, verſ. 2. viz. becauſe by himſelf he purged our ſinnes.

by himſelf] That is, the ſacrifice of himſelf: whereby is implyed the ſuperexcellency of Chriſts ſacrifice above all others. See Chap. 9. v. 12.14,26.

purged] That is, taken away the guilt of our ſinnes, by making ſatisfaction unto the juſtice of God for them. Chap. 9.22, 23 Ephe. 5.26. Tit. 2. 14. John 1. 1, 7. 1 Pet. 1. 2. Revel. 1. 5.

ſate down] Herein the Apoſtle alludeth to the cuſtome of Kings, who place him at their right hand whom they put next in authority and power under them; ſo that hereby is denoted the ſupream and high dignity, power and dominion, which Chriſt obtained when he aſcended into heaven. Chap. 12. 2. Mat. 26.64. Rom. 8.34. Col. 3.1.

of the Majeſtie] That is, of God the Father. See Chap. 8. 1.

V. 4. Being] At this verſe S. Paul begins to confirme that which he had before ſpoken, touching the excellency of Chriſts perſon, by preferring him unto Angels, and conſequently unto all other Creatures.

made] The Originall word doth not onely ſignifie being made, but alſo ſimply being, John 1. 15. Acts 7. 38. and not only ſo, but being declared or acknowledged, Rom. 3.4. James 1. 12.

* There is ſome Controverſie about the Author of this Epiſtle. Some aſcribing it to Barnabas. Others, to Clemens of Rome : Others, to Luke : But generally it is received, that S. Paul was the Auther thereof. And it is obſerved, that all the Greek Copies, ſave one, bear this inſcription : and generally, by an Hebrew, we are to underſtand the whole poſterity of Abraham, by Iſaac, who was the firſt (we read of) who was ſtyled an Hebrew, Gen. 14. 13. The cauſe, wherefore that name was given unto him, you may ſee in the Annotations upon Gen. 14. 13. But more particularly in this place, we are to underſtand hereby thoſe of the Hebrews, who having received the Goſpel, continued in Judea before their diſperſion.

† V. 2. In theſe laſt dayes] What we are to underſtand by the laſt times, we muſt gather from the ſubject matter or circumſtances of the place. Sometimes it is taken for the day of judgment; as Joh. 6. 44. Sometimes neer the end of the world, or the day of judgment; as 2 Tim. 3. 2 Pet. 3. 3. Sometime for the time of the Goſpel, which is called, the fulneſſe of time, Epheſ. 1. 10. Gal. 4. 4. and ſo Eſay 2. 2. Mich. 4. 1. 1 Pet. 1. 10. This is called the end of the world, Chap. 9. 26. Now, the time of the Goſpel is ſtyled, the laſt times, becauſe we are not to expect any other revelation after this time: or in oppoſition to the times before and under the Law, which is called the old time, Matth. 5. 21. or becauſe our Lord Chriſt hath now made all things new, 2 Cor. 5. 17.

more excellent] Epheſ. 1. 21. Phil. 2. 9. That is, more honourable and glorious Titles and Attributes, or greater Honour, Power, Dominion, Majeſty and glory then the Angels.

V. 5. Thou art my Son] The place of the Pſalmiſt, Pſal. 2. 7. in the literal ſenſe, is to be underſtood of David, as the Type, who after many troubles, was at length ſettled in his Kingdom, which God had promiſed him; but in the myſtical ſenſe it is underſtood of Chriſt the truth: Now Chriſt may be ſaid to be the Son of God, and to be begotten of him in a three-fold reſpect. Firſt, of his eternal generation, ſee verſ. 2. Secondly, of his incarnation, Luk. 1. 35. Thirdly, of his reſurrection, whereby he was begotten unto an eternal Kingdom and Prieſthood. And of this we are to underſtand this place, as we may gather from St. Pauls expoſition hereof, Act. 13. 33. And it cannot be probably conceived, how Davids exaltation unto his Kingdome, can be a type of Chriſts eternal generation.

I will be] This place is of the like nature with the former; in the literal ſenſe it is meant of Solomon the Type, but in the myſtical, of Chriſt the truth. See 2 Sam. 7. 14. 2 Chron. 22. 10.

V. 6. And again] Or, And when he bringeth his firſt begotten again; or, the ſecond time. Whether we underſtand the place either of Chriſts coming, that is, in the fleſh; or elſe of his ſecond, that is, to judgment, it proves the truth intended, viz. that Chriſt is more excellent then the Angels.

firſt-begotten] Rom. 8. 29. So called, to denote his excellency above his brethren in nature, office, glory, dominion, Exod. 4. 22. Pſal. 89. 27. Jer. 31. as alſo in that love wherewith God the Father loveth him above all his brethren, Deut. 21. 16. Mic. 6. 7. Zech. 12. 10.

And let all] Pſal. 97. 7. And this was fulfilled, Luk. 12. 13, 14. Mark 1. 13. Rev. 5. 11, 12.

V. 7. maketh] Pſal. 104. 4.

ſpirits] That is, as the winds. See the Note following.

as a flame] Or, as the lightnings. By both which we are to underſtand their readineſſe to execute Gods will; for as the winds and lightnings ſuddenly paſſe from one end of the earth to the other, ſo the Angels preſently fulfill Gods will, Matth. 6. 10.

V. 8. Thy throne] Pſal. 45. 6. Eſay 9. 7. The Pſalm whence this is taken, is allegorical; ſee the notes thereon; expreſſing the ſpiritual marriage between Chriſt and his Church; and therefore here it is properly applyed.

V. 9. Therefore] Rather for this end God did anoint thee: for if we underſtand by anointing, Chriſts ſeating in his Kingdome, or entring into his glory, the ſenſe will be abſurd, viz. Thou haſt adminiſtred thy Kingdome with juſtice, therefore God hath ſeated thee in thy Kingdome: He was firſt to be ſeated in his Kingdome, before he could adminiſter it with juſtice: So that by (Therefore) we are to underſtand the cauſe wherefore God did anoint him, and not the fruit or effect of Chriſts righteous government.

anoynted] Qualified thee with the gifts of his Spirit, for the adminiſtration of thy Kingdom. See Luk. 4. 18.

oyl] With his Spirit: compared to oyl, becauſe as oyl ſtrengtheneth the body, ſo the Spirit of God ſtrengtheneth and rejoyceth the ſoul, 1 Theſſ. [illegible]. 6. This anoynting was when the Son of God aſſumed our humane nature into the unity of his perſon; whereby the Spirit of God and all the graces of his Spirit were communicated unto his humane nature, ſo far as it was capable of them.

above] Not by meaſure, but in fulneſſe; that all others of his fulneſſe might receive grace for grace, John 1. 14. & 3. 34. Col. 1. 19.

fellowes] All men; becauſe all men are his fellowes in reſpect of our humane nature which he aſſumed. Or, all thoſe who have received the Spirit of God: or, all Kings, Prieſts, and Prophets, becauſe thoſe in ancient times were wont to be anoynted. Now our Lord Chriſt being a King, Prieſt, and Prophet, thoſe in an eſpecial manner may be called his fellowes.

V. 10. And thou] Pſal. 102. 25. Eſa. 34. 4. verſ. 2.

V. 12. And as a veſture ſhalt thou fold them up, and they ſhall be changed] Or we may read it thus; As a garment doſt thou ſhake them, and they ſhall paſſe away. Or if we read it (fold) the words allude unto a tent, which when it is to be removed, is folded up.

V. 13. Sit] Reign; as it is expounded, 1 Cor. 15. 25.

footſtool] It is an alluſion unto a cuſtome in the Eaſtern parts, where they were wont to put their feet upon the necks of thoſe whom they have conquered: So that hereby we are to underſtand that perfect victory which Chriſt had over all his enemies, Eſay 8. 8. Joſh. 10. 24. 2 Sam. 22. 41.

V. 14. Are they, &c.] Verſ. 7. 2 Kings 2. 11. & 6. 17. Pſal. 34. 7. & 91. 11, &c.

heirs] They are principally for the elect, and for their ſake they are occupied about the wicked: As an Angel deſtroyed the hoſt of Sennacherib, 2 Kings 19. 35. and Herod, Act. 12. 23.

CHAP. II.

Verſ. 1. THerefore] From the former doctrine touching Chriſts excellency and dignity above angels and all other creatures, Saint Paul infers this exhortation. The ſcope whereof is to ſtirre up the Hebrews to ſtand faſt in that faith which they had received.

heed] The more earneſtly keep and obey: or more abundantly.

let them ſlip] Gr. run out as leaking veſſels.

ſlip] In which words there is a metaphor, which ſome conceive to be taken from a leaking veſſel: And the ſenſe then is this; Take heed, that you ſuffer not the things which you have heard to ſlip out of your memories: to which is oppoſed, the hiding of the word in our hearts, Pſal. 119. 11. Luke 2. 51. Others, from water poured upon the ground, which cannot be gathered up again, 2 Sam. 14. 14. And to this Expoſition, the context of the next verſe ſeems to lead us. See Prov. 3. 21.

V. 2. word] That is, either the law given upon Mount Sinai, Deut. 33. 2. Act. 7. 53. Gal. 3. 19. Or elſe all thoſe revelations which God made unto the Prophets by Angels, or other meſſengers. See Chap. 10. 28, 29.

by Angels] Which muſt not be underſtood of the Law given by the Miniſtery of Angels, which ſome have gathered from thoſe places, Act. 7. 53. Gal. 3. 19. for if we well weigh the words in the original, they imply not ſo much. Stephen ſaith not, that they received the Law by the Miniſtery of Angels, but among the orders or ranks of angels, by whom the fearful trumpet was ſounded, and who were, (as it were) a heavenly Army attending upon God at that preſent time, when he gave the Law to the people: and in Gal. 3. 19. it is among the Angels, by the hand of a Mediatour: but hereby we are to underſtand here any doctrine or admonition whatſoever, which God ſent to man by the miniſtery of Angels under the Old Teſtament.

ſteadfaſt] That is, was of ſuch force and authority, that no man tranſgreſſed ſtubbornly and willingly, unpuniſhed. See Deut. 32. 35. 1 Cor. 10. 6, 7, 8, 9, 10.

a juſt] Condigne puniſhment, Rom. 1. 27.

V. 3. great ſalvation] That is, the knowledge, Luke 1. 77. or the word, Act. 13. 26. or the Goſpel of ſo great ſalvation, Eph. 1. 13. our eternal redemption and freedom from the bondage of Sin, Satan, and Death; called great, in compariſon of all temporal and corporal deliverances.

began] Not that Chriſt delivered the doctrine of ſalvation imperfectly, and left it to be fully delivered by the apoſtles, but becauſe he firſt preached it, and that fully and plainly, which before was but obſcurely revealed. See Chap. 1. v. 1, 2.

unto us] That is, unto our times: or elſe Saint Paul here joynes himſelf with thoſe Hebrews, who were called into the fellowſhip of the Goſpel, that there by his exhortation might leave the deeper impreſſion in thoſe, unto whom he did write. See 1 Cor. 10. 8, 9. 1 Pet. 4. 3.

V. 4. God alſo bearing] Mar. 16. 20. At this verſe Saint Paul reſumes the former compariſon between Chriſt and the Angels.

gifts] Gr. diſtributions. See Rom. 12. 6. 1 Cor. 7. 17. & 12. 11. Eph. 4. 8. becauſe of the Spirit were not given all unto one, but to ſeveral perſons.

V. 5. the world to] The Apoſtle following the Tranſlation of the Septuagent, Eſ. 9 6. calls the Church under the Goſpel, eſpeciall, after Chriſts reſurrection and aſcention, when he had entred upon his eternal kingdom, and prieſthood, the world to come: firſt, in relation unto the Church before and under the Law: ſecondly, becauſe of the reſtauration of all things by Chriſt begun already, 2 Cor. 5. 17. and ſhall be finiſhed hereafter at the general day of reſurrection, which is called the time of reſtitution of all things, Act. 3. 21. Epheſ. 1. 10.

ſpake] Hereof he had ſpok, Chap. 1. v. 2, 3, 13.

V. 6. What is man] Pſal. 8. 4. The words in the literal ſenſe, are to be underſtood, both of the miſery and baſeneſſe, as alſo of the prerogative and dignity of man in general, eſpecially of the faithful: but in the myſtical or prophetical ſenſe, they are to be underſtood of the humiliation and exaltation of the man Chriſt Jeſus, in whom they are moſt exactly and exquiſitely fulfilled.

V. 7. little lower] Or, a little while inferiour. The Original, both in the Hebrew and the Greek ſignifieth, both a little deal, as Gen. 18. 4. & 24. 17. Joſh, 6. 7. and a little while, as Gen. 30. 30. Exod. 17. 4. Levit. 25. 52. Luke 22. 58. Act. 5. 34. and the place may be underſtood of both according to the two-fold ſenſe obſerved in it: according to the litteral or hiſtorical ſenſe, or as theſe words ſpeak of the baſeneſſe and dignity of man, we may underſtand them of a little deal, but according to the prophetical ſenſe: as they ſpeak of Chriſt, we may underſtand them a little while and of a little deal.

Angels] In the Original it is מאלהים, which is one of the names of God; and therefore ſome have tranſlated it, A little lower then God. but becauſe the original word is often attributed unto the angels and magiſtrates, therefore the Apoſtle properly alleageth the place, for the proof of that, which he intended.

V. 8. But now] All power was given unto Chriſt at his reſurrection, Matth. 28. 18. Joh. 5. 27. but yet he doth not fully exerciſe this power: this is left to the judgement of the great day, when all his enemies ſhall be put under his feet. See Chap. 1. 13.

V. 9. But we ſee] That is, by his reſurrection, aſcenſion, and thoſe gifts of the Spirit, which he poured down upon his Apoſtles and the whole Church after his aſcention, Act. 2. 4. Epheſ. 4. 8. See verſ. 4.

for] That is, that he might ſuffer death; the Greek prepoſition ſometimes implying the final cauſe. See Rom. 4. 25. Or, in that he did dye, which the angels do not. See Phil. 2. 4.

grace of God] Joh. 3. 16. Tit. 2. 11.

taſte] That is, die, Mat. 6. 28. Mark 9. 1. Luk. 9. 27. Or it may be underſtood, of Chriſt dying without ſeeing corruption, Pſ. 16. 10. Act. 2. 17. & 13. 35. Or, Chriſt may be ſaid but to taſte of death, becauſe he continued but a ſhort time under the power thereof, it being impoſible, that he ſhould be holden of it, Act. 2. 24.

for every man] Rom. 5. 18. 1 Tim. 2. 6. 1 John 2. 2.

V. 10. For it] Here Saint Paul proceeds to ſhew the reaſon, wherefore it became him, who was ordained to be the Prince and Captain of our ſalvation, to be man, and in our humane nature to ſuffer death.

became] Whether the work of mans redemption could have been wrought without the humiliation of the Sonne of God, is not determinable by men; but that it was the moſt admirable way, which wiſdom, juſtice and mercy could require, cannot be denied.

glory] So the eternal happineſſe of the Saints is often ſtyled. See Rom. 8 18. 2 Cor. 4. 17. Eph. 1. 18.

to make] That is, to conſecrate unto his everlaſting Kingdom and prieſthood. So the original word is uſed by the Septuagint, Exod. 29. 10.

Captain of their] Act. 3. 15. & 5. 31.

V. 11. ſanctifieth] By (ſanctifie) here underſtand not onely the renewing of our natures, but alſo our juſtification. See Chap. 9 9. & 10. 10. Eph. 5. 26. by both which the Prince of our ſalvation brings ſons unto glory. Or Chriſts conſecrating us unto his Father, Revel. 1. 6.

of one] That is, of one maſſe or lump, or of the ſame nature. It is conceived by ſome that this rule is taken from the manner of ſanctifying under the Old Teſtament, under which the high prieſt and thoſe whom he ſanctified, were of one and the ſame nature; and ſo the firſtlings and firſt fruits were of the ſame nature with the whole Flock and Crop, which was ſanctified in them.

brethren] That is, to reckon himſelf amongſt them as one of the ſame nature and condition; for in thoſe texts afterwards alleadged, he doth not in expreſſe words call them brethren, but onely imply it.

V. 12. Saying] Viz. Pſal. 22. 22. Which though it be to be here underſtood of David as the type, yet is likewiſe to be underſtood of Chriſt as of the truth; it being a continued relation of the ſtory of Chriſts ſufferings, and is oftner alleadged to that purpoſe by the Evangeliſts, then any Chapter in the Old Teſtament.

V. 13. I will put] Pſal. 18. 2. & 22. 30. It is the duty of man ſubject to miſery and afliction to put his truſt in God, and therefore when Chriſt affirms of himſelf (I will put, &c.) thereby he implies his humane nature ſubject to miſery and affliction.

Behold] Iſaiah was a type of Chriſt: hence that which he affirms of himſelf, is true of Chriſt.

children] Not onely Iſaiah himſelf was a type of Chriſt, but his children alſo were a figure of thoſe whom Chriſt was to bring unto glory. See Iſa. 8. 18.

V. 14. Foraſmuch then, &c.] The Apoſtle having ſhewed before, that Chriſt was of the ſame nature with other men, comes at this verſe to ſhew the reaſon why it was ſo requiſite.

fleſh and blood] Underſtand thereby mans humane nature ſubject to weakneſſe, miſery and death. So Mat. 16. 17. Gal. 1. 16. Eph. 6. 12. See Chap. 5. 7.

took] That is, did aſſume into the unity of his perſon, or humane nature, ſubject to the ſame common blameleſſe infirmities.

that through death] 1 Cor. 15. 54, 55.

through] As it were by his own weapon.

him] That is, the power and kingdom of Satan, which ſtands in three things: Firſt, in tempting man to ſinne. Secondly, in holding him under the bondage of ſinne. Thirdly, in accuſing him to God for ſinne. Hence Chriſt may be ſaid by death to deſtroy the Devil, that is, the power of the Devil, becauſe by the merit and vertue of his death he took away both the reigning and condemning power of ſin, Rom. 6. 3, &c. 1 Joh. 3. 8.

power of death] That is, through ſinne whereunto he had ſeduced man, and under which he kept him ſtill, 1 Cor. 15. 56.

devil] He ſpeaks of one as of that Prince, not excluding the reſt. So often in the Scripture, as Joh. 8. 44. Epheſ. 6. 11. Jam. 4. 7.

V. 15. of death] That is, joyned with the anger of God as it is without Chriſt, who hath taken away its ſting. See verſ. 14.

bondage] And ſo could not take pleaſure in any thing, ſeeing death was alwaies ready to ſurpriſe them.

V. 16. took] The original ſignifieth to lay hold upon one that is flying away, or in danger. Anſwerable hereunto it may in this place ſignifie Chriſts redeeming not the angels, but the ſeed of Abraham: that is, man, when he fled from him, Gen. 3. 8. Some underſtand it of Chriſts taking upon him our humane nature.

V. 17. in all things] Sinne excepted. See Chap. 4. 15. Hereby we are given to underſtand that Chriſt was perfect man, conſiſting of a humane body and a humane ſoul, ſubject to all the common infirmities and weakneſſes of both; or all thoſe infirmities, whether of body or ſoul, which imply neither pollution nor impotency in his ſufferings.

behoved] See verſ. 10.

a merciful] Chap. 4. 15. & 5. 2. That is, pitiful, ready to have compaſſion and to help.

faithful] In executing Gods will for mans redemption.

to make] That is, by the ſacrifice of himſelf or merit of his paſſion. See Chap. 1. 3.

V. 18. tempted] Both in body and ſoul, yet without ſinne: tempted of God in his agony, Luk. 22. 44. of the devil, Matth. 4. 1. and by his inſtruments through his whole life.

CHAP. III.

Verſ. 1. VV*herefore*] At this verſe the Apoſtle proſecutes the exhortation begunne, Chap. 2. verſ. 1. and continues it to the end of the fourth Chapter.

Holy brethren] Such who are made holy by Jeſus Chriſt the holy one of God, 1 Cor. 6. 11. And he cals them brethren, not by merit in reſpect of their carnal generation; but becauſe they were all pertakers of the ſame holy and precious faith now with him.

heavenly] That is, effectual calling, whereby they believed and obeyed the Goſpel of Chriſt. Called heavenly: Firſt, in reſpect of the Author, God, Phil.3.14. Secondly, in reſpect of thoſe things whereunto they were called to be partakers of, which were heavenly, 1 Theſſ.2.12. 2 Theſſ.2.14. 2 Tim. 1.9. 1 Pet.2.9. & 3.9. & 5.10. 2 Pet.1.3. Some underſtand thereby, that Goſpel, or the preaching thereof, which was the outward means of their calling.

conſider] That is, diligently, attentively: ponder with all your heart and mind his dignity and excellency, that ſo ye might adhere unto him, and obey him.

Apoſtle] That is, whom God hath ſent as his Ambaſſadour to make known his will unto you. See Chap.1.2.

high] Whom God hath ordained to make ſatisfaction for your ſins. See Chap.1.3. and of whom the high Prieſt under the Law was a Type.

profeſſion] Whom we believe with our hearts, and whom we confeſſe with our mouthes, Rom. 10. 10. Or of the doctrine which we believe and ought to confeſſe, Chap.4.14. & 10. 13. 2 Cor.9.13. 1 Tim.6.12,13.

V. 2. faithful] That is, in diſcharging that office, which God had appointed to him for mans redemption: So the original word is often uſed, as Mat.24.45. & 25.21. Acts 16.15. 1 Cor. 4.2. Epheſ.6.21. Col.1.7. See Chap.2.17. 1 Pet.1.20.

appointed] Or, made. See 1 Sam.12.6. Act.2.36. Now he is ſaid to be made, not as if he were a creature made of God, but he is ſaid to be made in reſpect of his office; made the Apoſtle and high Prieſt of our ſalvation.

Moſes] Num.12.7.

houſe] That is, the Church of God in his time, and wherein God did dwell.

V. 3. man was] 1 Cor.15.21. 1 Tim.2.5.

Moſes] As before he preferred Chriſt to the Angels, ſo here unto Moſes, ſhewing both wherein they agreed, and wherein they differed. They agreed in that both were faithful in their office, verſ. 2. They differed; firſt, in that Chriſt was the builder of the Church, whereas Moſes was but a part thereof, verſ. 3. ſecondly, in that Moſes governed the Church but as a ſervant or ſteward; but Chriſt as a Son, whom his Father had made heir of all things, verſ.5,6.

V. 4. ſome man] Or, ſome one.

V. 5. teſtimony] That is, to be a witneſſe of thoſe things which he ſhould in the name of God report unto the people: Or we may underſtand the place of thoſe ceremonies and Types of the old Teſtament ſet forth by Moſes, to be afterwards more plainly and fully declared by Chriſt and his Apoſtles.

V. 6. own] Chriſt hath a propriety in his Church, and therefore he is ready to uſe all fidelity, mercy, and power, to govern and defend it.

houſe] Chriſt dwelling in our hearts by faith, Epheſ. 3. 17. See 1 Cor.3.16. 2 Cor.6.16. 1 Pet.2.5. confidence] That is, the profeſſion of our faith with boldneſſe, Act.4.29. Rom.10.10. Epheſ.6.19. 1 Theſſ.2.2.

rejoycing] That is, glorying in thoſe things for which we hope, Col.1.5. 1 Theſſ. 5. 8. Tit. 1.2. Or, our hope, which makes us to rejoyce, Rom.5.2.

unto the end] Mat.10.22. & 4.13. Rev.3.10.

V. 7. Wherefore] In as much as Gods wonders in Egypt, and in the wilderneſſe, the conducting of his people into the land of Canaan, and their rebellious behaviour in it, were true types or ſhadowes of the like events in future times under the Goſpel, therefore the Apoſtle upon good ground alledgeth this of the Pſalmiſt, not onely as an exhortation appliable to his times, but alſo as a Prophecy.

holy Ghoſt] By David, Pſal.95.7. See 2 Sam.23.2. Act. 1.16. 2 Pet.1.21.

to day] Pſal.95.7. The place being underdood as a Prophecy: by to day, we are here to underſtand the time of the Goſpel, called the accepted time and day of ſalvation, 2 Cor.6.2. Or, underſtand thereby the preſent time, whenſoever ſalvation is offered.

if] Or, when; as Gen.38.9. Exod.20.25. & 22.25. Lev. 2. 14. Num.36.4. Judg.20.30. Mat.5.23.

V. 8. Harden] Contemn not his voyce, but believe it, cleave faſt and be obedient unto it, Zech.7.11,12. Act.7.51. where reſiſting is oppoſed unto it.

provocation] That is, day of provocation: whereby underſtand not onely that ſpecial time mentioned Exod.17.2,&c. Num.20.1,&c. & Deut.6.16. but the whole ſpace, wherein they tempted God in the wilderneſſe. See Pſal.78.1,&c.

V. 9. When] Gr. Where.

tempted] When they tempted me, by calling into queſtion my preſence, power and providence, Pſal.78.20.

me] That is, Chriſt, 1 Cor.10.9.

proved] Out of unbelief, notwithſtanding they had experience of my power and preſence with them.

and ſaw] Or, notwithſtanding they ſaw.

fourty years] See Pſal.95.9.

V. 10. grieved] That is, was grievouſly offended, I abhorred.

known] That is, not ſeriouſly conſidered the courſe of my providence, and the wayes of my commandments.

V. 11. So I ſware] Num.14.23.

they ſhall not enter] Gr. if they ſhall enter. But that particle is often negative. See Pſal.89.35. If I lye unto David; I will not lye unto him: It is obſerved, that an oath uſually implyeth an imprecation, which for the moſt part is concealed. See 1 Sam.14.44. 1 King.20.10.

reſt] Literally it was underſtood of the Land of Canaan, which was a type of the eternal reſt of the faithful in heaven, Chap.4.9. but in as much as the land of Canaan wat a type of heaven, therefore we are further to underſtand it of the excluſion of unbelievers out of heaven.

V. 12. Take heed] Here the Apoſtle begins to comment upon, or expound, the former paſſage of the Pſalmiſt.

unbelief] Whereby is implyed, that infidelity is the original and fountain of all diſobedience.

V. 13. exhort] Whereby underſtand reproof, admonition, comfort, and the like.

daily] Continually, upon all good occaſions.

to day] While it is the accepted time or day of ſalvation, or while the Lord doth afford you opportunity and means of grace, Pſal.32.6. Iſa.55.6.

deceitfulneſſe] Ephel.4.22.

V. 14. For we] This verſe ſhould be with a parentheſis.

of Chriſt] And all ſpiritual bleſſings.

if we hold] Col.1.23.

beginning] Or, that faith which we had in the beginning.

of our confidence] The Original word ſignifieth a foundation, or prop which upholds the building: hence faith is denoted thereby, becauſe it is the foundation of all ſpiritual graces, and prop which upholds Chriſtians in this vale of tears, Jude v. 20. Or by it we may underſtand [expectation] it being by faith that we certainly expect things hoped for, Chap. 11.1. Pſal. 39.7.

unto the end] See verſ.6.

V. 15. This verſe cohereth with the 13.

V. 18. ſware] Num.14.30. Deut.1.35.

V. 19. So we ſee] Pſal.106.24,25,26,27. unbelief] That is, becauſe they did not truſt upon Gods promiſes, but murmured againſt him in the wilderneſſe.

CHAP. IV.

Verſ. 1. THerefore] Our Apoſtle having in the former Chapter exhorted the Hebrews to take heed, leſt they entred not into that reſt formerly mentioned, reneweth his exhortation at this verſe; and then proceeds to a further amplification of that reſt.

any of you] Chap.12.15.

ſeem] That is, ſhould come ſhort. So Luk. 8. 18. compared with Luke 19. & 26. & 25.29. 1 Cor.11.16.

come ſhort] As thoſe who run in a race, and yet come not to the gaol, and ſo receive not the price, 1 Cor.9.24. Or, come late, as the fooliſh virgins, Matth.25.10.

V. 2. the word preached] Gr. the word of hearing; for faith cometh by hearing, Rom.10.17.

not being mixed with faith in] Or, becauſe it is not received by faith. That is, not being joyned or accompanied with faith. It is thought that herein the Apoſtle alludes unto a potion not well mingled, which rather hurts then doth any good.

V. 3. reſt] That is, that ſpiritual and eternal reſt, whereof David ſpeaks, Pſal.95.11. which is begun in this life in the joy of the Holy Ghoſt, and in the peace of a good conſcience, and ſhall be perfected hereafter in the joyes of heaven.

ſaid] Not in expreſſe terms, but by neceſſary conſequence; for where God ſwears, that unbelievers ſhall not enter into his reſt, there he doth implicitely promiſe, that believers ſhall enter thereunto.

As I have ſworn] Pſal.95.11.

although] At this clauſe the Apoſtle begins to ſhew, what that reſt was whereof the Pſalmiſt ſpake, Pſal.95. and of which he had exhorted them not to come ſhort, verſ. 1. viz. not the reſt of the ſeventh day, ſpoken of Gen.2.2. which he ſheweth to verſ.7. neither that reſt whereunto Joſhua brought the children of Iſrael, that is, their reſt in the land of Canaan; this from the ſeventh verſe to the tenth; but of another reſt, whereof the former were but types and ſhadows, which the Pſalmiſt chiefly intends.

V. 4. And God did reſt] Gen.2.2. Exod.20.11.

works] That is, of creation, not of continual preſervation; or, making of the world then.

V. 6. Seeing] Becauſe the Pſalmiſt ſpeaks of a reſt, which was to be long after that reſt in Canaan, even 400 yeares: Hence the Apoſtle inferreth [illegible] this and the two following verſes, that the Pſalmiſt intends another reſt then that corporal and civil reſt.

it was firſt preached] Or, the Goſpel was firſt preached.

V. 8. Jeſus] That is, Joſhua.

V. 9. There] Seeing that the Pſalmiſt cannot be underſtood onely of the two former reſts, hence the apoſtle concludeth, that there remaineth another kinde of reſt; now what that reſt is, he ſheweth in the verſe following.

reſt to the people of God] Or, keeping of ſabbath.

V. 10. own works] From thoſe afflictions and ſorrows, which he ſuffers in, this life, Revel. 14,13. & 21.4. Thereby the Apoſtle intends the happineſſe of the Saints in heaven, where all tears ſhall be wiped from their eyes, Eſa. 25. 8. Revel. 7. 17. and whereof we receive the firſt fruits and pledg, even in this life. See verſ. 3.

V. 11. labour] That is, diligently, or with all our might; or let us ſtudy and uſe our beſt endeavour, Luk. 13. 24.

unbelief] Or, diſobedience.

V. 12. Word of God] Some underſtand it of the Word written or ſpoken, and of the great power thereof; whereof Saint Paul ſpeaks, 1 Cor. 14. 24. But with more probability, if we obſerve both the antecedents and conſequents of the place, we may unerſtand it of Chriſt, who is called the Word, John 1. 1. Revel. 19. 13. becauſe he was to reveal the counſel and will of God his Father unto his people: but it is likewiſe appliable unto the word written or preached.

quick] living. Whereby he is oppoſed to the Idols of the Heathen, who had eyes and ſaw not, and ears and heard not, &c. but Chriſt the Word of God is living, beholding all the thoughts and actions of men, that ſo he might give to every man according to his deeds.

powerful] He is not onely omniſcient, but alſo ful of power to execute his wrath upon thoſe that are diſobedient.

ſharper] By this ſimilitude is likewiſe expreſſed the Omniſcience of Chriſt, unto whom nothing is ſecret, no not the thoughts and intentions of our hearts: A two-edged ſword eaſily enters, it makes way for it ſelf.

V. 13. opened] As it were anatomized and cleft aſunder: So that he ſees every turning and winding of our hearts.

with whom] That is, ſay ſome, unto whom we muſt give an account, Rom. 2. 16. & 14. 10. but it ought rather to be tranſlated, of whom is our ſpeech; or, of whom we ſpeak: So the Greek propoſition is often uſed. See Chap. 1. 7. Luke 20. 19. Rom. 10. 21.

V. 14. great high] Chap. 3. 1. Who both knowes the deepeſt and moſt ſecret thoughts and intentions of our hearts, and is likewiſe able to puniſh us for them.

paſſed into the heavens] Chap. 7. 26. 12. 24. Whereby Chriſt is preferred unto the Levitical High Prieſts, who entred onely into the Holy of Holieſt.

hold faſt] Chap. 10. 23. That is, ſtedfaſtly without wavering, cleave and adhere to the doctrine of Chriſt, which we profeſſe, and not ſuffer our ſelves to be drawn from it by any temptations or perſecution's, chap. 10. 23.

V. 5. For we have not] Chap. 2. 17, 18.

infirmities] Both of body and ſoul; he means not onely the miſeries of this life, but likewiſe all thoſe afflictions whereby we are uſually tempted unto ſin, and tryed.

without ſin] 1 Pet. 2. 22.

V. 16. therefore] Knowing that we have ſuch a high Prieſt, who is both able and willing to ſuccour us when we are tempted.

come] By faithful and fervent prayer.

boldly] Or, freely. Chap. 10. 19. Eph. 2. 28.

throne] That is, God reconciled unto us in Chriſt, typified by Gods ſitting between the Cherubims upon the Mercy-Seat, Exod. 25. 22.

to help in time of need] Gr. for ſeaſonable help. When God, in his infinite wiſdom, ſhall ſee it moſt needful.

CHAP. V.

Verſ. 1. F*Or*] At this chapter the Apoſtle makes a farther declaration of Chriſts Prieſthood, comparing it unto, and preferring it above the legal prieſthood. Our Apoſtle having ſhewed that Chriſt was a great and merciful High Prieſt, Chap. 2. 17. Firſt he ſheweth, what was required in the high Prieſt for his qualification unto his office; and then ſheweth how, that both theſe were fulfilled in Chriſt.

high] He ſaith (high Prieſt) not every meſſenger ſent from God; for ſometimes Angels were his meſſengers. But herein God manifeſteth his wiſdom in ſending unto us, not onely his Son, clothed with our humane infirmities; but alſo men ſubject to the ſame ſinful infirmities, that they might the better have compaſſion upon us.

from] And ſo was Chriſt. See Chap. 2. 11, 14, 16.

ordained] Chap. 8. 3.

for men] That is, for their good, viz. that they might teach them, pray for and bleſſe them, and in their behalf offer gifts and ſacrifices. See Chap. 2. 17.

things pertaining to God] See chap. 2. 17.

for ſins] To make ſatisfaction for ſins: not that the Levitical ſacrifices did of themſelves take away ſin, but here that is attributed to thoſe ſacrifices as types and ſhadows, which properly and onely agrees unto that our ſacrifice of Chriſt, who was the truth and body of thoſe ſacrifices.

V. 2. can] Or, can reaſonably bear with. Or, can prudently conſider, Pſal. 41. 1. Who being a man ſubject to infirmity like unto them, is qualified with meekneſſe, gentleneſſe and meet moderation to have compaſſion. See Gal. 6. 1.

with infirmity] Chap. 7. 28. That is, not onely afflictions and temptations; as Chap. 4. 15. but alſo ſin it ſelf, as appears by the verſe following.

V. 3. And] Or, for which alſo.

for himſelf] Chap. 7. 27. Wherein appears the excellency of Chriſts ſacrifice above that of Aarons, becauſe he needed not offer for himſelf, being without ſin, Chap. 7. 27. See Levit. 14. 3.

V. 4. And no man] 2 Chron. 26. 18.

taketh] That is ought to take. Verbs active, in the phraſe of the Scripture, ſometimes import, not the act it ſelf, but duty or office, as Gen. 20. 9. Lev. 4. 2. & 13. Pſal. 32. 8. Uzziah, though a king, muſt not take the Prieſts office upon him, 2 Chron. 26. 16.

as was Aaron] Exod. 28. 1. 1 Chron. 23. 13.

V. 5. Chriſt] Joh. 8. 54.

Thou] Pſal. 2. 7. chap. 1. 5.

V. 6. Thou] Pſal. 110. 4. See Chap. 7. v. 1, &c.

for ever] The prieſthood of Chriſt is unchangeable, chap. 7. 24. and therefore more excellent then that of Aaron; and herein ſtands our comfort, that when we ſin, we have an Advocate with the Father Chriſt Jeſus our great high Prieſt, making interceſſion for us, 1 John 2. 1.

order] Chap. 7. 14.

V. 7. in the days of his fleſh] That is, of his humiliation, while he was ſubject to our common, humane, yet blameleſſe infirmities. The word fleſh often imports weakneſſe in the Scripture. See Chap. 2. 14. Pſal. 78. 39. Iſa. 31. 3.

ſtrong] He meaneth that moſt earneſt prayer which Chriſt uttered in the Garden, when he ſwet drops of blood, Matth. 26. 36. Mark 14. 33. Luke 22. 39.

was heard] Pſal. 34. 4. That is, delivered, as Pſal. 22. 21.

in that he feared] Or, for his piety, or, from his pious fear. From that which he ſo piouſly and mightily feared, viz. that cup of anguiſh, thoſe unknown pains which he ſuffered in his agony, when the whole power of darkneſſe ſet upon him, from this he was delivered, Luke 22. 43. Joh. 12. 27. Or, in reſpect of his pious fear, Eſ. 11. 2.

V. 8. learned] That is, by experience.

obedience] That is, paſſive, patiently to ſubmit his will unto his Fathers.

V. 9. perfect] Or, conſecrated. See Chap. 2. 10.

obey him] Eſ. 55. 3.

V. 10. Called] That is, appointed or publikely declared, viz. at or by his reſurrection.

V. 11. Of whom] *The Apoſtle from this verſe to the 13. of the next Chapter makes a digreſſion, wherein he gives them a ſharp, though a moderate reproof, for their negligence in labouring for knowledg, that ſo he might make them the more attentive to that which he ſhould ſpeak afterwards.

to be uttered] Or, to be expounded.

V. 12. time] Conſidering how long ye have enjoyed the means of knowledg.

ye have need that one teach you again] Or, ye need to be taught again your ſelves.

principles] It is an alluſion unto children, who are firſt taught their letters before they they can be taught to ſpell or to read perfectly; herein their great negligence is taxed, in as much as yet they were to learn their Catechiſm, the A. B. C. as it were of the doctrine of Chriſt.

milk] 1 Cor. 3. 2. What the apoſtle called the firſt principles, here he calleth milk, alluding again unto children, who are fed with milk, food eaſie of digeſtion, and not with ſtrong meat.

ſtrong] That is, a more full and ample inſtitution in the myſteries of the Goſpel, which is called the ſpeaking of the wiſdom of God in a myſtery, 1 Cor. 2. 7. See Epheſ. 3. 4. & 6. 16. Col. 2. 2.

V. 13. is unskilful] Gr. hath no experience.

righteouſneſs] Which teacheth the righteouſneſſe both of juſtification and ſanctification, or a righteous word, Pſalm 19. 7. Prov. 8. 6, &c.

babe] 1 Cor. 14. 20. Epheſ. 4. 14.

V. 14. of full age] Or, perfect. Not abſolutely, but in compariſon of thoſe whom he compares to babes, v. 13.

of uſe] Or, of an habit, or perfection. Or, habit attained by hearing, reading and meditating on the word.

ſenſes] Their faculties of underſtanding and judgement: for words of ſenſe often import faculties of the underſtanding part, and that both in general, as Luke 9.45. compared with Luk. 18. 34. Phil. 1.9. as alſo in particular, as Gen. 41. 1. & 2. 31. & 11. 7. Pſal. 34. 8. 1 Pet. 2. 3.

to diſcern] 1 Cor. 2. 13, 15. For the chooſing the good and refuſing that which is evil.

CHAP. VI.

Verſ. 1. THerefore leaving] Not that we are to neglect the firſt principles of religion, but to labour for a greater meaſure of knowledg, 2 Pet. 3. 18. It is as if he had ſaid, Seeing it is a ſhame alwaies to be babes, let us as men grown ſeek after ſtronger meat.

leaving] Not caſting them for ever behinde our backs, ſuffering them to ſlip quite out of our memories; but not ſtaying onely upon theſe, let us go forward, as good travellers, in our Chriſtian race.

the principles of the doctrine of Chriſt] Or, the word of the beginning of Chriſt. The firſt principles of Chriſtian religion are here compared unto the foundation of a building, on which the more perfect knowledg of the myſteries of the Goſpel were to be built.

let us go on] Let us be carried on, or, let forward. See Chap. 2. 3.

unto perfection] Col. 3. 16.

of] Theſe (as it thought) were the ſix principles of the apoſtles Catechiſm.

dead works] Chap. 9. 14. That is, ſin; ſo called, firſt, becauſe they make a man lyable unto death, Rom. 6. 16, 21, 23. & Chap. 7. 5. Jam. 1. 15. Secondly, becauſe they proceed from man, by nature ſpiritually dead, Eph. 2. 1.

V. 2. baptiſms] Or, baptizings. The plural number for the ſingular; as ſacrifices for ſacrifice, Chap. 8. 22, 23. ſome give this reaſon for it, viz. becauſe in thoſe times many baptiſmes were adminiſtred at once, there being ſet days appointed for it. Others conceive, that the apoſtle following the Hebrew phraſe, alludes unto the ſeveral waſhings under the law.

laying] Which is uſually called confirmation, which ſtood, firſt, in examining thoſe who had been baptized, what progreſſe they had made in the doctrine of Chriſtianity. Secondly, in praying for them, that God would continue them in the faith, and give them more grace, ſtrengthening them by his Holy Spirit. Now when the chief Paſtor or Paſtors of the Church prayed for them, they laid their hands upon them; whence the apoſtolical conſtitution was called the laying on of hands. So Auguſtine, lib. de fide & operibus, cap. 11. And ſo moſt of the Fathers, with one conſent. Or, underſtand thereby a ceremony uſed in the ordination of Miniſters.

V. 3. if God permit] 1 Cor. 4. 19. Jam. 4. 15.

V. 4. For it is impoſſible] Chap. 10. 26. The apoſtle obſerving that the Hebrews were ready to revolt from the Chriſtian faith, into Judaiſm, and by little and little to fall into the impardonable ſin which here he deſcribes, labours to keep them from both: Firſt, by manifeſting the danger of ſuch a relapſe, verſ. 4.—9. Secondly, by aſſuring them of a happy ſucceſſe, if they did continue in that faith and courſe of life which they had begun, verſ. 9—13.

impoſſible] In reſpect of Gods wiſdom and juſtice, giving them up unto an impenitent heart.

thoſe] Here is a deſcription of the quality of thoſe perſons unto whom the ſin againſt the Holy Ghoſt is cheifly incident, or moſt peculiar.

enlightned] With the knowledg of the truth. See Chap. 10. 26.

heavenly gift] Some underſtand hereby ſome peace and tranquillity of conſcience ariſing out of a hope that their ſins were pardoned: others underſtand it of faith, which is the gift of God, Epheſ. 2. 8. Some underſtand it of Chriſt. Joh. 4. 10. and 6. 32.

holy Ghoſt] That is, of the gifts of the holy Ghoſt, mentioned Chap. 2. 4.

V. 5. taſted] Have found ſweetneſſe in the Word of God, as Herod. Mark 6. 20. and thoſe who are compared to ſtony ground, Mark 4. 16.

powers] The joyes of heaven; as Balaam, Numb. 23. 10.

V. 6. If] Or, After.

fall away] That is, by univerſal Apoſtaſie into Judaiſme or Paganiſme, maliciouſly and deſpightfully contemning, perſecuting or oppoſing the faith of Chriſt, of whoſe truth they are convinced in their conſciences by the holy Ghoſt.

crucifie] So much as in them lyeth; and if Chriſt were upon the earth again, they would be as malicious enemies unto him, as ever any were.

V. 7. For the earth, &c.] He illuſtrateth the former confirmation by a ſimilitude taken from the earth; as the earth painfully tilled, and plentifully watered with rain from heaven, is good for nothing but to be burnt, if in ſtead of good fruit it bringeth forth thorns and thiſtles: ſo theſe who have been plentifully watered with many ſweet ſhowers of the Word of God, and inriched with divers excellent graces, are good for nothing but to burn in hell fire for evermore. See Eſa. 55. 10, 11.

V. 7. by whom] Or, for whom.

V. 9. But beloved] To moderate and ſweeten his former harſhneſſe, here he ſhews his good opinion which he had of the Hebrews, and to comfort them, by giving them aſſurance of Gods mercy in rewarding them, if they continued ſtedfaſt in their profeſſion. See Chap. 10. 39.

accompany] Or, which have ſalvation. Wee are perſwaded, that you are in the number of thoſe who ſhall be ſaved, or, accompany the things neer unto ſalvation.

V. 10. unrighteous] That is, unfaithful or inconſtant, ſo as to forget his promiſes of rewarding. See 2 Theſſ. 1. 6. 1 Joh. 1. 9. It is but fooliſh, which popiſh Writers here conclude for the merit of good works. It is juſt with God ſo to do, not in regard of mans merits, but of his own promiſe.

labour] 1 Theſſ. 1. 3. Becauſe they manifeſted their love with much danger, and through many diſcouragements.

toward] For his name ſake; or out of love and obedience unto God, and not for carnal reſpects.

V. 11. deſire] It is, as if the Apoſtle had ſaid: As you have begun well, ſo we deſire that you would perſevere unto the end.

full aſſurance] That is, that your faith and hope may be without anxeity and doubting.

unto the end] Chap. 3, 6, 14.

V. 12. ſlothful] That is, negligent and careleſſe to grow in faith, and to bring forth the fruits thereof. See Chap. 5. 11, 12. The contrary whereunto was Saint Pauls preſſing hard towards the price of the high calling in Chriſt Jeſus, Phil. 3. 13, 14.

patience] Chap. 10. 36. Jam. 5. 7.

V. 13. For when] The Apoſtle proveth by the example of Abraham the father of the faithful, what he had teſtified of all their faithful forefathers in the precedent verſe; and he maketh choice to inſtance in Abraham, becauſe the ſubſtance of that promiſe made unto him, was made alſo to all his children according to promiſe; that is, to all the faithful. Rom. 9. 8. or becauſe the Jews boaſted exceedingly of him, Joh. 8. 33.

he ſware] Gen. 22. 16. 17.

V. 14. bleſſing] See Gen. 22. 17.

V. 15. promiſe] That is, the thing promiſed, viz. the abundant multiplication of his ſeed, the poſſeſſion of the land of Canaan, and his eternal happineſſe in heaven; which though he obtained not while he was alive, yet is ſaid to have obtained, becauſe in the appointed time they were performed unto him, though dead. See Chap. 11. 39.

V. 16. For men] From the uſe of an oath amongſt men, the Apoſtle infers the reaſon why God ſomtimes confirms his promiſes by an oath, viz. to declare the immutability of the thing promiſed.

greater] That is, (by God) who knoweth the truth and will in due time puniſh lying.

V. 17. Wherein] In the which thing, or in the which oath, or for the which cauſe.

more abundantly] The thing promiſed by a bare promiſe, may be reverſed in reſpect of ſome change in the perſon, to whom the promiſe is made, without any change in God; but a thing promiſed by oath ſhall be immutable; ſo that an oath added unto a promiſe, implies the immutability of the thing promiſed. See 1 Sam. 2. 30.

ſhew] To make a lively and more evident demonſtration of the immutability of his counſel.

confirmed it by an oath] Gr. interpoſed himſelf by an oath.

V. 18. immutable] That is, his promiſe and oath.

V. 19. Which hope] Rom. 8. 25.

anchor] Whereby the ſoul in time of trouble, layes hold upon Chriſt the rock of our ſalvation.

vail] That is, heaven, whereof the holy of holyeſt was a type or ſhadow, Chap. 9. 24.

V. 20. forerunner] That is, Chriſt, ſo called, becauſe he is aſcended into heaven, to prepare manſions for us. John 14. 2, 3.

made] Here the Apoſtle reſumeth the matter which he had left off, Chap. 15. 11. viz. to ſhew that Chriſt was a Prieſt after the Order of Melchiſedec, and therein the excellency both of his perſon and prieſthood.

CHAP. VII.

Ver. 1. F*Or this Melcheſedec*] Gen. 14. 18, &c. The Apoſtle having before, Chap. 5. 6. & 10. & Chap. 6. 20. affirmed, that Chriſt was a Prieſt after the order of Melchiſedec, here gives an hiſtorical deſcription of him, that ſo it might the better appear wherein he was a type of Chriſt, and by conſequence wherein the Preiſthood of Chriſt was better then that of Aarons.

king] Herein Melchiſedec was a type of Chriſt, becauſe he was both a King and Prieſt.

Salem] Some are of opinion that this Salem, is that place which is called Sichem, Gen. 33. 18. and that it is that Salem, mentioned, Joh. 3. 23. a place neer unto Jordan; but it is moſt probable, that is was that place which afterwards was called Jeruſalem, for Salem and Sion was all one, Pſal. 76. 2. now Sion is Jeruſalem. See the Notes on Gen. 14. 18, &c.

Prieſt] Some have tranſlated, Gen. 14. 18. Prince of the moſt high God; becauſe (Cober) ſignifies a Prince as well as a Prieſt, 2 Sam. 8. 18. but becauſe we read of none ever called the Prince of the moſt high God. And becauſe Paul here, and the ſeventy tranſlate there, ἱερεὺς, which alwaies ſignifies a Prieſt, not a Prince; therefore it is not probable, that it is to be read, Prince of the moſt high God.

moſt high God] Pſal. 78. 56. Dan. 3. 26. & 5. 18. That is, in eſſence and glory above all caeatures; ſo God is often called, in oppoſition to the falſe gods of the Heathen.

bleſſed him] Numb. 6. 23. 1 Chron. 23. 13. Not onely by way of requeſt, but with a Solemn and Prieſtly bleſſing: and herein he was a type of Chriſt, in whom it was promiſed, that all the nations of the earth ſhould be bleſſed, Gen. 22. 18. and who now ſitting at the right hand of God, bleſſeth us with the bleſſings of this life, and the life to come.

V. 2. gave a tenth] And ſeeing our Lord remaineth for ever a Prieſt after the order of Melchiſedec why ſhould not tythes, belong unto him, and in him thoſe who in his ſtead exhort us to be reconciled unto his father, 2 Cor. 5. 20.

peace] Herein a type of Chriſt, who hath reconciled us unto God. Com. 5. 1.

V. 3. Without] So deſcribed, becauſe neither his father, mother, deſcent, birth or death are regiſtred; in whoſe omiſſion he was made a type both of the eternity of Chriſts perſon, and of his Prieſthood: not that our Saviour Chriſt was with-Father, &c. for theſe we finde recorded; but becauſe that which was chiefly intended by the deſcription of Milchiſedec, doth moſt abſolutely, and perfectly agree unto Chriſt, and that was the eternity of his perſon, and of his Prieſthood.

without deſcent] Gr. without pedegree.

made] Or, transformed and turned out of his proper ſhape and likeneſſe, that he might be like unto the Son of God.

V. 4. unto whom] By two circumſtances the Apoſtle gathers the preheminence of Melchiſedec above Abraham: firſt, becauſe Abraham paid tythes unto him, verſ. 4. 5. Secondly, becauſe Melchiſedec bleſſed Abraham, verſ. 6. 7.

Patriarch] That is, cheif of Fathers. Numb. 18. 19. Deut. 8. 1. Joſh. 14. 4.

ſpoils] Or, of the beſt things: not that Abraham made choice of the beſt things, and of them gave the tenth part only; for it is ſaid verſ. 2. that he gave a tenth of all; but that he made choice of the beſt things to pay the tenth part of the whole, as it was afterward ordained. Numb. 18. 12.

V. 5. they that] Numb. 18. 21. & 26.

to take tythes] Or, to tythe.

V. 6. deſcent] Or, pedegree. That is neither from Abraham no from Levy.

bleſſed] See verſ. 1.

promiſes] Gal. 16.

V. 7. the leſſe] The original is of the neuter gender, but put by an enalage for the maſculine, as Epheſ. 1. 10.

Bleſſed] That is by way of Prieſtly office; but otherwiſe by way of common charity, the leſſe did bleſſe the greater.

V. 8. here] That is, under the Levitical law.

there] viz. Gen. 4. 20.

liveth] Becauſe his death is not recorded.

ſo ſay] Or, to ſpeak in a word or briefly.

V. 11. If therefore] In as much as God promiſed to raiſe up a Prieſt after another order then that of Aaron, and whoſe Prieſthood ſhould excel that of Aaron, hence is inferred the imperfection and abrogation both of the Legal Prieſthood, and of that Covenant which was eſtabliſhed or ratified upon it.

perfection] That is, if the Levitical Prieſthood could have juſtified, ſanctified, and ſo conſequently brought unto ſalvation.

for] This clauſe is inſerted to ſhew the mutual relation between the Levitical Prieſthood and the old Covenant.

under it the people receive of the Law] Or, upon it the Law was ratified unto the people.

Law] Old Covenant.

V. 12. changed] Or, tranſlated.

change] Or, tranſlation.

V. 14. Juda] Revel. 5. 5.

V. 16. Who is made] That is, conſecrated unto his Prieſthood.

after the law] That is, not as thoſe Legal Prieſts were by outward purification and ſanctification, conſiſting in outward anointings, waſhings, offerings, and the like; which ſerved onely for the ſanctifying of the perſon from Legal pollutions. See Chap. 9. 13.

power] That is, of God, or the anointing of the Holy Ghoſt; which was to continue upon him, and to qualifie and enable him to be an everlaſting Prieſt, who ſhould alwayes live to make interceſſion for us, and communicate unto us the merit and power of his ſacrifice, which he once offered for us unto everlaſting life. Rom. 6. 9. Rev. 1. 8.

V. 17. Thou art] Pſal. 110. 4.

V. 18. commandment] That is, of the Covenant.

weakneſſe] Gal. 4. 9. viz. to juſtifie, ſanctifie, and bring unto ſalvation by reaſon of the fleſh, Rom. 8. 3. that is, of us men who are not able to fulfil the law by reaſon of that corruption, which dwels in our fleſh. Acts 15. 10. Gal. 3. 21. And note that here St. Paul ſpeaketh of the old Covenant, as underſtood by the Jews; viz. of fulfilling the Law: for otherwiſe the Covenant was a perfect Covenant, for thoſe times, or the nonage of Gods people, though not ſo perfectly revealed, as in the the time of the Goſpel.

V. 19. law] That is, old Covenant; as verſ. 11. 12.

perfect] See ver. 18.

but the bringing in] Or, but it was the bringing in.

bringing] The Greek word ſignifieth the ſuperinduction, or the bringing in of one thing after another.

V. 20. And in as much] It is as if the Apoſtle had ſaid ſaid: It muſt needs be a great thing, and of ſingular weight and importance which God Almighty ratifieth with an oath.

V. 25. to the uttermoſt] Or, evermore. That is, fully, perfectly, or to the end; ſo that no part of our ſalvation muſt be ſought, either in our ſelves, or in any other. The Original word ſignifieth all manner of perfection.

Verſ. 1. R*ight hand*] Chap. 1. 3.

V. 2. of the ſanctuary] Or, of holy things. Not of the corporal, but of that which was ſhadowed by it: what that is, is expreſſed in the words following.

Sanctuary] Which ſome interpret of the Sancti, but generally in this Epiſtle, by the original word ἅγιον, we are to underſtand the heavens, as we may plainly gather from Chap. 9. 11.

and] That is, which is: Or, that is of the true tabernacle.

true tabernacle] Chap. 9. 11. That is, of his own body or humane nature, whereof the corporal tabernacle was a type hence Saint John ſaith, that the word tabernacled with us, Joh. 1. 14. ſpeaking of his being in our fleſh. Or his taking upon him our humane nature, Chap. 7. 27. and Chap. 9. 14 See Joh. 2. 19. Col. 2. 9.

the Lord pitched] It being conceived of the holy Ghoſt, and was not erected by the hand of man; or not conceived by the concurrence of the man. See Chap. 9. 11.

V. 3. For every] Here is a reaſon given of that which was ſaid in the former verſe, taken from the analogie between the ſhadow and the ſubſtance,or type and truth : The Legall Prieſts had ſomething to offer ; ſo Chriſt was to have ſomething, and that was his own body. See v.7.

gifts and ſacrifices] Chap.5.1. & 9.9.

V. 4. For if] In this and the next verſe there are reaſons given why Chriſt could not be a Prieſt upon earth. Firſt, becauſe the earthly Prieſts were ordained by the Law to offer onely earthly and carnal ſacrifices ; but there were no ſuch ſacrifices required of the Prieſt according to the order of Melchiſedec, Pſal.40.6. Verſ. 4. Secondly, the Legal Prieſthood and the ſacrifices adminiſtred by it, were ſhadows of heavenly things, viz. of the Prieſthood of Chriſt and his ſacrifice; whence it evidently follows, that his Prieſthood was to be a heavenly Prieſthood, and his ſacrifice to be a heavenly ſacrifice, Verſ.5.

He ſhould not be,&c.] viz. having fulfilled and accompliſhed all things required of him, as a prieſt upon earth : and therefore his miniſtry would have ended, but now he was to fulfil alſo that which remaineth of his prieſtly office in heaven, in the Holy of Holyes.

there are prieſts] Or, they are prieſts.

according to the law] Here is another reaſon given, why our Lord Chriſt ought not to be a prieſt upon earth, viz. ſuch an one, who ſhould according to the law, adminiſter the prieſthood upon earth : the ſubſtance whereof is this ; becauſe God under the law ordained no prieſt, but thoſe of the tribe of Levy,and no offerings or ſacrifices but Ceremonial,whereof Chriſt was not ordained or conſtituted a miniſter, but of that which was prefigured by them, as is ſet down in the words following.

V. 5. Who ſerve] The whole earthly Tabernacle, with the Prieſthood, Sacrifices and Ceremonies, appertaining to it, were types and ſhadowes of Chriſt, and of heavenly things to be obtained through him.

ſhadow] Chap.10. 1. Col.2.17. Here our Apoſtle deſcendeth to the deſcription of the Levitical prieſts, and of their office,which conſiſted firſt in the manner of their ſervice. Secondly, in the matter of their ſervice : for the manner, their ſervice was but a ſhadow of the true ſacrifice, and for the matter thereof, it conſiſted of corporal things.

better promiſes] Firſt, becauſe they depend upon faith, Rom. 4.13,16. Gal. 3.16, 17. Secondly, becauſe God had promiſed to pour out a greater meaſure of his Spirit under the new then he did under the old Covenant, Eſa.44.3. Joh. 2. 28. Act. 2.16. Gal.3. 2.

V. 7. faultleſſe] That is, without imperfection. See Chap. 7. 18.

V. 8. Behold] Jer. 31. 31, 32, 33, 34. Though the Apoſtle doth not keep himſelf to the words of the Prophet; yet he retains his matter. See notes on Jer.31.31,—35.

V. 2. For] What the Apoſtle called the worldly or earthly Tabernacle or Sanctuary, here he further deſcribeth, with the principal furniture thereof ; dividing it into two parts, making as it were two Tabernacles of one : Whereof the firſt was a type of Chriſts humane nature, Chap.8.2. the ſanctuary] Or, holy.

V. 3. ſecond] Called ſo, to diſtinguiſh it from the vail through which they entred into the firſt Tabernacle. See Exod. 26.31,36.

V. 4. golden cenſer] It is probable that hereby is meant, either that particular cenſer, which the High Prieſt carried into the Holy of Holyeſt, once in the year, Lev.16.12. Or elſe the golden Altar of incenſe, deſcribed Exod. 30. 1, &c. which though it was not within the Holy of Holieſt, yet the holy of Holieſt may be ſaid to have it, becauſe it was made for the ſervice thereof ; being placed before the vail of the Holy of Holieſt, that ſo the incenſe burnt thereon might cloud the Holy of Holieſt. Hence it is ſaid to be before the Ark of the Teſtimonie, Exod. 40. 5. The Original word ſignifieth any Utenſil, wherein, or whereon incenſe might be burnt ; and it may be called golden, becauſe it was over-laid with gold. See Exod.4. 5. & Lev. 4.11.

wherein] Both the Greek prepoſition and the Hebrew anſwerable unto it, ſignifie not onely in or within, but alſo by, neer unto, or before. See Joſh.5.13. Judg.4 8. 12. Jer. 13. 5. Luk. 9. 31. Hence not onely the Tables of the Covenant, but likewiſe the golden Pot which had the Manna, and Aarons Rod that budded, are ſaid here to be in the Ark, notwithſtanding the Tables of the Covenant were onely within it, 1 King. 8. 9. 2 Chron.5.10. becauſe we have no anſwerable prepoſition in the Engliſh, to ſignifie the latitude and extent of the Original. Some refer (wherein) to Tabernacle, verſ. 3. and it is true, that ſometimes the relative hath relation unto the moſt remote antecedent. See Joh. 8.44.

The uſe of theſe was to cover, or over-ſhadow the Mercy-ſeat with their wings, Exod.25.20. And from this ſeat God uſed to ſpeak unto Moſes, Exod.25.22. Numb. 7. 89. which may be applyed unto Chriſt, whoſe mediation was ſignified by the mercy-ſeat: whence it is ſaid, that he is a propitiation or covering Mercy-ſeat, Rom.3.25. 1 Joh.2.2. & 4.10. becauſe by his obedience all our unrighteouſneſs is covered.

V. 7. once every year] Exod.30.10. Levit. 16. 2. The tenth day of every moneth or day of reconciliation. As Levit. 16. 18,&c. whereby was ſignified the perfection of Chriſts ſacrifice once for all, ver.28.

errours] That is, all ſorts of ſins, becauſe all ſorts of ſins ariſe from ſome errour in jugdment, Chap. 5. 3. & 7. 27. Luk. 16. 16.

V. 8. a way] That is, the ſacrifice was not yet offered, by vertue whereof the faithful had free acceſſe unto God into heaven:not that the faithful were not in heaven before Chriſts aſcenſion ; but to ſhew by whom, or by vertue of whoſe blood they entered, Chap.10.19,20.

V. 9. Which] Or, which parable was for. That is, which ſimilitude or type of the High Prieſt, of the Tabernacle, and of the furniture and ſervice thereof.

for the] That is, of the nonage or minority of the Church.

in which] Or,according to which. That is,according to which time of the nonage or minority of the Church God fitted his publick worſhip. For the people of the Jews being a groſſe people, and much addicted to idolatry, it ſeemed good unto the wiſdom of God, to exerciſe them with a more groſſe and bodily worſhip,that ſo he might keep them from it. See Gal.4.1,2,3.

gifts and ſacrifices] Chap.5.1.& 8.3. by gifts and ſacrifices,we are to underſtand the whole ſervice of the Tabernacle, whereof the Apoſtle makes mention of ſome particulars in the verſes following : thus incenſe is called an offering, Num. 16. v. 15. compared with verſ.17. and the Ephah of fine flowre,uſed at the conſecration of Aaron and his ſons,a meat-offering,Lev.6.20.

that could not] That is, they could not in themſelves ſeparated from their ſpiritual ſignifications, either ſatisfie the conſcience that ſin was pardoned, and reconciliation obtained with God ; becauſe the conſcience could not have found ſatisfaction how Gods juſtice ſhould be ſatisfied by thoſe offerings, Chap. 10.4. or ſanctifie or purifie the conſcience, they being corporal, and ſo could not reach unto it.

and carnal ordinances] Or, rites, or, ceremonies, or juſtifications of the fleſh. Or, and in ſuch like carnal Ordinances. The Apoſtle ſumming up that in general, whereof he had made mention in ſome particulars before. Called carnal ordinances, or juſtifications of the fleſh, becauſe they did ſanctifie onely to the purifying of the fleſh, verſ.13. that is, freeing thoſe who uſed them from Legal pollutions and irregularities. See 2 Chron.30.19. John 11.55.

time of,&c.] That is, of Chriſts coming, who ſhould and did reform the carnal rites, or ceremonies and ſervices of the Law, by fulfilling them; exhibiting the truth and thoſe ſpiritual bleſſings typified and ſignified by them; and by inſtituting a more ſimple and ſpiritual worſhip. This is that which is meant, when God promiſes to create new heavens, and a new earth, Eſay 65. 17. and when Saint Paul ſaith, All things are made new, 2 Cor. 5.17.

V. 11. But,&c.] Here followeth the explication and application of the former type: and the compariſon is chiefly made between the remedy appointed for ſins, merely ceremonial, that is, Legal pollutions and irregularities, which was the blood of of Bulls and Goats,&c. and the remedy of thoſe ſins which in their own nature poyſon the ſoul; and this is onely the blood of Jeſus Chriſt.

an high Prieſt] Or, for to be a high Prieſt.

good,&c.] Chap.10.1. That is, of all thoſe ſpiritual mercies and benefits which were purchaſed by his blood: as juſtification, ſanctifiaction, adoption, and everlaſting ſalvation.

greater,&c.] That is, of his own body. See Chap.8.2.

made, &c.] As the Legal Tabernacle was. See more on Chap.8.2.

V. 12. bloud, &c.] Epheſ.1.7. Col. 1. 14. Rom.3.24,25. Wherewith the High Prieſt entered the Holy of Holieſt, Lev. 16. 3.

once] See Chap.7.27.

holy place] That is heaven, whereof the Holy of Holieſt was a type.

having,&c.] Firſt.

eternal] Eſay 51.6.

V. 13. the bloud] Lev.16.14.

the aſhes] Num.19.17,&c.

unclean] The Greek ſignifieth common, but in the Scriptures, eſpecially of the New Teſtament, it ſignifieth unclean. See Mat.15.11. Mar.7.15. Act.10.14. It is meant here of ſuch who were made unclean: that is, diſenabled to enter into the Temple, through Legal pollutions; as by touching the dead,&c.

ſanctifieth] See verſ.10.

V. 14. bloud,&c. 1 Pet.1.19. Applyed by faith. See Act. 15. 9. & 26.18.

eternal] That is, God-head, Act.20.28. Rom.1.4. 1 Pet.3.18. Implying thereby, that the ſacrifice of Chriſts death had its value and vertue both to ſatisfie and ſanctifie from his Deity.

ſpot] Or, fault. Typified by the ſpotleſſe ſacrifices commanded to be offered under the Law, Exod.12.5. Num. 19. 2. and 28.3. Rom.3.25. 1 Pet.1.19.

purge,&c.] 1 Joh.1.9. Both in reſpect of juſtification and ſanctification.

dead,&c.] See Heb.6.1.

ſerve,&c.] Luke 1.74. Implying, that no ſervice is acceptable to God unto ſalvation, unleſſe the conſcience be firſt purified by the blood of Jeſus Chriſt. See 1 Pet.2.5.

V. 15. And for] Or, And ſo, or, ſo then.

Mediatour] Chap.8.6. & Chap.12.24.

that by the means of death] Or, to the end that. Gr. death being made.

tranſgreſſions that were under the firſt teſtament] Rom. 3. 5. It is not the meaning of the Apoſtle, that ſins committed under the Old Teſtament were not pardoned before Chriſt dyed, but that they were pardoned onely by vertue of Chriſts death, who was the Lamb ſlain from the beginning of the world, Rev. 13. 8.

called] That is, effectually, or thoſe who have believed.

eternal,&c.] Called eternal redemption, verſ.12.

V. 16. is] That is, in force.

be the death] Or, be brought in.

V. 17. after men are dead] Or, after the dead; or, till they are dead.

teſtatour liveth] In whoſe power it was to alter it.

V. 18. dedicated] Or, purified. That is, ratified, or confirmed.

V. 19. precepts] The conditions of that firſt covenant. See Chap.7.12. Epheſ.2.15.

calves] So the Apoſtle calls the younger bullocks, by reaſon of the neerneſſe of their age unto calves.

goats] There is expreſſe mention made onely of bullocks, Exod.24.5. but by the ſacrifice of bullocks as of the principal, we are to underſtand the ſacrifices of all other beaſts.

with water,&c.] There is no expreſſe mention made of theſe particulars, Exod.24.8. Whence ſome conceive that St. Paul had them either by tradition, or revelation; but it is more probable, that he gathereth it from the uſual cuſtome of ſprinkling blood under the Law, which was with water, Scarlet-wooll, and hyſſope. See Lev.14.6. Num.19.6. & 18. Pſal.51.7.

ſcarlet] Or, purple.

book] We read not that the book was ſprinkled; it ſeems therefore that the book was upon the Altar, and ſo ſprinkled with it. This book was not the two Tables of ſtone, for theſe God made, but ſome other ſhort ſum of the firſt Covenant which Moſes himſelf did write. See Exod.24.4. Some are of opinion, that thereby are meant the 20,21. & 23. Chapters of Exodus.

people] That is, the twelve pillars which repreſented the twelve Tribes. See Exod.24.4.

V. 20. This is the bloud] Exod.24.8.

enjoyned unto you] Or, hath ordained concerning you, Heb.1.7.

V. 21. Moreover] Though not at the ſame time, for then the Tabernacle was not made. See Exod. Chap.25.&c.

tabernacle] We read that God commanded the Altar, and all the veſſels to be anoynted with oyl by Moſes, Exod.24.8,&c. and accordingly they were anointed by him, Lev. 8.10. but we no where read expreſſely, as ſome are of opinion, that he either was commanded, or did ſprinkle the Tabernacle and the furniture thereof with blood: It is ſuppoſed therefore by ſome, that Saint Paul gathered thus much from Exod.29.12. Lev. 8. 15. & 16. 14. where there is mention made of ſprinkling with blood the Altar and Mercy-ſeat,&c. where, by the principal part, we may underſtand the whole Tabernacle and all the furniture thereof. Or it may be thus much is plainly expreſſed, Lev. 16. 16. Joſephus reports, lib. 3. Antiq. Hebr. c. 9. that the whole Tabernacle was ſprinkled.

V. 22. almoſt] Some refer (Almoſt) to all things, becauſe we read that ſome things were cleanſed by fire and water, Num.31. 22. Others refer it unto purged, that is, from their Legal impurities, and make the ſenſe this: All things are by the Law almoſt purged, though not altogether by blood; becauſe ſometimes other things were required: theſe are of opinion, that in all cleanſings there was the uſe of blood. And ſo the words following (And without,&c.) they conceive are to be underſtood, otherwiſe there will ſeem to be a contradiction between (Almoſt) in the firſt clauſe and (without) in the ſecond. Or may be the former part of this verſe may be underſtood of things whereof ſome might be cleanſed without blood, and the ſecond part of perſons which could not.

V. 23. patterns] Called figures, verſ.24. and ſhadows, chap. 10.1. See chap.8.2.

heavenly things] Some underſtand thereby Chriſt himſelf, and thoſe ſpiritual bleſſings which the faithful obtain through faith in him. For Chriſt himſelf was conſecrated, or made perfect through ſufferings, Chap.2.10. Others underſtand thereby the Church under the Goſpel, and thoſe ſpiritual graces whereof the members are made partakers therein. The Church under the Goſpel being called the heavenly Jeruſalem, Chap. 12.22. and thoſe graces being called ſpiritual bleſſings in heavenly places, Epheſ.1.3. Others underſtand thereby heaven it ſelf, whereinto Chriſt entred, verſ.24.

ſacrifices] The ſingular number for the plural, which is frequent in the Scriptures. Or may be the Apoſtle ſtyles the one ſacrifice of Chriſt [Sacrifices] becauſe it was anſwerable unto all the Legal ſacrifices, and far beyond them.

V. 24. hands] verſ.11.

others] That is, not with his own, but with the blood of beaſts.

V. 26. For] That is, had Chriſt offered himſelf often, then he ſhould have ſuffered often: for without ſuffering, no propitiatory ſacrifice. Where is then the ſacrifice of the Maſſe?

appeared] Or, made manifeſt, 1 Tim.3.16. 1 Joh.3.8.

to put away ſin] That is, to aboliſh or make voyd the guilt or obligation of ſin, whereby it binds over unbelievers unto condemnation; ſo that unto believers, ſin is of no force to accuſe or condemn them, or to ſhut them out of heaven.

V. 27. appointed] Job 30.23. Pſal.89.48. Eccl.6.6.

once] That is, according to the common or ordinary courſe of nature, though there be ſome extraordinary examples.

judgment] Underſtand it of every mans particular judgment preſently upon his death.

V. 28. So] Or, Even ſo, Chriſt being once offered to bear the ſins of many, ſhall appear or be ſeen the ſecond time without ſin unto ſalvation, to all thoſe who expect him.

Chriſt was] 1 Pet. 3.18.

bear] Or carry up the ſins of many upon the Croſſe, there to make ſatisfaction for them, by the ſacrifice of himſelf, 1 Pet. 2. 24. Or, take up ſin; that is, the guilt of our ſin upon himſelf.

many] Matth. 26.27. Rom. 5.19.

look] Phil. 3.10. 1 Theſſ. 1.10. 2 Tim. 4.8. Tit. 2.13.

ſecond] Oppoſed to his firſt appearance, viz. in the fleſh, ver. 26. when he came with the guilt and burden of our ſins upon him.

without ſin] That is, without the guilt or ſacrifice of ſin, having made full ſatisfaction for it, by his own ſacrifice of himſelf upon the Croſſe.

unto ſalvation] Some refer this unto (look for him).

ſalvation] That is, both of ſoul and body in heaven, chap. 5. 9. 1 Pet. 1.19.

CHAP. X.

Verſ. 1. L*Aw*] That is, the old Covenant. So the word Law, is taken, chap. 7.12. & 19.

ſhadow] Some are of opinion, that here Saint Paul alludes to the cuſtome of Painters, who firſt make a rude draught, and then out of it a perfect and lively picture. Theſe make the ſenſe this, viz. That the old Covenant did contain onely dark reſemblances and types of heavenly things, no lively repreſentations of them; this being reſerved unto the time of the Goſpel, wherein Chriſt and all ſpiritual bleſſings in him are clearly and plainly manifeſted. Others are of opinion, that Saint Paul alludes unto the ſhadow of a body, and theſe make this the ſenſe of the words, viz. That the old Covenant had only types, wherein Chriſt and heavenly things through him, were darkly repreſented, not the ſubſtance and truth of the things themſelves. This is the more probable opinion. See Col. 2. 17.

image] That is, the ſubſtance or truth. See the former Note, and 2 Cor. 4.4. Col. 1.15. Phil. 2.6.

perfect] Verſ. 4. That is, as touching the conſcience. See chap. 9.9.

V. 2. For] Or, otherwiſe they would have, &c. Whether this clauſe be read with or without an interrogation, the ſenſe will be the ſame: the ſcope of the Apoſtle being to ſhew the weakneſſe and inſufficiency of the Legal ſacrifices to purge the conſcience from the guilt of ſin, from their often repetition.

worſhippers] Chap. 9.9.

once] That is, if they had been once purged from the guilt of their ſins.

conſcience] Should not have their conſcience any longer under the burden or guilt of thoſe ſins.

V. 3. remembrance] Viz. When Aaron and his ſucceſſours laid both their hands, in the name of the people, upon the head of the Scape-goat, confeſſing their ſins, and ſending him into the wilderneſs; by this ſign diſcharging them, and laying all the burthen of their ſins upon the beaſt, which was a figure of Chriſt, who bare our ſins upon the Croſſe, Heb. 9.28.

ſins] That is, the ſame ſins. For upon the day of propitiation there was confeſſion of, and reconciliation for the ſins of the whole year.

V. 4. take away ſins] verſ. 1. chap. 9.9.

V. 5. when] That is, the Son of God, being to come, Mat. 11. 3. or foretelling of his coming. into the world] Joh. 16.28. & 18.37. 1 Tim. 1.5. Underſtand it of his being made fleſh, John 1.14. or being manifeſted in the fleſh, 1 Tim. 3.16.

ſaith] By David, who was a type of him, and unto whom this paſſage agrees, though not in that exactneſſe as it doth unto Chriſt.

Sacrifice] Pſal. 40.6, &c. Though Saint Paul keeps not himſelf unto the expreſſe words of the Pſalmiſt, yet he retains the ſubſtance and matter of them.

body] Heb. mine ear haſt thou opened; or, digged open. It is a proverbial manner of ſpeech, whereby there is implyed the qualifying, or fiting a man unto obedience in ſervice: the ear, or opening of the ear, being an emblem or ſymbol, or a metaphorical ſign of obedience. See Eſay 50.5. Job 33.16. Now St. Paul following the Tranſlation of the Septuagint, and being directed by the Spirit of God, expounds this of Gods ſanctifying and fiting a body unto Chriſt, wherein he was obedient even unto the ſhameful death of the Croſſe.

haſt thou prepared me] Or, thou haſt fitted me.

ſecond] That is, the one ſacrifice of Chriſt.

V. 10. will] That is, of the Father, who appointed his Son to take our nature, and therein by death to make ſatisfaction for our ſins. Or of the Son in his willing obedience unto his Father.

ſaid before] Or, firſt ſaid; or ſaid in the firſt place.

V. 16. This is the covenant, &c.] Or, This is the covenant that I will make with them: then followeth, after thoſe dayes, ſaith the Lord, I will put, &c.

I will put] Which we are not ſo to underſtand, as if God had not put his Lawes in the hearts of his children, and written them in their minds, under the law; but of a more plentiful meaſure of his grace under the Goſpel: In which reſpect, Joel 2.28. It is promiſed, that God will pour out of his Spirit upon all fleſh, under the Goſpel. See Eſay 44.8. Acts 2.17.

V. 18. Now, where, &c.] See verſ. 2.

V. 19. Having] Here the Apoſtle reſumes again the exhortation which he had begun, Chap. 2.1. and farther preſſed, chap. 3. to the fifth.

boldneſſe] Or, liberty; or, freedome. holieſt] Chap. 9.8, 12. That is, heaven, whereof the Holy of Holieſt was a type.

by] Through the merit of the, &c.

V. 20. new] Which the Apoſtle oppoſeth unto the old way, either by the bloud of beaſts, wherewith the High Prieſt entered into the Holy of Holieſt once in the year; or by the material vail; or unto both.

living] That is, everlaſting way which ſhall never fail, John 4. 10. & 6. 51. & 7. 38. and which ſhall bring unto eternal life.

way] John 14.6.

conſecrated] Or, new made. It is not improbable, that herein Saint Paul doth allude unto the cuſtome of thoſe, who in a ſnow or like caſe beat or tread out the way for thoſe that are to follow after. It is by vertue of Chriſts reſurrection and aſcenſion, that all true believers ſhall enter into heaven. Hence he is called the firſt fruits of thoſe who ſleep, 1 Cor. 15.20.

vail] The vail was a type of Chriſts humane nature, wherewith his Divine nature was hid and obſcured, and through which he entered into heaven: even as the vail of the Temple did hide the Holy of Holieſt, and as the High Prieſt through it did enter therein.

fleſh] Humane nature, Pſal. 16.9. & 27.2. John 1.14. called fleſh, becauſe of the infirmities and weakneſſes thereof, Pſal. 78. 39. And whereby his Divine nature was vailed and covered over; even as the Ark of the Covenant, the Mercy-ſeat, and the moſt Holy place were by the vail.

V. 21. high prieſt] Chap. 2.17. & 3.1. & 4.14.

houſe] Chap. 3. 6. That is, the Church of the faithful, Eph. 1.22. 1 Pet. 2.5. & 4.17.

V. 22. draw near] Chap. 4.16. & 7.25. & 11.6. 1 Pet. 2. 14.

true heart] That is, with an upright and ſincere heart, without hypocriſie, Pſal. 51. 6. and with a conſtant heart without drawing back, verſ. 38. Luk. 16. 11. Joh. 6. 32. Hereunto is oppoſed an evil heart of unbelief, Chap. 3. 12. See Mat. 15.8.

full aſſurance] That is, with a ſtedfaſt faith without wavering and doubting, verſ. 23. Jam. 1. 6. Some are of opinion, that here and in other places there is an alluſion unto ſhips under full ſail: and then the Tranſlation may be this: viz. With the full ſail of faith. Faith is that grace, whereby we either do or may approach unto God, with full aſſurance of acceptance. Thus the righteouſneſſe of faith, Rom. 4.13. is called the righteouſneſſe through faith, or by faith, Rom. 9.38. & 10. 6. Phil. 3.9. See Chap. 6.11. Col. 2.2. 1 Theſſ. 1. 5. Luk. 1.1. Rom. 14 5.

hearts] That is, our ſouls; the heart being the chief ſeat of the ſoul.

evil conſcience] That is, from the accuſation of an evil Conſcience. So long as our conſciences are under the guilt of ſin, we cannot draw neer unto God with confidence of acceptation in any duty. See Chap.9.14.

having] Or, being waſhed in, or as touching our bodies.

bodies] Both ſoul and body are named; becauſe every ſin is either of the ſoul or body. See 2 Cor.7.1.

waſhed] See Act.22.16. 1 Cor.6.11.

pure water] Ezek.26.25. That is, with the blood of Chriſt, whereof the Legal waſhings were a type. See Rev.1.5. & 7.14. Some are of opinion, that here Saint Paul hath relation unto the Sacrament of Baptiſm; as Joh.3.5. Tit.3.5.

V. 23. hold faſt] See Chap. 4.14.

V. 24. conſider] That is, let us take care of our watch over one another, prudently obſerving one anothers diſpoſitions, gifts, graces, and defaults, that we may the better fit our ſelves to do good, each one of us to another, and to receive good each one of another.

V. 25. Not forſaking] Here is propounded one means or help, whereby they might incite one another to good works. Rom.1.12.

aſſembling] That is, the publike congregation of the faithful, wherein the Word of God is taught, the Sacrament adminiſtred, and common prayer and thankſgiving made, unto which God hath promiſed a bleſſing, Mat. 18. 20. See Pſal.27. 4. & 122.1.

ſee] That is, by plain and evident foretold tokens, and ſigns of the times. See Mat.24.33.

day] Some underſtand it of the ſecond or laſt coming of our Saviour Chriſt, or of his coming to judgement; whereof ſee 2 Pet.3.9, &c. but it is not improbable that here we are to underſtand it of the time of the utter deſtruction of Jeruſalem, and the temple; at which time there ſhould be ſo great affliction that by reaſon thereof, many ſhould fall from the faith. See Mark 13.19.

V. 26. For if we ſin wilfully] See Chap.6,4. wilfully] The Apoſtle doth ſpeak here of all kind of wilful ſin, or falling away: but onely of that which our Lord Chriſt calleth blaſphemy againſt the Holy Ghoſt, Mat.12.3. And which St. John calls a ſin unto death, 1 Joh.5.16.

remains] In as much as ſuch wilfully reject and ſcorn the onely ſacrifice of the New Teſtament; viz. the Lord Jeſus, and all his merit. See Numb.15.30,31, no more ſacrifice for ſin] For as much as thoſe who wilfully reject and ſcorn the onely ſacrifice of the New Teſtament, viz. the Lord Jeſus and all his merits: Some conceive that St. Paul alludeth to Numb. 15. 30, 31. where in like manner, according to the tenor of the law, there was no atonement left, for thoſe who ſhould ſin preſumptuouſly: becauſe thereby he reproached the Lord.

V. 27. looking] Whereas the godly with comfort and joy expect the appearance of Chriſt. See Chap.9.28.

V. 29. Of how much] Chap.2.3. & 12.25.

troden] In treading his truth under their feet, by a malicious reſiſting and peſecuting thereof, they do as it were tread Chriſt himſelf under their feet; or thereby they ſhew ſuch a ſpiteful minde againſt him, that they would (if it were poſſible) pull him out of heaven, and trample him under their feet. For that which we reject and forſake, that we hold as impure, and unholy in Gods worſhip.

deſpite] That is, by a wilful and malicious reſiſting the work of the Holy Ghoſt, teſtifying and convincing them of, and ſealing unto them the truth of the Goſpel. See Acts 6.10 & 7. 51. & 54.

Spirit of Grace] That is, Authour of grace, Rom. 15. 16. 1 Cor. 12. 8. Gal.5.22. Epheſ.5.9. Or, gracious Spirit, that is, which God of his free grace and mercy beſtows on his people.

V. 30. know] And therefore our condemnation ſhall be the greater, it knowing how juſt God is in revenging all impiety, we wilfully ſin againſt him. Luke 12. 47. Joh. 15. 22.

V. 32. But] In as much as theſe converted Hebrews had ſtood it out ſtedfaſtly againſt manifold afflictions, even at their firſt entertaining of the Goſpel; hence the Apoſtle inferreth, that therefore it did the much more become now to ſtand to that faith, which they had ſo long profeſſed. See Gal.3.4.

illuminated] Converted to the faith of Chriſt. Acts 26.18. Eph.3.9.

fight] Or wraſtlings of afflictions, whereby Satan ſought to overthrow your faith. The Apoſtle alludes to the cuſtome of wraſtlers, who ſeek to trip up one another. This wraſtling was by faith. chap.11.36. 1 Tim.6 12. 2. Tim.4.7.

V. 33. gazing ſtock] Or placed, or ſhewed upon theaters or ſtages. Underſtand it either metaphorically, as it were ſo handled; or properly, for it was the cuſtome of the heathen to ſet Chriſtians upon theaters or ſtages, to be ſcorned and laught at. See 1 Cor.4.9.

better] That is, a better condition and far greater priviledges for us under the Goſpel, in that he hath now ſent his Sonne in the fleſh, and made him the Mediator of a better Covenant, chap.7.22. & 8.6. under which the doctrine of ſalvation is more manifeſtly revealed, Col. 1.16. 2 Tim. 1.9, 10. and the gifts of the Spirit more plentifully poured out, Act. 2. 16.

they] Who were under the law or firſt covenant.

ſhould not be, &c.] That is, made partakers of that better condition without us or before us. Some underſtand it of that perfection whereof all the faithful ſhall be made partakers, as well in body as in ſoul, at the reſurrection of the juſt. Others do underſtand it of their happineſſe in heaven; but this would contradict that, which is ſaid concerning Enoch, viz. and that which is ſaid of their hope, verſ.16. and Chriſts own promiſe, Matth.5.12. and divers other places of Scripture: nay, it would contradict the time, when Saint Paul was writing this Epiſtle, Chriſt being aſcended into heaven long before that time, and therefore the believing fore-fathers are in heaven. And therefore it is more probable, that it is to be underſtood of Chriſts coming into the fleſh, and touching the accompliſhment of the ſtate of the Church under the Goſpel or New Teſtament.

CHAP. XII.

Verſ. 1. WHereſore] By which particle, the apoſtle ſheweth the reaſon why he had recited the example of the Saints in the Chapter going before, viz. that we ſhould follow them, in running the race ſet before us: for if they ſo willingly kept the faith, we ſhould do much more ſo, God having provided better things for us.

ſeeing we alſo are compaſſed about with ſo great a cloud of witneſſes] Gr. having ſuch a cloud of witneſſes compaſſing us about. Cloud] i.e. Multitude. See Jer.14.13. Ezek.38.9. Some are of opinion, that here the apoſtle alludes to that cloud whereby the children of Iſrael were guided, Exod. 13. 21. viz. That as that cloud guided the Iſraelites from Egypt to the Land of Canaan: So this company of the faithful may direct all the right way from the kingdom of darkneſſe to the ſpiritual Canaan, the Kingdom of heaven.

let us lay aſide] Gr. laying aſide, or putting off; as Epheſ. 4.22. It is an alluſion unto the cuſtom of thoſe who being to run a race, put off and caſt away all things burthenſom and troubleſome. The ſame word is uſed, Jam.1.21.

weight] That is, all worldly contents, ſo farre as they are a burthen unto us and to hinder us in our journey to heaven, Matth. 5. 29. Secondly, all manner of ſin, and eſpecially pride and conceit of ſelf-ſufficiency, Rom.10.3.

eaſily] Entangleth or wraps about: It is a borrowed ſpeech taken from a net or a long garment. Some underſtand it of original ſin, others, of ſin in general.

and let us] Gr. let us.

with patience] Gr. by patience. Our race is long, and full of rubbs and difficulties, and therefore there is great need of patience, leſt we faint and give over our courſe.

race that is ſet before us] 1 Cor.9.24. Gal. 5. 7. 2 Tim.4.7.

V. 2. Looking] The original word ſignifieth an averting or drawing off the eye from one object to another. In our chriſtian race we muſt take off our minds from every thing which might divert and diſcourage us, and we muſt fix them upon Chriſt for our imitation.

Jeſus] Before and above all others: For otherwiſe it is not amiſſe to look upon other mens example for our imitation; which Saint Paul intends by bringing in that cloud of witneſſes, chap. 11. but above all others, we muſt caſt our eyes upon Chriſt, who is the Prime-leader of our faith, and the onely accompliſher of it.

faint] Verſ.5. Gal.6.9.

V. 4. Ye have not] Though ye have ſuffered much, Ch.10. 32, &c. yet ye have not reſiſted unto death, as your Captain did: Or, may be herein the apoſtle alludes to thoſe Hetheniſh conflicts and combates which ſeldom were determined without blood, or wherein it was a ſhame to yield before blood was drawn.

ſtriving] With all our might and main, as combaters and wraſtlers were wont to do.

ſin] Or, ſinners; as Pſal. 49.5. & 119. 133.

V. 8. all] That are ſons, verſ. 7.

V. 12. lift] Eſa. 35. 3. Job 4. 43. Take heart and courage, faint not, or give not over, becauſe of the ſharpneſs of your afflictions: Or, may be here, as verſ.4. the Apoſtle alludes to thoſe combates of the Heathen, wherein it was a token of yielding, when a man hung down his hands: Or, to thoſe who run in a race, following the former ſimilitude, verſ. 1. Or, may be to both; lift up your hands to fight, and your feet to run.

V. 13. ſtraight] Or, even. That is, walk ſeemly, or keep a right courſe, Prov. 4. 26, 27.

V. 14. Follow peace] Rom. 12. 18. Pſa. 34. 14.

place of repentance] Or, way to change his minde.

repentance] That is, in his Father, to reverſe or call back that bleſſing wherewith he had bleſſed his younger brother Jacob above him.

V. 18. For ye] The Apoſtle further preſſeth on the Hebrews the exhortation begun verſ. 12. from the excellency of their condition who are under the Goſpel, or New Covenant above others who were under the Law or Old Covenant. Thoſe ordinances in giving and receiving the law, being ſo terrible, ſo that the people could not bear that which was commanded, ſhewed the nature and uſe of the law, viz. that it was a killing letter, working wrath, Rom. 4. 15. contrary to the Goſpel given upon mount Sion. The ſame argument, or motive, in ſubſtance St. Paul had uſed, Rom. 5. 18.

touched] In it ſelf, though not in reſpect of Gods charge. Verſ. 20.

V. 19. voice] Underſtand thereby, either that terrible manner, wherewith the law was given; or the Law it ſelf, the rigour whereof, they were not able to bear. See Exod. 20. 18, 19. Rom. 8. 3. intreated] Exod. 20. 19. Deut. 5. 5. & 18. 16.

V. 20. And if ſo] Exod. 19. 13.

V. 21. Moſes ſaid] Some conceive that this may be gathered from Exod. 19. 14. Others, that the Apoſtle had it either by tradition, as thoſe names of Jannes and Jambres, 2 Tim. 3. 8. and the Propheſie of Enoch, Jude 14. or elſe by divine revelation, as Moſes had the Hiſtory of the Creation, and of other things, before his own time.

mount Sion] Gal. 4. 26. That is, to the Church under the Goſpel, whereof Mount Sion was a type, Pſal. 14. 7. & 50. 20. Eſa. 2. 3. and where the Goſpel was firſt proclaimed without that terrour wherewith the Law was delivered, Eſa. 2. 3.

Angels] Who are both a part of the Church generally conſidered, and alſo Guardians and Miniſters thereof. Chap. 1. 14. Pſal. 34. 7.

V. 23. To the general] Some underſtand this clauſe by way of explication or amplification, as if the Apoſtle hereby intended further to explain and amplifie the laſt clauſe of the former verſe: but more probably hereby we are to underſtand the Church of the Elect ſtyled the firſt-born, becauſe of thoſe ſpecial prerogatives which they enjoyed above thoſe who are onely outwardly called, and onely make an outward profeſſion of the Goſpel: even as the firſt-born under the Law had ſome ſpeciall prerogatives.

V. 26. then ſhook] At the giving of the Law. Exod. 19. 18.

Yet once] Hag. 2. 6, 7. The Hebrew particle ſignifieth both once and a little while, and the place of the Prophet may be underſtood of both; yet the Apoſtle makes uſe onely of the firſt, in the next verſe, becauſe that onely was to his purpoſe.

ſhake] Which was fulfilled in thoſe prodigies and ſigns which appeared upon the earth, and in the heavens, before, and at our Saviours coming in the fleſh, to proclaim and confirm the Goſpel. Some underſtand it of Chriſts ſecond coming, that is, to judgement, whereof Saint Peter ſpeaks, 2 Pet. 3. 10. but it is plain, that the prophet ſpeaks of ſhaking the earth and the heavens which ſhould be while the ſecond Temple ſtood; for it is ſaid, that the deſire of all Nations, that is, the Meſſias ſhould come and fill the ſecond Temple with glory. See Hag. 2. 6, 7.

V. 27. once] From this word [once] the Apoſtle infers the removing of the Law, or Old Covenant, given by Moſes, and the immutability and unchangeableneſſe of the Goſpel, or New Covenant.

are ſhaken] Or, may be ſhaken.

V. 28. kingdom] That is, the Goſpel, often called the Kingdom of God. See Matth. 13. 11, 24, 31. Mark 1. 15. & 15. 13. Rom. 14. 17.

V. 4. and the bed] That is, with the bed, or ſo that the bed be undefiled, as the words following imply.

adulterers] Mal. 3. 5.

judge] That is, puniſh, Gen. 15. 14. 1 Sam. 2. 25. 2 Chron. 20. 12. Though the Magiſtrate be negligent in puniſhing them, yet God will judg them. And God will judg them ſundry kinde of waies i. e. in this life. 1. his judgement upon their ſouls, which are tranſlated from God unto the devil: wine and adultery take away the heart, Hoſ. 4. 11. 2. upon their bodies, filling them with loathſome diſeaſes. 3. upon their goods. The ſin of adultery hath brought many a rich man to beggery, Prov. 29. 3. the prodigal childe quickly waſted his goods on harlots. 4. on their good names, they are odious unto all men.

ſtrange] Different and diſagreeing unto that faith which you once received, Jude 3.

V. 10. altar] Underſtand hereby Chriſts divine Nature, whereby his fleſh or humane nature was ſanctified and qualified, to be a ſufficient ſacrifice to make atonement for the ſins of the whole world; and this was typified by the legal Altar which ſanctified the gifts that were offered upon it, Matth.23.19. Or Chriſt may be called our Altar, becauſe we muſt offer up our prayers and thankſgivings unto God by him. See ver.15. Rev. 6.9. & 8.3. Or, underſtand by Altar, the ſacrifice offered upon it; that is, the fleſh or humane nature of Chriſt, which is the true food of the ſoul, Joh.6.

eat] That is, to be partakers of. See 1 Cor. 10.16,17,18.

ſerve] Which ſtill ſtubbornly obſerve the Levitical ceremonies. Such cut themſelves off from the Communion of Chriſt, Gal.5.3.

V. 11. For] Here is a reaſon given of that which went before, Verſ. 10. and it ſtands thus: Even as thoſe who ſerved the Tabernacle, might not eat of thoſe beaſts, which were burnt without the camp or tents: ſo thoſe who now cleave to the Tabernacle, cannot be partakers of Chriſt. This is further illuſtrated, Verſ.13. where the Apoſtle ſhews, that thoſe beaſts were a type of Chriſt, and the place of their burning, a type of the place of Chriſts ſuffering.

V. 13. Let us] Here is a further accommodation or application of the former type.

go forth] Underſtand the place, either of our forſaking the legal ceremonies, which were adminiſtred within the camp, cleaving ſtedfaſt to Chriſt and his doctrine; or of our forſaking the world in our affections, viz. of our denying our ſelves, and taking up Chriſts croſſe and following him. This laſt may ſerve to be implyed by the words following.

V. 20. Now the God of peace] With this prayer, the Apoſtle, according to his cuſtome, concludes this Epiſtle, and calleth God, a God of peace; as alſo Rom.15.33.& 16.20. & 2 Cor.13. 11. and that in reſpect of the Goſpel of peace, whereby there is proclaimed peace betwixt God and Man, and the ſame alſo really communicated unto us, Rom. 5.1.

V. 22. ſuffer the word] The Apoſtle ſpeaketh this to qualifie the ſeeming boldneſſe of ſome exhortations ſprinkled here and there in this Epiſtle, eſpecially in the ſixth and tenth Chapters.

ANNOT.

ANNOTATIONS

On the general Epiſtle of JAMES.

The ARGUMENT.

THe Author of this Epiſtle, was the Apoſtle James, not the Son of Zebedeus, and the Brother of John, Matth. 10.2. (as ſome have ſuppoſed) Who was ſlain not long after our Saviour Chriſts Aſcenſion, Act. 12. 2. But James the ſon of Alpheus, Matth.10.3. called James the leſſe, Mark 15.40. and the Brother of the Lord, Gal.1. 19. Commended for a principal Pillar in the Church of God, Gal.2.9. Who abiding at Jeruſalem after that moſt of the Apoſtles were departed thence, as having a more ſpecial care and charge of his own Nation, the Jewiſh people, wrote this Epiſtle in general to ſuch of them, as were diſperſed into ſeveral Countreyes and Provinces abroad: And it is probable, That he wrote it after ſundry of Saint Pauls Epiſtles, and in particular of thoſe two to the Romans, and to the Galathians: And obſerving how many profeſſing the Faith of Chriſt, perverted that wholeſome and comfortable Doctrine by him in thoſe Epiſtles delivered, concerning free Juſtification by Faith without Works; taking thereby occaſion to neglect the practice of good Works, he preſſeth the neceſſity of them, for the Juſtification of ſound and ſincere Profeſſion. In the courſe of this Epiſtle, Firſt he perſwades them to patience, cheerfulneſſe, and wiſe carriage under the croſſe, and a ſanctified uſe thereof. Secondly, To ſhew the ſoundneſſe of their Profeſſion, and the ſincerity of their Faith, by an exemplary courſe of life, in the practice of all Chriſtian duties, and fruitfulneſſe in well doing. Thirdly, diſſwades from cenſorious taxing of others, and bitter contentions with them, either by foul language, or injurious courſes. Fourthly, Denounceth Gods Judgments againſt the rich, cruelly oppreſſing the poor. Fifthly, Exhorts the faithful to patient carriage under ſuch oppreſſions, and to a Chriſtian demeanour, anſwerable to their ſeveral eſtates, and conditions, and a brotherly care of the ſpiritual welfare, one of another, wherewith he cloſeth his Epiſtle.

CHAP. I.

Verſ. 1. I*Ames*] There being two of this name, viz. James the ſon of Zebede, and James the ſon of Alpheus, Matth. 10. 2, 3. it is moſt probable, that here is to be underſtood the latter; becauſe the former was killed by Herod, before (as it is likely) the Apoſtles began to write. See Act. 12.2. ſervant] See Rom.1.1.

greeting] Act.15.23. 2 Joh.10.11.

V. 2. joy] Matth. 5. 11,12. 2 Cor.12.10. Heb.10.34. 1 Pet. 4. 13. That is, Be ſo far from fainting under your afflictions, Heb.12.5. as to account them the matter or occaſion of great joy; both becauſe you are counted worthy to ſuffer for the Name of Chriſt, Act.5.41. 2 Theſſ.1.5. as alſo becauſe of the bleſſed fruits of them, Heb.12.11. Rom.5.3.

divers] Both inward and outward. See 2 Cor.7.5.

temptations] Or, tryals; That is, afflictions, ver.12. Luk.8. 13. Act.20.19. 1 Cor.10.13. Gal.4.14. 1 Pet.1. 6. and 4. 12. whereby the ſoundneſſe of your faith, love, and obedience is tryed. See Gen.22.1. Heb.10.32.

V. 3. Knowing] Rom.5.3.

trying] Saint James his meaning is not, that afflictions of themſelves work patience; for we ſee the contrary often, both in the wicked and the godly; as in Job, Chap.3. David, Pſal.73. and Jeremy, Chap.12.1. but that faith being proved to be ſound through affliction, doth work it, becauſe thereby it is experimentally aſſured of Gods gracious preſence and aſſiſtance in afflictions, and deliverance out of them.

V. 4. perfect] That is, be patient unto the end, Matth.10.22. & 24.13. Heb.10.35, &c. Rev.2.26.

that ye may] 2 Cor.9.8.

perfect and entire] See 1 Theſſ.5.23.

V. 5. wiſdome] Though all true wiſdome be from God, yet here more particularly we are to underſtand that ſpiritual wiſedome, whereby Chriſtians may be enabled rightly to judge of the Author, cauſes, and fruits of afflictions; for want whereof many of Gods children have murmured againſt God, and fainted under them, Job 3.1. Pſal.73.2. Jer.12.1. & 20.8. Unto this Chriſtians are directed, Heb.12.5—12.

let him ask of God] Mat.7.7. & 21.22. Luk.11.9.

liberally] The original word in the firſt notation thereof ſignifieth ſimply, or ſingly, or ſincerely; that is, without any mixture of by-reſpects, or without hypocriſie; ſo 2 Cor.1.12. & 11. 3. Epheſ.6.5. Col. 3. 22. But becauſe thoſe who give with a ſingle and ſincere heart, give liberally according to their ability: hence conſequently, or in a ſecondary ſenſe, it ſignifieth liberally. So Rom.12.8. 2 Cor.8.2. & 9.11,13.

upbraideth] When he gives to thoſe who ask; though he doth thoſe who unthankfully abuſe his bleſſings, not walking worthy of them, Eſay 1.2, &c. & 5.1, &c. Jer.2.4.

V. 6. in faith] That is, reſting upon Gods power, whereby he is able; and upon his truth, whereby he will be faithful; and upon his goodneſſe and mercy through his Sonne Jeſus Chriſt, whereby he will be ready to make good his promiſes for the hearing of thoſe who call upon him, Joh. 16.23. Mark 11. 24.

wavering] That is, not doubting, diſputing, or calling into queſtion the former Attributes of God, Mat.21.21. See Act. 10. 20. & 11.12. Rom. 4.20. 1 Tim.2.8. and hangs wavering between God and man. Hereby is meant ſuch a doubting which excludes all faith: for otherwiſe God doth not reject a weak faith which cannot be without doubting. See Mat.17.20. Mar. 23.24. Pſal.31.22.

like a wave] By this ſimilitude Saint James illuſtrateth the property of a wavering minded man. As the waves of the Sea through tempeſtuous winds ſometimes are carried up to heaven, ſometimes deſcend as low as the deep: So a wavering minded man ſometimes is of this opinion and reſolution, and ſometimes of that. See ver.8.

V. 7. think] Perſwade himſelf as many vainly do, that he ſhall receive any thing, becauſe he hath no promiſe for it: notwithſtanding God out of his general providence and goodneſs, whereby he cauſes the Sun to ſhine, and rain to fall upon the wicked, Mat. 5. 45. often beſtowes temporal bleſſings upon them.

V. 8. double-minded,] Chap.4.8. Whom he ſtyled wavering, and compared to a wave of the Sea, driven with the wind, and toſſed with blaſts; the ſame he ſtyles double-minded, becauſe he is ſometimes of one mind, ſometimes of another: unſettled in his reſolutions and purpoſes, having not a foundation of faith to build them upon: and ſuch an one muſt needs be inconſtant in his wayes; that is, practiſes, courſes, and undertakings.

V. 9. low degree] That is, who is afflicted with poverty, diſgrace, or any kind of calamity.

rejoyce] Or, glory.

exalted] That is, in that he is rich in faith and the knowledg of God, and highly honoured to be the ſon of God by grace and adoption.

V. 10. low] That is, in his humility: becauſe God hath given him an humble and lowly heart notwithſtanding his riches and honours.

for] Here and in the next verſe, Saint James ſhews by what means God doth work humility in rich and honourable men endued with faith: viz. by putting into their hearts a ſerious conſideration of their own inſtability and vanity, and of all thoſe outward comforts which they enjoy, Pſal. 103. 15. Eſa. 40. 6, &c. 1 Pet. 1. 24. Luk. 12. 20, &c. & 16. 19.

as the flower of the graſſe] Eſay 40. 6. 1 Pet. 1. 24. Job 14. 2. Pſal. 10. 2. & 103. 15.

V. 11. waies] Whatſoever he ſtudies, purpoſes, or practiſeth, ſhall periſh. See Pſal. 1. 3.

V. 12. Bleſſed is the man] Pſal. 94. 12. Job 5. 17. Mat. 5. 10, &c.

endureth] It is thought to be a military word taken from undaunted Souldiers, who couragiouſly without giving back receive the fierceſt onſets of the enemies: anſwerable hereunto, to endure, &c. is patiently and with courage to undergo them, ſubmitting their wils to Gods, without fainting, murmuring, or repining.

when] Or, being is made, or found proof, or ſound.

tried] Rev. 2. 10. It is a metaphor taken from metals, whoſe truth and goodneſſe are uſed to be tryed, and their droſſe purged from them, by fire: Pſal. 66. 10. Prov. 17. 3. 1 Pet. 1. 7. Afflictions ſerve to both theſe ends and uſes.

the crown of life] 2 Tim. 4. 8. 1 Pet. 4. 5.

V. 13. ſay] Either with his tongue, or in his heart; as Pſal. 14. 1.

tempted] That is, in reſpect of himſelf, becauſe he is infinitely and immutably good and holy; yet in regard of men he is often tempted, See Exod. 17. 2. Mal. 3. 15. Act. 15. 10.

tempteth] That is, by inciting and moving them to ſin, for God wils it not. See Pſal. 5. 5. Eſay 65. 12. Zech. 8. 17. Zeph. 3. 5. Though he doth for the proof and trial of their faith, conſtancy and patience, Gen. 22. 1. Deut. 13. 1, &c.

V. 14. But] Here Saint James ſheweth the ſource, original, and fountain of all temptation unto ſinne: viz. that natural corruption which we brought into the world with us, Pſalm 51. 7. Rom. 7. 7. without which, neither the Devil nor the world could hurt, they tempting by working upon our concupiſcence.

drawn] Here are ſet down two waies, whereby luſt tempts unto ſinne. Firſt, by withdrawing from that which is good. Secondly, by enticing unto that which is evil, under ſome apearance of that which is good and pleaſant: even as fiſhes and other beaſts are allured unto the hook, nets, or ſnares, by ſome pleaſing bait. See Gen. 3. 5, &c. 2 Sam. 11. 2, &c.

V. 15. conceived] It is an alluſion to, or a metaphor taken from teeming women, who firſt conceive, and then bring forth. Now luſt may then be ſaid to have conceived, when the will entertains thoſe evil motions with conſent and delight, which luſt hath ſtirred up.

bringeth forth ſinne] That is, in outward act and deed; and therefore though luſt be not ſuch a ſin, yet it may be, and is properly ſin. See Rom. 7. 7.

finiſhed] Or, fully perfected. That is, committed adviſedly, deliberately, or with the full conſent of the will: or come to its height.

V. 16. Do not] It is a metaphor taken from Travellers, when they go out of the way, Pſal. 119. 176. 1 Cor. 6. 9. Gal. 6. 7.

V. 17. Every] Here is a reaſon given, why we ſhould not conceive that God is the Authour of ſin; and the reaſon is, becauſe God is the Authour of all good: now if he ſhould likewiſe be the Authour of ſinne by tempting man unto it, there would be found a change in him.

from above] That is, from God, whoſe throne is in heaven. See Mat. 5. 34. Joh. 19. 11. Mat. 21. 25. Joh. 3. 27.

Father of lights] So called, Firſt, becauſe he is in himſelf light, 1 Joh. 1. 5. Secondly, and that chiefly here, becauſe he is the fountain of all wiſdom and knowledg, See verſ. 5. Joh. 1. 19. and every other good and perfect gift.

variableneſſe] Exod. 3. 14, &c.

V. 18. Of] The Apoſtle having taught, verſ. 17. that every good gift came from God, exemplifies this here in the great work of mans regeneration.

will] That is, out of his good pleaſure, and not for any merit in man. See Rom. 9. 11. Epheſ. 1. 9. Phil. 2. 15. 2 Tim. 1. 9. Joh. 1. 13.

with the word] Or, by, Epheſ. 1. 13. Col. 1. 5. See Rom. 10. 14 1 Pet. 1. 23.

a kind of firſt fruits] Herein Saint James alludes unto the firſt-fruits under the law, which were certain handfuls of firſt ripe corn, and ſo conſequently of the beſt, which they were to offer unto God. See Levit. 23. 10, 11. Numb. 15. 20, 21. Hence firſt-fruits ſometimes import the firſt in order. So it is ſaid the houſe of Stephanus was the firſt-fruits of Achaia: firſt called into the fellowſhip of the Goſpel, 1 Cor. 16. 15. And ſo ſome underſtand this place, viz. of the Apoſtles and the Jews which were firſt regenerate. Sometimes again the beſt and chiefeſt. So Jer. 2. 3. And thus moſt underſtand this place; interpreting it of all the faithful, who are called the firſt-fruits, becauſe of their dignity and excellency above all men; being ſeparated out of the world, Epheſ. 1. 4. 1 Pet. 2. 9. and conſecrated to God.

creatures] Of men. So Mar. 16. 15.

V. 19. ſlow to ſpeak] Prov. 17. 27.

ſlow to wrath] Tit. 1. 7.

V. 20. wrath of man] That is, the unadviſed and immoderate wrath of man.

righteouſneſſe] That is, that which is right in Gods ſight: it rather leads him to that which is unlawful.

V. 21. lay] Gr. laying aſide, or putting off, &c. See Heb. 12. 1. Col. 1. 8. 1 Pet. 2. 1.

filthyneſſe] That is, all manner of ſin, ſo called from the polluting nature thereof: hence ſin is compared unto thoſe things which are moſt filthy and loathſom: as to the vomit of a dog, and the myre of a hogge, 2 Pet. 2. 22.

engraffed] Rather, the implanted word. It is an alluſion to the ſowing and planting of ſeeds, herbs or young trees, wherein faithful miniſters are compared to planters. See 1 Cor. Thoſe who tranſlate the Original [engraffed] ſuppoſe that it is a metaphor taken from the art of engraffing twigs into a ſtock, who turn the ſtock into their own nature.

V. 22. be ye doers of the word] Mat. 7. 21. Rom. 2. 13. Luke 11. 28. Joh. 13. 17. 1 Joh. 2. 4.

deceiving] By falſe concluſions and inferences, as if it were ſufficient to hear without practiſe.

V. 22. like] By this ſimilitude, Saint James intendeth to teach us that thoſe, who are hearers and not doers of the word, quickly forget what they have heard.

V. 25. looketh] The original word ſignifieth an accurate and intentive looking upon a thing, bowing and ſtooping down to it. See Joh. 20. 5. 1 Pet. 1. 2. So that hereby we are to underſtand a diligent and intentive hearing, or reading Gods word, and meditating thereon.

law] Chap. 2. 12. Thereby underſtand the whole word of God regiſtred in the Scriptures, Pſal. 1. 2. which is called perfect, becauſe it contains all things neceſſary to be believed or practiſed; and the law of liberty, becauſe thereby we are born again to a new ſpiritual life, and ſo freed from the bondage and ſlavery of ſin, verſ. 18.

continueth] That is, in the belief and practiſe thereof: ſo the words following import.

deed] Or, doing.

V. 26. ſeem] Flatters himſelf with a vain conceit and perſwaſion, that he is truely religious.

bridleth] Pſ. 39. 1. It is a metaphor taken from unruly horſes, which muſt be bridled and curbed, that they may be ruled.

vain] Notwithſtanding all his boaſting.

V. 27. before God] That is, which God requireth, as pleaſing unto him.

CHAP. II.

Verſ. 1. OF glory] Act. 7. 2. 1 Cor. 2. 7.

reſpect] Levit. 19. 15. Deut. 1. 17. & 16. 19. Prov. 24. 23. To reſpect perſons is for mens outward condition in the world, to reſpect and honour ſome, as for their riches and the like, and neglect and contemn others, though equally or better deſerving, as for their poverty and the like: and this is that fault which St. James warnes the converted Jews to take heed of in this verſe, and blames in them in the verſes following.

V. 2. For if] A fault too common even in theſe dayes in many aſſemblies, wherein the poor are not allotted or allowed a ſeat to ſit in aſſembly] Gr. ſynagogue.

V. 3. in a good place] Or, well, or ſeemly.

V. 4. Are ye not] Or, are you not condemned in your ſelves, that is, convinced in your own conſciences, that ye do evil in ſo doing? See verſ. 9.

judges] Or, are ye not herein il-affected judges? or are ye not judges of your own evil reaſonings? ſeeing by this your dealing it is plain that you reſpect perſons.

V. 5. choſen] 1 Cor. 1. 26, 28.

rich in faith] Luk. 12. 21.

the] Or, that.

V. 6. deſpiſed the poor] 1 Cor.11.22.

V. 7. name] That is, the name of Chriſt, from which we are called Chriſtians.

by the which ye are called] Gr. which is called upon you.

V. 8. royal law] The law of loving our Neighbour as our ſelves is called the royal law, as high-wayes are called the Kings, that is, becauſe they are common to all : So this law ſhould be extended to all, whether poor or rich : there is no limitation in the law. Thou ſhalt love thy Neighbour, whoſoever he be, without reſpect of perſons.

V. 9. reſpect to perſons] Verſ. 1.

V. 11. he that ſaid] Or, that law which ſaid.

V. 12. law of liberty] See Chap.1.25.

V. 13. For he ſhall] Mat.6.15. & 18.35.

judgment] Or, condemnation : that is, the condemnation of Satan and ſin, becauſe of thoſe gracious promiſes which are made to merciful men, Pſal. 31. 1, &c. Matth. 5. 7. Luk. 6. 37.

V. 14. What] The drift and ſcope of the Apoſtle in the enſuing diſcourſe is to prove, that neither the bare outward profeſſion of faith, nor that faith which is without works can juſtifie or ſave, but that it muſt be an operative or working faith, fruitful in good works.

faith] That is, which is without works. And the interrogation (can, &c.) is a ſtrong negation, as in the former clauſe (what doth it profit, &c.)

V. 15. In this and the next two verſes, St. James compares that faith, which is without works, to the good words of him who wiſheth well to a poor man, but doth nothing at all for him. This ſimilitude ſtands thus : even as fair words, where no relief is given, do nothing profit the needy, naked, and hungry man : ſo neither a bare profeſſion of faith, nor that faith which is without works can profit, that is, juſtifie or ſave.

V. 16. ſay unto them] 1 Joh.3.18.

warmed] Job 31.20.

V. 17. dead] Not that works give life unto faith; or are, as ſome ſpeak, the form of faith; for it is plain, that faith giveth life unto all good works that are acceptable unto God, as appeareth, Heb.11.6. and through the whole courſe of that chapter, and from Hab.2.4. But ſuch a faith is ſaid to be dead in reſpect of the work or office of juſtifying and ſaving, that is, that it availeth nothing to them, as may appear by the former ſimilitude; but is like a dead corps, which hath not power to produce any actions of life. Thus Abrahams body and Sara's womb are ſaid to be dead, becauſe they were unfit for generation, Rom.4.19. And the reaſon thereof may be this, viz. becauſe he that is deſtitute of good works, at leaſt of a ſincere reſolution to walk in obedience, cannot by faith apprehend the promiſes of life; for though faith onely apprehend the promiſes of life, yet theſe promiſes are made onely to thoſe who walk in ſincere obedience. See Pſal. 15.1, &c.

V. 18. a man] That is, one that hath indeed a true juſtifying or ſaving faith.

may ſay] So one that ſaith, that he hath a true juſtifying and ſaving faith, and yet doth not manifeſt it by his works.

without thy works] Some copies read, by thy works.

by my works] Becauſe an uniform, unpartial and univerſal obedience to Gods commandments, is a ſure and certain token of a juſtifying faith, 1 Joh. 2.3.

V. 19. Thou] Hereby it is evident that Saint James in this diſcourſe doth not onely ſpeak of a bare profeſſion of faith, or of a ſhew and ſhadow of faith, but of ſome kind which is true in its kind, though not juſtifying or ſaving; this is generally called an hiſtorical or dogmatical faith, and is nothing elſe but an aſſent unto the word of God as true in general.

It is well] Yet not ſufficient, and the reaſon hereof is taken from the faith of devils, whoſe faith is not ſufficient to ſalvation, though they beleeve thoſe truths which are contained in the word of God.

beleeve] Mat.8.29. Mark.5.7.

tremble] By reaſon, that by their faith they beleeve that judgment wherewith they ſhall be ſentenced at the laſt day.

V. 20. dead] See Verſe 17.

V. 21. Was not] There were many other works performed by Abraham abundantly, teſtifying the truth of his faith; but the Apoſtle chuſeth this above all other, becauſe it was the moſt conſpicuous work by which his faith was tryed, and God ſeemed to take eſpeciall notice hereof, Gen.22.12.

our father] That is, according to the fleſh, becauſe thoſe to whom Saint James did write were the ſcattered Jews, Chap.1.1.

juſtified] That is, ſay ſome, declaritively and in the ſight of men, his works bearing witneſs of, or to his faith, and not cauſally and in reſpect of God; but becauſe St. James here diſputes againſt thoſe who looked to be juſtified by a faith ſeparated from good works, and that cauſally, and in the ſight of God, it cannot ſtand with the ſcope of the Apoſtle, unleſs here by [juſtified] we underſtand that juſtification whereby we are juſtified cauſally in the ſight of God; the ſtate of the queſtion being not, whether we are juſtified declaritively, or in the ſight of men by faith without good works; but, whether we are juſtified in the ſight of God without works.

works] That is, a working faith, for in this diſcourſe or diſpute, works are not oppoſed to a juſtifying or ſaving faith, but to ſuch a faith which hath not works; ſo that we may well by [works] as a part for the whole, or the effect for the cauſe, underſtand here ſuch a faith which hath works conjoyned with it. Beſides, how could the Apoſtle conclude as he doth, verſe 23. that the Scripture was fulfilled, viz. that Abraham beleeved, and it was accounted to him for righteouſneſs, from Abrahams being juſtified by works, when he offered up his ſon Iſaac, unleſſe by works here we underſtand a working faith? Did not the Apoſtle mean the ſame thing by works, verſ. 21. and by faith, verſ.23? Hence it appears, that there is no contradiction between Saint Paul, Rom.4.2. where he proves that Abraham was not juſtified by works, and Saint James, who here affirms, that he was, although they expreſs themſelves diverſly, diſputing againſt adverſaries of different diſpoſitions : Saint Paul diſputes againſt thoſe who looked to be juſtified or ſaved by their own perfect or inherent righteouſneſſe or works; Saint James againſt thoſe who looked to be ſaved by a faith without works; now there is a mean between theſe two extream opinions, wherein both agree, and that is, that juſtification is by a faith which hath works or a working faith.

V. 22. Seeſt thou] Gr, thou ſeeſt.

wrought] Or, cooperated to his works, that is, ſupported and directed him in the doing of them: Or which moved him to them. See Heb.11.17.

perfect] That is, declared to be perfect, even as it is ſaid that Gods power is perfected in weakneſſe, 2 Cor.12.9. That is, declared to be ſo.

V. 23. fulfilled] It was fulfilled before, Gen.15.6. How then is it ſaid here, that it was fulfilled at the oblation of Iſaac, which was many years after? Thus; the truth of that which was verified before, was then again confirmed by a new and evident experiment; or it may be ſaid to be fulfilled at Iſaacs oblation, though fulfilled before, becauſe Abraham was juſtified after the ſame manner through the whole courſe of his life. See Verſ.21.

V. 25. Rahab] Joſh.2.1, &c. Heb.11.31.

by works] That is, a working faith. See Verſ.21.

V. 26. ſpirit] Or, breath. No ſimilitude muſt be ſtretched beyond its ſcope. Now the ſcope of the Apoſtle in this ſimilitude is to ſhew, that faith without works is dead, and not that works are the form of, or give life unto faith, as the ſoul is the form of, and giveth life unto the body; for works cannot be the form of faith, ſeeing no outward thing can be the form of, or eſſential unto that which is internal; now works are outward, but the habit of faith internal. Some conceive, that the original word ſignifieth breath, and then the ſimilitude ſtands thus; even as the want of breath argues a dead body, ſo want of works a dead faith.

V. 11. place] Or, hole.

the friendſhip] 1 Joh.2 15. Mat.6.24. 2 Cor.6.15.

V. 5. Scripture] Not in any particular place, or in ſo many words, though the ſenſe may be gathered out of the Scriptures. Some conceive that the Apoſtle relates to Gen. 6. 5. & 8.21. others to Numb.11.29.

The ſpirit] If we underſtand by [ſpirit] the ſpirit of a man unregenerate, as ſome do, then the laſt clauſe muſt be rendred, [luſteth to envy] that is, inciteth, or putteth on, or moveth earneſtly unto envy, and the like: but if by [ſpirit] we underſtand here the Spirit of God, which is the more probable opinion, becauſe that clauſe [dwelleth in us] is often attributed to the Spirit of God, Exod. 25. 8. & 29. 4. Rom.8.11. 1 Cor. 11. 16. then that clauſe muſt be underſtood of the Spirit of God, ſtriving and fighting againſt envy. See Gal.5.17. The Greek prepoſition many times ſignifies againſt; as Luk.20. 19. treaſure] It is as if the Apoſtle had ſaid, viz. Ye thought that ye had provided for many years, Luke 12.19. and it is true, ye have done it, but it is a treaſure of wrath, Rom.2.5. Some underſtand the place,as if hereby the Apoſtle condemned their folly in heaping up riches in the laſt times, or in their luſts,and therefore not likely to enjoy them.

V. 9. Grudge not] Or, groan, or grieve not. Hereby,S.James forbids not all grieving for, or ſenſibleneſſe of afflictions, or a groaning and ſighing for the day of our redemption ; but that groaning, grieving, or inward complaining and crying for vengeance,which is joyned with impatiency and murmuring againſt God.

if he have] It is not the Apoſtles intention by this conditional ſpeech, to intimate, as if any man was without ſin ; See 1 John 1.13. but here he ſpeaks of ſuch ſpecial ſins, for which God doth often lay ſickneſſe upon men. See John 5.14. 1 Cor.10.5 & 1 Cor.11.30.

V. 16. Confeſſe] Some underſtand it of forgiving one another, but the Original is no where found in that ſenſe ; it is applyed to confeſſing of ſins, Matth.3.6. Mark 1.5. Acts 19.18. and ſo here.

one to another] That is, ſay ſome, to thoſe Elders which were to be ſent for; but others more probably, of all the faithful, whether Paſtors of people, though chiefly the Paſtors, it being preſumed, that they are beſt able to comfort them , who find any ſin lye heavy upon their ſoul , and to aſſiſt them with their prayers.

V. 18. be prayed) 1 Kings 18.42,45.

V. 19. if any of you] Matth.18. 15.

erre] As a wandring traveller doth out of his way.

truth] That is, of the Goſpel,either in faith or manners. See verſ. 20.

convert] That is ; the means or inſtrument, through Gods bleſſing, of converting him.

V. 20. hide a multitude of ſins] Some underſtand this clauſe of the ſins of the converting, as of Gods rewarding out of promiſe and mercy, thoſe who take pains to convert others ; ſee 2 Cor.2.15. Others, of the ſins of the converted, whoſe ſins the converting are ſaid to hide, becauſe they are a means of Gods hiding and not imputing them unto them.

ANNOTATIONS
On the firſt Epiſtle general of
PETER.

The Argument.

T*He Apoſtle* Peter having by a ſpecial agreement of the Apoſtles among themſelves, the charge of thoſe of the Circumciſion committed unto him, Gal,2, 7,8,9. Was accordingly careful (becauſe he could not viſite them all all in perſon, being diſperſed into ſo many, and ſo remote Regions) to write unto them this Epiſtle, which might reach to them in their ſeveral places of abode. Therein his principal ſcope is, to perſwade them unto patience, and holy carriage, under thoſe afflictions, that either at preſent they were exerciſed withal, or were further to expect; And that by Arguments taken from the example of Chriſt, Gods calling them thereunto, the Glory that thereby ſhould redound unto God, and the good iſſue thereof, in regard of themſelves. And amidſt general Exhortations to ſuch Religious courſes, and unblameable converſation, as might adorn their Chriſtian Profeſſion, and ſtop the mouthes of malignant Adverſaries, he intermixeth Admonitions concerning the duties of ſeverall perſons in their ſpeciall places; as of Subjects towards Magiſtrates, Servants towards their Maſters, Husbands and Wives, either to other, and of the Miniſters of God towards the People of God, committed unto their charge, the younger ſort towards the elder, and of equals one to another; Concluding all with Benedictions and Salutations.

CHAP. I.

Verſ. 1. P*Eter*] Called firſt Simon, or Simeon, John 21.1. 2 Pet. 1. 1. afterwards Peter; but at what time, that is, whether when he firſt came to Chriſt, Joh. 1.42. or when he was called to be an Apoſtle, Mark 3.16. Luk.6.14. or when he made that good confeſſion, Mat.16.18. is not ſo eaſie to be determined.

ſcattered] Gr. of the diſperſion, Jam.1.1.

V. 2. Elect] That is, ſequeſtred and ſeparated from the world. See John 15.19. Rev.17.14. in which place, elect, called, and faithful, are put for the ſame; ſo that here we are to underſtand by [elect] thoſe who were effectually called, or who had obeyed the Goſpel.

begotten] That is, confirmed in us a living hope; or quickened, or revived unto us a living hope, by the reſurrection of Jeſus Chriſt, becauſe God raiſed him up, that we might believe and hope in God for our reſurrection unto glory. See ver.21. Act.13.33,38. Rom.1.4. & 10.9. Chriſts reſurrection being a pledge of ours: hence he is called the firſt-fruits of the dead, 1 Cor.15.23. and the firſt-born from the dead, Col.1.15,18.& Rev.1.5. Some underſtand it of Gods renewing us by Chriſts reſurrection. See Rom.6.5,&c.

lively hope] Or, living hope. That is, a conſtant, permanent, or a hope that ſhall not fail, as living waters, John 6.51. or to a hope of life.

in whom] Conſidering that great and plentiful redemption which he hath wrought for you.

full of glory] Or, glorious, either becauſe this their rejoycing was a taſte of their future glory, or becauſe it made them glorious in the eyes of men. The Original word may be tranſlated celebrated, or renowned, or ſpoken of to praiſe, or glorified, or commended, or honoured. See Luk.4.15. John 13.31.

V. 9. end] That is, reward. See Rom. 6. 21,22. 2 Cor. 11. 15. Phil.3.19. Jam.5.11.

grace] So here the fulfilling of the promiſes of Chriſts coming in the fleſh, of his preaching the acceptable year of the Lord, of his dying for our ſinnes, and riſing for our juſtification, or theſe things themſelves, and the like exhibited, are ſtyled in oppoſition to the types, figures and ſhadows of this grace, Joh.1.17.

V. 11. of Chriſt] Gal. 4. 6. So the Holy Ghoſt by which the Prophets ſpake, (2 Pet.1.21.) is called, becauſe Chriſt ſent the Holy Ghoſt upon the Prophets, as he did upon the Apoſtles. See John 12.15 26.

V. 13. Gird up the loyns of your mind] Gr. having the loynes of your mind girded. It is a metaphor taken from an ancient cuſtome in the eaſtern countries, where they were wont to wear long garments, which they girded to their loyns, to make them expedite, nimble, and ready for travel, or ſome other ſervice, 1 King.18 46. 2 King.4.29. & 9.1. Luk.12.37. Hence it is tranſlated here, and in other places, as Job 38.3. & 40.7. Luke 12.35. to the mind, to import its preparedneſs and readineſſe for Gods ſervice.

be ſober] Gr. being ſober. Hereby Saint Peter directs us unto that wherein the preparation of the ſoul doth conſiſt, or unto the means whereby it muſt be prepared for Gods ſervice, and that is ſoberneſſe; that is, a moderation not only in meats and drinks, but in all earthly things. See ver.4. & Luk.12.35,&c. 1 Theſſ.5.8.

to the end] Gr. perfectly, Luke 21. 34. Tit. 2.12. Hoſ. 12. 6. Heb. 6. 11.

Tit. 2.11. and theſe read the words following thus, viz. which is brought unto you by the revelation of Chriſt; that is, by his preaching of the Goſpel unto you, or in, or at his appearing, or being manifeſted in the fleſh. Others underſtand here by [grace] that ſalvation and glory which ſhall be revealed at the ſecond coming of Chriſt; as Chap.3.7.

that is to be brought] Or. that is brought.

at the revelation] 2 Theſſ.1.10.

V. 14. obedient children] Gr. children of obedience.

not faſhioning] Gr. not faſhioned. Here St. Peter may ſeem to allude to thoſe things which receive their figure, form, or ſhape from a mould, and is, as if he had ſaid, Let not your lives or converſations be formed or moulded according to your former luſts; ſee Rom.12.2. The ſame is imported, when men are ſaid to walk after their luſts, making their luſts their Captains, or Leaders. See Epheſ.2.3.& 4 22. 2 Tim.3.6. Tit. 3.3. 2 Pet.3.3. Jude 18.

Hence when it is applyed to our living upon the face of the earth, thereby is implyed, that here we have no abiding City. See Chap. 2. 11. Gen. 47. 9. Heb. 13. 14.

all malice] 2 Cor. 7. 1. 1 Theſſ. 5. 23.

V. 2. deſire] Or, earneſtly deſire, Pſal. 119. 20, 81, 82.

ſincere] That is, uncorrupted, unfalſified: whereby is meant the purity of Gods Word, it is without falſhood; ſee Pſal. 14. 8. and herein it is compared to milk, which of it ſelf is uncompounded.

milk] What is here meant by milk, is expreſſed, Chap. 1. 25. viz. the Goſpel, or the Wod of God revealed in the Goſpel: Compared to milk; firſt, becauſe of the ſweetneſſe of it, Eſa. 25. 6. Pſal. 19. 10. & 119. 103. Prov. 24. 13, 14. Secondly, becauſe of the purity thereof. See the note before. Thirdly, becauſe of the nouriſhing property thereof; ſo eſpecially here. See Eph. 4. 11, &c. 2 Tim. 3. 16, 17.

of the Word] The Syriak Tranſlation renders it [ſpiritual] and not without good probability, it being here oppoſed or compared to that bodily milk which new-born babes earneſtly deſire, and becauſe it is the food of the ſoul, which is a ſpirit, Heb. 12. 9. and ſo the Original word may be taken, Rom. 12. 1.

V. 3. If ſo be] As you profeſſe and perſwade your ſelf.

taſted] That is, have had any experimental knowledg of the goodneſſe and mercy of God in Chriſt; by our taſte we make experience what is ſweet, and what is ſower, or bitter. It may ſeem that St. Peter relates to Pſal. 34. 9. It is conceived by ſome, that hereby the Apoſtle followeth the former ſimilitude, becauſe children do by their taſtes eaſily diſcern their nurſes milk.

Lord] Chriſt Jeſus.

gracious] Underſtand it of that grace which is manifeſted and offered in the Goſpel. See Eph. 6. 9, 17. Tit. 3. 4. Heb. 6. 5.

V. 4. coming] That is, by faith. See John 6. 35. & 5. 40. 43, 44. Heb. 10. 22.

living ſtone] When Chriſt in the Scriptures is compared to a ſtone, it is either to the foundation-ſtone, to ſhew that the whole Church is built upon him. See 1 Cor. 3. 11. or elſe unto the chief corner-ſtone, to ſhew that the whole Church, or all the faithful, are coupled and united together in him. See Eph. 2. 13, 14, 20. & 4. 16. Col. 1. 19. He is further called, a living ſtone, becauſe he giveth life unto all thoſe who by faith are united unto him, Joh. 5. 26.

diſallowed indeed of men] Luk. 2. 34.

choſen] See Chap. 1. 20.

V. 5. lively ſtones] That is, as having received life from him. See ver. 4.

are built] Or, be ye built. Or, build up your ſelves: that is, more and more. Verbs paſſive, both in the Hebrew and the Greek, have ſometime a reciprocal ſignification. See Chap. 1. 14. 2 Sam. 20. 10. Mal. 2. 15. Gen. 46. 29.

ſpiritual] Uſually in the Scriptures the Church of God is compared unto an houſe, and that both the Church militant, Pſal. 27. 4. & 69. 10. & 84. Iſai. 56. 5, 7. Epheſ. 2. 19, 22. 1 Tim. 3. 15. Heb. 3. 6. & 10. 21. as alſo the triumphant, Joh. 14. 2. 2 Cor. 5. 1, 2. And the reaſon may be, becauſe God dwelleth in the Church, by his grace and glory. It is further compared unto a ſpiritual houſe, either in oppoſition to our material houſes, or elſe becauſe it is built up by the Spirit of God. See Chap. 1. 22.

holy prieſthood] So all the faithful are ſtyled, becauſe (as the prieſts under the law) ſo theſe are ſeparated from the world to the ſervice of God, as the words following import. See Chap. 1. 22. Iſai. 61. 1.

ſpiritual] That is, your ſelves, and all that ſpiritual ſervice which ye perform unto God. See Pſal. 4. 6. & 50. 14. & 51. 19. & 107. 22. & 141. 2. Iſai. 56. 7. Hoſ. 14. 3. Rom. 12. 1. Phil. 2. 17. Heb. 13. 15.

By Jeſus Chriſt] See Heb. 13. 10, 15, 16.

V. 6. ſcripture] That is, partly, Iſai. 8. 14. and 28. 16. and partly, Pſal. 118. out of which places the apoſtle alleadgeth theſe words, keeping faithfully the ſenſe, though not the very words.

the ſtone which the builders diſallowed] Pſal. 118. 22. Matth. 21. 42. Acts 4. 11.

V. 8. And a ſtone of ſtumbling] Iſa. 8. 14. Rom. 9. 33.

a ſtone] A metaphor taken either from thoſe, who, making haſte, ſtumble at a ſtone in their way, and ſo hurt themſelves: or from mariners, who ſplit their ſhips upon rocks. See 1 Cor. 1. 23. So that by ſtumbling, here, the cauſe being put for the effect, we are to underſtand that judgement which unbelievers incur, through their infidelity.

diſobedient] That is, becauſe they are diſobedient unto the Goſpel. Participles oftentimes imply the cauſe of that which went before. See Heb. 11. 31.

whereunto] This clauſe hath reference, not to diſobedient; for God ordains no man thereunto, Pſal. 5. 5. Jam. 1. 13. but unto ſtumbling: whereby is ſignified, that hurt and condemnation which unbelievers receive from the word through their infidelity: thereby it becomes the ſavour of death unto death unto them, 2 Cor. 2. 16. See before. Hence the ſenſe of this clauſe is this, viz. whereunto: that is, unto which hurt or condemnation, expreſſed by ſtumbling. They: that is, thoſe unbelievers were appointed or ordained by God, through his judgment, for their infidelity. Some, by ſtumbling, underſtand diſobeying, or, unbelieving: and theſe make this the meaning of the words, viz. Into which diſobedience or unbelief God ſuffered them to fall, through his juſt judgement, for their former ſins. Others, refer this clauſe to word, and make this the Apoſtles meaning, viz. Unto the obeying or believing of which word they were called of God.

V. 9. choſen] That is, whom God hath effectually called out of the world. See Chap. 1. 2. Deut. 7. 7.

royal] That is, kings and prieſts. See Exod. 19. 6. Revel. 1. 6. & 5. 10. Kings, becauſe of that power which they have, through Chriſt, over their luſt. See Phil. 4. 13. Prieſts, becauſe ſeparated to the ſervice of God. See v. 5.

holy nation] See Exod. 19. 6. & Deut. 7. 6, &c. peculiar] Or, a people for poſſeſſion: that is, a people whom God hath purchaſed to be his own. See Exod. 19. 5. Deut. 4. 2. & 7. 6. & 26. 18. Pſal. 135. 4. Tit. 2. 14. Acts 20. 18. Eph. 1. 14. 1 Theſſ. 5. 9.

praiſes] Or, vertues. That is, that we might gloriſie God in our converſations, thereby ſhewing forth the abundant mercy and great power of God in calling us, Iſa.8.13.

called you out of darkneſſe] Col.1.13.

darkneſſe] That is, ignorance, Chap.1.14. whereby is meant our ſinful and miſerable eſtate by nature, under which men are kept, through the ignorance of the Goſpel, Epheſ. 4.18. & 5. 8. Col.1.13.

his marvellous] Hereby is meant our eſtate of grace, through the effectual calling of God, by the knowledge of the truth. See 2 Cor.4.6. Acts 13.47. & 26.18. Epheſ.1.18. & 5.8. called marvellous, becauſe of the great myſtery of godlineſſe, which is revealed in the Goſpel: and called his, becauſe God revealeth it. See the places before.

V. 10. Hence it is gathered by ſome, that this Epiſtle was not written to the Jewes onely, but alſo to the Gentiles; becauſe that of Hoſea 2. 23. is to be underſtood of the calling of the Gentiles, Rom.9.25.

V. 11. ſtrangers] 1 Chron. 9. 15. Here is a reaſon given why we ought to live holily, viz. becauſe in this world we are ſtrangers and pilgrims, and therefore we ought not to live according to the laws and luſts of the world, which is moſt corrupt.

pilgrims] See Chap.1 .17.

abſtain from fleſhly luſts] Rom. 13. 14. Gal. 5.16. Col. 1.5. 1 Theſſ.2.5:

fleſhly] Fleſh is often taken for corrupt nature, as Rom. 7.25. & 8.1,5,9,13. Gal. 5. 19,24. Hence thoſe luſts are called fleſhly luſts, or, the luſts of the fleſh, which proceed from corrupt nature, Gal.5.1. Rom.13.14. Epheſ.2.3. 2 Pet. 2.18. Sometimes the luſts of the fleſh are taken for thoſe luſts which are againſt the ſeventh commandment, as 1 Joh.2.16.

V. 13. Gr. Therefore] Hereby two things are implyed: 1. That diſobedience to the civil magiſtrate proceeds from fleſhly luſts. See James 4.1. 2. That diſobedience unto the civil magiſtrate op[illegible] the mouth of unbelievers againſt the profeſſours of the Goſpel. See ver.11.

ordinance of man] By ordinance, is meant, the framing and ordering of civil government: called the ordinance of man, not becauſe it is invented by, or hath its original from men: (for all power is from God, Rom. 13. 1, 2. though ſometimes he uſeth men as means to derive power or government to ſuch or ſuch a perſon or perſons, that ſo they might be the more willing to yeeld obedience) but becauſe it is proper to men, or becauſe it is diſcharged by men.

for the Lords ſake] That is, out of obedience and conſcience unto God, who hath ordained the Civil Magiſtracy, and alſo hath commanded obedience unto it, ver.14. Rom.13.1,&c.

ſupreme] That is, under God. There is therefore no other ſupreme on earth above the King, in his dominions.

men] Who are ready, out of their ignorance and folly, to charge the Goſpel, and to blaſpheme it, as if it countenanced thoſe ſins, which the profeſſours thereof practiſe.

V. 16. free] 1 Cor.7.22. Here the Apoſtle ſeems to prevent a ſecret objection. Some might reply; We are free, and therefore owe no obedience to any above us. The Apoſtle granteth the antecedent, underſtanding it of their freedome from the burthen and curſe of the law, and from the bondage of ſin and Satan; but withal he admoniſheth them, not to withdraw, under the pretext of this their freedom, their obedience due unto the Magiſtrate.

husbands] He ſpeaks of unbelieving husbands, unto whom believing wives ſhould be the more ſubject, that ſo, by their honeſt and chaſte converſation, they might gain them unto the Lord; that is, be an occaſion of gaining them. See Matth.18. 15. 1 Cor.9.19. For, ſuch husbands ſeeing the good converſation of their wives, may be brought to have a liking and good opinion of the Goſpel, and ſo to have a deſire to it, and by the grace of God, to frame their life unto it.

be won] 1 Cor.7.16.

V. 2. fear] Both of offending their husbands, and of offending God.

V. 3. Whoſe adorning] 1 Tim.2.9. Iſa.3.16.

adorning] The Apoſtle doth not here abſolutely forbid women to adorn themſelves; ſee Gen. 29. 30. ſo it be without exceſſe and pride, and according to their places: but comparatively, that is, that they make not that outward adorning their chief ornament.

V. 4. hidden] This is oppoſed to the outward decking of the body. Hereby is meant the new man, which according to God is created in righteouſneſſe and true holineſſe, Epheſ. 4. 24. See Rom.2.29. & 7.22. 2 Cor.4.16.

according] That is, carry your ſelves wiſely and diſcreetly towards them.

giving honour] That is, giving them due reſpect, taking care and providing for them, and bearing with them in their weakneſſes.

weaker] It is uſual in the Scripture to compare man in general unto a veſſel; ſee 1 Sam.21. 1 Theſſ.4.4. 2 Cor.4.7. Hence the woman is here called weaker veſſel, becauſe generally ſhe is weaker, both in the faculties of her ſoul, and the conſtitution of her body. And in that ſhe is called the weaker veſſel, thereby is implyed the reaſon wherefore husbands muſt ſo carry themſelves as before, viz. becauſe women are the weaker veſſels. Weaker veſſels, as thoſe of glaſſe and earth, we uſe carefully and tenderly: and ſo husbands ſhould carry themſelves towards their wives.

The perſon baptizing, asked the perſon to be baptized, Whether he believed, and he anſwered, I believe, &c. Hence, by the anſwer of a good conſcience, we may underſtand that unfeigned faith whereof they made confeſſion at their baptiſme, and whereby their conſciences were purified, and whereby they received the remiſſion of their ſins, teſtified by Chriſts reſurrection from the dead. Some underſtand, by the anſwer, &c. that covenant whereinto they entred at their baptiſme, the embracing whereof was teſtified by their unfeigned confeſſion of their faith.

ANNOTATIONS
On the ſecond Epiſtle of Saint

The Argument.

I*T ſeems, that after the Writing of the former Epiſtle, wherein the Apoſtle had laid down the true Doctrine of Salvation by Chriſt alone, and ſome Rules for good life, becoming ſuch as ſhould be ſaved by him there aroſe certain men, who were remiſſe in their lives; others who were fearful of Gods Truth, laid down the Scriptures; as alſo, falſe Teachers, who living looſely themſelves, miſled and corrupted others, and ſcoffe at the comeing of Chriſt to judgment. CHAP. I.

Verſ. 1. Simon] Gr. Symeon, as it is tranſlated, Acts 15. 14. The name of one of Jacobs ſons, Gen. 29. 33. and of another godly man, Luke 2. 25. He is called Simon alſo, Matth. 10. 2. Joh. 21. 16. as we commonly call him. It ſeems that this was the name that was given him by his parents, at his circumciſion.

Peter] A ſirname given him by Chriſt, John 1. 42. It may be, to diſtinguiſh him from Simon the Canaanite, who was alſo an Apoſtle, Matth. 10. 2, 4. It was renewed, upon his confeſſion, Matth. 16. 16, 17, 18. The former name, Simon, comes from a word that ſignifies hearing. This later name, Peter, ſignifies a ſtone. The name imports, an hearer, and firm obſerver of Gods Word; and ſuch an one indeed this Apoſtle was, Matth. 7. 24.

an Apoſtle] One called by Chriſt immediately, Matth. 10. 2. and ſent to preach the Goſpel in any part of the world, Matth. 28. 19. and having authority over all Churches, 1 Cor. 9. 1. compared with 2 Cor. 11. 28.

through the righteouſneſſe] By merits of Chriſt, who hath deſerved for us both grace and g. Gr. in the righteouſneſs. Our faith reſts on Chriſts meri Or, by Gods mercy and bounty. So the word is uſed, 2 . 9. 9. Faith then comes not by any deſert of ours, but from hriſts merits, or Gods mercy, or by Gods faithfulneſſe in ping his promiſes, Pſal. 89. 33. Gods grace to us, ſhould make us ſtrive to encreaſe his graces in us. Or, So do this very thing alſo. So the firſt particle is tranſlated, Joh. 6. 57. As God hath given you great benefits! ver. 3. ſo do ye ſeek to add grace to grace. Or, Therefore do ye alſo this very thing. So the firſt particle is tranſlated, 1 Cor. 15. 13. V. 8. be in you, and abound] Be plentifully in you, Col. 3. 16.

they make you, that ye ſhall neither, &c.] Ye ſhall not only not be negligent and unfruitful, but alſo be painful in good works, and ſee fruit of your faith, ver. 5.

be barren] Gr. be idle. They are idle, not onely who do nothing, but alſo who uſe not the gifts they have to their beſt improvement and advantage.

unfruitful] As fruits are pleaſing to us, ſo are good works to God; and are therefore called fruits, Matth. 12. 23. Gal. 5. 22. 1 Theſſ. 1. 4. Col. 3. 20. Heb. 13. 16.

in the knowledge] In exerciſing your knowledge. That you know of Chriſt, will make you fruitful in good works.

of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt] See on ver. 2.

V. 9. is blind, and cannot ſee far off] Or, is blind, or cannot ſee far off. If he be not ſtark blind in theſe ſpiritual things, he is ſo weak ſighted that he cannot clearly diſcern ſuch high myſteries.

ye ſhall never fall] Jude ver. 4. Our life is likened to a race, 1 Cor. 9. 24. we muſt take heed leſt we fall, and come ſhort of the prize ſet before us. The children of God may fall into ſome ſins by weakneſſe; but never ſo as to loſe the goal, ver. 11. Pſal. 15. 1, 5. Rom. 11. 11. Or, ye ſhall never ſtumble. of theſe things] To encreaſe your former graces, ver. 5.

though ye know them] Rom. 15. 15. 1 Joh. 2. 21. For we oft forget, through multitude of worldly buſineſſes, what we know of holy and heavenly things.

as our Lord Jeſus Chriſt hath ſhewed me] As is from God now revealed to me: or, in that manner as he ſometimes foretold me, Joh 21. 18, 19.

V. 16. For we have not followed] Becauſe I have taught Gods truth, therefore I would have it remembred after my death: whereas if I had delivered fables, growing now towards my death, I ſhould rather repent of it, and be willing to have them forgotten, and buried with me.

cunningly deviſed fables] Woven together ſo artificially, that they might ſeem to be true, although indeed they be moſt falſe. Store of ſuch had the Jewes, and heathen Poets in thoſe dayes, and the Mahometans and Papiſts have in theſe times.

power and coming] Powerful coming in the fleſh, which our Saviour Chriſt ſhewed in effectual perſwading many to believe what he taught, and confirming it by miracles, Matth. 7. 28, 29. & 8. 7, 8. Luke 24. 19, 32. Rom. 1. 4.

V. 19. We have alſo] Leſt any ſhould not believe Peter, but think the former apparition mentioned by him to be a fiction of his, he cites the Prophets, as acknowledgers of Chriſts glory, and the foretellers of his coming, 1 Pet.1.10.11.

untill the day dawn] The times of the law were like the night, wherein candles were lighted; the time of the Goſpel like day-light, wherein the ſun ſhines. Or, by the light in a dark place, may be meant the revelation of Gods truth here; and by the day, the viſion of Chriſt in heaven.

the day-ſtar] Chriſt, Revel.2.28.. & 22.16.

V. 20. of any private interpretation] Such as ariſeth out of mans own brains, and not out of the Scripture it ſelf. He condemns not one mans, or few mens interpretation of a place of Scripture, differing from others; for God may at firſt reveal a truth by one or few men, which afterwards may be embraced by many.

V. 21. For the prophecy came not] It belongeth to God, the author of prophecy, to give the ſenſe of it.

in old time] Or, at any time.

V. 8. in ſeeing and hearing] Lot dwelling among the wicked Sodomites, could not but daily ſee ſuch filthy actions, and hear ſuch unclean ſpeeches, as vexed him to the very heart; becauſe he loved God, whoſe Name was diſhonoured grievouſly, and law broken groſly by them.

V. 3. Knowing this firſt] Taking notice of this principally, that many will endeavour to draw you from that commandment, v. 2. Chap. 2.21.

that there ſhall come] Of themſelves; not ſent by God.

in the laſt dayes] That is, in the later or following dayes; as the word is uſed, Gen. 49.1. Deut. 4.30. & Dan. 2.28. where in the laſt dayes, is expounded hereafter, v. 29. So are the times of the Goſpel called by the prophets, Iſai. 2. 2. Mic. 4. 1. Peter meaneth, the times then beginning, and likely to hold on to the end of the world, in greater or leſſer meaſure: for he warns thoſe that then lived, as well as others in after-ages, to take heed of ſuch ſcoffers: and ſuch then began to ariſe in the Church, Acts 20.29,30. 1 John 2.18.

V. 5. For this they willingly are ignorant of] They might have been informed, but will not: for they obſerve not the things written in Scripture of the end of the world, and day of judgement; elſe they would not be ignorant of theſe things. Or, they wilfully neglect to conſider, that the earth was made by Gods power onely, and the heavens alſo; and that the world ſuffered much alteration in the flood, and ſo may be deſtroyed in the end. Or, For they that think thus, are ignorant, that by the word of God, &c. ſtanding out of the water, and in the water] Or, conſiſting, or, ſubſiſting. Gr. ſtanding together; ſo as it was not rent in pieces by the water. By Gods power the earth was upheld after it came out of the waters, as well as before, Gen. 1.2,9. Or, ſtanding out of the water, and by the water. For God hath made the earth ſo high, that the ſea cannot overflow it, though it girt it about. Pſal. 24.2.

V. 6. the world that then was] The face of the earth, as then it appeared, and all the living creatures upon it.

one day is with the Lord as a thouſand years] God doth not meaſuret ime, as we do: but unto him, in regard of his eternity and omniſcience, comprehending all things paſt, preſent and future; thoſe periods of time, that ſeem ſo long unto us, are but as a moment, Pſal. 90.4.

V. 9. The Lord is not ſlack concerning his promiſe] Or, The Lord of the promiſe is not ſlack. He that made it, will perform it in due time. They are not ſlack, that are long ere they come; but they that come not at their due and appointed time. God puts not off his coming one hour beyond the ſet time, Hebr. 10. 37.

is long-ſuffering to us-ward] Who are beloved, v. 8. and not in the number of thoſe ſcoffers, v. 3. or, towards mankinde, of which number we alſo are.

V. 10. But the day of the Lord] Every day is the Lords, to diſpoſe of as he pleaſeth. But the day of judgement is called his, in a peculiar manner, 1 Cor. 5. 5. 2 Cor. 1. 14. becauſe Chriſt the Lord will then viſibly judge all the world, Acts 17. 31. Rom. 2. 16.

will come as a thief in the night] Matth. 24. 43, 44. Luke 12. 39,40. 1 Theſſ. 5.2. Revel. 16. 15. As a thief comes ſuddenly and unexſpectedly, ſo will Chriſt come to judgement. No man can conjecture when that day will be, Matth. 24.36.

the heavens ſhall paſſe away with a great noiſe] Like as a whirlwind or tempeſt comes roaring, and carries all before it: ſo ſhall the ſtarrie skie paſſe away, Matth. 24.29. Not by being deſtroyed utterly, but being turned into a new form, verſ. 13. Pſal. 102.26. Rom. 8.21.

and the elements] The air and water betwixt the heaven and earth.

the earth alſo] Either the earth is not included under the word elements before; or it is particularly named, becauſe in it the burning will moſt viſibly appear.

and the works that are therein] The works of God made at firſt by creation, or produced daily by nature; or the works of men, made by art, as houſes, ſhips, &c.

V. 11. Seeing then that all theſe things, &c.] If heaven and earth muſt be ſo wonderfully purged, to make a fit dwelling for us, ver. 13. how holy had we need to be! Or, ſeeing ſuch a fearful appearance of judgement ſhall then be.

What manner of perſons ought ye to be] That is, how great a degree of godlineſſe ſhould we labour to attain. So the word is uſed, Matth. 8.27. Mark 13.1. Luke 1. 29. & 7. 39. 1 Joh. 3. 1.

in all holy converſation, and godlineſſe] Gr. converſations, and godlineſſes: That is, in all manner of good duties towards man, and God, Acts 24.16.

V. 12. Haſting unto the coming] Or, Haſtening the coming. Not onely expecting it, or looking for it, as Luke 12. 43. Matth. 24. 42. but alſo, as it were, going forth to meet Chriſt with burning lamps, Matth. 25. 1. So ſervants that deſire their maſters return, get all things ready to entertain him, againſt he comes. And ſo ſhould we prepare our ſelves for Chriſts coming, by fitting our ſelves for it, more then ſeeking after worldly things. He haſtes, that followeth one thing to finiſh it, and is not ſo diſtracted as to begin many things, and end none. The one thing needful for us, Luke 10.42. is to fit our ſelves for Chriſts coming.

wherein the heavens, &c.] See on v. 10.

look for new heavens] Not others for ſubſtance, but renewed in qualities. See on v. 10.

and a new earth] An earth ſhining with new brightneſſe and glory, being ſomwhat proportionable to the Saints, to delight their eyes and minds, Rom. 8, 21.

wherein] In which heavens: or, in both which, heaven and earth.

dwelleth righteouſneſs] That is, righteous men onely; whereas in this world dwell many ſinners, which then ſhall be all in hell. So righteouſneſſe is taken, Iſai. 1. 21. Or, the whole verſe may be thus read; Nevertheleſs we, in whom dwelleth righteouſneſs, look for new heavens, and a new earth, according to this promiſe. That is, we that are juſtified by faith in Chriſt, and ſanctified by his Spirit, expect eternal hapineſs in another world, when this world ſhall be at an end.

V. 14. in peace] Reconciled to God by Chriſt, Coloſſ. 1. 20. Rom 5. 1. Or, in peace of minde and conſcience, not troubled nor affrighted.

without ſpot and blameleſs] Eph. 5. 27. Jude v. 24 Col. 1. 22.

V. 15. account that the long ſuffering of the Lord is ſalvation] Think not that God doth put off his coming, out of ſlackneſſe, as ſome ſuppoſe, v. 9. nor to do hurt to men; but for the good of his, and to further their ſalvation. Gods patience furthers our ſalvation much, by affording time of repentance, and of the uſe of the means, Rom. 2. 4.

our beloved brother Paul] Our brother in office, and dear fellow-apoſtle.

according to the wiſedom given unto him] From above, whereby he was fitted to be an apoſtle, Gal. 1. 11, 12.

V. 16. In all his epiſtles] In all his other epiſtles, Mat. 16. 14.

of theſe things] Of the end of the world, the day of judgement, and the right uſe of Gods patience.

in which] In which epiſtles. Or, among which things, as the Greek copies run. Among the things ſpoken by him of this ſubject.

are ſome things] Some things of this matter, not all things ſpoken of it, much leſs all other Scriptures, are difficult. Things needful to ſalvation are plain, elſe how ſhould plain men find the way to heaven?

hard to be underſtood] Becauſe of the height of the matter, and of ſome particular expreſſions.

which they that are unlearned and unſtable] The Scriptures then are not dangerous for private men to uſe, if by often reading them they get knowledg, and bring ſetled minds with them. The cauſe of hurt by them, is not in the difficulty of them, but in mens unlearned and unſtable minds, who live in ignorance, v. 5. and have no affection to do what they learn out of them, Joh. 7. 17. Pſal. 25. 14.

wreſt] By miſ-interpreting, and drawing them violently from the true ſenſe to a falſe one, to uphold their errours.

as they do alſo the other Scriptures] Written by the other apoſtles or prophets. They ſerve them all alike: whereby it appears, that the fault is not in the Scripture, but in themſelves.

unto their own deſtruction] Clean contrary to the end for which they were written, which is ſalvation, Joh. 21. 31.

V. 17. Seeing ye know theſe things before] Out of the doctrine of the other apoſtles, and by my putting you in minde of them in this epiſtle, verſ. 1, 2. and therefore being ſo forewarned of them, ought the better to be forearmed againſt them.

beware] He doth not ſay, Read no Scripture, becauſe ſome places are hard; or, Believe the Churches interpretation. He rather warns them to take heed of ſeducers, and ſuch a miſ-interpreted the Scriptures; and expects they ſhould read them diligently, that they might grow in knowledge, ver. 18. In vain had he writen this epiſtle to private men, for a memorial when he ſhould be dead, Chap. 1. 15. and called upon them to be mindful of the doctrine of the prophets and apoſtles, who were dead, ver. 2. and Jude alſo in his epiſtle, if they ought not to read the Scriptures. The Iſraelites, who had far leſſe knowledg then Chriſtians have now, are blamed for not doing it, Hoſ. 8. 12. and the Jews exhorted to do it, Joh. 5. 39.

ye alſo being led away] Gr. ye being led away with others.

with the errour of the wicked] Chap. 2. 1, 2, 18. Or, with that particular errour of not believing Chriſts coming, v. 3, 4.

fall from your own ſtedfaſtneſſe] And ſo become unſtable, as thoſe perverters of Scripture, v. 16. and ſo be unſetled.

V. 18. grow in grace] Get more ſenſe of Gods favour daily. Or, ſeek to encreaſe the graces of his Spirit in you, ch. 1. 5, 8, 10.

and in the knowledg] How can they do that, without reading the Scriptures? Ignorance then is not the mother of devotion, in Peters own language, whom the papiſts boaſt of, more then the Jews did of Moſes, by whoſe teſtimony our Saviour confutes them, Joh. 5. 45.

of our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt] Chap. 2. 1. Jude v. 25. Revel. 1. 1.

To him be glory] Jude. v. 25.

both now and for ever] Gr. both now, and to the day of eternity; That is, to eternity, without end; as Matth. 6. 13.

Amen] See on Matth. 6. 13. Iude v. 25. Rev. 22. 21.

ANNOTATIONS
On the firſt Epiſtle of S. JOHN.

The ARGUMENT.

THe beloved Apoſtle John living longer then the reſt of the Apoſtles, and obſerving the decay of Truth, Godlineſs, and Charity, in many Chriſtians, writes this Epiſtle as a ſalve for the ſores of the Church. He enterweaves Truth of Doctrine, with Godlineſſe of life, and love of the Brethren throughout the Epiſtle. Fit ſubjects for him to write of, who was an Apoſtle, and eminent for Piety, and chiefly beloved by Chriſt himſelf. Great reaſon therefore, that all Chriſtians ſhould hearken to him in all theſe things.

This firſt Epiſtle is called general, becauſe it is not directed to any particular perſons, as the ſecond and third are: The one to a ſingular Woman, the eldeſt Lady; The other to a choice man, called Gaius. God grant that by reading of it, we may get Grace to increaſe in Faith, Piety, and Charity. Amen.

CHAP. I.

Verſ. 1. THat which was from the beginning] From the beginning of the world. An alluſion to Gen. 1. 1. Joh. 1. 1. Prov. 8. 22. Chriſt is hereby intended, who is the true God, Chap. 5. 20. and was before the beginning of the world. But the Scripture, ſpeaking of him which is from eternity, uſeth this phraſe, from the beginning, to deſcend to our capacity, who are not able to comprehend any thing before the beginning of the world, Matth. 25. 34.

which we] We apoſtles, choſen witneſſes to publiſh theſe things Acts 1. 8. and 10. 41.

which we have ſeen] We ſaw him in his humane nature, and ſaw his miracles, Luke 1. 2. 2 Pet. 1. 16. Eye-witneſſes are more worthy of credit then ear-witneſſes, Acts 4. 20. Joh. 3. 11. and 15. 27. Acts 1. 21, 22. & 10. 40, 41. This proves Chriſt to be true man, as his being from the beginning ſets out his Deity.

with our eyes] So men uſe to ſpeak of things moſt certain, yet not ſo well known to their hearers, Job 19. 27. And ſo of the ears, Pſal. 44. 1. Some reſtrain it to the viſion in the mount, where they ſaw Chriſts glory: but it may be underſtood of all viſible declarations of the truth of Chriſts humane nature to them, by his eating, drinking, &c. and of his divine, by working miracles in their ſight, Ioh. 1. 14. 1 Tim. 3. 16.

which we have looked upon] Wiſhly, and deliberately: for we ſee many things we do not regard, nor faſten our eyes on them. We looked upon him, as men look on rare ſights in a theatre, diligently, clearly, cheerfully, 1 Cor. 4. 9. 1 Pet. 1. 12.

our hands] Touching is the ſureſt ſenſe: for eyes and ears may ſooner be deceived, in bodily ſubſtances, then hands, Luke 24. 39. Ioh. 20. 25.

have handled] Gr. touched: As muſicians touch their ſtringed-inſtruments. They touched him both before his reſurrection, Matth. 14. 31. and after it, Ioh. 20. 27.

of the word] Of Chriſts humane nature, who is alſo the word of God, Ioh. 1. 1. as being begotten of the Father, as the word is by the minde; and making the Fathers minde known to us, as our words make our meaning manifeſt to others.

of life] Who is a living word himſelf, and gives both natural and ſpiritual life to others, Joh. 1. 4. & 5. 26. Chap. 5. 11.

V. 2. For the life] See on v. 1.

was manifeſted] Before, it lay hid in it ſelf; now it was manifeſted by incarnation, Ioh. 1. 4. 1 Tim. 3. 16. and by miracles, which none elſe did, Ioh. 3. 2. & 7. 31, 46. & 11. 47. & 12. 37. & 15. 24.

we have ſeen it] This is repeated, for more aſſurance, that none need doubt of it.

and bear witneſs] For the glory of Chriſt. See on v. 1.

and ſhew unto you] For your good. Ye could never have found it out your ſelves, if God had not revealed it to us, and we taught it you, Rom. 10. 14.

which was with the Father] Joh. 1. 1, 2. The word imports, neerneſs, with ſome diſtinction; therefore alſo he is ſaid to be in the Father, Joh. 14. 10, 11. Chriſt is one God with the Father, yet a diſtinct perſon from him: and he was with him inviſible altogether, till he was incarnate.

was manifeſted unto us] Joh. 1. 14.

V. 3. That which we have ſeen] This is the third time repeated, to put it out of all queſtion.

that ye alſo] Who did not ſee, hear nor handle the word of life, as we did, verſ. 1. So that he wrote this epiſtle not to get ought from them, but to do good to them, that they might have a ſhare with him in ſpiritual comforts, 2 Cor. 12. 14.

May have fellowſhip] That being united by faith with Chriſt, and with his members, ye may partake of his graces, and ſpiritual life from him; and by him be united to God the Father, and have communion with him, Joh. 17. 21. Heb. 3. 14.

with us] Apoſtles, whom ye think happy, 2 Cor. 1. 21.

and truly, &c.] And not with us onely, but with God and Chriſt alſo, which is a greater preeminence.

V. 4. Theſe things write we unto you] He doth not ſay, We preach them, but, We write them; to ſhew, that there is enough in Scripture, without tradition, to bring us to a comfortable life on earth, and perfect joy in heaven.

that your joy may be full] That by encreaſe of your faith, 2 Joh. v. 12. ye may have peace of conſcience, and joy of the Holy Ghoſt, in ſo great a meaſure, that ye may not doubt of Gods favour, but rejoyce in it continually, till ye come to enjoy him for ever, Rom. 5. 1, 2. 1 Pet. 1. 6. Thus John, the beloved diſciple of Chriſt, imitates his maſter in the very phraſe it ſelf. See Joh. 15. 11. & 17. 13.

V. 5. This then is the meſſage] The ſum of the Goſpel, is communion with God, which cannot be without regeneration.

which we have heard of him] Gr. from him. Not, concerning him, by ſome other, as Joh. 1. 15. We heard it from Chriſt, verſ. 3. who teſtifies concerning his Father, as follows in this verſe.

that God is light] Full of wiſdom and holineſſe, Jam. 1. 17.

in him is no darkneſs at all] No ignorance nor ſin.

V. 6. If we ſay] In heart, as Pſal. 14. 1. Or, profeſs it in word.

and walk in darkneſs] He doth not ſay, And have walked in darkneſſe; for all have done ſo, before regeneration; but, If we walk in darkneſſe, Eph. 5. 8. Walking ſets not out any one action, but the continued courſe of life, Pſal. 119. 1. and 128. 1. To walk in darkneſſe, is to be converſant in ignorance and ſinne.

we lye] In ſaying ſo: for, what fellowſhip hath light with darkneſs? 2 Cor. 6. 14.

do not the truth] Walk not according to Gods word, Joh. 3. 21. Or, deal not truly, that is, ſincerely.

V. 7. If we walk in the light] If we live according to the light of grace received, and go on in a wiſe and holy way, till we come to perfection.

as he is in the light] He poſſeſſeth the fulneſſe of wiſdom and holineſſe from eternity, 1 Tim. 1. 18.

we have fellowſhip one with another] We with God, and God with us. Or, we Chriſtians one with another.

the blood of Jeſus Chriſt] Leſt any ſhould deſpair, as not being able to walk perfectly in the light, as God is in it, he adds this for our comfort, that, if we do our endeavour, Chriſts blood will purge away our failings.

his Son] This ſhews the great price of his blood, as being the blood of the Son of God; yea, of God himſelf, Acts 20. 28.

cleanſeth us from all ſin] Tit. 2. 14. That is, from the guilt of all ſin: for if but one ſin be left unpardoned, that were ſufficient to condemn us. It cleanſeth alſo from the filth and ſtain of ſin, Heb. 19. 14. 1 Pet. 1. 2. Rev. 1. 5, 6.

V. 8. If we ſay] As before he did diſcourage fearful ones; ſo now he labours to caſt down proud perſons, that think they have no ſin, nor need of Chriſts blood. He ſaith not, If thou ſay, as if he ſpake to ſome particular perſon onely; nor, If ye ſay, as if he intended ordinary Chriſtians alone; but, If we, apoſtles, or whatever we be, ſay ſo: to ſhew, that all are ſinners, Jam. 3. 1.

that we have no ſin] Contrary to 1 King. 8. 46. 2 Chron. 6. 36. Prov. 20. 9. And he doth not ſay, We have not had ſin formerly, but we have not at preſent, even when we are in ſtate of grace, Rom. 7. 17, 20, 23.

the truth is not in us] We are not ſincere: or, we believe not Gods word, v. 6, 10. Joh. 17. 17. It is not then modeſty onely that makes the beſt men to confeſſe their ſins; but the truth compels them to do it.

V. 9. he is faithful and juſt] A great comfort. If we could conceive God not to be ſo merciful as to forgive our ſins, doubtleſſe he will be faithful and juſt to perform his promiſe, and not to require that again of us, which Chriſt hath diſcharged by ſhedding his blood for us, Rom. 3. 25. Iſa. 53. 7.

V. 10. we make him a lyar] As much as in us lyes. See the like, Matth. 5. 28. A man commits adultery in his heart with a woman, yet ſhe is not defiled: So on the contrary, by believing, we ſeal to Gods truth, John 3. 33. We do then not onely deceive our ſelves, when we deny our ſins, ver. 8. but alſo by conſequence charge God with falſhood, who hath often ſaid, that all men are ſinners, Rom. 3. 10, 23. & 5. 12. and teacheth us to ask pardon, Matth. 6. 12. and ſent his Son to dye for our ſins, Chap. 2. 2. & 3. 16.

his word is not in us] Chriſt: or, the written word hath no place in us, John. 8. 37.

CHAP. II.

Verſ. 1. MY little children] He ſheweth the abundance of his love, by uſing this word eight times, at leaſt, in this Epiſtle. Hereby he intimates, that the counſel given them is ſuch as comes from a paternal affection, ſeeking their good. The leſſe the children are, the more delight parents take in them, and pity them the more, becauſe they are the leſſe able to help themſelves. Now he might call them, Little children, not onely in regard of converſion, as Gal. 4. 19. but alſo in regard of his own age. So 2 John 1. He may call himſelf Elder, in that reſpect, Phil. ver. 9.

and if any man ſin] Or, yet if any man ſin. So the ſame particle is uſed, Luke 3. 20. If any man offend out of infirmity, or being overcome by ſome ſtrong temptation, who intended not to ſin, Rom. 7. 15, 19. Gal. 6. 1.

we have an Advocate] He pronounceth it certainly, to take away all doubt. Aud we need not look for him to come, or ſeek him with great coſts; for we have him already. It is a great comfort, to a man accuſed, to have a good advocate. We have an excellent one.

with the Father] Heb. 9. 24. Rom. 8. 34. We ſhall ſpeed well; for God is the Father of our Advocate, and our Father in him.

Jeſus Chriſt] See on Matth. 1. 1. He names him, that the ſick ſouls might not be diſtracted, not knowing what Phyſitian to go to, Acts 4. 10, 11, 12.

the righteous] One that needed not to dye for his own ſins, nor plead for the remiſſion of them; and therefore dyed and pleads for us, Heb. 7. 26, 27. 1 Pet. 3. 18. Acts 3. 14. & 22. 14.

V. 2. And he] Or, For he; as the word is uſed, Luke 6. 32. He dyed for our ſins, therefore he will plead for us, Rom. 8. 34. elſe ſhould he loſe the fruit of his death, if we ſhould periſh.

the propitiation] The propitiatory-ſacrifice, Rom. 3. 25.

for our ſins] He doth not profit himſelf onely (in the exaltation of his humane nature, by his obedience to the death, Phil. 2. 8, 9.) as other men may do, Job 35. 8. Ezek. 14. 16. but ſaves us from our ſins, Matth. 1. 21.

and not for ours onely] Who believe already; or, who are alive now: or,of us Jews,who were Gods peculiar people before.

for the ſins of the whole world] Of all believers in all nations, Acts 10.35. Gal.3.28. Col.3.11.

V. 3. Hereby we know that we know him] That we have acquaintance with him, Chap.1.7. or, have the true and ſound knowledge of him, John 1.18. & 17.3. Or, we acknowledg him really for our Saviour, Pſal.1.6. Matth,25.12.

if we keep his commandments] Many boaſt that they know Chriſt to be a propitiation for their ſins, and therefore they need not forbear ſin, or obey Gods Law: but ſuch know not Chriſt to their comfort. By keeping,is meant,a ſedulous ſtudy, and ſerious endeavour of walking in an holy courſe of life, according to all the commandments of God, and a conſcionable care of obſerving each one,as well as any other, Luke 1.6.Jam. 2.8,9,10. Pſal.119.6.

V. 4. and the truth is not in him] See on Chap.1.8.

V. 5. the love of God perfected] See on Chap.4.12.

V. 6. even as he walked] Then, like a ſervant, he ſhall wear his maſters livery, 1 Cor.11.1. Epheſ.5.1,2.

V. 7. which ye had from the beginning] Taught by Chriſt and his Apoſtles, at the beginning of the preaching of the Goſpel. So that this is not the firſt time of the publiſhing of it. Or, taught from the beginning of the world, and recorded in the old Teſtament.

V. 8. a new commandment] John 13.34. Whereas it might ſeem, by diſuſe, to be out of date, and buried in legal ceremonies; or abrogated, as ſome other things uſed in the old Teſtament were; it is renewed in the New Teſtament,and explained more fully. Or, it is called new, becauſe we have daily new occaſions of exerciſing our charity. Or, new, in regard of the manner of propounding (though old,for matter and ſubſtance) as being propounded formerly in our own example, Levit. 19. 18. now in the example of Chriſt, John 13.34.

which thing is true in him and in you] It is truly found in both. In him, who exerciſed love to us in the higheſt degree, in dying for us, John 15. 13. In you, who muſt uſe charity towards others.

becauſe] Or, that.

the darkneſſe is paſt] Shadows, figures, Col. 2. 17. or ſtate of ignorance and ſin, wherein formerly ye lived, Rom.13.12. Eph. 5.8. 2 Pet.1.19.

the true light now ſhineth] Chriſt, who is the light it ſelf, not enlightned by others,but enlightning others,John 1.8,9.ſhineth in the Goſpel, or in your hearts, 2 Cor.4.6. Or, ye have right knowledge and true holineſſe within you.

V. 9. He that ſaith] See on Chap.1.6,8.

V. 10. no occaſion of ſtumbling] Gr. no ſcandal.

V. 11. is in darkneſſe] Remains in his natural condition, ignorant, and wicked.

and walketh in darkneſſe] Liveth fooliſhly and ungodlily.

V. 12. Little children] See on ver.1.

becauſe your ſins are forgiven you] Becauſe ye are reconciled to God, though ye be not ſo wiſe and ſtrong as other Chriſtians of longer ſtanding, and further growth, 1 Cor. 3. 1. This is added, for the comfort of weak Chriſtians, leſt they ſhould think the ſins of ſtrong ones onely to be forgiven, and not theirs.

for his Names ſake] Acts 4.12. & 10.43.

V. 13. Ye have known him that was from the beginning] Chriſt, John 1.1. 1 John 1.1. Ye are not only experienced in worldly things, but (which is a greater honour to you) ye have attained to the knowledge of Chriſt in a greater meaſure then other Chriſtians.

becauſe ye have overcome the wicked one] The Devil, Matth.6. 13. Rom.16.20. As old men are noted for wiſdome, ſo young men for ſtrength, and ability to conquer. Strong Chriſtians get more victories over Satan then weak ones. The Devil layes moſt ſnares for young men,as for them that are moſt prone to ſin, and may ſerve him longeſt. But theſe young men have overcome him.

becauſe ye have known the Father] Nothing is more needfull for children, then to have a father, whom they may repair to in their wants,and that may take care for them. Theſe had found out God for their Father.

V. 14. And the word of God abideth in you] 2 Joh. ver.2. Hence is your power to overcome Satan, Epheſ.6.17. not from bodily ſtrength, or natural boldneſſe.

V. 15. the world] The things that are pleaſing in it to mans corrupt nature, and ſo far forth as they are ſuch.

the love of the Father is not in him] He loveth not God, Jam. 4. 4.

V.16. all that is in the world] In price or account with worldly-minded men, as 1 Cor.1.28.

the luſt of the fleſh] Deſire of pleaſures, or wantonneſſe.

the luſt of the eyes] Deſire of riches, or covetouſneſſe, Eccleſ.5.11.

the pride of life] Longing for worldly honours, which are moſt regarded in this life, John 12.42,43. and it ſhewes it ſelf in our life; for pride cannot be kept in. Or,pride of the things or goods of this life: and ſo the ſame word is tranſlated,chap.3. 17. for riches puff men up, Pſal.73.5,6,&c. 1 Tim.6.17.

V. 17. the world paſſeth away] Men would alwayes abide in places they love, and enjoy pleaſures there; but that they cannot in this world: therefore love it not, 1 Cor.7.29,&c.

the luſt thereof] Thoſe things in the world that are luſted after; as ver.16. So hope,is put for the thing hoped for, Rom. 8. 24. Col.1.5. And faith, for the thing believed, Jude verſ.3.

V. 18. Little children] See verſ.1.

it is the laſt time] Gr. hour. The beginning of the laſt age of the world, Heb.1.2. therefore love not the world, becauſe ye can enjoy it but a while, Luke 12.20. 1 Cor.7.29. This argument is good,whether it be underſtood of the neerneſſe of the end of the world,or of our leaving of the world by death; or,as others think,of the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, before which falſe chriſts came, and at which time the Jews were deprived of their pleaſures,wealth and honours. It may alſo ſignifie,that no new doctrine is to be expected; as Heb.1.2.

as ye have heard that antichriſt ſhall come] Ye have heard of a noted antichriſt, 2 Theſſ.2.3,&c. He is not yet come, but there are divers fore-runners of him come into the world,Act.20.29, 30. 1 Tim.4.1,&c.

there are many antichriſts] Many falſe or pretended chriſts, ſuch as in likelihood Judas and Theudas were, Acts 5. 36, 37. And afterward, Bar-Cochaba, or Bar-Cozba, and others. Or, hereticks alſo, as Simon Magus, Ebion, Cerinthus, and the like.

whereby we know it is the laſt time] Becauſe our Saviour foretold, that, towards the later end of times, many ſuch ſhould come, Matth.24.11,24.

V. 19. They] Thoſe antichriſts, verſ.18. Jude ver.19.

went out from us] Either from the body of Gods people, the Jews; or from the ſociety of profeſſed Chriſtians.

but they were not of us] Of us true believers, who cannot fall away, Matth.24.24. John 6.37. & 10.28,29. Rom. 8. 28,29,38, 39. 2 Tim.2.9. Marvel not, nor be not troubled, that many forſake Gods Church. If they had been ſound members, they would never have done ſo. They were in the Church in body onely, not in ſpirit; and the Church loſeth nothing by their departure, as corn loſeth nothing when the chaffe is gone (but is the purer) nor the body when bad humours are worn away.

that they were not all of us] That none of them were of us. An Hebrew phraſe, as Pſal.143.2. Chap.3.15. Or, that it might be made manifeſt in them, that all were not of us, that ſeemed to be ſo by their converſing with us.

V. 20. But ye have an unction] Ye need not fear ſeducing: Gods Word and Spirit will ſafeguard you from falſe teachers. The Spirit of God,that anointed Chriſt for a King and a Prieſt, hath alſo anointed you to be ſuch, ſpiritually, Rev.1.6. that ye may be able to guide and defend your ſelves againſt falſe teachers. Oyl was uſed in conſecration, Exod. 30. 25. Thereby are ſignified the gifts of the Holy Ghoſt, beſtowed on believers, whereby they are conſecrated to God, Pſal.45.7. Heb.1.9.

from the holy One] From Chriſt, in whom the graces of Gods Spirit are, as in a ſpring, to be communicated to us, Dan. 9.24. Luke 1. 35. Iohn 1. 16. & 3. 34. Pſal.133.2. Iſai.61.1.

ye know all things] That are needful for you to know, to preſerve you from being ſeduced by theſe falſe teachers,Matth.24. 24. or, that are neceſſary to guide you to heaven. See the like phraſe, Col.3.20. For no man knows all things ſimply; that is Gods prerogative, Ioh. 21. 17. nor any thing ſo perfectly, as they ſhall do in heaven,1 Cor.13.9,10,12.

V. 21. I have not written unto you becauſe ye know not the truth] I write not unto you to acquaint you with any new doctrine,v. 7. but to confirm you further in the truth formerly taught you,and already known by you, 2 Pet.1.12.

no lye is of the truth] And that ye may be the better able thereby to diſcover the falſe doctrines of theſe ſeducers, conſidering how they ſwerve from it.

V. 22. Who is a lyer,but he that denyeth that Jeſus is the Chriſt?] What untruth can be more palpable, or more pernicious then this, that oppoſeth a truth that hath ſo pregnant and ſo plentifull evidences, and is the main ſcope of the whole Goſpel, John 20.31.

He is antichriſt, that denyeth the Father,and the Son] The very word antichriſt, doth ſignifie a direct oppoſition to Chriſt, and that as he is the Son of God, Father: whereupon it followeth, by juſt conſequence, that the denyal of the Son, is the denyal of the Father: and this is a juſt character of antichriſt.

V. 23. Whoſoever denyeth the Son, &c.] The Jews thought it a wrong to God, to confeſſe that he had a Son. Falſe teachers aroſe then, who taught, that it was injurious to God to make Chriſt equal to him. Both thought it ſufficient to acknowledge the Father onely to be God. John ſhews, that it is an injury to the Father, to deny equall honour to his Son, John 5.23.

V. 24. which

V. 24. which ye have heard from the beginning] See on verſ.7. When once we doubt of things taught in the Scripture, we ſoon are ſeduced.

ye alſo ſhall continue in the Son, and in the Father] What greater honour can we have, to encourage us to the conſtant profeſſion of the truth?

V. 25. And this is the promiſe] What greater profit is there to ſet before us, then eternal life?

V. 26. Theſe things have I written, &c.] I have done my part to warn you of theſe ſeducers: if ye be drawn away by them, it is your fault, Ezek.33.9. Acts 20.26,27,29.

V. 27. But the anointing] See on ver.20.

abideth in you] Remaineth with you, to teach you on all occaſions, though other teachers ſhould fail.

ye need not that any man teach you] The true grounds of religion. Ye need onely to perſevere in the profeſſion of them. Or, that I ſhould take much pains to inform you in the truth, as ver.21.

of all things] See on verſ.20.

ye ſhall abide] Or, ye will abide. I am ſo perſwaded of you.

in him] In Chriſt, the holy One, verſ.20. by faith and imitation. Or, in it. In that which this anointing hath taught you.

V. 8. when he ſhall appear] In judgment, Col.3.4.

V. 29. that he is righteous Chriſt, of whom he ſpake laſt: or, God the Father, of whom we are new born.

ye know] Or, know ye.

doth righteouſneſſe] Liveth righteouſly, 1 John 3.7.

is born of him] Sheweth the truth of his regeneration, according to Gods Image, by his godly life, Eph.4.24. 1 John 3.7.

CHAP. III.

Verſ. 1. B*Ehold*] Take notice of it, as of a certain truth, and a great priviledge, John 1.12.

what manner of love] And how great, Matth.8.27.

that we ſhould be called the Sons of God] Both be ſo, and alſo acknowledged, Matth.5.9.

the world knoweth us not] To be Gods children, and therefore loveth us not, but hateth us, John 15.21,24. & 16.3.

V. 2. now are we the Sons of God] John 1.12,13. For we have received the Spirit of adoption here, Rom.8.15. Gal.4.5. and ſo have right to glory, as Gods children.

and it doth not yet appear] Or, but it doth not yet appear; as Mat.11.19. It hath not yet been made manifeſt.

as he is] As he is, now, in glory, not as he was, in the form of a ſervant, John 17.24. Phil.2.7,9. & 3.21.

V. 3. every man that hath this hope] All that look for ſalvation by Chriſt, beſides the righteouſneſſe imputed by God, ſeek to be inherently holy.

in him] Or, on him. On Chriſt.

purifieth himſelf] Matth.5.8. Heb.12.14.

V. 4. Whoſoever committeth ſin] Good men muſt not flatter themſelves in their ſins, nor give way to their infirmities, as if they were no ſins; for they are breaches of Gods law.

tranſgreſſeth alſo the law] It condemns their opinion, who think, that ſuch as are freed from the curſe of the law by faith in Chriſt, are not ſubject to the command of it, 2 Pet.2.19. Jude verſ.14.

ſin is the tranſgreſſion of the law] For, where there is no law, there is no tranſgreſſion, Rom.4.15. & 5.13. And theſe two are convertible: for every tranſgreſſion is a ſin, and every ſin is a tranſgreſſion.

V. 5. He was manifeſted] Chriſt took our nature on him, 1 Tim.3.16. Chap.1.2.

to take away our ſins] The guilt of them, by his blood, chap.1.7. Rev.1.5. The filth of them, by his Spirit, 1 Cor.6.11.

and in him is no ſin] Who neither did ſin, nor had ſin, 2 Cor.5.21. Heb.7.26. and 4.15. We muſt not continue in ſin, becauſe Chriſt came to take ſin away, and had no ſin in himſelf. Or, for thoſe two reaſons, we muſt not deſpair of pardon of ſin.

V. 6. Whoſoever abideth in him] John 15.4,5.

ſinneth not] Doth not practiſeth ſin, as verſ.8,9. John 8.24. Maketh it not his trade. He ſinneth not out of malice, or, liveth not in a courſe of known ſin.

as he is righteous] Like him, as Lev.11.44. 1 Pet.1.16. Mat.5.48. not equal to him, as 1 Sam.2.2.

V. 8. He that committeth ſin] With plotting beforehand, and delight in it, Rom.13.14. and practiſing it, as verſ.6.

for his ſeed] The graces of the Holy Ghoſt, by whoſe power he was regenerate.

remaineth in him] Holineſſe, planted in him by God, keeps him from ſinful courſes, and, like good ſeed, makes him bring forth good fruit; whereas before, like ground not ſown, he brought forth nothing but the weeds of ſin.

cannot ſin] See verſ. 6.

V. 10. whoſoever doth not righteouſneſſe] Purity of life, and charity, are two ſure ſigns of a child of God.

V. 11. meſſage] Or, commandment.

from the beginning] See on Chap.2.7.

one another] Not our kindred onely, but others alſo, and that mutually.

V. 12. Not as Cain] Let us not do as Cain did: or, nor that we ſhould do as Cain.

of that wicked one] The devil, the firſt murderer, Chap.2.14. Joh.8.44.

and ſlew his brother] Gen.4.8.

becauſe his own works were evil, and his brothers righteous] Out of meer envy, and malice proceeding from it, Pſal.38.20.

V. 13. Marvel not, if the world hate you] Becauſe the ſame ſpirit of envy that was in Cain, and the ſame occaſions, are ſtill in the world, Gen.3.15. John 15.18,19.

V. 14. We know] We do not onely hope for it for hereafter, but know it now, Chap.5.13.

that we have paſſed] Already, and are in the ſtate of grace and life.

from death unto life] Out of the ſtate of nature, which leads to hell, into the ſtate of grace, which tends to heaven, John 5.24. Chap.4.7.

becauſe we love the brethren] This is not the cauſe of our paſſing from death to life; but the cauſe of our knowledg thereof, or the mark whereby we know it; as Luke 7.47.

V. 15. Whoſoever hateth his brother, is a murderer] For he ſtandeth guilty of tranſgreſſing the ſixth commandement, Matth.5.21.

no murderer hath eternal life] Gal.5.21. Rev.21.8.

V. 16. the love of God] The truth of it, or the force of it, Joh.15.13. Rom.5.8. Chap.4.9.

becauſe he laid down his life] Becauſe Chriſt dyed for us, Joh.10.15. He ſhewed love to us, in his incarnation; but moſt of all, in laying down his life willingly for us, John 10.17. He needed not to have done it.

for us] Whom he had no need of, nor no cauſe given to love; but much cauſe to hate, Rom.5.8,9.

V. 17. whoſo hath this worlds good] That is, things needful for preſerving life. So Mark 12.44. Luke 8.43. & 15.12. & 21.4.

his brother] His neighbour, eſpecially a believer, Gal. 6.10, whom he ought to relieve, becauſe they are brethren.

ſhutteth up his bowels] Sheweth, by not relieving him, that he is not at all moved with any pity of his wants, or compaſſion of him, Lam.2.12. Luke 1.78. Phillip.1.8. & 2.1. Col.3.12. 2 Cor. 7.15. Philem. verſ. 7,12. Iſa. 63.15. For pity doth, as it were, open the bowels, Gen. 43.20 1 Kings 3.16. Matth.9.36. Fraternal charity, ſhould come from maternal affection.

how dwelleth the love of God in him?] It cannot abide in him, let him brag of it never ſo much, Chap.4.20. James 2.15. The love of God, and of our neighbour, are inſeparable, Matth.22.38,39. Chap.4.21. & 5.1.

V. 18. My little children] See on Chap.2.1.

and in truth] Not giving to avoid the importunity of the poor, as Luke 18.4,5. but out of love to them, and pity of their wants. Or, in deed and in truth. Becauſe that is true charity, which is manifeſted by deeds.

V. 19. And hereby] Or, For hereby. See on Chap.2.2.

that we are of the truth] Sincere Chriſtians, not hypocrites. Or, profeſſours of the heavenly truth, and livers according to it, Joh. 18. 37. Or, the true children of God, ver. 10. Chap. 4. 4, 6. Therefore it followeth, before him.

ſhall aſſure our hearts] Gr. perſwade. It hath no aſſurance by nature, and needeth ſure ſignes to perſwade it, that we are ſincere, and in favour with him, Luke 1. 6.

before him] Before Chriſt with confidence, Chap. 4. 17. 2 Pet. 1. 10.

V. 20. if our heart condemn us] Though our life be ſo fair, that no man condemn us, nor our words or deeds bewray us; yet if our heart condemn us, either of a ſecret wicked courſe of life, or of want of charity, ver. 17. God will much more do it, Job 34 22. Pſal. 19. 12.

condemn us] Or, paſſe ſentence againſt us, according to the Greek etymologie.

God is greater then our heart] We muſt take notice that God is greater then our heart, Chap. 4. 4. and therefore will condemn us much more, Chap. 5. 9. Job 32. 21, 22. & 33. 12. For he is more powerful, Joh. 10. 29.

and knoweth all things] Gen. 1. 31. Job 28. 24. 2 Chron. 16. 9. Prov. 15. 11. Heb. 4. 13. And therefore knoweth our ſecret ſins, which we know not: and hath more cauſe, as well as power, to condemn us.

V. 21. if our heart condemn us not] Of hypocriſie, or want of charity; as ver. 20.

confidence] To pray freely to him, as v. 22.

V. 22. whatſoever we ask, &c.] If we love our brethren, we may be ſure God will hear us, and grant our requeſts, Mat. 7. 7, 8. & 21. 22. Mark 11. 24. Luke 11. 9, 10. Joh. 14. 13, 14. & 16. 23, 24. Otherwiſe we have cauſe to doubt of it.

dwelleth in him] Abideth joyned to him by faith, Ioh. 6. 56. Eph. 3. 17.

and he in him] By his Spirit, as followeth in this verſe. By the Spirit, is meant the gifts of the Spirit, Rom. 8. 10, 11.

CHAP. IV.

Verſ. 1. B*Elieve not every ſpirit*] Every doctrine propounded as received by inſpiration from Gods Spirit. Or, every teacher that ſaith, he hath ſuch a revelation, 1 Cor. 14. 26, 29, 32.

trie the ſpirits] Falſe teachers will boaſt of the Spirit, and therefore we muſt trie what ſpirit their doctrine cometh from; and that by the touch-ſtone of Gods word, with all diligence, Ioh. 5. 39. Acts 17. 11. 1 Theſſ. 5. 21. Revel. 2. 2. 1 Theſſ. 5. 21.

He doth not ſay, Is come into the fleſh, leſt any ſhould deny the perſonal union of both natures in Chriſt, or think his Godhead comprehended within the limits of his body: but, in the fleſh, Rom. 8. 3. 1 Tim. 3. 16.

V. 3. And every ſpirit] Or, But every ſpirit; as Chap. 3. 2.

that ſpirit antichriſt] See on Chap. 2. 18.

V. 4. ye are of God] Bred of God, as his children, Chap. 5. 1. Ioh. 1. 13. Iames 1. 18. 1 Pet. 1. 3, 23. Though there be ſo many ſeducers, yet ye are ſafe, as having diſcerned and overcome their allurements, by the wiſdom and power of God dwelling in you.

then he that is in the world] The Divel, John 12. 31. 1 Cor. 2. 12. Epheſ. 2. 2. and 6. 12.

V. 5. They are of the world] Wicked and unregenerate men, Ioh. 15. 19. & 17. 9.

therefore ſpeak they of the world, &c.] Becauſe they are of the world, they ſpeak ſutably, and are heard readily: for, being ſenſual themſelves, 1 Cor. 2. 14. and ſpeaking to ſuch as themſelves, of things pleaſing to them, as they have learned by their ſenſes here; men readily hearken to them, Ioh. 3. 31.

V. 6. We are of God] Thoſe falſe teachers, v. 1, 3, 5. are not ſent of God to preach his truth, as we are, Iohn 3. 31.

V. 7. is born of God] Chap. 3. 9. & 5. 1.

and knoweth God] Chap. 2. 3.

V. 8. God is love] He doth not call God Loving, but Love it ſelf: for love is eſſential to him, and cannot be parted from him.

knoweth not God] See on Chap. 3. 6.

V. 9. In this was manifeſted the love of God] In nothing more, then in giving Chriſt for us, Chap. 3. 16. Ioh. 3. 16. Rom. 8. 3, 32. Gal. 4. 4, 5.

his onely begotten ſon] And therefore moſt dear to him, Mat. 3. 17. Gen. 22. 2.

that we might live through him] Ioh. 3. 6. Under life, is contained all happineſſe.

V. 10. Herein is love] He loved us freely, doing good to us, and looking for no good from us: we cannot ſo love him, but muſt love him for his gifts, as well as for himſelf. Ours therefore is not worthy of the name of love, in compariſon of his, becauſe it cannot be every way ſo free. And the pure nature of love is more ſeen in Gods love to us, then in ours to him.

not that we loved God] So freely as he loved us. Or, firſt, as v. 9. Or, we were ſo far from loving him, as that we hated him, Rom. 5. 8, 10.

to be the propitiation for our ſins] See on Chap. 2. 2. His love appeared the more, in that he ſent his ſon, not onely to teach us the way to heaven, but alſo to dye for us.

V. 11. If God] Or, Seeing God. For he doth not doubt whether God loveth us or no, but infers from Gods love to us, that we ought to love others. See the like phraſe, 1 Pet. 4. 18.

ſo loved us] If he, being ſo great, ſo freely loved us, vile, wretched, unworthy and ungrateful perſons, as not onely to give his creatures to us, but alſo his Son to death for us, we ought to love others, that differ not ſo much from us, though they deſerve it not of us. See on v. 10. They may do us good hereafter, we cannot to God.

V. 12. No man hath ſeen God] I propound not God ſimply to be imitated in all things, becauſe he is inviſible, Iohn 1. 18. 1 Tim. 1. 17. Exod. 33. 10. but in his love to us, which hath been ſo fully manifeſted. Or, ye may more eaſily love your brother, whom ye can ſee, then God whom ye cannot ſee; as verſ. 20.

if we love one another] As we know we have a ſoul in us, by the working of it, though we ſee it not: ſo we know that God is in us, if his Spirit hath wrought love in us to his children.

his love is perfected in us] Chap. 2. 5. He makes us ſure that he loves us. Or, he makes us love him more fully: or, to know that our love to him is true, ver. 17. or, our love to him is more fully manifeſted, 2 Cor. 12. 9. Iam. 2. 22.

perfect love] Sincere, without hypocriſie; as Chap. 3.18,19. Or, full, wanting no degree, James 1.4.

caſteth out fear] He that truly loveth God, doth not forbear ſin for fear of hell onely, but rather out of love to God; as a loving wiſe forbeareth all diſloyal and undutiful carriage not for fear of death ſo much, as out of love to her husband, 2 Tim. 1.7. Or, Servile fear doth not exerciſe his work, while love doth exerciſe his; but ſometimes it may be of good uſe in a good man, when the fleſh would prevail. Or, perfect love in heaven caſteth out all fear of hell.

V. 19. becauſe he loved us firſt] Verſ.10. Not onely becauſe of his excellency, which is moſt worthy of love; but alſo becauſe he hath caſt his love upon us, and therefore is no way indebted to us for our love.

V. 5. who is he, &c.] Not that every one that believeth this, overcometh the world, but none elſe do it. See on Chap.4.2.

V. 6. that came by water and blood] That ſhed water and blood out of his ſide, John 19. 34, 35. Or, that obſerved the legal waſhings and ſacrifices. Or, that appointed two ſacraments, one in water, the other in wine, a type of his blood. Or, that waſheth away the filth of our ſins by his Spirit, and the guilt of them by his Blood. Of the firſt, the legal waſhings were a type: of the ſecond, the ſacrifices.

it is the Spirit that beareth witneſſe] By deſcending on Chriſt like a dove, Matth.3.16. Joh. 1. 32, 33. Or, by raiſing him from the dead, Rom.1.4. Or, by working miracles by him. Or, by aſſuring us of it in the word, and in our conſciences: for, the Spirit is of Gods privy counſel, John 14.26. & 15.26. & 16.13. 1 Cor.2.10,11.

the Spirit is truth] And therefore cannot bear falſe witneſſe of Chriſt to us, as being truth it ſelf.

V. 7. For there are three] The ſixth verſe may be in a parentheſis; and this verſe may give a reaſon of the end of the fifth verſe, that Chriſt is the Son of God: of which, not the Spirit alone, but the Father and the Son bear witneſſe alſo.

that bear record in heaven] Or, in heaven, that bear record; To wit, to us men on earth, that Chriſt is the Meſſias, or Son of God. The Father, John 5.32. & 8 18. by voyce, Matth. 3.17. The Son, by miracles, John 5.36. The Holy Ghoſt, by cloven tongues, Act.2.3,4,33.

theſe three are one] In eſſence, though they be three diſtinct perſons, John 10.30. and agree in their teſtimony concerning Chriſt.

V. 8. There are three that bear witneſſe in earth] Or, There are three in earth, that bear witneſſe.

the Spirit, &c.] See on ver.6. Some underſtand it of the Spirit which he ſent forth on the croſſe at his death, Matth. 27.50. which, with the water and bloud coming out of his ſide, ſhewed him to be true man.

theſe three agree in one] Or, are for one thing; or, are for that one thing: To wit, to teſtifie of Chriſt, as the heavenly witneſſes did, verſ.7.

V. 9. This is the witneſſe of God] Teſtified by the three heavenly and earthly witneſſes, ver.7,8. Of Chriſt, and of ſalvation by him, ver.11,12.

V. 10. The witneſſe] Or, That witneſſe, mentioned, verſ. 9, 11.

a lyer] Chap. 1. 10. He believeth that he doth, or at leaſt, that he can lye. He hath made him a lyer: To wit, in his heart; for he would not have doubted of the truth of his teſtimony, if he had not firſt ſuſpected the truth of God himſelf.

V. 11. And this is the record] Or, Even this is the record. So the particle is uſed, Mark 4.25. For the tenth verſe may be in a parentheſis, as not including the teſtimony, (which is recorded in this verſe) but ſhewing who have this teſtimony in them. See the like on ver.7.

this life is in his Son] The original of it is in Chriſt. We have it for his merits, and derived unto us from him by his Spirit, John 10.10.

V. 12. He that hath the Son] By faith dwelling in his heart, Epheſ. 3.17.

hath life] Is raiſed from death to life, Chap. 3. 14. and hath in him a principle of eternal life, John 3.36.

V. 13. Theſe things have I written] John 20.31. On the Name of the Son of God, Chap.3.23.

that ye may have eternal life] A right to it, and earneſt of it, here, and the thing it ſelf in heaven, in perpetual joy and happineſſe.

and that ye may believe] That ye may perſevere, encreaſe and grow ſtrong in faith.

V. 14. This is the confidence] This faith, ver.13. is the ground of our confidence in prayer. Or, we not onely believe, as verſ. 13. but alſo have confidence in prayer.

in him] In Chriſt. Or, concerning him.

he heareth us] And will give us what we ask, ver. 15. Chap. 3.21,22.

V. 15. We know that we have the petitions] That we ſhall have them granted, as ſurely as if we had the things already which we pray for. See on ver.14. John 14.13,14. & 16. 23, 24, 26. Gods hearing us, then, is granting our requeſts.

V. 16. his brother] Therefore he muſt pray for him, becauſe he is his brother.

a ſin which is not unto death] Which doth not neceſſarily bring damnation (though it deſerve it) as the ſin againſt the Holy Ghoſt doth, becauſe God will not give repentance to any that committeth that ſin, Heb.6.4,6.

he ſhall ask] Or, let him ask, Pardon for that ſinner.

life] Salvation, or deliverance from deſtruction, when his ſin is pardoned at the others requeſt, Job 42.8. which ſheweth that he deſerved hell.

for them] Not for one onely, but for many ſuch ſinners.

there is a ſin unto death] The ſin againſt the Holy Ghoſt, which is unpardonable, Matth.12.31,32. Heb.6.4,6.

I do not ſay that he ſhall pray for it] I do not adviſe him to pray for pardon for any that hath committed that ſin: or, I forbid him to do it.

V. 17. All unrighteouſneſſe is ſin] As Chap.3.4.

and there is] Or, but there is; as Chap.4.3. Or, yet there is; as Chap.2.1.

a ſin not unto death] Which may be repented, and forgiven. See on ver.16.

V. 18. is born of God] Chap.3.9.

ſinneth not] That ſin to death, ver. 16. Or, liveth not in a ſinful courſe; as Chap.3.6,9.

keepeth himſelf] From that ſin unpardonable.

that wicked one] The Devil, Matth. 6. 13. Chap. 2. 13, 14. & 3. 12.

toucheth him not] So as to bring him to that ſin, and to hell. Or, cannot do him the leaſt hurt, Job 2.5.

V. 19. We are of God] Chap.4.6.

the whole world lyeth in wickedneſſe] All men out of Chriſt, John 17.9,16. are altogether buried in ſin: or, lye in it, as in a deep dungeon, or a dead ſleep.

V. 20. And we know] Or, But we know; as verſ.17.

that the Son of God is come] See Chap.4.2.

and hath given us underſtanding] Jer.24.7.

him that is true] The true God, verſ.19. as followeth in this verſe, oppoſed to Idols, verſ.21. Or, Chriſt, ſpoken of before in this verſe.

even in his Son] Or, and in his Son. We are in the Father, and in the Son, Chap.2.24.

this is the true God] Chriſt is the true God, John 17.3. Tit. 2.13.

Tit. 2. 13. and 3. 4. Jude verſ. 25.

and eternal life] The authour of it, ver.11. Chap.1.2. Joh.6. 68, 69.

V. 21. Little children] See on Chap.2.1.

keep your ſelves from idols] From image-worſhip; for, idol and image ſignifie the ſame thing, but onely the one is a Greek word originally, and the other a Latine. This overthroweth Popiſh ſerving God in images, and adviſeth men to be careful to avoid not onely palpable idolatry, but all dealing with idols.

Amen] See on Matth.6.13. Jude verſ. 25.

ANNOTATIONS
On the ſecond Epiſtle of Saint JOHN.

The Argument.

THis is the onely Epiſtle in Scripture written to a Woman. And to one eminent, no doubt, in favour with God, and reſpect in the Church: wherein after ſalutation of her, and her children, he ſhews his joy in their Gracious carriage, warns them to take heed of deceivers, and concludes with a promiſe of a pious viſitation, and ſalutation from her Siſters Children.

CHAP. I.

Verſ. 1. THe elder] Some conceive that the Apoſtle calleth himſelf ſo in humility, to equal himſelf with ordinary paſtours, as Peter doth, 1 Pet.5.1. Others think John called himſelf ſo, in reſpect of his age. See on 1 John 2.1.

unto the elect lady] Some think her name was Elect. Others, that ſhe was ſo called, becauſe ſhe was a choice woman for grace. Others, becauſe the Apoſtle knew by the Spirit that ſhe was one of Gods elect, 1 Theſſ.1.4. She was a matron honoured for her wealth and liberality to the poor. Or, one that had ſome civil title of honour above others.

whom I love] Both mother and children.

in the truth] With a true and ſincere love: or, according as God in his Word hath appointed, which is called The Truth, John 17. 17. Or, in Chriſt, who is called The Truth, John 14. 6.

but alſo all the,&c. Such of them as lived in thoſe parts, and knew her piety. This ſheweth, it was no private indirect love which John bare to her, ariſing out of particular ends; but a religious love, common to all Saints.

V. 2. for the truths ſake which dwelleth in us] The ground of my love, is the ſame lively faith wrought in us by Gods Spirit.

and ſhall be with us for ever] Which grace, where it hath once taken root, is never rooted out again, 1 Pet.1.23,24,25.

V. 3. Grace be with you, mercy and peace] Paul uſeth the ſame ſalutation, 1 Tim.1.2. 2 Tim. 1.2. Tit.1.4. He wiſheth them Gods favour to their perſons, mercy to pardon their ſins, and peace of conſcience.

the Son of the Father] John 1.18. & 3.16.

in truth and love] Or, with truth and love. So that particle is uſed, Mark 1.23. & 5.2. He wiſheth them encreaſe of the knowledge of the truth, and of love one to another.

V. 4. I found] By experience, if at any time he converſed with them; or by relation of others, if he did not.

of thy children] Some of thy children.

walking in truth] Sincerely, or, as the truth of Gods Word preſcribes. See on verſ.1.

V. 5. I beſeech thee, Lady] He intreateth, where he might command, as Paul doth, Philem. verſ. 9,10. It may be he had ſome reſpect to the dignity of the Lady, to whom he wrote.

a new commandment] See on 1 John 2.7,8. I teach you no other doctrine then what ye received at firſt from the apoſtles, John 12.34.

that we love one another] John 13.34. & 15.12.

V. 6. This is love] Herein it conſiſts. Or, this is that love, mentioned verſ.5.

that we walk after his commandments] Then we love God and our brethren, when we walk after Gods commandments: that is, according to them, John 14.15,21,23. & 15.10. 1 Joh. 5.2,3. Rom. 8.1. Luſt, then, and ſparing offendours whom we ought to reprove or puniſh, is not love, becauſe it is contrary to Gods commandments. Or, love is it whereby we are enabled to keep his commandments, John 14.21. & 15. 9,10. Chap.2.23. & 5.2,3. Love muſt not be idle, but employed in doing good, according to Gods word.

this is the commandment] Of walking in the truth, verſ.4. or of love, verſ.5.

from the beginning] 1 John 2.7.

V. 7. For many deceivers] I have reaſon to urge you to conſtancy, becauſe of falſe teachers, who ſeek to ſeduce you, 1 Joh. 2.18,22. and 4. 3. Theſe are impoſtours or juglers, who can deceive quick-ſighted-men, if they be not very careful, Matth. 27. 63.

that Jeſus Chriſt is come in the fleſh] 1 John 4.3.

V. 8. that we loſe not the things] We Chriſtians, or we that taught you, if ye continue not in good wayes; for the reward is promiſed to ſuch as continue to the end, Matth.24.13. others loſe it, Gal. 3.4.

we have wrought] Or, gained. Some copies read, which ye have gained, but that ye receive, &c.

V. 9. Whoſoever tranſgreſſeth] Gods command of hearing Chriſt, Matth.3.17. Or, by apoſtacy forſaketh the truth in doctrine and life, contrary to verſ.4.

hath not God] To his father, nor his Spirit to guide him.

V. 10. And bring not this doctrine] Received from Chriſt, verſ. 9. The meaning is, If he bring a contrary doctrine: elſe we ſhould refuſe the ſociety of many private men, who are not able to teach at all; which is not here intended, Gal. 1. 8, 9.

receive him not into your houſe] Lodge not a falſe teacher; nor have no familiarity with him, leſt he ſeduce you; and that ye may ſhew your zeal for the truth, and actually reprove him.

God ſpeed] Gr. to rejoyce. That was the ordinary ſalutation of the Greeks, Acts 23.26. as Peace be to you, was of the Jewes, Luke 10.5. That is, ſhew him no countenance, nor give him any encouragement.

V. 11. is partaker of his evil deeds] Seemeth to allow of them, by his familiarity with him, and ſo may further him in ſeducing others, who would not regard the falſe teacher for himſelf.

V. 12. Having many things to write] He excuſeth the ſhortneſſe of his epiſtle, not by want of matter to write, but by the hope he had of ſeeing her ſhortly. For all things were not fit to be written; and a lively voyce affects more then a letter.

face to face] Gr. mouth to mouth. Without any letter or meſſenger coming between, Exod. 33.11. Num. 12. 8. 2 Cor. 12. 12. 3 John verſ. 14.

V. 13. The children of thy elect ſiſter greet thee] Verſ.1. Which were with John. So he ſendeth other ſalutations, 3 John verſ. 14. So doth Peter, 1 Pet.5.13. And Paul often, Rom. 16. 16, 21,23. 1 Cor.16.20. 2 Cor.13.12. Phil.4.22. Col.1.14. 2 Tim. 4.21. Tit.3.15. Philem. verſ.23,24. Heb.13.25.

ANNOT.

ANNOTATIONS
On the third Epiſtle of S. JOHN.

The Argument.

This Epiſtle is inſcribed to Gaius, to whom the Apoſtle firſt wiſheth all happineſſe, then commends him for his zeal to the Truth, and hoſpitality to the Brethren, adviſing him not to be diſcouraged by the proud and perverſe carriage of Diotrephes, but to follow the good example of Demetrius. Laſtly, he concludes with a reſolution to ſee him quickly, and confer with him lovingly of theſe things; and ſalutations from Gaius his friends with him, and to his friends with Gaius.

CHAP. I.

Verſ. 1. The elder] See on 2 John verſ. 1.

Gaius] Not to Gaius of Derbe, mentioned, Acts 20.4. nor of Macedonia, ſpoken of, Acts 19.29. but of Corinth, as is commonly thought, 1 Cor. 1. 14. Pauls hoſt, Rom.6.23.

in the truth] Or, truly. See on 2 John verſ.1.

V. 2. I wiſh] Or, pray.

above all things] Gr. of all things. Or, in all things. He wiſheth that Gaius may proſper in all perſons and things belonging to him.

that thou mayeſt proſper] Gr. go well in the way, Rom.1.10. Our life is the way to heaven, and John wiſheth Gaius a comfortable paſſage thither, 1 Cor.1*6*.2.

and be in health] In bodily health; for ſpiritual health followeth.

as thy ſoul proſpereth] By peace of conſcience, through faith in Chriſt, Rom.5.1,2.

V. 3. I rejoyced greatly] See 2 John verſ.4.

when the brethren came, and teſtified of the truth that is in thee] The brethren ſent by John about the publick affairs of the Church, and commended to the Church of Corinth, where Gaius lived, by Johns epiſtle, ver.9. refuſed by Diotrephes, ver. 10. entertained by Gaius, ver.5,6. and now returned to John, teſtified of Gaius his ſincerity in religion, (John 3.21.) and his kind entertainment of them, verſ. 6. So Paul doth, Phil. 4.10; 18. 2 Cor.9.1. Heb.6.10. Or it may be underſtood of any Chriſtians that came from thence.

even as thou walkeſt in the truth] In the true way ſet out in the Goſpel. See on 2 John verſ.4.

V. 4. then] Gr. then theſe joyes. Or, then of theſe things.

that my children] Converted by my miniſtery, 1 Cor. 4. 15. 1 Tim.1.2. Philem. verſ.10. Gal.4.19. Tit.1.4.

walk in the truth] See on verſ.3.

V. 5. thou doſt faithfully] As becometh a faithful Chriſtian. Or, like a good ſteward of worldly goods received from God, 1 Pet.4.10.

whatſoever thou doſt] In entertaining the Saints. It was, no doubt, a great comfort to Gaius, that the Spirit of God commends his charity by Johns pen, which Diotrephes and his followers diſliked.

to the brethren, and to ſtrangers] To thoſe poor Chriſtians that live by thee, and to others that come to ſojourn there a while, Iſa.58.6. Matth.10 40.& 25.35.Rom.12.13. Heb.13.2. 1 Pet.4. 9. Or, to the brethren, yea, to ſtrangers; as this particle is uſed, Matth.26.*6*0. Thy kindneſſe ſtayes not at thy neighbour-Chriſtians, but extends it ſelf to ſtrangers alſo. Or, by and, is meant eſpecially, as Matth.13.41. Mark 16.7. and elſewhere, where a ſpecial is put after his general. Thy kindneſſe to all Chriſtians, ſheweth thy faithfulneſſe to God, but eſpecially that which is ſhewed to ſuch as came to preach the Goſpel, or were driven from their own home for the profeſſion of it, verſ. 7. For ſuch being unknown there, and not able to recompenſe kindneſſe received; this kind of charity is highly praiſed by God, Deut. 10.18,19. Luke 14.14. Or, to the brethren, even to the ſtrangers: To wit, ſent by John. See on verſ.3. So the particle is uſed, Mark 18.25.

V. 6. Which have born witneſſe] See on verſ.3.

of thy charity] To others. Or, of thy kind entertainment of them.

before the Church] In the aſſembly where John was.

whom if thou bring forward on their journey] It may be they might be ſome godly Chriſtians coming from beyond Corinth to John for publick advice, from the Churches, whom Gaius had kindly uſed; and now he adviſeth him to do ſo in their return. Or, if it be meant of thoſe that had returned to John, being ſent from him before, he perſwadeth Gaius to uſe them kindly when he ſhall have occaſion to ſend them again. Or it may be underſtood of others ſuch like, verſ. 5. whom John would have Gaius to go along withal ſome part of their way, as Chriſtians uſed to do to their brethren that were ſtrangers, eſpecially to miniſters, Acts 15.3. & 20.38. & 21.5. 1 Cor.1*6*.11. 2 Cor.1.1*6*. Tit. 3. 13. either becauſe they were ignorant of the way, or the way might be unſafe, or they ſubject to perſecution there; ſo that rich men, and great ones, ſuch as Gaius ſeems to be, might be a great ſecurity to them, by going or ſending company with them. Or it might be done to honour and comfort thoſe ſtrangers, or that themſelves might get as mch good by their ſociety as might be. Others underſtand it of providing things needful for their journey, till they might come to other Chriſtians, who might take further care of them.

after a godly ſort] Gr. worthy of God. According to Gods command. Or, worthy of the profeſſion of Gods truth, as Chriſtians ought to do, to credite their religion. Or, honourably, as the miniſters and children of God ought to be received. Or, as they would receive God, Matth.10.40.

thou ſhalt do well] Or, thou ſhalt do them a good turn.

V. 7. Becauſe, &c.] Becauſe their wants come on them for their love to the true religion, they are worthy to be relieved by the true profeſſours of it.

for his Names ſake] God's, verſ.6. To make his Name known, by preaching it, or ſuffering for it; as on ver.5.

taking nothing of the Gentiles] They took no reward of the Gentiles for preaching to them, Matth.10.7,8. that men might more willingly receive the Goſpel, 1 Cor.9.18,19. 2 Cor. 11. 9, 12. & 12. 14. Or, being perſecuted for their religion, they left all their goods to their perſecutours, and fled for their lives.

V. 8. We therefore] We Chriſtians, yea, we Jewiſh Chriſtians eſpecially, that they may preach to the Gentiles, to bring them in to joyn with us.

that we might be fellow-helpers] Gr. fellow-workmen. By ſupplying them with means, that they may preach the truth, or ſuffer for it the more willingly. This is a great encouragement to help others, that we are accounted to have a part in the work, though it be a Prophets, and ſhall have a part in the reward, Matth. 10. 41. Alſo it may intimate, that as they were relieved by theſe now, ſo theſe may by them in the work another time, 2 Cor.8.14.

to the truth] Or, for the truth, or, in the truth.

V. 9. I wrote] To recommend theſe brethren to the Churches which they were to paſſe by.

unto the Church] Of Corinth, where Gaius was an eminent member.

but Diotrephes] But I fear, or, I hear, Diotrephes hath refuſed to receive them.

who loveth to have the preeminence] It ſeemeth he was paſtour there, and would not let ſtrange miniſters be received, leſt he ſhould be ſlighted.

receiveth us not] Acknowledgeth not our authority, by receiving our epiſtle. Or, receiveth not me, and ſuch as I am; as verſ. 10.

V. 10. I will remember] Gr. I will make mention of. I will ſpeak of them publickly there, to his diſgrace.

prating] Gr. talking fooliſhly, or vainly.

againſt us] Againſt me John; as v. 9. See on v.12. Or, me, and them I ſent.

and not content therewith] As if he were not ſatisfied with diſgracing my perſon, he refuſeth, and harſhly uſeth, ſuch as are ſent by me.

receive the brethren] He ſhould have entertained them kindly, becauſe he profeſſeth himſelf a brother to them, as being one of the ſame religion. See on v. 5.

forbiddeth them that would] This ſheweth great malice againſt them. He will not let any receive them.

and caſteth them out of the Church] Refuſeth communion with theſe ſtrangers, or thoſe that received them, Joh. 9.34. No doubt this was a great diſcouragement to Gaius, from his paſtour; yet he obeys the Apoſtle, who had more power over him, v.5.

V. 11. Follow not] Gr. Imitate not. for they that follow, go the ſame way. And, to walk after Gods precepts, or according to them, in Scripture-phraſe is all one.

that which is evil, but that which is good] Not the evil example of Diotrephes, v.9,10. but the good example of Demetrius, v.12. Rom.12.9. Or, imitate not Diotrephes in any of his evil ways; but follow him nevertheleſs in any thing that is good, Matth.23.3.

hath not ſeen God] By the eyes of faith. Hath not known him to his good, 1 Joh. 4. 8. For God cannot be ſeen, Joh.1.18. 1 Joh.4.20.

V. 12. Demetrius hath good report of all men] Of moſt men, yea, of heathen alſo, 1 Tim. 3. 7. becauſe they got good by him, or heard him much commended by others. Or, of all the brethren that live in thoſe parts, and would have of all others, if they knew him.

and of the truth it ſelf] From his actions, Joh.3. 21. Prov. 31.31. Or, of God, who is the truth it ſelf, Joh.5. 6. Or, he is to be commended indeed, not for the ſpeech of the people onely, which ſometimes proves untrue.

yea, and we alſo bear record] I John do it, as v.9. Or, we have found him kind to us, and do acknowledg it, as v.6. This alſo might comfort Demetrius againſt Diotrephes, who took a contrary courſe. See on v.5.

that our record is true] That we uſe not to flatter, but to ſpeak truly, John 21.24.

V. 13. I have many things to write, &c.] See on 2 Joh.v.12.

V.14. But I truſt, &c.] See on 2 Joh.v.12.

face to face] Gr. mouth to mouth. See on 2 Joh.v.12.

peace be to thee] Joh.20.19,21,26. See on 2 Joh. v.10.

our friends] The faithful Chriſtians with me here, who love both me and you.

ſalute thee] Wiſh thee all happineſs.

greet the friends] Our Chriſtian brethren which are with you; ſo called, becauſe of their great affection they bear one to another, Tit.3.15. Natural brethren may fail one another, before Chriſtian friends will, Prov.18.24.

ANNOTATIONS

On the Epiſtle of St. JUDE.

The ARGUMENT.

THis Apoſtle ſerviving many of his Colleagues, as it ſeems, Verſe 17. writes this general Epiſtle, wherein after he hath wiſhed much good to all Gods people, he exhorts them to maintain Truth of Doctrine, with purity of life and converſation, leſt they ſhould be ſeduced by falſe Teachers, whoſe manners he deſcribes, and threatens damnation to them. Afterwards, he exhorts them to remember the Apoſtles doctrine, though they were dead; to build up themſelves in grace, to ſtick cloſe to God, to ſeek to ſave others, and concludes all, with the praiſe of God.

CHAP. I.

Verſ.1. J*Vde*] The name is prepoſed, not ſubſcribed, as the manner then was, Act. 23. 26. Of this name was Jacobs fourth ſon, from whom the Jews had their name. We read alſo of Judas of Galilee, an author of ſedition, Acts 5.37. Judas called Barſabas, Acts 15. 22. Judas Iſcariot, Matth.10.4. And this Judas mentioned alſo, Luke 6.16. He is called Thaddeus, Matth. 10. 3. He hath alſo the name of Lebbeus, Math. Matth. 10. 3. His fathers name was Alpheus, who is called the father of Iames his brother, Matth.10.3. His mothers name ſeems to be Mary, Matth.27.56. compared with Matth.13.55.

He might have written himſelf, An Apoſtle, as Paul doth, Rom.1.1. 1 Cor.1.1. 2 Cor.1. 1. and Peter, 1 Pet.1.1. which was a more glorious title: or, a kinſman of Jeſus Chriſt, as indeed he was, Mat. 13.55. but in humility he chuſeth the title of a ſervant. So doth his brother, James 1.1.

of Jeſus Chriſt] See on Mat. 1.1.

He mentioneth his brother, firſt, becauſe he was famous among the Apoſtles, gave ſentence in the Council of Ieruſalem, Acts 15. 13, 19. abode there much, Acts 21.18. Gal.1.19. Secondly, to ſhew that he was no other Iude but the Apoſtle, Luke 6.16. Act.1.13. Thirdly, to diſtinguiſh him from Iudas Iſcariot, who betrayed Chriſt, and was alſo an apoſtle; and from the other Iudes mentioned before.

to them &c.] A general Epiſtle, not directed to any particular Church, as that to the Romanes, and many other.

that are ſanctified] Regenerate, and made holy by faith in Chriſt, Acts 26.18.

by God] Gr. in God.

the Father] This work uſeth to be attributed to the holy Ghoſt, Ioh.3.5. Tit.3.5. yet the Father hath an hand in it alſo, Ioh.17.17. 1 Pet.1.3.

preſerved in Chriſt Jeſus] As v. 11. in the way. Kept true members of Ieſus Chriſt. Or, preſerved to Jeſus Chriſt. Kept by God the Father, Ioh.6.39,40. & 10.29. to be preſented to Chriſt blameleſs at the day of judgment, Epheſ. 5. 27. 2 Cor. 11. 2.

called] To the heavenly marriage-feaſt, Mat.22.2,&c. and that externally, by the preaching of the Goſpel: for internal calling is all one with ſanctification mentioned before.

V. 2. Mercy unto you] Compaſſion, in regard of your infirmities and miſeries, which ye are ſubject to in this world, as well as wicked men.

peace] A ſenſible perſwaſion of Gods love, or peace of conſcience: for they were at peace with God before.

love] He prayeth God to ſhew forth the fruits of his love, in doing them good ſpiritually and corporally. We may be merciful to enemies, and pity them in their miſeries. We may be at peace with ſtrangers, and do them no harm. But to thoſe we love, we do all the good we can.

be multiplyed] In the abundant fruits of each of them.

V. 3. Beloved] His love moved him to write this Epiſtle, and ſhould move them to heed it. Good miniſters love their people.

when I gave all diligence] Or, giving all diligence. Not as if the apoſtle were one while diligent, and another while negligent; but he waited always for a fit occaſion to write to them. The ſame Greek word ſignifieth haſte: for diligent men make haſte to diſpatch their work.

to write unto you] He was ſo carefull of them, that when he could not be preſent to teach them, he wrote to them. There was alſo an hand of God in it, as in all the other Epiſtles of the apoſtles, that ſuch in after-ages as could not hear them preach, might enjoy the benefit of their doctrine to the worlds end.

of the common ſalvation] That ſalvation in which all the Elect have a joynt part, Epheſ. 4.4. Tit.1.4.

it was needful] For him as an apoſtle, 1 Cor.9.16. for them, becauſe falſe teachers roſe up among them, who might ſeduce them, v.4. Acts 20.26,27,28,29.

for the faith] His care to ſave their ſouls,made him write to them to keep the faith, which is the way to ſalvation. Faith is not here taken for faithfulneſs, as Deut. 32.20. nor for credulity, as James 2.19. nor for confidence, as John 3.16. nor for faith of Miracles, as Mat.17.20. but for the doctrine of the Goſpel, which is to be believed. So hope is taken for the thing hoped for, Rom.8.24. Col.1.5.

to the ſaints] Who live in the Church of God here on earth, v.1. Rom.1.7.

V. 4. crept in unawares] Beſide your expectation ; as ſouldiers that march by a town,and ſuddenly return and take it: or, as pioners, who enter by a mine while the ſouldiers defend the walls. Or, not ſent by God, but taking the miniſtery upon them of their own heads, Joh.10.1. 2 Tim.3.6.

of old ordained] That no man might be offended at their ſudden coming in, he ſheweth that God knew it before, and did ordain them to deſtruction.

to this condemnation] To hell,as the angels that fell,v.6.and the Sodomites, v.7. Or, to this judgment, 1 Cor. 11.29,31,32. To be permitted to fall into theſe ſins, that bring damnation.

ungodly men] Such as worſhip not God aright ; or, have no fear of God at all, Gen.20.11. Pſal.30.1. Rom. 3.18.

turning the grace of our God into laciviouſneſſe] The grace of God inviteth us to ſobriety, Tit.2.11,12., but they turn it to a contrary end.

denying the onely Lord God,and our Lord Jeſus Chriſt] Denying Chriſt to be God, who was their maſter by profeſſion (for they profeſſed themſelves to be of his houſhold) and their Lord by publike authority over them. Or, by their deeds denying Chriſt.

V. 5. I will therefore put you in remembrance] As miniſters are Gods remembrancers, Iſa.62. 6. ſo they are the peoples alſo : the former,by praying ; the later, by preaching.

though ye once knew this] He conceieveth, that, being Chriſtians, they were not ignorant of Gods judgements recorded in the Scriptures, 2 Pet. 1.12.

how that, &c.] Three examples are given : one in the Church, in this verſe ; another in heaven, v.6. another in the world, v.7. ſhewing that ſinners can no where eſcape Gods judgements.

the Lord] The deliverance of the people came from God, Exod.20.2.

having ſaved] Some read, Though ye knew this, how that the Lord, having once ſaved. This is added, to make the judgement the greater,becauſe it came not on them while they were ſlaves in Egypt,but after they were ſet at libety. To this purpoſe the angels firſt condition is mentioned,v.6.

the people] Of Iſrael. He ſpeaketh to them, as men converſant in Scripture,who knew what people he meant, though he did not name them.

Out of the land of Egypt] From captivity and miſery,Exod.1.

afterward] Gr. the ſecond time : To wit, after he had once delivered them, he deſtroyed them. Or, they were once in a ſort loſt in Egypt, and now the ſecond time in the wilderneſs, Heb.11.19.

V. 6. their firſt eſtate] Gr. their beginning : The eſtate they were firſt made in. God made them good and happy, as he did men ; but they, by their fall, made themſelves wicked and unhappy. Or, principailty : their glorious condition.

but left] Negligence is here attributed to the angels, in that they were not careful to keep ſo glorious a condition. They are not ſaid to be put out of heaven, but not to keep it, and to leave it ; to wit, by ſinning, 2 Pet.2. 4.

their own habitation] Gr. their proper habitation : Which God had prepared for them,as fit for ſuch glorious creatures.

He hath reſerved in everlaſting chains] As priſoners are kept in priſon bound till the aſſizes come ; ſo are they kept by Gods power,that they cannot eſcape. This ſheweth, their pains are not yet at greateſt. It ſheweth alſo, that they are unavoidable.

under darkneſſe] He hath kept them as it were in a dark dungeon, to be judged afterwards.

unto the judgement of the great day] In the end of the world, when all the world ſhall be judged ; as verſ.14,15. Acts 17.31. 2 Tim.1.18. 1 Cor.6.3.

V. 7. Sodom and Gomorrah] Fruitful places, and pleaſant, but very ſinful, Gen.13.10,13. & 18.20.

and the cities about them] Adma and Zeboim, Hoſ.11.8.

in like manner] Being corrupted by their bad example.

ſtrange fleſh] Gr. other fleſh: Mans fleſh, which they ſhould not have uſed in that kinde. Or, divers fleſh ; not created by God to that end,Rom.1.26, 27. This ſin hath the name of Sodomy from them.

are ſet forth for an example] Not to imitate, but to inſtruct others to take heed of their ſins, leſt they periſh like them, Revel.18.4. 1 Cor.10.6,11. Are ſent to hell, as an example of Gods eternal judgement on groſs ſinners. Or, being deſtroyed by fire from heaven, lye ſtill in the duſt, as a type of eternal deſtruction in hell ; ſo that thoſe cities, being drowned in the dead ſea, can be built no more, 2 Pet.2.6.

V. 8. Likewiſe alſo] They were like the Sodomites in uncleanneſſe, v. 7. like the angels that fell, in deſpiſing dominion, v. 6. like the Iſraelites who murmured againſt Moſes and Aaron, in ſpeaking evil of dignities, v. 5. No ſin is recorded in Scripture, but ſome practiſe it in after-times.

theſe filthy dreamers] They were ſo given to wantonneſſe, that they not onely practiſed it being awake, but alſo dreamed of it, and defiled themſelves in their ſleep. Or, dreamers, becauſe they vented their own dreams and fancies inſtead of Gods truth, Jer.23.25. to 28. 32.

defile the fleſh] Make their bodies abominable before God and men, as ſwine make themſelves filthy by wallowing in the mire, Gen.49.4. Levit.20.12,13,14. 1 Cor.6.18.

deſpiſe] Gr. depoſe. Or, abrogate. To wit, in their hearts ; for they live as if there were no rulers over them, Pſal. 14. 1. They do as it were reject them, or put them off the throne, Luke 10 16. John 12. 48.

dominion] Not the governours onely, as ſome do, for their weakneſſes, and abuſe of their power ; but the government it ſelf : they would have no authority to be in the world.

ſpeak evil of] Gr. blaſpheme. They hurt their fame by reproaches and ſlanders.

dignities] Magiſtrates, who were more honourable then others.

V. 9. Yet] Though theſe be thus bold to rail upon magiſtrates, yet the arch-angel would not rail on the devil, though he were greater then they, and devils far worſe then wicked magiſtrates ; and though he were greater then the devil, and they leſſe then the magiſtrates whom they revile.

Michael] Jude had this hiſtory either from ſome canonical book loſt,as ſome think ; or, as others, from ſome hiſtory, not cannonical ; for ſuch are cited in Scripture ſometimes: or, by tradition, which was in uſe before the Scripture was written : or, by inſpiration. No doubt it was true, becauſe Gods Spirit here owneth it.

the arch-angel] Some conceive him to be Chriſt : others, to be a principall angel, Dan.10.13.

when contending with the devil he diſputed] That is, he uſed might in deeds, as well as reaſon in words. Or, he diſputed earneſtly.

about the body of Moſes] Some underſtand it figuratively, of that contention about the deliverance of the people from captivity, Zech. 3. 2. becauſe there the devil, and the words following, are found. Others take it literally, that when God is ſaid to bury Moſes his body, Deut.34.6. he employed the arch-angel Michael to do it, that no man might know where it was laid ; but Satan reſiſted him, that ſo the people might know where it was, and worſhip it in after-times ; or, that Moſes might not be ſo honourably buried ; or, that his body might lye above ground, out of the land of Canaan, to be abuſed by the enemies of Gods people.

bring againſt him] Or, add : to wit, to Satans words, who, as it ſeemeth, ſpared no ill language.

railing accuſation] Gr. judgement of blaſphemy.

rebuke thee] Stop thy foul mouth : or,put thee to ſilence,as Mark 1.25. Luke 4.35. & 23.40.

V. 10. Speak evil of thoſe things which they know not] Ignorance ſhould keep them from cenſuring,eſpecially ſuch perſons as are above them, or ſuch things as are above their reach. But they are impudent, and ſpeak evil of the greateſt perſons on earth, and the greateſt myſteries of religion.

what they know naturally] They live not according to natural principles,but drown them by bad life, Rom. 1. 21. 1 Tim. 1. 7. Or, they know nothing, but what cometh within the compaſſe of their ſenſes, and follow ſenſual objects to their deſtruction.

as bruit-beaſts] By natural light and experience, which things the bruit-beaſts in part know.

in thoſe things] Or, by thoſe things. So, in the holy Ghoſt, v. 20. that is, by the holy Ghoſt.

they corrupt themſelves] Gr. they are corrupted. Such things they corrupt themſelves] Gr. they are corrupted. Such things they without choiſe abuſe, to ſatiſfie their ſenſuality, 2 Pet. 2.12.

V. 11. They have gone in the way] So the Scripture uſeth to aggravate ſinners evil courſes, by comparing them with groſs wicked mens ways ſet out in Scripture to their perpetual diſgrace, 1 Kings 16. 26,31.

of Cain] They perſecute Gods ſervants for their goodneſſe, as he did his brother Abel, 1 Joh. 3.12.

ran greedily] Gr. were poured out. They made haſte to ſin for gain, as water runneth apace out of a bottle. Or, they loſt their ſouls for gain, as water ſpilt on the ground is loſt, 2 Sam. 14.14.

the errour] Gain led them out of the right way.

of Balaam] Who would have curſed Gods people, and gave ill counſel againſt them, for mony, Numb. 31.16.

periſhed] Were utterly loſt in this ſinful courſe, without hope of amendment. For they were not yet in hell, v. 12.

in the gain-ſaying] Oppoſing magiſtrates, v. 8.

of Core] Others joyned with him, but he was the ringleader, Numb. 16.1.

V. 12. Theſe are, &c.] The apoſtle, to ſhame theſe ſinners, bringeth ſimilitudes from feaſts, where ſpots are bred on mens apparel, from the skie in the clouds, from the earth in the trees, from the ſea in the waves, from the heaven in the planets.

ſpots] Such as pollute mens garments in feaſts, ariſing out of fat or liquor falling on them. Others take it to be an alluſion to ſpots on the body, which diſgrace it. Others, to the ſpots on cattel, that made them unfit for peace-offerings. The ſenſe is, that they were a blemiſh to their feſtival meetings.

in your feaſts of charity] Made for the poor, as Luk. 14.12,13. Or, for others of the ſame religion with us, 1 Cor. 11.33,34.

when they feaſt with you] They came without bidding, thruſt themſelves in, and defiled the tables with gluttony and drunkenneſſe, evil doctrine, wanton words, geſtures, looks.

feeding themſelves without fear] Impudent perſons, not fearing to offend God by intemperance, not regarding what men might ſay of them therefore, Luke 18.4.

clouds they are without water] Promiſing rain to the husbandman, but giving none: ſo theſe made ſhew of great learning and piety, whereby they might do good to others; but were empty of both, and deceived mens expectations.

carried about of windes] Unſtable, and comming to nothing in the end, Eph. 4.14.

trees whoſe fruit withereth] Gr. autum-trees: Such as put out in autumn, when they ſhould give fruit.

unfruitful] Becauſe blowing ſo late, the fruit cannot ripen.

twice dead] Having neither fruit nor leaves. Or, firſt loſing their fruit, and then dying themſelves, as trees blowing ſo late uſe to do: ſo theſe apoſtata's were firſt dead by nature, born in ſin, Eph. 1.1,2. Secondly, having made a ſhew of ſpiritual life, by profeſſing the true religion, they loſt that alſo, by falling into errours and vices. Or, twice dead: that is, altogether or certainly dead, as Pſal. 62.11. Job. 33. 14. ſo theſe were ſure to go to hell, v. 4.

plucked up by the roots] Paſt all hope of ſpringing up again. It is a bad condition for a tree, to bloſſom, and yet bear no fruit: it is worſe to die, and have no hope of ever bearing any fruit hereafter: worſt of all, to be plucked up by the roots; then it is good for nothing but the fire. Such was the condition of theſe falſe teachers.

V 13. raging waves of the ſea] Gr. wilde. For the waves roar like wilde beaſts in the wood. Hereby is ſignified, men given to extream luſts, or paſſion, or pride, triumphing and inſulting over others, as one wave in the ſea throweth down another 2 Pet. 2.18.

Foming out their own ſhame] By their vain words revealing their internal corruptions, as the raging ſea caſteth out dirt and mire, Iſa. 57.20. Phil. 3. 19. The Greek word is ſhames: that which doth moſt of all ſhame them.

wandring ſtars] Not conſtant, like the fixed ſtars, but paſſing from one courſe of religion or life to another, as planets remove: or rather, as blazing ſtars, which have no regular motion, and quickly vaniſh away, notwithſtanding their glorious ſhew for a time.

the blackneſſe of darkneſſe] The moſt black darkneſſe. So hell is deſcribed, Mat. 8.12. & 22.13.

for ever] In hell.

V. 14. And Enoch alſo] Or, For even Enoch. So the one particle is tranſlated, Mat. 13. 21. and the other, Mark 3. 19. He foretold of their deſtruction, and therefore it is certain. Whence this hiſtory was taken, ſee in the like, on v. 9.

the ſeventh from Adam] Including Adam for one. See the like, Mat. 1.17. This is mentioned to ſhew the antiquity of this prophecy: for he lived ſome while with Adam. The worlds end is certain, and the day of the general judgement; for it hath been foretold wel nigh from the beginning of the world.

propheſied of theſe] Of ſuch men as theſe, that ſhould trouble the Church in future times. Or, to theſe: that is, to ſuch as theſe in his time, whoſe deſtruction he foretold. So will theſe be deſtroyed now alſo.

behold] This ſheweth the certainty and gloriouſneſſe of his coming, Iſa. 7.14. Hab. 1.5.

the Lord cometh] He will as ſurely come, as if he were now coming, Hoſ. 10. 7. Revel. 14. 8. & 18. 2. That manner of curſe which the apoſtle uſeth in that ſolemn curſe, Maranatha, 1 Cor. 16. 22. ſeemeth to be taken from the firſt words of this prophecie.

with ten thouſand] Divers millions, Dan. 7.10. Rev. 5.11.

of his Saints] Holy Angels to attend him, Matth. 25. 31,32. 2 Theſſ. 1.8. Or, holy men riſen again, as Mat. 19. 28. 1 Cor. 6.2. 2 Theſſ. 1.10.

V. 15. To execute judgment upon all] To adjudge all wicked men, eſpecially ſuch as are particularly mentioned in the words following, to eternal miſery, Mat. 25.32,34,41,46.

to convince] To prove them not to be ſuch as they pretend, and to make them acknowledg the juſtice of their condemnation, Luke 19.22.

of all their ungodly deeds] Theſe falſe teachers did much hurt by bad life, as well as by evil words, and muſt anſwer for both.

ungodly committed] Ungodlily: after a wicked manner, without all fear of God, v. 4.

of all their hard ſpeeches] Not to be born. Bold and impudent ones, 1 Sam. 2. 3. Pſal. 31. 18. and 75. 5. and 94. 4. Mal. 3.13.

which ungodly ſinners] Irreligious men, who wilfully live in the breach of Gods commandements.

have ſpoken him] Againſt God himſelf, Pſal. 73.9. & 78.19. Mal. 3.13.

V. 16. Theſe are murmurers] Privy whiſperers, Mat. 20.11.

complainers] Out of diſcontent and envy, not content with their own condition, and finding fault with other mens, Mat. 20.12. 1 Cor. 10.10. James 5.9.

walking after their own luſts] After the corrupt motions of the fleſh, Rom. 8.1. 2 Pet. 3.3.

great ſwelling words] Vainglorious words, riſing like bubbles in the water.

mens perſons] Or, faces. Their external ſhew of wealth or greatneſſe, Prov. 24.23. Acts 10.34. Gal. 2.6.

becauſe of advantage] They reſpected not godly wiſe men, but flattered great men in the world, to raiſe or enrich themſelves, v. 11. and made the profeſſion of piety a matter of gain, 1 Tim. 6.5.

V. 17. But ye] Ye live amongſt theſe falſe teachers, take heed therefore that ye be not ſeduced by them.

beloved, remember the words] Charity teacheth us to judge, that the ſins of Gods ſervants come, out of forgetfulneſs, not out of evil purpoſes. So men judge of the errours of them they love.

of the apoſtles] That is, by the apoſtles. Not which others ſpake of them, but which they ſpake. It ſeemeth Jude was alive, when moſt of the apoſtles were dead, and therefore he putteth them in minde of their ſayings, that they might not die with them.

V. 18. mockers] A great part of the miſeries of Gods people come from mockers, 2 Pet. 3.3. Gen. 21.9. Gal. 4.29.

in the laſt time] 1 Tim. 4.1. 2 Tim 3.1.

who ſhould walk after, &c.] See on v. 16.

their own ungodly luſts] Gr. luſts of wickedneſſe. Moſt wicked ones. See the like phraſe, Dan. 10,11,19. For the matter, ſee on v. 15,16. They ſhould live well who deride others, leſt they lay themſelves open to contempt: but lightly, they themſelves are evil and ſhameleſſe.

V. 19. who ſeperate] Themſelves, as Heb. 10. 25. Or, others, as 2 Pet. 2.1,2. Acts 20.30. 2 Tim. 3.6.

ſenſual] Men that follow their ſenſes, and loſe heaven for purſuing worldly objects, as v. 10. Or, natural, or animal. Men having nothing in them more then beaſts, but a reaſonable ſoul, remaining yet in their natural condition, and not new born, although they make much ſhew of godlineſſe. So the word is uſed, 1 Cor. 2. 14. and ſo the oppoſition following ſeemeth to interpret it.

having not the ſpirit] And therefore have no holineſs in them, nor nothing to do with Chriſt, Rom. 8.9.

V. 20. But ye, beloved] They deſtroy the building, by ſeparating the parts one from another; but do ye build it up, as the wiſe woman doth, Prov. 14.1.

building up your ſelves] It is not enough that ye have laid a right foundation, but ye muſt confirm and advance your ſelves daily in your ſpiritual eſtate, on the foundation of faith in Chriſt, as a building aſcends. For Chriſtian men are not dead, but living ſtones, and help to build themſelves, 1 Pet.2.5. It may be underſtood of encreaſing their own graces ſeverally, as 2 Pet.3.18. or, of edifying one another, as verſ.22,23. Heb.10. 25. Acts 9.31.

on your moſt holy faith] Verſ. 3. Faith either of credulity, or of confidence, ought to have holineſſe attending on it.

praying in the Holy Ghoſt] That is, by the holy Ghoſt. See on verſ.10. Mark 12.36. & 13.11. Not putting up ſuch faint petitions as fleſh and blood ſuggeſteth, but ſuch fervent ones as Gods Spirit putteth into us, Rom.8.26.

V. 21. Keep your ſelves] See on verſ.20. 1 Tim.5.22.

in the love of God] Whereby ye love God. Perſevere conſtantly to love him, and do it daily more and more. Or, whereby God loveth you; by doing nothing that may make him take away the ſenſe of his favour from you, or cauſe him to frown upon you.

looking for the mercy of our Lord,&c.] Looking for that merciful ſentence of Chriſt at the day of judgement, whereby he will beſtow eternal life on us, that have deſerved eternal miſery, Matth.25.34.

V. 22. And of,&c.] It is not ſufficient to look after our own ſalvation, but we muſt promote other mens alſo.

making a difference] Not dealing ſo ſeverely with them, as with others that are more obſtinate.

V. 23. And others] Hardened ones; or, perverſe, or ſeducers themſelves.

ſave] That is, endeavour to ſave. It is not in our power to ſave, but it is often attributed to the inſtruments, to perſwade them to diligence, Rom.11.14. 1 Cor.7.16. & 9.22. 1 Tim.4. 15. James 5.20.

with fear] Gr. in fear, or, by fear; as verſ. 10,20. Out of fear of their ſudden perdition, if ye ſhould not preſently help them. Or, by terrifying them with Gods judgments, unleſſe they repent. Or, by ſharp cenſures, 1 Cor.5.5.

pulling them] Gr. ſnatching. That is, pulling haſtily, and with violence. As the mother, apprehending the danger of the child fallen into the fire, more then it ſelf doth, and fearing the death of it, though ſhe be tender-hearted, yet pulleth it out with violence, and, it may be, paineth ſome member, to ſave the life of the child: ſo do ye haſtily, with a kind of harſhneſſe, ſeek to ſave obſtinate ſinners, Tit.1.13.

out of the fire] Out of that danger, which is as great, as if they were in the fire. Terrifying them with the threats of hell fire.

hating even the garment] Not onely the pollution it ſelf, but even the garment wherein it is.

ſpotted by the fleſh] As cleanly perſons cannot endure ſpots of greaſe or blood on their garments, verſ.12. Or, as under the law men might not touch a menſtruous cloth, or as God in the law would not accept a ſpotted peace-offering: ſo do ye not onely hate their ſinful luſts, verſ.8. but alſo come not in their company. Or, avoid not onely groſſe ſins, but alſo the very ſigns and tokens of them, 1 Theſſ.5.22.

V. 24. Now unto him,&c.] The apoſtle, after inſcription, ver. 1. beginneth his epiſtle with prayer, verſ. 2. Now he endeth it with the praiſe of God. So God muſt be the alpha and omega of our actions.

that is able to keep you] He commendeth Gods power, but with reference to our good, ſhewing that we have cauſe to praiſe him for it, and thank him for the good we get by it.

from falling] A metaphor from runners, 1 Cor.9.24. wherein men haſting to the goal, and not obſerving the ruggedneſſe of the way, may fall. God onely can keep us from falling. The beſt have had their ſlips, when they truſted to their own ſtrength, Matth.*26.*35,70.

and to preſent you faultleſſe] Gr. to make you ſtand. At the day of judgment, to make you ſtand, without guilt or filth of ſin.

before the preſence of his glory with exceeding joy] Being free from ſin, to look upon Chriſt ſitting on his glorious throne without any fear, yea with great cheerfulneſſe, when wicked men cannot endure the ſight of his majeſty, Luke 23. 30. Revel. 6. 13.

V. 25. To the onely wiſe God] Rom.16.27. 1 Tim.1.17. Some men were wiſe, as Solomon; but God is onely wiſe: Firſt, becauſe he onely is wiſe originally: the wiſdome of the wiſeſt men is from him, Gen.41.39. Pſal.119.98. Gods wiſdome is from himſelf. Secondly, becauſe he onely is inſeparably wiſe: he ſheweth wiſdome in all his actions, 1 Cor.1.25. men do not ſo, Eccleſ.10.1. Thirdly, he is inſuperably wiſe: he overcometh the wiſdome of the moſt ſubtil men, 1 Cor. 1. 19. but no creature can go beyond him.

our Saviour] Tit.2.13. & 3.4. Gods wiſdom is uſed for our good and ſalvation: and every believer hath as much right to ſalvation by Chriſt, as the Apoſtles.

be glory] Let him be honourably accounted of by all, eſpecially by thoſe that ſhall be ſaved by him.

majeſty] Heb.1.3. & 8.1. 2 Pet.1.16. Let him be royally attended by all, as the ſupreme Governour of all.

dominion] Or, ſtrength. Let all acknowledge him able to do what he wil, and to over-rule all creatures, Pſal.115.3.

power] Or, authority. Let them confeſſe his juſt authority over all.

now] At this very preſent. We that now live, are ſubject to him. The Kings that had power over us, when they dye have no more; but God liveth ſtill, and hath as much power over us, as he had over Adam, when he had new made him.

ever] Gr. to all the ages, of the world. His dominion will laſt to the end; therefore is he called Eternal, 1 Tim. 1. 17. which in the Greek there, is, The King of ages, to diſtinguiſh him from all other kings, who rule but in one age; as David, Acts 13. 36.

CHAP. I.

Verſ. 1. T*He Revelation*] The former books, for the moſt part, are either hiſtorical, or doctrinall: this is, for the main matter of it, ſymbolical and prophetical, containing predictions of many things to come, both in the Church, and without it, in the world, ſymbolically repreſented. It is called, a Revelation, becauſe it was revealed by God; and the things therein contained are ſuch, as no wiſdome of man, without ſome ſuch ſpecial revelation, could have manifeſted or foreſeen. So 2 Cor. 12.1,7. Matth. 11.25. & 16. 17. 1 Cor. 2.9,10.

of Jeſus Chriſt] Becauſe John had it from him, as Paul his revelations, 2 Cor. 12.1,2. and his Goſpel, Gal. 1.1,2.

God gave unto him] That is, revealed, or committed unto him, by him to be revealed and communicated to others. God the Father revealeth and committeth theſe things to Chriſt, as man, (for he had them of himſelf, as God) that the great account God hath of him may thereby appear, John 5.20.

to ſhew] Not to keep them to himſelf, but to acquaint his Church and children, even in ſucceeding ages with them; as 1 Pet. 1.12.

his ſervants] The faithful: not his ſervants at large, as all men, yea all the creatures, are, Pſal. 119.91. & 148.8. but his ſervants in ſpecial manner, his houſhold-ſervants, Gal. 6. 10. Eph. 2.19. For their uſe and behoof it is, that theſe things are revealed by God to Chriſt, and by Chriſt to thoſe that are, yet in a more ſpecial manner, as John is hereafter ſtyled, and Paul elſewhere, Rom. 1. 1. 2 Cor. 1.1. Gods ſervants, the Apoſtles and the Prophets, Amos 3.7. See verſ. 4.

muſt ſhortly come to paſſe] So that this book, for the main matter of it, is not any hiſtory or relation of things paſt, but a prediction of things to come: which were to commence ſhortly after, in regard of their firſt beginning, verſ. 3. but to run on, after they were once begun, in a conſtant and continued courſe to the world end.

by his angel] Chriſt employeth an angel; called his angel, to ſhew his power, as well in heaven as on earth, Matth. 28.18. Epheſ. 1.21.

unto his ſervant John] The angel is ſent to John, for the credit of his miniſtery, Chap. 17.1. & 21.9. & 22. 8. So Dan. 8, 16. & 9.21,22. Zech. 1.9,14,19. This John was the Apoſtle; for no other would take that name in writing Scripture while he lived, without ſome note of diſtinction; neither do we know any other John infallible, beſide the apoſtle: and it is recorded in the Eccleſiaſtical hiſtory, that this John was baniſhed into Patmos in the reign of Domitian. As he was the beloved Apoſtle, ſo Chriſt honoured him above others, in writing Scripture. He appeareth to be an Evangeliſt, in his goſpel: an Apoſtle, in his epiſtles; a Prophet, in this revelation.

V. 2. of the word of God] By the word of God, ſome underſtand here this book of the revelation, and the things therein contained. Others, by the word of God, underſtand the Goſpel of John: by the teſtimony of Chriſt, his epiſtles, which begin therewith, 1 John 1.1. by the things which he ſaw, his revelation. In this ſenſe, it ſheweth the author of this book, and one ground to believe him, Becauſe of his former faithfulneſſe. It may be underſtood of his preaching Gods word; as verſ. 11.

V. 3. and they] A change of the number, Pſal. 127.5.

keep] Reſerve, or obſerve; keep in heart and in life, as Luke 11.28. James 1.25. John 13.12. That not onely read or hear theſe things, but alſo remember them, believe them, obſerve how they are fulfilled, and live according to the directions given in this book, chap. 22.14,18,19.

the time] Gr. ſeaſon, or ſet time: as Matth. 16.4. & 21. 41. Luke 1. 20.

at hand] When theſe things ſhall begin to put in execution for a great part of them is not yet fulfilled, verſ. 1.

V. 4. John to the] This ſheweth, that the whole revelation was an epiſtle to theſe Churches. So doth the concluſion, chap. 22. 21.

ſeven Churches] Named, verſ. 11. and preſented with ſeveral epiſtles, chap. 2. & 3. truſted with this treaſure of the propheſies following, but not made types of particular Churches in after-times, though there may be ſome likeneſſe between them, and the enſuing Churches in divers things. The order of revelation is here obſervable: God revealeth to Chriſt, Chriſt by his angel to John, John to thoſe Churches, but for the uſe of the whole Church, verſ. 1.

in Aſia] The leſſe: for Hieruſalem in likelihood was now deſtroyed; and theſe were the moſt famous Churches, fitteſt to keep theſe myſteries, and to communicate them to poſterity.

grace and peace] Rom. 1.7.

from him which is] Exod. 3.14. From God the Father, who is eternal. That which is common to the three perſons, is here attributed to the Father, who is the firſt in order, and from whom the other two perſons have their perſonal exiſtence.

the ſeven Spirits] The Holy Ghoſt, who, in regard of his manifold graces, wrought in theſe ſeven Churches as plentifully, as if a particular ſpirit had been in each Church. Seven alſo being a note of perfection; as Chap. 5.6. It cannot be underſtood of angels, becauſe John prayeth for grace from him whom here he ſo deſcribeth.

before his throne] Not to ſhew an inequality, but becauſe God the Father, in the works of illumination, ſanctification, and comfort, worketh in his ſervants by his Spirit. See Chap. 4.5.

V. 5. the faithful witneſſe] Who fully and truly revealed Gods will to us, by himſelf and his apoſtles, Heb. 1. 2. and ſo ſhewed himſelf to be the Prophet foretold, Deut. 17. 15, 18. Acts 3.21,22.

firſt begotten of the dead] Or, firſt brought forth, 1 Cor. 15.20. Col. 1.18. He that aroſe firſt from the dead to go to heaven: for Enoch and Elias dyed not: others raiſed up, lived here, and dyed after; neither are their bodies yet in heaven. He ſaith, Begotten, becauſe reſurrection reſtoreth that bodily life which we had by generation before. See Matth. 19.28.

Prince of the Kings of the earth] Who is above them all, and from whom they all hold, Chap. 17.14. & 19.16. 1 Tim. 6.14, 15. Matth. 28.18. Prov. 8.15,16. Rom. 9.5.

loved us] The ſole ground of all the enſuing benefits. So Gal. 2.20. Epheſ. 2.4,5,6. & 5.2.

and waſhed us] 1 Cor. 6.11. Heb. 9.14. 1 John 1.7. This was the greateſt demonſtration of his love, The ſhedding of his blood for the cleanſing of us from our ſins, Chap. 5. 9. and 7. 14.

V. 6. and hath made us] As he redeemed us by his Blood, ſo he hath regenerated us by his Spirit, 1 Cor. 6.11. 1 John 5. 6. and made us Kings, to rule over the devil, the world, and the fleſh, Chap. 20.6. and Prieſts, to offer up to God the perſonal ſacrifice of our ſelves, Rom. 12.1. the verbal ſacrifice of praiſe, and real of alms, Heb. 13.15,16.

kings and Prieſts] Chap. 5.10. 1 Pet. 2.5,9. and his Father] Or, even his Father, 1 Cor. 15. 24. Gr. his own Father. Chriſt is the natural Son of God.

dominion] Or, might, or ſtrength; as 1 Cor. 15. 24. Give unto Chriſt the glory of his dominion, or power, Pſal. 29.1,2, 3, &c.

V. 7. Behold] As if he beheld him with the eye of faith already appearing. So of Abraham, John 8.56. and of Moſes, Heb. 11.27.

with clouds] Dan. 7.13. Matth. 24.30.

every eye] That is, all men: for the eye is the inſtrument of ſight.

and they alſo] Or, even they alſo, as verſ. 6.

which pierced him] Zech. 12.10. John 19.34,37. That had any hand in the crucifying of him, Pſal. 22.16.

kindreds] Gr. tribes. Alluding to the diviſion of the land of Canaan, Joſh. 13.7. Pſal. 78.55.

becauſe of him] Becauſe they ſaw him, whom they crucified, to be their Judge; or him whom they cauſed to be crucified. Or, before him; as 1 Cor. 6.6. Some of all nations ſhall weep at his coming.

even ſo. Amen] A double affirmation, for certainty; the one Greek, the other Hebrew, as chap. 22.20.

V. 8. I am Alpha] Chap. 21. 6. and 22. 13. Iſa. 41. 4. and 44.16. It ſeemeth here to be ſpoken of Chriſt. Compare it with ver. 11,13. Chap. 11.12,13. The phraſe is taken from the Greek letters, whereof alpha is the firſt, and omega the laſt. The ſenſe is, I was before all creatures, and ſhall abide alwayes, though all creatures ſhould periſh. Or, I am he from whom all creatures had their beginning, and to whom they are referred, as their uttermoſt end, Chap. 4. 11. *Prov.*16.4. Rom. 11. 36.

which is] See verſ. 4. what was there aſcribed to the Father, is here given to the Son, to ſhew the coeternity of the Son with the Father.

the Almighty] Able to do all things, Job [illegible] or having power and authority over all. See verſ. 5,6. Pſal. 103.19.

V. 9. brother and companion] He commendeth himſelf, and this his employment, to them, from that fellowſhip he had with them in troubles here, and was to have with them in glory hereafter, 1 Pet. 5.1,9. So Phil. 1.5,6,7. Heb. 10.34.

kingdome] As well of grace here, as of glory hereafter, Rom. 5. 21.

patience] Patient expectation of Chriſts coming, 1 Theſſ. 1.3. 2 Theſſ. 3.5.

Patmos] In the Egean ſea, or Archipelago, among the iſles called Sporades: a deſert place, Plin. lib. 4. cap. 12.

for the word of God] Not to preach it there, but for preaching it before, in Epheſus, and other places. Or, as others, for Chriſts ſake, who is called The Word, John 1.1. 1 John 1.1. See on verſ. 2.

V. 10. in the Spirit] In a ſpiritual rapture and extaſie, Ezek. 3.12. Acts 10.10. & 22.17. 2 Cor. 12.2,3. By the Spirit of God taken off from the ſenſe and regard of outward things, that I might wholly attend the viſions enſuing.

on the Lords day] The day on which our Saviour roſe again, the firſt day of the week, on which the Church conſtantly met for the publick ſervice of God. The time and place are mentioned, to confirm the truth of the hiſtory: and the day, to adde more honour to that day, which is here called The Lords day, as The Lords table, 1 Cor. 10.21. and the Lords ſupper, 1 Cor. 11.20.

behind me a great voyce] This great voyce called John to attention; and the rather, becauſe it came behind him, unexſpected.

Philadelphia] A city of Lydia, as ſome think; or, as others, of Myſia, or Eolia, having the name from Ptolomeus Philadelphus.

Laodicea] A city of Caria, neer to the city of the Coloſſians, Col. 4.16.

V. 12. the voyce] Him from whom the voyce came; or, to take further notice of the voyce it ſelf, Exod. 20. 18. Deut. 4. 12.

golden candleſticks] The Churches, which are the light of the world, Matth. 5.14,16. Phil. 2. 15,16. They are compared to gold, becauſe they excell other ſocieties, as much as gold doth other metals.

like unto the Son of man] Or, a ſon of man, (as like a ſon of the gods, Dan. 3.25.) that is, like a man, Dan. 7. 13. Whether it were Chriſt in his humane nature, or the angel mentioned, verſ. 1. repreſenting Chriſt, or ſome other form, it is uncertain.

in the midſt of the throne, and round about the throne] Two ſtanding juſt againſt the midſt of the throne, and one at each corner. Or elſe their bodies were underneath the throne, and their heads appeared without: or, as ſome read it; Between the throne, and thoſe things that were about the throne. And then the order is this: God the Father ſitting on the throne; next, the Lamb, Chap. 5. 6, 7. then, the Spirit of God, like lamps: then, the ſea of the Scriptures: then, the four beaſts or wights: after that, the four and twenty elders: laſtly, the angels, compaſſing them in; Chap. 5. 11. This was the majeſtical viſion that John now ſaw.

four beaſts] Or, living wights. Theſe repreſent the miniſters of the Goſpel, comprehended as it were in the four evangeliſts, Chap.5.8,10.

full of eyes before and behinde] To ſhew the vigilant care of the paſtour, Acts 20.26,28. Or, his looking forward to God ſitting on the throne, and backward to his people, Hab. 2. 1, 2.

V. 7. And the firſt beaſt, &c.] Or, living wight. Under thoſe repreſentations, are ſet out the eminent gifts of the miniſters of the new Teſtament. Some are like lions for courage, 2 Sam. 17.10. Others, like oxen, for labour, Pſal.144.14. Others, like men, for prudence in government, Job 35. 11. Prov. 30. 2. Others, like eagels, for deep inſight into divine myſteries, Job 39. 28, 29.

V. 8. ſix wings] To ſhew how ready Gods miniſters ought to be to help every man committed to their charge: for the wings are juſt ſo many as the elders. See Iſa.6. 2.

full of eyes within] As before, to look toward God, and behinde toward their people; ſo within to look to themſelves, Acts 20. 28. 1 Tim. 4. 16. Or, full of heavenly knowledg, and ſpiritual grace; Matth. 13.52.

reſt not day and night, ſaying] Gr. have no reſt, &c. They continually praiſe God, and ſet out the trinity of perſons in the Godhead, and the ſupream authority, unity of eſſence, omnipotency and eternity of God.

Holy] Iſa.6.3.

which was] Chap. 1.4.

V. 9. give glory] Acknowledg that glory and honour that is in God, Pſal.29.1,2.

V. 10. fall down before him] As unworthy to ſit in his preſence, Pſal.95.6. & 99. 5.

and worſhip him] Do as it were kiſs his feet. The word originally is taken from dogs, that couch down when the maſter cometh in, and lick his feet. They ſhew the loweſt ſignes of humility to God. See Chap.3.9.

caſt their crowns] Not that they ſlight their glory conferred on them by God; but, whatſoever honour they have, they confeſs they had it from God, and are content to lay it down at his feet, and deveſt themſelves of it, to do honour to him; John 3. 30. 2 Sam. 6. 21, 22. A real Amen to the words of the miniſters, v.8. Chap. 5. 13.

V. 11. to receive glory, and honour, and power] Chap.5.12. To receive the praiſe of thy power.

for thou haſt] The people muſt praiſe God underſtandingly, and give a reaſon why they do it.

for thy pleaſure] As they were made by thee, ſo to do thy will, and to bring glory to thy Name, Prov. 16. 4. Rom. 11. 36. Or, by thy will they are; as Chap.12.11. that is, by thee alone all things are preſerved, or kept in being, and were created; therefore all glory belongeth to thee, 1 Chron. 29. 11, 12, 14.

CHAP. V.

Verſ. 1. IN the right hand of him] Gr. at his right hand: Neer unto him, ſo as none might lay hand on it, and meddle with it, without his leave. Here it is manifeſt, that God appeared unto John in the form of a man. Or, the book is in his right hand, to ſhew, that none can know what is written in it, without his leave: Deut. 29. 29. Acts 1. 7.

him that ſat] Of whom, ſee Chap. 4. 2.

a book] An hiſtory of things concerning the Church of God till Chriſts ſecond coming, as appeareth at the opening of the ſeals.

written within and without] Gr. on the backſide. The matter was ſo copious, that the inſide of the book could not hold it; Ezek. 2. 10. A phraſe taken from the manner of writing in rolls of parchment or paper; which, when the matter was ſo large as it could not be all written on the one ſide, they were fain ſometime to write on the backſide the reſidue. Some think, the things preſent were written on the one ſide, and the things to come on the other. Or, written within, and on the back ſide ſealed, &c. So that the matter was written within, and the ſeals wherewith it was ſealed up, affixed on the outſide; to ſhew, that none could look into it, or by humane wiſedom come to know what was contained in it: 1 Cor. 2. 9. 11. See Iſa. 29. 11. Jer. 22. 11. Dan. 12. 2.

with ſeven ſeals] It was divided into ſeven parts, and every part had a ſeal; as appeareth by the opening of each ſeal.

V. 2. a ſtrong angel] It may be the angel mentioned, Chap. 1. 1. whom Chriſt appointed to reveal theſe things to John. He is ſaid to be ſtrong, that he might ſpeak ſo loud, that all men might hear him.

Who is, &c.] This ſheweth the great deſire the angels have to ſearch into thoſe things which concern the Church, 1 Pet. 1. 12.

Who is worthy] A free eſſay offered to all, but great worth required in him that ſhould attempt it. The like ſpeeches are uſed, Jer. 49. 19. Matth. 14. 45. 2 Cor. 2. 16.

V. 3. no man in heaven, &c.] That is, no man at all; for all men are in one of theſe places, v. 13. Phil. 2. 10. The angel taketh their not anſwering, or not appearing, for an acknowledgment of their inability, or indignity, or both. So Iſa. 41. 28, 29.

to look thereon] Or, therein. For John looked on it, v. 1. The ſenſe is: No man was judged worthy to know or publiſh theſe great myſteries.

V. 4. I wept much] John thought them to be weighty, and therefore grieveth much that they may not be made known.

V. 5. one of the elders] One of the elders is employed to comfort John. Mean perſons ſometimes are uſed for the benefit and ſupport of greater, Acts 18. 26. So an angel is ſent to ſtrengthen Chriſt, Gen. 49. 9.

the lion of the tribe of Judah] Chriſt, the Meſſias, the powerful King of the Church, Luke 22. 43.

the Root of David] One of the ſeed of David, Matth. 1. 1. Rom. 1. 3. Not the root from whence David ſprang, but a branch that ſprang from David, as from a root, Iſa. 11. 1. Acts 13. 23. Chap. 22. 16. and yet from whom, as from a root, or a branch that both hath a principal of life in it, and a power to convey the ſame alſo to others, life and health ſpiritual accrue alſo to David; Matth. 22. 43.

hath prevailed] Is able to do it; both to dive themſelves into it, and the myſteries contained in it, and to make them known to others; John 5. 20. But ſpoken, as of one that hath attained to do that which many have in vain ſtrived to attain. Gr. overcome.

V. 6. in the midſt of the throne] Or, within the compaſs of it; between the throne and the four wights. See notes on Chap. 4. 6. Chriſt ſtandeth between God and us, as a mediator, 1 Tim. 2. 5.

a lamb] Willingly ſubmitting himſelf to God the Father, to be a ſacrifice for us, Joh. 1. 29. 1 Pet. 1. 19.

As it had been ſlain] By ſome reſemblance of his wounds, or the ſcar of ſome deadly wound; as Joh. 20. 25, 27. This ſignifieth perpetual interceſſion for us, by the vertue of his death, Rom. 8. 34. Heb. 9. 12, 25. & 10. 24.

having ſeven horns, and ſeven eyes] Protecting and guiding his Church, by the power and wiſedom of his Spirit, ſhewed it in the gifts given to his ſervants on earth. Seven, a number of perfection. Horns ſignifie power, Dan. 7. 24. eyes, knowledg or wiſdom, Iſa. 35. 5. Both joyned together, argue a fulneſſe and perfection of power, Matth. 28. 18. and wiſdom in Chriſt, Col. 2. 3, 9. So that we have here a lively repreſentation of the threefold office of Chriſt. His ſacerdotal, or prieſtly, in the lamb as ſlain: his royal or princely, in the horns; his prophetical office, in the eyes.

ſent out] To deſcry what is done, enterpriſed, or intended in any part of the world, that is or may be advantagious for, or prejudicial to the good and ſafety of his Church; Prov. 15. 3. 2 Chron. 16. 9. Zech. 4. 10.

V. 7. took the book] To unſeal it, and publiſh the contents of it; Chap. 6. 1.

V. 8. when he had taken the book] The worthineſſe of the Lamb to take the book, and hope of publiſhing it, is the occaſion of the following ſong.

the four beaſts] Or, living wights; as Chap. 4. 6. Firſt, the miniſters and people of God, who have a ſhare in the benefits following, praiſe Chriſt their Saviour: then the Angels, who ſhall enjoy their ſociety for ever, v. 11. laſtly, all creatures, which ſhall be freed from vanity alſo, Rom. 8. 20. 21. v. 13. In the end, the miniſters, as befitteth them, confirm the ſong of the angels and creatures with a verbal Amen, and the people with a real one, v. 14.

fell down before the Lamb] Worſhipped him, as God. See verſ. 10.

harps] Theſe inſtruments, and their ſong, ſhew their cheerful thankfulneſſe. So Chap. 15. 2, 3. An alluſion to the ſolemn ſervice of God in the ancient Church; 1 Chron. 25. 3, 6, 7. Pſal. 98. 5.

golden vials] An alluſion to the cenſers or perfuming pots uſed in the tabernacle and temple, Num. 4. 14. 1 Kings 7. 50. Said to be of gold, ſuch as thoſe were that belonged to the alter of incenſe, called the golden altar, Chap. 8. 2. 1 King. 7. 50. Heb. 9. 4. for the other, belonging to the burnt-offerings, were of braſſe, Num. 16. 39. as the altar alſo it ſelf was, Exod. 27. 2. 2 Chron. 4. 1.

full of odours] Containing matter of atonement and gracious acceptance; as Exod. 30. 2.—10. Num. 16. 46, 48. not of wrath and indignation, as thoſe, Chap. 8. 5. & 15. 7. See Chap. 8. 4. Or, of incenſe: The prayers of Gods people, which are ſweet to him, as incenſe is to us. an alluſion to the incenſe offered on the golden altar, Exod. 30. 1, 3. Pſal. 141. 2. Mal. 1 11. Rev. 1. 3.

of ſaints] This ſheweth, that the living wights and elders repreſent the miniſters and people worſhipping God here on earth, their ſpiritual employment being to offer up unto God prayers, Heb. 13. 15.

V. 9. A new ſong] Made an occaſion of a new benefit; Pſal. 33. 3. & 40. 3. & 96. 1. & 98. 1.

for thou waſt ſlain] We have reaſon to account thee worthy to do it, becauſe thou haſt ſhed thy Blood to redeem us and prefer us; 1 Pet. 1. 18, 19.

redeemed us] It appeareth that thoſe four living wights do not repreſent the angels, as thoſe, Ezek. 1. 5. but men redeemed by the Blood of Chriſt, 2 Pet. 1. 18, 19. Acts 20. 28.

out of every kindred] No nation, ſex, ſort of men, ſtate or condition, being excluded from ſalvation purchaſed by Chriſt; 2 Cor. 12. 13. Gal. 3. 28. Col. 3. 11. Chap. 7. 9.

V. 10. kings and prieſts] 1 Pet. 2. 9. See notes on Chap. 1. 6.

we ſhall reign on earth] Over our ſpiritual enemies, Satan, the world, and our own luſts, even in this world, while we live here; Chap. 12. 11. Rom. 16. 20. 1 John 5. 4. Tit. 2. 12. Or, it may ſignifie the proſperous times of the Church under Chriſtian kings and emperours; Dan. 7. 27. Pſal. 37. 11. Matth. 5. 5. Hence it appeareth alſo, that the living Wights are miniſters, and the elders of the people, in the viſible Church here on earth.

V. 11. round about the throne] God is attended by millions of angels, as kings are by many nobles and attendants, Dan. 7. 10.

and the beaſts] Or, living wights; as before. The angels compaſſe Gods miniſters about alſo, and his people, to protect them, Pſal. 34. 7. & 91. 11, 12. Chap. 4. 6.

ten thouſand times ten thouſand] Dan. 7. 10.

V. 12. to receive power] To have all honour and praiſe given to him, as to the mightieſt, wiſeſt, &c. as Chap. 4. 11. & 7. 12.

V. 13. And every creature] A catholike confeſſion of Chriſts divine nature and power. The unreaſonable and ſenſleſſe creatures are brought in as perſons praiſing him; which they ought to do, if they could; as Pſal. 148. 3. and in ſome ſort do it, by their courſe conſtantly continued, wherein he hath ſetled them, their ſerviceableneſſe to himſelf, and to thoſe that be his, Pſal. 19. 1, 2, 3, 4. & 119. 90, 91. & 104. 2—18. & 148. 8. and withal rejoycing in their hopeful expectation of delivery from that vanity which they are now ſubject unto, Rom. 8. 21.

and unto the Lamb] The ſaints ſpeak unto Chriſt directly: Thou art worthy, v. 9. for they had a part in redemption, and things revealed. But the angels and others ſpeak of him, as of one worthy to be praiſed for doing this for others: Worthy is the Lamb, v. 12. and, Unto the Lamb, v. 13.

V. 14. four beaſts] Or, living wights. It became the miniſters firſt, and in expreſſe words, to give conſent to this heavenly and earthly muſick.

fell down] Thus they really, by ſilent, but pregnant ſignes, ſhew their conſent. So Chap. 4. 10. They fell down once before, v. 8. but it ſeemeth they roſe again, when they had done and finiſhed their ſong, v. 9, 10.

CHAP. VI.

The first ſeal.

Verſ. 1. ONe of the ſeals] The firſt; as Matth. 28. 1. for the ſecond ſeal is opened, v. 3.

as the noiſe of thunder] To ſtrike with the greater admiration, and to procure attention. So Chap. 14. 2. & 19. 6.

one of the four beaſts] Or, living wights; as Chap. 4. 6, 7. See v. 3. To wit, that like a lion, Chap. 4. 7.

V. 2. a white horſe] An horſe, becauſe the horſe is a warlike creature, Prov. 21. 31. white, in ſigne of triumph: for the Romanes, when they rid in triumph, had white horſes to ride on, or to draw their chariots. So great ones alſo on white beaſts, Judg. 5. 10.

he that ſat on him] Chriſt, of whom, Pſal. 45. 4. Chap. 19. 11.

had a bow] Chriſt had power to kill his enemies, as well afar off, as neer at hand, either with the peſtilence, or otherwayes, Pſal. 91. 1, 5. Others underſtand it of the preaching of the Goſpel, whereby Chriſt maketh his enemies to ſtoop to him, Pſal. 45. 5.

a crown was given to him] In token of victory, 1 Cor. 9. 24. 2 Tim. 25.

conquering] He had begun to conquer already, and ſhould conquer yet further. See the like phraſe, Gen. 26. 13.

The ſecond ſeal.

V. 3. the ſecond beaſt] Or, living wight, Chap. 4. 7. That like an ox or a calf. The ſecond miniſter. See Chap. 4. 6.

Come, and ſee] Though we may not dive into Gods ſecret judgements without leave; yet may we freely ſo do, when we are called thereunto.

V. 4. horſe that was red] In token of war, which aboundeth commonly with fire and bloodſhed, Iſa. 9. 5. & 63. 1, 3.

from the earth] From the Romane Empire, not from the Church; for it is called heaven in this book. Or, from the whole inhabited and known world.

kill one another] By wars; which the Romane emperours did, and the people under them. God ſendeth this judgement on the world, for their refuſing of the Goſpel, and their abuſing, and wronging of thoſe that preached and profeſſed it.

a great word For the war was to be great, and ſtretched far. So Iſa. 27. 1.

The third ſeal.

V. 5. third beaſt] Or, living wight. That like a man, Chap. 4. 7. See notes on v. 3.

a black horſe] A note of famine, which maketh mens faces black, Lam. 4. 7, 8.

a pair of balances] Or, a beam; to wit, of a balance, with ſcales hanging at either end, to weigh corn in, like ſpices. This argueth a great dearth; for corn ſhould not then be meaſured out by the buſhel, or like meaſure, as it uſed to be; but ſold as by weight. So bread uſed to be weighed in times of ſcarcity, Levit. 26. 26. Ezek. 4. 16. Of ſuch a famine, read, Acts 11. 28. Howbeit, ſome make this an emblem of juſtice, which is wont to be ſo deciphered, as weighing out and diſpoſing things according to due and exact proportion, and to intimate a ſevere execution of juſtice; the blackneſs of the horſe being a ſigne of ſeverity; which they ſuppoſe to have been fulfilled under Alexander Severus, a man in that kinde exceeding ſtrict. See Lampridius, in his life.

V. 6. a voice in the midſt of the four beaſts] Chriſts voice Chap, 5. 6.

a meaſure] Gr. a chœnix. The word ſignifieth, a meaſure, containing one wine-quart, and the twelfth part of a quart. It was the uſual allowance in bread of a ſlave for one day.

for a peny] The Romane denarius, the ſame with the Greek drachma: the fourth part of the Hebrew ſhekel was about ſeven pence, or ſeven pence half peny, of our money. And it ſeemeth to have been the wages of an hireling, or day-labourer, Mat. 20. 9. and a common ſouldiers daily pay. It muſt needs go hard with him, when all his wages muſt go for bread.

and three meaſures of barley] Being the courſer grain. See 2 King. 7. 1.

ſee that thou hurt not the oyl and the wine] Or, in oyl and wine ſee that thou deal not unjuſtly, or, do no wrong; v. 5. Some think, Chriſt taketh care here to have ſome proviſion left for his Church. Others, becauſe there is a ſcarcity of things neceſſary, as corn, and ſome things left for comfort, as oil and wine; do conceive, that the poor were to periſh now by the famine, and the rich reſerved for the peſtilence following, ver. 8. Or, the words may contain a warning to thoſe that dealt in theſe commodities, to be exactly juſt.

The fourth ſeal.

V. 7. fourth beaſt] Or, living wight. That like an eagle, Chap. 4. 7. See notes on v. 3.

V. 8. a pale horſe] Becauſe death maketh men pale.

hell] Or, the grave. Though the bodies of theſe wicked men went to the grave, for contemning and abuſing the Goſpel; ſo it is not unlikely that their ſouls alſo went to hell.

unto them] Or, to him: that is, death.

fourth part of the earth] It went over all the earth, as the reſt did; but killed onely the fourth part of men, where it came.

with ſword, &c.] Theſe often go together, Ezek. 14. 21. Jer. 14. 12. Theſe all followed the invaſion of the Romane empire by the Goths, Huns and Vandals.

with death] That is, with the peſtilence, or mortality, as we term it, 1 Cor. 11. 30.

The fifth ſeal.

V. 9. under the altar] As beaſts newly ſlain for ſacrifices, Exod. 29. 12. Or, in a ſure place, free from danger, 1 Kings 1. 50.

were ſlain] Under the Romane emperours.

for the word of God] Which they preached and profeſſed, even to death, Chap. 2. 10, 26.

V. 10. they cryed with a loud voice] Not that the martyrs themſelves deſired vengeance to be inflicted by God on their cruel perſecutours, whom, after Chriſt their maſters example, Luke 23. 24. they requeſted God rather to forgive, Acts 7. 60. but, that their blood cried aloud to God for ſpeedy vengeance, together with the cruelty it ſelf exerciſed upon them, Gen. 4. 10. Hab. 2. 11. Heb. 12. 24.

holy and true] Who being holy and pure, canſt not endure to ſee ſuch impiety and iniquity, Hab. 1. 13. being true of thy word, canſt not but make it good, but by putting it in execution againſt ſuch, Pſal. 54. 5.

judge and revenge] Hear our cauſe, and do us right, 2 Theſſ. 1. 11. Give ſentence for us, and cauſe that ſentence to be put into execution, Pſal. 26. 1. & 7. 8, &c.

V. 11. And white robes were given to every one of them] Their innocency was cleared, and they made perfectly happy. See notes on Chap. 3. 4.

yet for a little ſeaſon] For a ſtrange alteration was ſhortly after to enſue, as appeared on the opening of the next ſeal, v. 12.

as they were] Gr. even as they. Or, as themſelves alſo were.

ſhould be fulfilled] Until the full ſum and number of them ſhould be compleat, and the malice and cruelty of the adverſe party come to his full height; that ſo the vengeance of God might in his appointed time alſo come upon their perſecutours to the full. So Gen. 15. 16. Matth. 23. 32. 1 Theſſ. 2. 16.

The ſixth ſeal.

V. 12. a great earthquake, &c.] The troubles that were to befal the Romane empire, and ſtrange alterations therein, are ſet out figuratively, by the ſhaking of the earth, and confuſion of the heavenly bodies; as often in the prophets ſuch alterations are deſcribed, Iſai. 13. 9, 10, 11. Jer. 4. 23. Ezek. 32. 7, 8. Joel 2. 10. Hagg. 2. 21, 22. This was fulfilled, when Diocleſian the great perſecutour gave over his empire, Galerius was eaten with worms, Maximinus his fleſh was rotted away, and his eyes fell out, Maxentius and Licinius fell both before Conſtantine, by whom God not onely put an end to the perſecutions of his people, but ſetled alſo the profeſſion of Chriſtianity in the empire: whereupon, the great princes, and idolatrous captains, ſeeing their idols contemned, their altars deſpiſed, their temples deſerted, and the Chriſtian religion prevailing, in ſpight of them, and all their deſignes and attempts to the contrary, grew deſperate, and at their wits end, and ſought which way to ſhift for themſelves. For of ſuch perſons it is interpreted, verſ. 15.

the ſun became black] Which is the brighteſt creature in the world. It argueth a ſtrange mutation in the Romane empire, as the reſt do alſo. So Joel 2. 31. Blackneſs is a ſymbol of mourning, great confuſion and aſtoniſhment, Joel 2. 6.

as ſackcloth of hair] Their ſackcloth was black, as appeareth by tents made of it, Cant. 1. 5. It was made of black goats-hair.

the moon became as blood] A ſtrange ſight and change, that the pale-faced moon ſhould look red like blood; Joel 2. 31. Acts 2. 20.

V. 13. fell] Seemed to fall out of heaven down to the ground in this viſion; as Chap. 12. 4. which of ſtars themſelves, being ſuch vaſt bodies as they are, (though by reaſon of the diſtance it appear not) cannot be imagined. So Iſa. 34. 4.

untimely figs] Or, green figs: Which fall, before the other ſucceeding them ſhoot out.

V. 14. heaven] No ſtate ſo high or lofty, but was made to ſtoop and give way at Chriſts preſence and appearance in judgment, Chap. 20. 11. Iſa. 34. 4.

rolled together] An alluſion to the manner or faſhion of books then in uſe, which were wont to be rolled up, as our inventaries, and were thence alſo called volumes, Iſa. 8. 1. Jer. 36. 2. So Iſai. 34. 4. Which alſo, being rolled up, were brought into a narrower compaſſe; nor did the things written in them then appear.

every mountain] Nothing ſo firm, or ſo ſurely grounded, but was ſhaken, and enforced to give ground, Pſal. 18. 7. & 68. 8. & 114. 4. Iſa. 64. 1, 3. Hab. 3. 6. Zech. 4. 7.

iſland] Or, ſea-coaſt: as Iſai. 23. 2. Jer. 25. 22. Or, land, or, countrey: as Iſa. 20. 6. & 41. 1. No land or region ſo remote, that the alteration and terrour thence enſuing did not reach unto, Pſal. 65. 8. Iſa. 41. 5. & 49. 1.

V. 15. hid themſelves] Iſa. 2. 10. The great men were as much troubled and diſmaied, as if they had ſeen Chriſt viſibly coming to judgement; and, ſeeking to hide themſelves from him, ſhould utter ſuch words full of affrightment and deſpair, as are ſet down in the verſes following. Fulfilled, as in others, ſo eſpecially in Diocleſian, who, ſummoned to appear before Conſtantine, made himſelf away with poiſon; and Maximinian his ſecond in the empire, who did the like with an halter; both of them having before, from an imperial ſtate, as running into ſome ſecret nook or corner, betaken themſelves to a private and obſcure courſe of life, wherein alſo they could not finde ſhelter or ſecurity ſufficient. Alſo in Maximinus, who, having his diſcomfiture by Licinius, eſcaped very narrowly, by hiding himſelf among the mixt and mean multitude, and after ſhut himſelf up in his houſe, while his forces reinforced were again in the field, was there ſmitten by the hand of God, and, notwithſtanding his acknowledgement of his wrongs done unto, and cruelty exerciſed upon Chriſtians, and revocation of his former bloody edicts againſt them, ended his dayes in ſuch manner as is above mentioned. In Maxentius likewiſe, that for a time counterfeited himſelf a Chriſtian; who, being overcome in fight of Conſtantine, and ſeeking, by flight from him, to ſave his life, was drowned in the river Tyber. And laſtly, in Licinius, who having oft changed his copie, one while for Chriſtians, another while againſt them; one while aſſiſting Conſtantine againſt the other perſecuting tyrants, another while conſpiring with the like againſt him; and after feigned ſubmiſſion and reconciliation, falling off again from him, and making head againſt him, was at length ſlain in the field, and ſo came to his end.

V. 16. and ſaid] Hoſ. 10. 8. Luke 23. 30. The voices of men in a moſt deſperate condition, as not caring what became of them, ſo they might avoid the ſight of ſo dreadful a judge.

of him that ſitteth] God revealing himſelf as a judg on the bench, by thoſe direful and dreadful judgements that befell either themſelves, or others in their ſight. See Chap. 4. 2.

wrath of the lamb] Though a lamb ſacrificed for his, and in regard of mildneſſe to them, Chap. 5. 6. yet as dreadful as a lion, to thoſe that had wronged him in them, whoſe hearts began now to ſmite them for their wrongs done to them; and as powerful and wrathful, to take vengeance upon them for the ſame, Chap. 5. 5. & 1. 7. Amos 1. 2. & 3. 8.

V. 17. the great day] The day of vengeance, which the blood of martyrs called upon, and cryed ſo loud for, v. 10. So Iſa. 34. 6, 8. Joel 2. 1, 2, 31.

Verſ. 1. AFter theſe things] After the former ſix ſeals opened, and the events thereof above ſpecified, Chap. 6. and before the ſeventh ſeal opened, and the trumpets thereupon delivered and ſounded, Chap. 8. 1, 2, 6.

four angels] Some underſtand it of bad angels, which reſtrained the gentle winds of Gods word and Spirit from refreſhing his ſervants. An alluſion to Cant. 4. 16. Joh. 3. 8. Acts 2. 2, 3. Others, of good angels, appointed by God, either to hold back or let looſe the winds of wars and troubles, that from all parts of the world might fall in upon the Romane empire, Jer. 18. 17. & 49. 36. & 49. 36. & 51. 1, 2. Dan. 7. 2, 3.

ſtanding on the four corners of the earth] Ready to do what the trumpet, being ſounded, ſhould give warning to be done.

holding the four winds] This ſheweth the power given unto them.

on the earth, on the ſea, nor on any tree] Theſe are the things that uſe to be hurt by winds: the earth, by earthquakes, 1 King. 19. 11. Amos 1. 1. Matth. 24. 7. or, overthrow of houſes built on it, Job 4. 19. Matth. 7. 27. The ſea, by ſtorms, Jon. 1. 4. Matth. 8. 24. Acts 27. 14. The trees, by blaſting, renting and extirpation, Gen. 41. 6. Ezek. 17. 10. & 19. 12. Others, underſtand men dwelling on the firm land, or in the iſlands and ſea-coaſts, or in the more wooddy and wilder parts. See Chap. 9. 4.

V. 2. another angel] Moſt take it for Chriſt, who is the keeper of Gods great ſeal. Some, for an inferiour angel, appointed to ſet Gods mark on his ſervants. Others interpret it of Conſtantine, reſtraining, and inhibiting the former perſecutions of Gods people.

aſcending] Or, coming from; Matth. 24. 17. An Hebraiſm, as 2 King. 12. 18. Jerem. 34. 21. & 37. 5. Chap. 13. 1. and 20. 9. but alluding withal to the courſe of the ſun, who riſeth higher and higher in his approach from the eaſtern parts to us-ward.

the ſeal of the living God] With Gods name on it, to ſet on the foreheads of Gods ſervants, Chap. 14. 1.

with a loud voice] To ſhew his power and authority, and withal, to manifeſt the danger that might enſue, if the thing enjoyned were not inſtantly and ſuddenly done. So Gen 22. 11, to hurt the earth] By letting forth the winds of war and troubles upon the world. See v. 1.

V. 3. Hurt not the earth] Let there be peace and quietneſſe in the Romane empire. This was fulfilled in Conſtantines time, and after.

the earth, &c.] See v. 1.

till we have ſealed] He alludeth to the ſealing mentioned, Ezek. 9. 4. wherewith ſome were ſealed, that they might be ſafe and ſecured, as having their lives given them for a prey in the time of deſtruction, that was then ſhortly to enſue, Jer. 15. 11. & 39. 17, 18. & 45. 5. Hereby ſhewing, that God would take care for his, when wars and troubles ſhould come, that they might be as ſafe as things ſealed by a ſeal royal, which no ſubject dare meddle with, Dan. 6. 17. Matth. 27. 66. See Chap. 3. 10. And indeed, had not God ſtrangely preſerved them, when by the invaſion of barbarous nations, the Romane empire was ſo ſorely ſhaken and ſhattered, the Church of God had even utterly periſhed.

we have ſealed] To ſhew the greatneſſe of the work. One was not ſufficient to mark ſo many thouſands.

V. 4. of all the tribes] Some underſtand this of all the faithful in general, the whole Iſrael of God, Gal. 6. 16. all that belong to ſalvation, Acts 13. 48. and that are to be delivered from eternal deſtruction, 1 Theſſ. 1. 10. as thoſe in Egypt from the ſword of the deſtroying angel, Exod. 12. 7, 13. Heb. 11. 20. and ſo theſe ſhould be the ſame with thoſe mentioned, v. 9. Others, of ſuch faithful onely as were by a ſpecial providence to be preſerved in thoſe times of publike concuſſion and calamity, ſaid therefore, by a ſolemn ſigne, to be marked out and ſealed; which the other multitude, living in other aftertimes, needed not, nor is affirmed of them, verſ. 9. Again, others underſtand it of Jews or Iſraelites by natural deſcent; but ſome ſuch as are hereafter to be converted, Rom. 11. 26. Others, of thoſe of that nation, who retained the Chriſtian profeſſion (as many no doubt did) even in thoſe times; Rom. 11. 1, 2. Acts 2. 41, 47. and 44. and 21. 20. who yet are here reckoned by a definite number, though put for an indefinite; as numerable, in compariſon of the Gentile converts, which are ſaid to be innumerable, verſ. 9. and are ſorted out according to the number of their tribes, to ſhew, that no faithful, of what ſort or rank ſoever, were excluded from having part in this priviledg. Of ſuch ſure, whether Jews by birth, or others, it muſt be underſtood, as were to live in the times of the terrible trumpets enſuing, for whoſe ſecurity and indemnity, this ſtay was made of their ſounding upon the ſeventh ſeal opened, Chap. 8. 1. 2, 6.

V. 5. Of the tribe of Judah] The tribe of Dan is ſuppoſed to be omitted, becauſe by idolatry they fell from the people of God, Judg. 18. 30. 1 Kings 12. 28, 29.

V. 7. Of the tribe of Levi] This tribe is added, to make good the place void by the defection of Dan: and to ſhew, that Gods miniſters, though they had no part in the land of Canaan, yet have part in Gods protection here, Chap. 3. 7, 10. and ſhall have a portion in heaven hereafter, Dan. 12. 3.

V. 8. Of the tribe of Joſeph] That is, Ephraim, who, though he were not the eldeſt ſon, yet he is preferred before Manaſſeh, Gen. 48. 13, 14, 19.

of the tribe of Benjamin The tribes are not here reckoned in that order they are in the old teſtament; but as it were promiſcuouſly, to ſhew, that in Chriſt there is no reſpect of perſons, Acts 10. 34, 35. Gal. 3. 28. Col. 3. 11.

V. 9. a great multitude] Some take this to be an expoſition of what ſaid before, verſ. 4. and thoſe ſealed ones to be here meant. Others take it to be meant of a multitude of Gentiles added to the Iſraelites. See the notes on v. 4.

no man could number] Innumerable, in compariſon of the former, v. 4. So Gen. 15. 5. Heb. 11. 12.

of all nations] Not ſorted out by tribes, as thoſe before, verſ. 4. becauſe of ſo many ſeveral nations, kindreds and countreys out of which they were called and gathered into the Church, Chap. 5. 9.

ſtood] Sat not now, as the elders, Chap. 4. 4. but ſtood, as preſenting themſelves, after their conflicts and conqueſts, Chap. 15. 2. before God and Chriſt, Chap. 4. 2. by whoſe power and providence they had been preſerved, and enabled to overcome and perſevere, Chap. 12. 11. Rom. 8. 37.

CHAP. VIII.

The ſeventh ſeal. Verſ. 1. Silence in heaven, about the ſpace of half an hour] Some interpret it of the ſmall time of ceſſation and reſt, which the Church had in Conſtantines time. Others, that John and the reſt ſeeing nothing, as they did after the opening of the other ſeals, ſtood ſilent, admiring at it, and expecting greater matters to be revealed. Others, think it an alluſion to the ſilence that uſed to be in the temple, while the incenſe was offering, Luke 1. 10. whereas they blew trumpets, and ſung, while the ſacrifice was offered, 2 Chron. 29. 27. And ſo this ſilence may ſeem to have laſted, till the incenſe and odours, hereafter mentioned, were all conſumed, v. 4.

V. 2. ſeven angels, which ſtood before God] Attended upon him, as Dan.7 10. Chap.7.11.

to them were given] They were appointed by God to blowe the trumpets, and ſtood ready ſo to do, whenſoever he ſhould bid them.

ſeven trumpets] To blowe Gods alarm againſt the ungracefull world, and thereby to give warning of the vials of his wrath, to be poured forth on ſuch as would not be amended by the judgements now denounced. They are ſeven blowing one after another, to ſhew Gods patience, who is unwilling to pour out his wrath all at once, Pſal.78.38.

V. 3. another angel] Some take it for Chriſt, who offereth up the prayers of the Saints to God, mixed with the precious odours of his merits, Epheſ. 5. 2. Others, for Conſtantine, whom God honoured ſo much, as to make him an inſtrument, as of giving liberty to the faithful for the publike exerciſe of Gods worſhip, and prayer, more acceptable to God, then any incenſe or offering, Pſalm 69. 31. & 141. 2. Mal. 1. 11. ſo alſo of that peace and reſt which they had formerly long prayed for, and of vengeance executed on their cruel perſecutours and oppreſſours, which the ſouls under the altar had ſo earneſtly cried for, Chap. 6. 10. See verſ. 5. It may well ſeem to be ſome ſpecial miniſter of Church or State (for it was none of thoſe four living wights, Chap.4.) rather then Chriſt himſelf, becauſe the incenſe or odours are ſaid to be given to him, not to be his own, or to have them of himſelf.

having a golden cenſer] As the high-prieſt had, to offer incenſe; Heb 9.4 See Chap.5.8.

there was given unto him much incenſe] That is, as ſome, he had power given him to preach to the people, the merits of Chriſts death, which ſhould make their prayers pleaſing to God. Or, he found that grace and favour with God, through Chriſt, to be a means of doing that which ſhould manifeſt, that their prayers had prevailed, and found acceptance with God; as Acts 10.4,31.

that he ſhould offer it with the prayers] Or, add it to the prayers. That he ſhould pray with and for the people in the name of Chriſt: or, procure a gracious anſwer to their prayers. An alluſion to the peoples continuing in prayer, while the prieſt offered incenſe, Luke 1. 10.

upon the golden altar] Such as was the altar of incenſe; ſo called, Numb. 4.11. becauſe overlaid with gold, Exod.30.3.

which was before the throne] As that in the temple ſtood before the ark, Exod.30.6. on which God is ſaid to ſit, as on a chair of eſtate, Pſal.80.1.

V. 4. aſcended up before God] A ſigne that God did accept their ſervice, Pſal.142.2. Phil.4.18.

V. 5. took the cenſer] The ſame in which he had offered up the incenſe with the prayers of the Saints, v. 4. whereby it appeareth, that the prayers by this angel preſented, were as well for vengeance on the bloody perſecutours of Gods people, as for peace and reſt to them. See v. 3.

filled it] To ſhew the greatneſs of the judgments to come.

with fire] Gr. of the fire; as Chap. 2. 17. Or, out of the fire; Jude verſ.23. For he took not away all the fire from the altar.

of the altar] An alluſion to Levit. 16. 12, 13. where the fire that the incenſe was to be kindled with, was commanded to be taken from the altar of burnt-offerings, where it was continually burning, Levit 6.12,13. elſe were it ſtrange fire, Levit.10.1. This altar of of burnt-offerings is alluded to, Chap.6. 9. and withal, here may well be an alluſion to that handful of coles of fire taken from off the altar, and ſcattered, in token of Gods wrath, upon the city, Ezek.10.2,6,7.

and caſt it into the earth] Or, upon the earth; as ver.7. Chap. 9. 3. Matth. 26. 10. A ſigne of judgements to come on wicked men, Ezek.10.2,7.

and there were voices] Or, then; as Matth.23.32. Some take the voices and thundrings to be all one: ſee Chap. 4. 5. and thereby to be ſignified, Gods acceptance of the prayers of the Saints mentioned, v. 3. becauſe God uſeth to anſwer his people with thunders, Pſal.81,7. Joh 12.28,29. Others make a gradation: Thunders exceed mens voices, lightning deſtroyeth many creatures and buildings; but the earthquake threatneth to rent the earth, as if hell opened her mouth to receive men: and they will have theſe terms to ſignifie terrible judgements, and ſuch as cannot be prevented, as puniſhments comming from heaven, and out of the earth, can by no skill or power of man be avoided. See Iſa.24.18.

and an earthquake] A forerunner of great troubles, chap.6.12.

V. 6. And the ſeven angels] They are all ſaid to prepare themſelves at once, though they ſounded one after another, that there may not need a repetition of this preparation at every ſounding. Or, to ſhew they were all ready to ſound, when God ſhould command. Or, to declare the certainty of ſounding the reſt, as well as the firſt. Or, becauſe in the viſion they were all to ſound ſuddenly one after another, though there were more diſtance of time in execution.

prepared themſelves to ſound] Seeing by the ſignes, v. 5. the time was nigh, they ſet the trumpets to their mouthes. God gave ſome time for men to repent, between the denounciation and execution of the judgements.

V. 7. hail and fire] Which in thoſe hotter regions go uſually together. So Exod.9. 22, 23. Pſalm 18.12,13. and 105. 22, 23. & 148. 8.

mingled with blood] Both the hail and fire were mingled with blood; for the word is plural in the Greek. By fire is meant lightnings, Pſalm 18.12,13. Blood is added, to ſhew that this ſtorm or tempeſt tended to ſlaughter. A terrible judgement. What the hail did not beat down, the fire burnt up; and what the fire left, the blood corrupted. See the like, Joel 1. 4. Some interpret it of the bitter contentions in the Church after the Nicene-council. Others, of the Arrian hereſie, and perſecution following it. Others, of the invaſion of the Romane empire, after it was turned Chriſtian, by the Goths and Vandals; for by ſuch ſignes war is ſignified, Iſai. 28. 2. and 30. 30, 31, 32. It is conceived commonly, that the laſt interpretation is the trueſt; and that ſhall be proportionably purſued in the trumpets following. The firſt trumpet.

upon the earth] Upon the Romane empire, ſo that they ſhaked the foundation of it.

the third part] That the reſt might repent, before all were deſtroyed.

of trees] Of the princes, and great men in the empire, a third part, or great number, was deſtroyed in thoſe invaſions. So trees are taken, Iſai.2.13. & 14. 8. & 37.24. Zech. 11. 2.

all green graſs] Moſt of the meaner ſort of men, Iſa. 27. 37.

V. 8. as

The ſecond Trumpet. V. 8. as it were] This ſheweth, that John did not ſee the things themſelves here named, but reſemblances of them.

a great mountain burning with fire was caſt into the ſea] An alluſion to the burning of Ætna or Veſuvius, or the like hils, that, breaking out with flames, run down into the neighbour ſeas. So Iſa.64.1,3. Mountains, for cities, Jer.51.25. Iſa.13. 2. The ſea for the large territories of an empire, Jer. 51. 36. 44. Ezek.31.4. After that the barbarous people had ſurpriſed and ſacked the city of Rome, they waſted and ſpoiled the territories of it, deſtroying the people, without reſpect of ſex or age.

became blood] The waters were not onely putrified, and grew muddy, but alſo were turned into gore blood, which is the greateſt corruption of water that can be. An alluſion to Exod.7.20,21. The territories did ſwim in blood, like a beaſt new ſlain, Chap.16.3.

V. 9. creatures which were in the ſea] Fiſhes, or what elſe liveth in the waters. The men ſeem to be here intended, that lived in the provinces; or, the ſouldiers who lay in gariſon there.

life] Gr. ſouls. Chap.12.11. Mat.10.39. Luk. 14.26.

died] Were choked with the bloudy waters, Exod.7.18,21.

of the ſhips were deſtroyed] Either by the fiery mountain falling on them, or corrupted by the bloody waters. Hereby is intended, the decay of a great part of the means to defend thoſe provinces, or of the trading there.

The third trumpet. V. 10. A great ſtar from heaven] Or, out of heaven. The Roman emperour of the Weſt, who, like a blazing ſtar, ſhined bright for a time, but was put down by the Gothes; Iſa.14.12. & 34.4.

burning as it were a lamp] It is compared to a lamp, then, not for greatneſſe, but for light and heat.

upon the third part] Belike it fell into pieces, and one part fell on one river, another on another, &c. not on ſome part of every river, but on ſo many rivers as made up a third part of the rivers.

of the rivers, and upon the fountains] Of Waters. On the fountains of thoſe places where the third part of the rivers was. It is likely, then, that the rivers firſt grew bitter, and afterwards dried up. By rivers and fountains may be meant, the magiſtrates ſent abroad into ſeveral provinces, and the cities and provinces unto which they were ſent.

V. 11. wormwood] A name given it from the effect of it. The Hebrew word to which this anſwereth, ſignifieth a poiſonful herb that deſtroyed men, Deut. 29. 18. Amos 5. 7. By this bitter fall of that emperour, the magiſtrates and cities ſuffered much, and many men were deſtroyed.

The fourth trumpet. V. 12. the third part of the ſun] The ſun ſhined but eight hours, where it uſed to ſhine twelve. It was dark two hours longer in the morning, and ſooner at night. Or, the third part of the body of the ſun was darkened, ſo that it gave not ſo much light by a third part, at any time of the day, as it did before. So of the moon and ſtars in the night.

was ſmitten] The ſun is compared to a living body that hath one part of it dead with the palſie, or ſome other diſeaſe. The loſſe of part of the light, is as loſſe of part of the life, to a living creature. By the ſun, ſeemeth to be meant the conſular power at Rome, permitted by the ruling Gothes for a time: by the moon the ſenate; by the the ſtars, the other magiſtrates. By theſe, government, and glory of it, are ſet out, Iſa.13. 10. Jer.15.9. Ezek. 32. 7. Theſe were eclipſed; when the Viceroy lived not at Rome, but at Ravenna.

V. 13. And I beheld] Chap. 4. 1. & 14. 1. To ſee if any thing elſe would be offered to my ſight. Or, it may be, there being ſome diſtance between, he looked when the fift angel would ſound; but ſeeth ſomewhat foregoing it in this verſe, to make him the more to attend to it when it cometh.

thorow the midſt] Gr. in the midſt; Chap. 14. 16. That is, as ſome, in the midſt between heaven and earth, as the angel appeared to David, 1 Chron. 21.16. Or rather, in the midſt of heaven, along the meridian-line, which is the greateſt height of heaven, and from whence his voice might every way be moſt clearly heard.

with a loud voice] That all men might hear, Chap. 5.12. or, to ſhew the greatneſſe of the plagues to come, Chap.14.9.

Wo, wo, wo] Signifying, by theſe three wo's, that three greater judgments were yet to come, Chap. 9.12. & 11.14.

to the inhabiters of the earth] Wicked men and idolaters Chap. 11. 10. and 13. 12, 14. For theſe look after earthly things onely, and have no other portion, Pſal. 17. 14. Their converſation is not in heaven, like the Saints, Phil. 3.19,20.

by reaſon of] As Chap. 10.13. Or, from. The miſeries following ſhall proceed, as it were, from the ſounds of the following trumpets. The angels ſhall not onely be heraulds to denounce them, but inſtruments to inflict them, Chap. 9.1,2. of the trumpet of the three angels] Of each of their trumpets, Chap.9.19. Or, the trumpet, becauſe they were all alike, in denouncing heavier judgments then the former.

CHAP. IX.

Verſ. 1. A Star fall] See the like, Chap. 8. 10. Gr. a fallen ſtar. It fell ſo ſwiftly, that I could ſcarce deſcrie it till it came to the ground, which it did, before the fifth angel had done blowing, and then it appeared to me to be a ſtar.

to him was given] Or, to it: that is, to the ſtar. Not to the angel; for the angel had his employment ſet down before, which was, To blow the trumpet: but no end of the falling of this ſtar is mentioned, unleſſe this be it, To receive the key of the bottomleſſe pit. Yet ſome perſon muſt be intended by this ſtar; for a ſtar could not tell how to uſe the key of the bottomleſſe pit. Some take it to be a good angel, that power given him to hinder or let looſe helliſh operations, Chap. 20. 1. Others take it for the devil, the angel of the bottomleſſe pit, v.11. Others, for ſome miniſter (for ſuch are compared to ſtars, Chap.1.20.) who fell from the true religion, and turned apoſtata; ſuch as Sergius of Conſtantinople, the Neſtorian monk, and John of Antiock the Arrian, who are ſaid to aſſiſt Mahomet in the compoſing of his lying alcoran.

the key] For hell is a priſon, and muſt be locked up, 1 Pet. 3.19.

bottomleſſe pit] Hell is compared to a dungeon, that hath a narrow entrance, but a deep gulf within. Sometimes this word is uſed for the ſea, whoſe bottom we know not; as Luke 8. 31.

V. 2. And he opened the bottomleſſe pit] Before, ſome errours brake forth, as it were by chinks and crannies; but now falſe doctrine came forth abundantly, as if hell had been let looſe, or broke up, and the gates of it ſet wide open, to let it out at large: for now Mahomet ſetteth forth his alcoran for divine Scripture, the like whereof no heretike durſt attempt before, or at leaſt, could not prevail with multitudes of men to believe him, as Mahomet did. So that the apening of the bottomleſſe pit, is the opoſtata's uſing their power to let in ſuch groſſe errours into the world, as could come from none, as their authour, but from the devil of hell.

a ſmoke out of the pit] The great wrath of the devils in hell, like a great fire, brought forth Mahumetaniſm in abundance, which like ſmoke, kept the light of Gods truth, and favour of Chriſt and his Goſpel, from a great part of the world.

and the ſun and the air were darkned] It was not a ſmall darknes, as when ſome high mountain hideth the light from the vally neer; but a very great one, as if all the air, nay, the ſun it ſelf, that giveth light to the air, were darkned; as Mat. 27.45.

V. 3. out of the ſmoke] Out of this devilliſh plot of Mahumetaniſm: or, out of Satans hidden ſubtilty.

locuſts upon the earth] Vermine that uſe to feed on graſſe and fruit, v. 4. whereby are meant, men ſprung out of Arabia to afflict the world, as the locuſts came thence into Egypt, Exod. 10.13,14. Gen.25.6,12,18. Locuſts help to make up the great army, Joel 1.4,6.

power as the ſcorpions] For they had tails, like them, v. 18. and wounded men, like them, v. 5. with cruel and poiſoned wounds, Jer.8.17. Strange monſters, that, with locuſts, could devour all, and, with ſcorpions, ſting and poiſon beſides. So did the Mahomitans devour with their armies, and poiſon with their errours, and that under a colour of pulling down idols, and ſerving the onely true God.

V. 4. commanded them] God did not ſuffer them to hurt his true ſervants, though they wanted neither courage nor endeavour to do it.

the graſſe of the earth, &c.] Or, hay. Such as are cut off from the earth; that is, ſeparated from ungodly men. Or, the graſſe may ſignifie weak Chriſtians; the green plants, growing ones; the trees, ſtrong ones; as, little children, young men, fathers, 1 Joh. 2.13,14. Or, neither mean men, nor great, of ſuch as were marked, Chap. 7. 3, 13,16. The Saracens have done much hurt to ignorant Greeks, and idolatrous papiſts; but not much to the proteſtants perſecuted then, and profeſſing the true religion openly now.

but onely] As Chap.2.25.

in their foreheads] Gr. on their foreheads.

V. 5. To them was given] They had no further power nor commiſſion from God; as Chap.13.7.

not kill him] Not preſently kill them, but torment them ſo as they die after it, as if they were ſtung with ſcorpions. Or, not kill them at all, but keep them for ſlaves. Both which agree with the Saracens, who have many oppreſſed by them, that wiſh rather to be dead; as v. 6. Or, they did not take ſo much boldneſſe on them, as to kill men at their firſt ariſing; but ſtayeth till they had gotten greater ſtrength, under the next ſeal, v.15, 18. At firſt, many Chriſtians yeelded to the Saracens, and took part with them: afterwards, when the Chriſtians warred againſt them, they killed them cruelly. They that muſt not be killed, but tormented by theſe Saracens cens, were ſuch as were not ſealed, v. 4. for the ſealed ones, they might not ſo much as torment.

five moneths] A ſhort time; as locuſts are bred in April, and die in September. Or, an hundred and fifty years : for ſo many dayes are in five moneths; and the prophets reckon a day for year, Dan.9.24. And the Saracens vexed Italy, from the year Eight hundred and thirty, to Nine hundred and eighty.

as the torment of a ſcorpion] Painful till death, or cure by liberty, v. 3. Or, if they did kill them, they kept them from freedom, and from their wives and children, and all worldly comforts, which is a living death.

V. 8. And in] Or, therefore in; as 1 Cor.5.13.

ſhall men ſeek death] Chap.6. 16. Iſa. 2. 19. Job 3. 20, 21. Though men naturally abhor death, yet they ſhall deſire it, that they may be rid of their grievous torments; as eſteeming death a leſſer evil then thoſe miſeries they endure.

V. 7. like unto horſes,&c.] Joel 2.4. They were not altogether like locuſts, but in ſome part reſembled horſes. The Saracens made ſudden incurſions into many countries, and were fierce warriours; as horſes are ſwift and fierce in battel, Job 39. 22,23,24,25.

crownes like gold] That is, bright headpieces ſhining like gold. This may ſignifie, as their compleat furniture for war, ſo their many victories, who within eighty years, overcame a multitude of nations.

as the faces of men] Either in regard of ſome ſhews or pretences of humanity; as Iſa. 47. 3. or for ſtoutneſſe, courage and confidence; as Iſa.46.8. 1 Cor. 16. 13. and, as we uſe to ſay, A manly face.,

V. 8. as the hair of women] This may ſignifie, that by flattery and fair ſhews, they uſed to perſwade, like women, Prov.6. 24. that they might make their foes ſecure, and deſtroy them the more eaſily.

as the teeth of lions] Joel 1. 6. This ſetteth out their cruelty, and tirannical government. Notwithſtanding their flattery, they deſtroyed men, as if they had had lions teeth; Pſal. 57.4. & 58.6.

V. 9. as it were] It was not fit to clothe the locuſts with iron breſtplates, but ſomwhat like them; although the Saracens, ſignified by them, might wear iron breſtplates indeed.

breſtplates of iron] ,They were ſtrongly armed themſelves and their kingdom, ſo that their foes could not hurt them.

of chariots, &c.] Joel 2. 5. Swift and terrible were they in their invaſions, 2 King.7.6,7. Iſa.5.28. & 66.15. Jer.4.13.

horſes running] See v.7.

V. 10. ſtings in their tails] As they ſought dominion over other people, ſo they poyſoned them with falſe religion. Or, it may be underſtood of tormenting their captives, or putting them to miſerable ſlavery by their in inferior officers. See v.5. Or of deceiving them in the end, who truſt to them.

five moneths] See v. 5.

V, 11. a king over them] Herein they differ from common locuſts, Prov.30.27.

the angel of the bottomleſſe pit] Some take it to be ſpoken of the devil: others, of the commander of the Saracens, the devils great agent.

in the Hebrew,&c.] Either becauſe the deſtroying angel was known to the Jews, as well as to the Chriſtians : or elſe becauſe the Saracens oppreſſed both.

Apollyon] That is to ſay, A deſtroyer. Some ſay, Mahomets name ſignifieth ſo alſo; and the name Turk, in the eaſtern language. Sure it is, they have made havock of men,churches and ſchools, where they have prevailed.Some take it to be ſpoken of the devil, who deſtroyeth others, and in end, ſhall be deſtroyed himſelf, 1 Pet.5.8. Chap.20.10.

V. 12. One wo] Chap.8.13. & 6.1.

is paſt] Is fully revealed : or, is done, before the other two begin.

The ſixth trumpe. V. 13. a voice] Gr. one voice. It was the voice of Chriſt, as ſome think.

from the four horns] Or, out of the four horns; (of which, Exod.30.10.) That is, out of the midſt of the altar, where the incenſe, with the prayers of the ſaints, was offered up, Chap. 8.3. It ſeemed to be Gods voice, anſwering out of the ſame place, thoſe prayers, and the complaints of the ſouls under the altar, Chap. 6.9, 10. by giving the Saracens a command to invade Europe, v. 14. to revenge their cauſe on the Roman perſecutours.

of the golden altar] Whereon the incence was offered,Chap. 8.3. An alluſion to Exod.30.1.

before God] That is,before the ark,which was a viſible ſign of Gods preſence and reſidence among them, Exod.30.8. Pſal.81.

V. 14. had the trumpet] Had newly ſounded, and had not yet laid down the trumpet out of his hand.

looſe the four angels] Four governours of the Mahometans; as Chap. 16. 12. for they were now divided into a tetrachie, under four ſultans of Aſia, Aleppo, Damaſcus, and Antioch.

bound in the great river Euphrates] Had not yet ſet footing in Europe, but were kept back by their own diſſentions, and the victories of the Chriſtians; or, rather, by the over-ruling providence of God.

V. 15. were looſed] Set at liberty by the angel that ſounded this trumpet. See v.1.

prepared for an hour] Or, at an hour, &c. It may ſignifie their readineſſe to go at any time, when they ſhould be looſed. Or, to follow the work from time to time. Or, at the time appointed by God. Or, a ſhort time. See Chap.3.10. Or, the time of their coming to take Conſtantinople, from the beginning of their empire, which is to be reckoned from the taking of Babylon, was three hundred ninety and ſix yeers, and ſome odde time: for for days, in the prophets, are put for years, v. 5.

for to ſlay] See notes on verſ.5.

third part of men] Of ſuch as were not ſealed, Chap.7.3.

V. 16. of the horſemen] The Turks army conſiſteth moſt of ſuch, for ſwiftneſſe, Ezek.38.4,15.

two hundred thouſand thouſand] Such great armies they uſed, for terrour to their enemies.

and I heard] Or, for I heard; as Luke 6. 32. The number was ſo great, I could not reckon them; but I was told the number of them. This he addeth, that no man might think he made the number greater then it was.

V. 17. in the viſion] Before, he was ſaid to be in the ſpirit, Chap. 1. 10. & 4. 2. now, he ſeeth theſe things in a viſion. The former ſetteth forth his preparation; the later, the manner of the revelation. His eyes were firſt taken off from gazing on worldly things, and then faſtned on theſe heavenly apparitions.

breſtplates] Or, corſlets. For matter of defence.

of fire, and of Jacinct, and brimſtone] Either their breſtplates were made each one of theſe materials, or of ſome common matter that had theſe ſeveral colours; unleſſe, as ſome think, their army conſiſted of ſeveral nations, which had ſeveral colours in their habergeons, to diſtinguiſh the Saracens, Turks, and Tartars, by fiery, Jacinct, and brimſtone-colours.

of fire] Not of material fire, for there are no ſuch breſtplates, neither can any bodily creatures wear ſuch : but they appeared like fire to ſaint John, in the viſion. It ſignifieth, that the ſight of them ſhould be ſo terrible to the enemies, that they ſhould no more dare to come neer them, or be able to hurt them, then if they were compaſſed about with fire; Zech. 2. 5.

of Jacinct] It is a ſtone of a skie-colour (of which, Chap. 21. 20.) and may import, that theſe were invincible armies ſent from above, from God, to puniſh the wicked Romanes.

of brimſtone] This might alſo ſignifie that God, who uſeth to puniſh great ſinners with fire and brimſtone from heaven, Gen.19.24. Pſal. 11. 6. Job 18. 15. and ſetteth out hell-pains thereby, Chap. 14. 10. & 19. 20. did employ theſe to ſcourge the wicked world. It importeth a great deſolation; for brimſtone feedeth the fire, and keepeth it burning, till it have deſtroyed all before it; Iſa.30.33. & 34.9,10.

the heads of the horſes] Their defenſive arms were ſet down before; now he deſcribeth their offenſive ones. Souldiers uſe to take care for their own ſafety, before they ſet upon their enemies.

as heads of lions] They were very ſtout, fierce and cruel.

out of their mouths] This fire might ſeem, to thoſe againſt whom they ſhot, at the firſt, to come out of their horſes mouthes. For the new invention of guns, uſed by them at the taking of Conſtantinople, ſeemeth here to be foretold; out of which came fire, ſmoke, gunpowder, made of brimſtone, with other materials. Or, it may import a great devaſtation of the countries they came in; as before in this verſe, and the next, Joel 2.3.

ſmoke] The ſmoke is very great at the ſhooting of great ordnance,becauſe the fire is ſoon kindled, and quickly diſſolveth into ſmoke. It may import the ſad and diſmal eſtate of thoſe regions which are waſted by the Saracens. A thing worthy of great obſervation, that God ſhould bring in Turks, that hate idols, to deſtroy Chriſtian idolaters.

V. 18. By theſe three] Working together, and at one time. For guns make a greater and ſpeedier havock of men, then ſwords did before.

out of their mouths] Theſe do not flatter, as the locuſts did, v.8. but threaten fire and death where ere they come.

third part of men] As v.15.

V. 19. in their mouth, and in their tails] The power of other horſes is in their body, and in their feet; but of theſe, in their head and tails. In their head, becauſe thence cometh fire, ſmoke and brimſtone, out of their mouthes, v. 17, 18. In their tails, becauſe when they have overcome men, and ruled them quietly a while, they will return to their former cruelty. Therefore their tails alſo are ſaid to have heads, and to be like ſerpents, which come ſuddenly out of their holes, and ſting men, before they ſee them. Or, they uſe power and ſubtilty. Or, they kill bodies by force, and ſting ſouls to death, by Mahumetan impoſtures.

V. 20. the reſt of the men] The other two third parts of the Idolatrous Chriſtians, which were not ſlain by the Mahometans.

yet repented not of] Gr. from, or, out of. That is, ſo as to depart from, Heb. 6. 1. Repentance from dead works; that is, whereby men do ſo repent, as that they depart from dead works. Or, come out of them; as Acts 8.22,23. Repenting of wickedneſſe, and coming out of the gall of bitterneſſe. Or, neither repented of. Though they were ſpared, yet they amended not at all, but remained obſtinate in the practice of all their former ſins hereafter mentioned.

of the works of their hands] All actual ſins are ſo called, becauſe they are properly our works, Pſal. 28.4. and the hand is the ordinary inſtrument of acting. God hath no hand in theſe, as he hath in our good works. But here, making idols to worſhip, is ſignified; as Deut. 31.29. Iſa. 2.8. Hoſ. 14.3. Though the Eaſtern Churches were waſted by the Turks for their idolatry; yet the weſtern ones repented not of their making images. The example of Gods judgments on their fellow-idolaters, could do no good upon them. This muſt needs be meant of the Papiſts; for neither Proteſtants, Jews, nor Turks, nor any other in Europe, make images for worſhip.

not worſhip devils] Saints, who are Δαίμονες. Or, images, as followeth. See Levit. 17.7. Deut. 32.17. Pſal. 106. 36,37. 1 Cor. 10.20. For, worſhipping of Images cometh from the devil, being contrary to Gods commandment: and the devil was worſhipped in them. and idols] Or, even idols. So Tit. 2.13. Chap. 1.6.

of gold] Pſal. 115.4. & 135.5.

and ſilver, &c.] This ſheweth they had a multiude of idols; as Dan. 5. 23. So, many veſſels in a great houſe are ſet out, 2 Tim. 2.20.

and of ſtone, &c.] Such deſperate Idolaters were theſe Popiſh Chriſtians, that they which wanted wealth to make golden, ſilver, or brazen Images, made Images of ſtone and wood, Iſa. 40. 20.

which neither can ſee, nor hear, nor walk] Pſal. 115.4,5,6,7. O the folly of Idolaters! which can do theſe things themſelves, and yet worſhip them which can do none of theſe; much leſſe can they help them in time of trouble, Iſa. 46.7. So that their madneſſe is ſet out, firſt, from the author of their Idols: they are the works of mens hands. Secondly, from the object of their worſhip; the devil, Gods greateſt enemy. Thirdly, from the multitude of their Idols; which ſheweth their ſtrong affection to that ſin, as multitude of adulterers ſheweth the unſatiableneſſe of a whore, Ezek. 16. 28,29. Fourthly, from the blockiſhneſſe of their Idols: they could not ſee, nay, they could not hear, nay, they could not ſo much as move out of their places, Iſa. 41.7. How then could they do them any good at all? Iſa. 41.23. Jer. 10.5.

V. 21. murders] In killing Gods Saints.

ſorceries] A ſin too rife in that Church, reported to be practiſed by divers of their Popes.

fornication] All manner of looſneſſe and wantonneſſe.

thefts] In getting away the wealth of the ſimple people, by offerings, pilgrimages, &c. So that they brake not onely the firſt table, but the ſecond alſo. As they wronged God in his worſhip; ſo men alſo, in their bodies and eſtates.

CHAP. X.

Verſ. 1. A*Nother mighty Angel*] Some take it of Chriſt, becauſe of his glorious apparition. Others, of ſome angel imployed by him, becauſe he is commanded by another angel, Chap. 14.14,15. He is called, Another mighty Angel, to diſtinguiſh him from that mighty one mentioned before, chap. 5.2. His might is ſpoken of, to terrifie thoſe that would not repent, after ſo many plagues.

come down from heaven] See Chap. 3. 12. As ſent from God, to do him ſome ſervice here beneath.

with a cloud] The cloud on him, and rainbow over him, are for glory, Chap. 4.3. or, to ſignifie, that men will not take notice of him, to repent at his word, who is as it were hid from them, Lam. 3 44. And the rainbow may ſignifie Gods willingneſſe to ſpare them, and unwillingneſſe to deſtroy them, if they will yet repent, Gen. 9.11, &c. that none might periſh by the flood of Gods wrath hereafter.

face as the ſun] Full of brightneſſe. That all might clearly diſcern imminent deſtruction, if they repented not, verſ. 6,7.

feet as pillars] That is, legs, by a ſynecdoche, taking the feet in with them, which are as a baſis to the legs, being as pillars, ſupporters to the body, Cant. 5.15. Here the rather ſo termed, to imply their ſtrength and firmneſſe, 1 King. 7.21.

of fire] Either for the brightneſſe of them, or having power to conſume Gods enemies, Chap. 1.15. Pſal. 74.3.

V. 2. a little book] Containing in it the reſt of this revelation of the ſtate of the Church, Chriſts little flock, Luke 12. 32.

open] Not ſealed up, as the other was, chap. 5.1.

right foot on the ſea, &c.] To ſhew a power given him over ſea and land, to puniſh the moſt remote in the furtheſt Iſlands of the world. The right foot is ſaid to be over the ſea, becauſe it is more unruly then the earth, Pſal. 93.1,3,4.

V. 3. a loud voyce] See Chap. 5.2.

as when a lion roareth] To ſhew, that greater judgments were yet to come on the enemies of the Church, Iſa. 21.8. Amos 3.8. Thus he ſeeketh to terrifie men, that they may repent.

when he had cryed] The thunders were as an echo, anſwering to the angels cry.

ſeven thunders] Gr. the ſeven thunders. Perhaps an alluſion to Chap. 8.5. where thunders, are mentioned; but uttered no intelligible ſound till now. Theſe thundered heavy judgments, yet not here expreſt.

V. 4. I was about to write] It ſeemeth, ſeeing he was about to write what the thunders propheſied, that he heard their words.

Seal up thoſe things] Publiſh them not, Dan. 12.4,9. It may be, God would not have them known till neer the accompliſhment, Chap. 22.10. as no man could read the ſealed book, chap. 5.2,3. Or, leſt men ſhould think them feigned things, or deſpair, becauſe of the extraordinary evils threatned by them. Things written are often ſealed, for ſurety, as bonds and deeds; as Jer. 32.10. Dan. 12.4. but here ſealing is intended for ſecrecy, to conceal, and not to publiſh, as in letters, or to write ſo as may be publiſhed, as is in this verſe expounded. It may be, it was reſerved for a fitter time; and ſo ſome Greek Copies read it; and hereafter write them: or, that hereafter thou mayeſt write them. For, what God revealed to John, was to be ſhewed to his ſervants, Chap. 1.1. unleſſe Chriſt ſhould honour his beloved apoſtle, here, with ſome heavenly ſecrets which ſhould never be publiſhed, as he did the apoſtle of the Gentiles, 2 Cor. 12. 4.

thoſe things] It ſeemeth the thunders uttered divers matters.

V. 5. ſtand] Gr. ſtanding, verſ. 2. lifted up his hand to heaven] Dan. 12.7. This was their manner of ſwearing, Gen. 14.22. Exod. 6.8. Deut. 32.40. Num. 14. 30. Ezek. 20.15. whereby they ſignified, that they called God, who dwelleth in heaven, Matth. 6.9. to witneſſe the truth of what they ſware, and to puniſh them, if they ſware falſly, 2 Cor. 1. 23.

V. 6. by him that liveth for ever and ever] By the living God, by whom alone men ought to ſwear, Jer. 4.2. & 5.2.

who created] Theſe tokens of Gods omnipotency are brought, to ſhew Gods power in all theſe places, as being Creatour of them, and conſequently, both Lord over them, and able to do whatſoever he will with them, and in them, Pſal. 146.6. & 135. 6. Dan. 4.35.

time no longer] The time of the Roman Empire ſhould laſt no longer. Or, there ſhould be no longer delay, but thoſe things enſuing ſhould be forthwith put in execution, Ezek. 12. 27, 28.

V. 7. when he ſhall begin to ſound] Gr. when he ſhall ſound; as 2 Kings 3.1. he began to reign. Heb. he reigned. So 2 King. 12. 1. & 15.2. when he began to reign. Heb. when he reigned. But it may be as well underſtood, After he hath ſounded; as the particle is uſed, Mark 4.32. John 8.28.

the myſtery of God] Of calling the Jews; and making a glorious Church of Jews and Gentiles, Rom. 11.25. This ſhall be done, when Rome is deſtroyed, Chap. 11.15. & 16.17.

as he hath declared] He told the Prophets the things, but not the time. The Greek word ſignifieth, He told theſe joyful tydings. For the glory of the Church, when the Jews come in, will be as another Goſpel, or glad tydings, Luke 2.10. to the world, Rom. 11.15.

to his ſervants] In a more ſpecial manner: of which, ſee Chap. 1.1.

the Prophets] Dan. 2.44. & 7.26,27. & 12.7. Hoſ. 1.11. & 3. 4,5. They were firſt acquainted with it, and publiſhed it to the world, though not ſo plainly as the Apoſtle hath done, Rom. 11.

but it ſhall be] Or, though it be. Or, yet it ſhall be. For it would come into the mouth, before it came into the belly; as verſ. 10.

in thy mouth ſweet as hony] Pſal. 19. 10. & 119. 103. The revelation of theſe myſteries will be very pleaſing to thee at firſt.

V. 10. and

V. 10. and ate it up] He did not eat part of it, but ate it all up, as he was bidden. He obeyeth, notwithſtanding the diſcouragement, verſ.9. His love to Gods oracles was ſo great, he feared no trouble enſuing Jer.15.16.

V. 11. thou muſt propheſie again] As thou haſt had prophecies revealed to thee before in the ſeals and trumpets, to communicate to men; ſo thou ſhalt have others communicated in the vials, to the ſame end; which things are contained in this little book which thou haſt eaten up. So Ezekiel was to propheſie, after he had eaten the book, Ezek.3.1,4.

before many peoples] Or, againſt many peoples. So the word is taken, Luke 12.52,53. See Jer.1.10.

and nations, &c.] This ſetteth out multitudes, Chap. 5. 9. & 7.9.

and Kings] Thou ſhalt foretel their deſtruction, or ſuch good or bad things as ſhall befall them, Chap.19.18. & 20.8.

CHAP. XI.

Verſ. 1. T*Here was given me*] From God, very likely, to ſhew the work to be his: elſe John would have ſaid the angel gave it him.

a reed] Many nations uſed reeds or canes to meaſure with, becauſe, being hollow, they were lighter, and fitter for that uſe. The intent here is, to meaſure out a Church for God under the antichriſtian perſecution. For the reed, ſee Ezek.40.3.

like unto a rod] Such a rod as was uſed alſo in meaſuring, and is to this day with us. Therefore Iſrael is called, The rod of Gods inheritance, Pſal.74.2. Jer.10.16. Scepters alſo are called rods in the original, Pſal.45.6. & 110.2. So that the Church was to be upheld in thoſe times by the favour of ſome Prince; for ſuch uſed rods or Scepters to be carried before them, for honour. So were the Waldenſes upheld by the Counts of Tolouze, and others.

the angel ſtood] In likelihood, as before, Chap.10.2,5,8. that nothing might be done but in his preſence.

Riſe] This doth not neceſſarily import that he was ſitting before; but it is an uſual phraſe in Scripture, whereby men are called and incited to go inſtantly about ſome work wherein they were not formerly employed, Num.23.17,18. Deut.13.14. Jon.1.2.

meaſure the temple of God] An alluſion to Ezek. 40. 1, &c. where the temple, with all in it, was to be meaſured by Gods appointment, to ſhew, that that building was of God. So muſt the patern of his Church in the wilderneſſe, to inform, that God would keep them ſafe, in deſpight of men.

and the altar] All that was in the inner court, or court of Prieſts. To ſhew, that they whom theſe typified, ſhould remain hallowed and appropriated ſtill to God.

and them that worſhip therein] In the temple. For the court of the Prieſts joyned unto the temple, and was eſteemed as a part of the temple; as Matth.12.5,6. The prieſts in the temple profane the ſabbath, to wit, by killing beaſts in the prieſts court. And it is accounted as it were within the temple, Ezek. 44. 17, 19. for there were the ſacrifices offered, and into it the people might not come, no more then into the temple it ſelf. This ſignifieth, that true Chriſtians ſhould then be as few, in compariſon of idolatrous ones, as the Prieſts and Levites, that worſhipped in the inner court, were, in compariſon of the people, that worſhipped in the outward. True Chriſtians are compared to Prieſts, Chap.1.6. By meaſuring theſe, he meaneth, numbering them, to wit, for life; as 2 Sam.8.2. or ſalvation. See Chap.7.4. By all this is ſignified, that Gods people, while antichriſt raged, ſhould have a place in the wilderneſſe, where they might ſerve God according to his will, as the Jews offered ſacrifices on the altar in the temple, and which ſhould be for ſafety, as a ſanctuary to them, Iſa.8.14. Ezek.11.16. Therefore temple, and altar, and worſhippers, and all are meaſured. So Jeruſalem is meaſured after the captivity, that it may be inhabited again, Zech.1.2,3,4. God would own no more worſhip nor worſhippers then theſe. The reſt he would refuſe, though Chriſtians by profeſſion, verſ.2.

V. 2. the court which is without the temple] An alluſion to that which is called the outward court, Ezek. 40. 17. The great court, and diſtinct from the court of the Prieſts, 2 Chron. 4. 9.

leave out] Gr. caſt out: To wit, as profane, and that which God will make no account of. So we caſt things out of doors, that are of no price or uſe. Or, leave out; that is, count it not any part of the temple, though it be ſometime ſo called. As, Matth.21.12. the buyers and ſellers are ſaid to be in the temple, which were in this outward court of the temple. Or, leave it out, that is, meaſure it not, as Chap.10.4. Seal up thoſe things which the ſeven thunders have written; that is, write them not. Or, he putteth the things ſignified firſt, and then the ſign. Leave the places where the true religion was profeſſed, to idolaters, while the Church is ſerving God in the wilderneſs, as in the inner court of the temple; and let this be a ſign of it, that thou meaſure it not, as thou didſt the temple, and inner court. This ſignifieth, that in thoſe times the viſible Church of ſuch as bare the name of Chriſtians, were to be caſt out, as excommunicated of God, neither were the ſervants of God to account them as Gods building, meaſured by his reed, or as Gods approve Church.

given unto the Gentiles] The Papiſts, which are idolaters, like unto the Gentiles, ſhall poſſeſſe the outward face of the viſible Church, for a time. For the outward court, here alluded to, was as it were the face of the temple. And they are called Gentiles, or heathen, by alluſion to the Church of the old Teſtament, where all that were not Gods people, or were enemies of them, were ſo called, Pſal.2.1. & 79.1. Luke 2.32. Acts 4. 25. Gal.2.12,15. Eph.2.11,12,14. 1 Cor.10.20.

the holy city] He alludeth to Hieruſalem, called the holy city, Dan.9.24. Matth.27.53. So named, becauſe in it was the temple, the prieſts, the ſacrifices, and all the conſecrated things.

ſhall they tread under foot] See Dan.9.26. both temple and city poſſeſſed by the enemies. They ſhall baniſh religion out of thoſe places, where it was viſibly profeſſed before. Or, they ſhall exerciſe their falſe religion there. So treading Gods courts is taken for publick ſervice, Iſa.1.12. Or, the people of God, that worſhip God in the deſert, ſhall be perſecuted by them, and kept under, Iſa.14.25. Dan.7.23. Amos 5.11.

fourty and two moneths] That is, a thouſand two hundred and threeſcore dayes, verſ.3. Chap. 12.6. allowing thirty dayes to each moneth. Hereby are meant ſo many years as Prophets uſe to reckon. So weeks are put for weeks of years, or ſo many years as there be dayes in every one of thoſe weeks, Dan. 9. 24. 25,26. Or, a long time.

V. 3. And] Or, But. So the particle is uſed, Matth.11.19. Mark 12.12.

I will give power] Notwithſtanding antichriſts perſecuting of them, I will give power, &c. Or, I will give unto my two witneſſes, that they may propheſie, Luke 3.20. Or, I will give it; that is, I will give the temple to my two witneſſes, to preach in the deſert, while antichriſt and his followers exerciſe their idolatrous worſhip in the court, and holy city, or the places where I was truly worſhipped before.

two witneſſes] So called, becauſe they bear witneſſe to truth and holineſſe, againſt all the errours and unholineſſe of antichriſt. In the number two, is an alluſion to Moſes and Aaron in the wilderneſſe, Elijah and Eliſha, when the Iſraelites worſhipped the calves and Baal, Zerubbabel and Jehoſhua, in Babylon, and after the return of the people. Or, two, becauſe two witneſſes were ſufficient to confirm a thing, Deut. 17. 6. Matth. 18. 16. 2 Cor. 13. 1. Miniſters are Chriſts witneſſes, Act 1.8.

they ſhall propheſie] Inſtruct the people how to worſhip God according to his word, and foretell the ruine of antichriſt and his adherents, out of Gods word.

a thouſand two hundred and threeſcore dayes] So long as antichriſts reign and perſecution laſteth, ſome ſhall preach Gods truth. See verſ.2. It ſeemeth to be ſo many years, becauſe it is a broken number; for whole ones, as ten, twenty, an hundred, uſe to be put indefinitely. The profanation of the idolaters, is counted by moneths, verſ.2. which are reckoned by the courſe of the moon, becauſe their worſhip is a work of darkneſſe, and of the night, wherein the moon ruleth, Gen.1.16. Whereas the propheſying of the two witneſſes is reckoned by dayes; for true religion is compared to light, Acts 26.18. 2 Cor.6.14. See the like in the times of the beaſts blaſphemy, and of the womans being in the wilderneſſe, Chap.13.5. & 12.6. Or, their propheſying is reckoned by dayes, not by years, becauſe it is a work of every day, and of continual labour.

clothed in ſackcloth] Mourning for the idolatry of the papiſts ſpreading it ſelf ſo faſt and ſo far, and for the troubles of the true Church. Sackcloth is worn in ſad times, 2 Kings 6. 30. Amos 8.9,10.

V. 4. Theſe are &c.] In this verſe, is ſet down their goodneſſe extended to their friends, the people of God: in the next, their power to hurt or deſtroy their enemies, till the time of their propheſying ſhould be done; for then muſt they be killed by their foes, verſ.7.

the two olive-trees] Zech. 4.3,11,14. Miniſtring oyl to the candleſticks abundantly: for they are not branches, as in Zechariah, but whole trees. Theſe times of perſecution here foretold, would require abundance of all graces in Gods miniſters, to hold up the hearts of his fainting people, by plentiful inſtruction and conſolation. And ſuch did God then ſend, furniſhed abundantly from heaven, (when means of inſtruction failed) as olive-trees are with oyl.

and the two candleſticks] That is, they were with the two candleſticks or churches. So and, in the Hebrew, is taken and tranſlated with, 1 Sam. 14. 18 with the children of Iſrael. There were ſeven golden candleſticks before, Chap.1.20. but now, by perſecution, they are brought to two; and two Miniſters muſt ſuffice them. They are ſaid to be two, becauſe theſe perſecuted Churches conſiſt of Jews and Gentiles: or elſe, becauſe they lived both in the eaſtern and weſtern empire.

ſtanding before] By ſtanding before God, ſome underſtand, that they were hidden from men in thoſe times of trouble. Others, that they miniſtred to God, Deut.10.18. 1 Kings 17.1. as great officers ſtand before Kings, to miniſter to them, 1 Kings 10. 8. Prov. 22. 29. Jer. 22. 12. compared with 2 Kings 25. 8, Chap.8.2.

the God of the earth] Who owneth and ruleth all the earth, Pſal.24.1. & 93.1,2,3. & 95.3,4. God is called, The God of heaven and earth, Gen.24.3. The God of heaven, Dan.2.19. but here he is called, The God of the earth, to ſhew, for the comfort of the Church, that howſoever antichriſt ſeemed to ſway all on earth, and all the world went wondering after him, Chap.13.3. yet God keepeth the rule of the earth in his own hands ſtill, and can protect his ſelected and marked ones, againſt the rage of antichriſt and his adherents.

V. 5. if any man will hurt them] That is, any way wrong them, or attempt to hinder them in the courſe of their propheſie.

fire proceedeth out of their mouth] Their revenge is ſpiritual. They can pray to God, and he will deſtroy their enemies. An alluſion to 2 King.1.10. Or threatnings pronounced by them, ſhall light upon their enemies, becauſe they deſpiſed their teſtimony, Jer.5.13,14.

in this manner] It is repeated, to ſhew the certainty of it. Or, it may have relation to the judgments following, verſ.6.

V. 6. to ſhut heaven] An alluſion to 1 Kings 17. 1. Luke 4. 25. James 5.17, 18. It may be underſtood of reſtraining the rain: or ſpiritually, of ſhutting men out of heaven, Matth. 16. 19. John 20.23.

in the dayes of their propheſie] See verſ.6. Three years and ſix moneths in Elijahs time, anſwerable to the number of moneths here, verſ.2.

to turn them to blood] See Exod. 7. 20. Either literally, by their prayers; or myſtically to kill ſouls by their preaching, 2 Cor.2.15.

with all plagues] What they threaten, God will ſend, on the contemners of his word in their mouthes, Jer. 1.10. Or, with other plagues, like thoſe of Egypt, or worſe, Chap.14.9,10.

as often as they will] Whenſoever, upon juſt occaſion, they deſire it of God, Matth.18.18,19.

V. 7. And when they ſhall have] An alluſion to our Saviours preaching, death, reſurrection. He preached about three years and an half, then was put to death, and about three days after, riſeth again with an earthquake, and aſcendeth into heaven with a cloud. Thus theſe two witneſſes reſemble that faithful and true Witneſſe mentioned, Chap.3.14.

finiſhed their teſtimony] When the years mentioned verſ. 3. are done: for before that time they could not be ſlain. See notes on verſ.5. So that the Witneſſes are ſuffered to be ſlain, becauſe God had no more work for them to do. If God had given them a longer time to preach, they ſhould have continued, in deſpight of their enemies. So our Saviour could not be ſlain till his hour was come, John 8.20. and then he was put to death, Luke 22.53, &c.

the beaſt that aſcendeth, &c] Chap.13.11. & 17.8. Antichriſt, or the Pope, who is compared to a beaſt, becauſe of his inhumanity, cruelty, and thirſt after mens blood. And he is ſaid to come out of the bottomleſſe pit; that is, out of the ſea; as Chap.13.1. or out of the body of the earth, as Chap. 13. 11. or out of hell, as Chap.9.2. He aſcendeth, that is, beginneth now to aſcend, in his inſtruments or fore-runners, 2 Theſſ. 2. 6. 1 Joh.2.18.

make war againſt them] Dan.7.21. Shall perſecute them, and endeavour to deſtroy them. They were perſecuted and fought againſt by antichriſt often before; but this was the laſt battel before their death, and riſing again to begin the ruine of antichriſts kingdome.

ſhall overcome them] Who yet even then overcame him, Chap.12.11.

and kill them] When he cannot ſtop their mouthes, he ſhall kill them, that they may preach no more.

V. 8. and their dead bodies] See the cruelty of this ravening beaſt, that is not contented with the blood of Gods Saints, but muſt lay their carcaſes forth in triumph, that all people may ſee the enſigne of her immanity, and will not afford them ſo much honour as to be buried, Pſal.79.2,3.

in the ſtreet of the great city] Within the dominion of the Romane Empire. And it is called the great city, either in regard of the amplitude of power, and large territories; as verſ. 13. and as the great king, Iſa.36.4. that is, King of kings, Dan. 2. 37. See Chap.17.18 & 18.2. Or elſe in regard of the ſpaciouſneſſe of the City it ſelf, being yet, now part of it is deſtroyed, fifteen miles compaſſe within the walls, and twenty two, when this ſtory was written, as ſome Writers report.

ſpiritually called Sodom] For uncleanneſſe of all ſorts, Gen. 19.5. Ezek.16.50. It is not then Sodom literally taken. See Chap.17.5. Beſides the practice of whoredome in the ſtews, without control, at Rome, books have been written there in defence of ſodomy, and allowed by ſome Popes.

and Egypt] For oppreſſing Gods people, Exod.1.13,14. and for idolatry, Exod.12.12. Jer. 12. 13. For they made gods of cats, crocodiles, and of divers beaſts, Exod.8.26. Moſes pointeth at this, as a cauſe why they durſt ſacrifice no cattel in Egypt. And Rome hath worſhipped as many Saints, as the heathen falſe gods; and had as many images to worſhip, as they idols.

where alſo] Within whoſe dominions. Or, if it be meant of the city of Rome, Chriſt was there crucified in his members, Act. 9.5. So Heb.6.6. may be underſtood of malicious perſecuting of Chriſt in his Saints. And he himſelf alſo was crucified by the authority of that empire, Matth.20.19. John 18.31. & 19.12, &c.

V. 9. And they of the people, &c.] That is, in all places of the Romane Empire, dead carcaſes of Gods miniſters ſhall be ſeen. Or, And ſome of the people, for all could not come to ſee them: ſee Chap.5.9. & 7.9. ſhall ſee their dead bodies. Shall look upon them in ſcorn and deriſion, Luke 23. 35. Iſa. 14. 16. For theſe are the nations ſubject to the beaſt, Chap.13.7,8. and ſuch as are afraid at the reſurrection of theſe witneſſes, verſ. 11. and as trod under foot the holy city, verſ.2.

three dayes and an half] Three years and an half. This muſt be underſtood of divers perſons ſlain in this laſt war, in that ſpace. Or, if it be taken of the ſame bodies, it muſt be underſtood literally, for three natural dayes and an half; for they would ſtink, or be rotted away, before three years and an half be ended.

ſhall not ſuffer, &c.] They ſhall let them lye unburied ſo long, that they may glut their eyes with looking upon them: as if they could never have their fill of ſuch a pleaſing ſpectacle, as is that of the dead witneſſes. Yet Gods providence might be ſeen herein, in ſuffering them to lye ſo long unburied, that people might admire the more, ſeeing others like them ariſe up to vex them, when they verily perſwaded themſelves they had been all ſlain.

V. 10. they that dwell on the earth] Out of the true Church, in antichriſts kingdome, Chap.12.12. & 13.8. As on the contrary, they that dwell in the Church, are ſaid to be in heaven, Chap.13.6. & 18.20.

ſhall rejoyce over them] Go daily to ſee their dead carcaſes, with joy. Or, when they think of them.

and make merry] Make feaſts, in token of their joy; as Neh. 8.10,12. Luke 15.23,24. If they did not this literally here, yet were they as joyful as they that did ſo.

ſend gifts] In token of joy, Eſth. 9.19,22. For men in proſperity love to have others rejoyce with them. So ſecure were they, now they thought theſe Prophets quite gone, that they not onely rejoyce themſelves, both inwardly and outwardly, but do what they can to make all others rejoyce with them at the death of them.

becauſe theſe two prophets] See verſ.3,6.

tormented them] Or, had tormented them. They did not joy that they were tormented, but that they were rid and avenged of theſe miniſters, who troubled their conſciences, by preaching againſt their idolatry, 1 King.18.17. & 21.20. Act.16.20. and threatning Gods judgments againſt them for it; beſides that, their witneſſe it ſelf was a great torment unto them.

V. 11. after three dayes and an half] Or, after thoſe three dayes and an half: to wit, of their bodies lying unburied, mentioned verſ. 9.

ſpirit of life from God] A living ſoul, or breath of life, put into them by God, Gen.2.7. Ezek.37.10. God inſpired others with the ſame ſpiritual graces that he had given them, and ſtirred them up to preach againſt Popery, as they had done before. See Chap.20.4.

entred into them] That which ſhould come to paſſe after, was ſhewed to John in a viſion, as if it were now done.

they ſtood upon their feet] God raiſed miniſters as powerful as they. So John Baptiſt is called Elias, Matth. 11.14.

which ſaw them] The perſecutours were troubled, when God raiſed miniſters to preach againſt their idolatry. They thought they had made ſure work, and that they ſhould never more have been troubled with Prophets: and now they are afraid that theſe will trouble them more then ever the former did.

V. 12. a great voyce] A ſtout proclamation of ſome Chriſtian Princes, calling them to the ſetling of viſible Churches; or of the Emperour himſelf, giving an open toleration of their religion.

they aſcended up to heaven in a cloud] Chap.14.14. They were ſetled ſtrangely, and by divine authority, in the viſible Church, with liberty, honour, and ſupport, to the admiration of their adverſaries. Their ſackcloth is now taken from them: they may propheſie chearfully, without ſorrow and danger. Others underſtand it of coming openly into the viſible Church with a cloud or multitude of witneſſes (as Heb. 12.1.) rejoycing and congratulating with them, and encouraging them, and helping, like a cloud, to advance them. Others take it to be meant of a gentle way of reformation, by the word, not a violent one, by the ſword, as it were by a whirlwind. Others, for their imperfect knowledg, at the firſt, of thoſe things which concerned Gods publick worſhip.

their enemies] The antichriſtian faction, who put them to death.

beheld them] As it was a great honour to theſe witneſſes, that their enemies ſhould ſee them thus advanced; ſo it was a great terrour to their foes: for as they could not hinder their preferment, ſo now they had no hope to ſlay them any more, although they preached publickly againſt their idolatry: for they were as ſafe now, by Gods protection in his Church, as if they were in heaven it ſelf, Pſal.112.10.

V. 13. the ſame hour was there a great earthquake] Hereby is not meant the twenty fourth part of a natural day, but about that time, as Chap.14 7. & 17. 12. Aſſoon as the miniſters of Chriſt began to preach, and were ſeparated from the Papiſts, and ſettled in ſome places, great commotions aroſe in many cities. For, as the natural earthquake, ſuch as is ſpoken of, Amos 1.1. Matth.28.2. ſhaketh the earth, by the force of the wind gotten into it: ſo myſtical earthquakes make cities and kingdomes quake with wars and troubles, when the Goſpel beginneth to be preached in them: and therefore ſuch ſtirs are ſet out by earthquakes, Chap.6.12. & 16.18.

the tenth part of the city fell] In their means; for the Pope had tenths out of many Kingdoms, in imitation of the Jewiſh Prieſts, and of the Romane Emperours, who had it before. Alſo Germany fell from him, in a great part, which, joyned with thoſe that fell off from him in other Countries, might make up a tenth part of the Romiſh Popiſh territory, compared to a City divided into ten parts, ſeven thouſand dwelling in each part; and one part was now ſwallowed up by an earthquake.

of men ſeven thouſand] Gr. names of men; that is, men, Chap. 3.4. Act.1.15. Or, men of note, called, in Hebrew, men of name; that is, of renown, Gen.6.4. for it is likely that more ordinary men dyed in theſe ſtirs. Unleſſe it be put for a great number, as round whole ſums often are, and this may be, 1 King.19.18. Rom.11.4. This ſum is uſed in this book thirty ſeven times, as ſome Commentators write. Sure it is, many that were of the Popiſh Religion, have periſhed in the wars, ſince reformation begun. Or, many ſocieties. Or, he addeth names, to ſhew, that ſo many were taken notice of. More might periſh then. Which ſheweth, that God doth not deſtroy his foes at all adventure, but deſigneth them by name, whom he intendeth to ſlay. See notes on Chap.3.4.

gave glory to the God of heaven] By confeſſing, that they who periſhed were juſtly puniſhed for their ſins, Joſh.7.19. Or, by confeſſing his Name, and turning Proteſtants as many have done. Or, by praiſing God that they eſcaped, Joh. 9.24. This they did, being terrified by the earthquake or ſtirs.

V. 14. The ſecond wo is paſt] Of thoſe three woes which the angel foretold, Chap.8.13. the firſt and ſecond are gone with the fifth and ſixth trumpets, Chap.9.12. (ſee notes there) and in this verſe. The third followeth, which beginneth when the ſeventh trumpet beginneth to blow. This, with the verſes following, ſheweth us whereabouts we are in the ſtory, namely, about the time of the publick profeſſion of the true religion again in the empire by authority, after popery began to fall. So that it ſeemeth ſafeſt to go backward. The peace of religion was eſtabliſhed in Germany, in the year one thouſand five hundred fifty and nine, at Auſburg, in a dyet, under Ferdinand the Emperour, who ſucceeded Charles the fifth. Now the miniſters are placed in heaven, that is, in the Church, by imperial authority. True it is, that religion was publickly allowed, before this time, in Denmark and Sweden, about the year one thouſand five hundred thirty and eight, as Writers of that ſtory record. But becauſe the revelation taketh principal notice of the empire, it ſeemeth fitteſt, that the end of the treading down the beloved City, and the beginning of the miniſters liberty, ſhould be there intended. So that the meaſuring of the Temple, or appointing a Church to continue, and endure perſecution by Papiſts, is likely to begin in the year two hundred ninety and nine: as alſo the footſteps of perſecution by the high-grown Romane biſhops, who began diſſentions in the Church, before they grew to their full height. Or elſe the meaning of thoſe words, verſ.2. the holy city ſhall they tread under foot fourty and two moneths, is, their treading of it under foot ſhall end then, though it did not laſt all that time; as Iſrael is ſaid to be afflicted in Egypt four hundred years, Gen.15.13. Act.7.6. though, to reconcile thoſe places with Gal.3.17. many Interpreters conceive that time to begin from the promiſe made to Abraham, Gen.12 3. or 22.18. long after which time, they came into Egypt. Neither did they ſuffer any ill meaſure there at firſt, all the time Joſeph lived; but their troubles ended at the time preſcribed by God. And ſo did the publick treading of religion under foot in the empire end at that decree, one thouſand five hundred fifty and nine, as alſo the propheſying of the witneſſes in ſackcloth, verſ.3. a little before. Then followeth their death, v.7. which is like to be in thoſe Germane wars a while before the peace, wherein, as many miniſters were baniſhed and put out of all, by civil authority, which is a civil death; ſo, no doubt, many were cruelly ſlain: and were inſulted over, as if their dead bodies had been expoſed to publick view, and feaſts made for joy that they were dead, verſ.8, 9, 10. Or, thoſe witneſſes ſeem to be a ſucceſſion of true preachers, as before, ſo eſpecially among the Waldenſes. The cruelty ſhewed on them of Merindoll and Cabriers, very few years before the liberty of religion granted in the Empire, may be the killing of the laſt of theſe miniſters; and the leaving their bodies unburied followed. The free exerciſe of religion granted as before, ſeemeth to be their calling up, and the firſt ſettling of it, their aſcending into heaven, verſ.11, 12. The earthquake may ſignifie the ſtirs in Germany about that time; and the things following it, the men and means falling from the pope, and papiſts ſlain in the war, and others turning proteſtants, verſ. 13. So the ſecond and ſixth trumpet is done, in this verſe.

the third wo cometh quickly] It beginneth, ſoon after, to be executed, Chap.22.7. to wit, under the ſeventh trumpet, and holdeth on in the Vials.

The ſeventh Trumpet.

V. 15. And the ſeventh Angel ſounded] As was foretold, chap. 10.7. though for a time intermitted.

great voices in heaven] Great praiſe given to God by his people, for this ſudden alteration. See Chap. 19.1, 4.

the Kingdomes of our Lord] Antichriſt is weakned, and Chriſt hath begun to take the Kingdome out of his hand, and ſhall have a viſible Church like an empire, in all the known world, and that to the end. There was no ſuch ſong in the ſixth ſeal, when Conſtantine put down heathen idolatry, becauſe then the Church was to be polluted and perſecuted again, for a long time after, by the Romane antichriſt.

V. 20. And the four and twenty elders] See Chap.4.10. Publick thanks is now given in the Church. See Chap.19.1, 4.

fell upon their faces] They thought it not reverence enough to riſe off their ſeats, but fell flat on their faces, worſhipping God, and congratulating the ſetting up of religion publickly, ſo-as it never ſhall be driven into corners again, as it was twice before, by Gentiles and Papiſts.

V. 17. Almighty] See Chap.1.8. They praiſe him, becauſe he had ſhewed his infinite power in freeing his Church.

which art, &c.] This ſetteth out Gods eternity. See notes on Chap.1.4, 8. & 4.8.

taken to thee thy great power] Shewed thy great power, in weakning antichriſt. Or, haſt ſhewed that thou art King of the world; which many doubted of before, becauſe of antichriſts great power over thy Church.

V. 18. the nations] Or, Gentiles; as verſ.2. The Popiſh idolatours. They ſhewed their anger in perſecuting, before, which brought Gods wrath upon them; or in fighting now, or in fretting then, when they were overcome, Pſal. 2.1, 2. Acts 4. 25, 26.

thy wrath] The time to execute thy wrath on ſuch as repented not in time of thy forbearance.

the time of the dead, &c.] The time to puniſh bloody perſecutours for killing thy Saints, Chap.4.10.

judged] Or, avenged, Pſal.26.1. Luke 18.3.

give reward to thy ſervants, &c.] Chap.1.1. Give proſperity to thy miniſters and people, which have ſuffered hard things. The miniſters are put firſt, who, as they are principal in the victory, ſo muſt they have the firſt part in the ſpoyles.

and ſhouldeſt deſtroy them, &c.] Shouldeſt deſtroy many bloody perſecutours; for the deſtruction of Rome it ſelf followeth, Chap.18. and of antichriſt, Chap.19. yet now began the deſtruction of Popiſh perſecutours; and many have periſhed in the wars, ſince the time of reformation.

deſtroy] Or, corrupt.

the earth] The men of the earth, Gen.6.11.

V. 19. the temple of God] The Church now appearing again openly, is compared to the temple of Hieruſalem, wherein the ark was. It was ſhut up before, as that of Hieruſalem under Ahaz, 2 Chron.28.24. and this, when it was meaſured, ver.1. and the court given to the Gentiles, verſ.2. Now it is ſet open, as that was by Hezekiah, 2 Chron.29.3. not to receive a few Saints, as before, in times of perſecution, but whole multitudes of believers. This noteth the free exerciſe of religion which mas eſtabliſhed.

the ark of his teſtament] Not the Temple alone, but the ark alſo, which was ſhut up from the eyes of men, in the old teſtament, 1 King.6.19. and ſeen ſeldom, and by the high Prieſt alone, was now opened: that is, the myſteries of religion, formerly hidden, were now revealed. So that lay-men know as much now, as ſome few eccleſiaſtical perſons of great note knew before, of the hidden myſteries of ſalvation. And therefore the elders praiſe God for this, which repreſent the people, Chap.4.10. and not the beaſts or living wights, which ſignifie the miniſters, Chap. 4. 6. not that the miniſters had not more knowledg then the people; but becauſe the people that were kept from all ſuch knowledg before, now know more then many prieſts knew before. The papiſts had poſſeſſed the court. The people of God had a ſmall temple in the wilderneſſe. Some of the clergie-men God raiſed up, now and then, to teach the people. The hidden things of God, like the holy place, were ſeen of a few choſen inſtruments. Now the people of God have a temple open to worſhip God in, and a full ſight of Gods holy myſteries, hidden from them before.

lightnings, &c.] See Chap.4.5. Earthquake and hail ſet out Gods terrible judgements irreſiſtible, Iſa. 26. 9. & 28. 2. & 30.30. Hail is called a plague, Chap.16.21. And it may allude either to the hailſtones that deſtroyed the trees in Egypt, Exod. 9.25. or thoſe that deſtroyed the Amorites in Canaan, Joſh. 10. 11. It may foretel the final deſtruction of antichriſt and his adherents, in a ſtrange manner; which, though not preſently, yet muſt come to paſſe under this trumpet: and his fall is now begun: and as he was long in riſing, ſo may he be in falling. Or, it may ſignifie the deſtruction of many perſecutours by the ſword, ſince the reforming of religion. Or, the impoveriſhing and fretting of the abbey-lubbers, for the loſs of their means, and the happy progreſſe of the Goſpel.

CHAP. XII.

Verſ. 1 VV*onder*] Or, ſign. A ſtrange ſight and apparition, as appeareth by that which followeth.

in heaven] This viſion appeared to John in this viſible heaven, where the ſun, moon and ſtars are. It could not be ſeen in the third heaven, where ſaints and angels are; for there is no ſun nor moon there, Iſa.60.19. Chap.21.23. & 22. 5. And it fitteth the dignity and ſanctity of the Church, whoſe converſation is in heaven, Phil.3. 20. remote from the dark miſts of worldly errours, and lifting it ſelf above worldly affairs and comforts.

a woman] Repreſenting the Chriſtian Church, compared to a virgin eſpouſed to Chriſt, 2 Cor.11.2. to a bride, Chap.19. 7. & 21.9. & 22.17. to a wife, Eph.5.25,26,27,32.

clothed with the ſun] The Church of God, the Spouſe of Chriſt, the brighteſt and moſt glorious creature in the world. She ſhineth, in the doctrine of her miniſters, and lives of her members, Matth.5.14, 15, 19. or, as being clothed with Chriſts righteouſneſſe, whom ſhe hath put on, Gal. 3. 27. In the former ſenſe, ſhe ſhineth before the world: in this, before God. See Chap.19.8.

the moon under her feet] Or, far beneath. Treading under foot the Jewiſh feaſts, which depended, many of them, on the moon. Or, contemning worldly things, which are mutable, like the moon, as men do things which they tread under their feet.

a crown of twelve ſtars] The ſtars ſtood not one above another, but round about her head, like twelve precious ſtones in the circumference of a crown. A glorious ſight, no doubt. She had the ſtars about her head, the ſun about her body, and the moon under her feet. So in the heavens, ſome ſtars are ſaid to be above the ſun, and the moon far belowe it. The thing intended ſeemeth to be, that the Church is adorned with the doctrine of the twelve apoſtles, on which ſhe is founded, Chap.21.14. or, with excellent miniſters, Chap. 1. 20. as with a diadem. For the truth of the Goſpel doth not onely make us free, Joh. 8. 36. but kings alſo, Chap. 1. 6. The Church carrieth the ſtars on her head, as her ornament; Chriſt, in his hand, as his ſervants, Chap. 1. 16. ready to do his will. Men uſe to have crowns of gold; the Church treadeth ſuch traſh under her feet. Her glory is not worldly dignity, but her teachers integrity.

V. 2. And ſhe being with childe, &c.] Gr. having in her belly: to wit, a childe; as Matth.1.18. As the miniſters of God are compared to a woman in travel, when they ſeek to bring men to faith in Chriſt, Gal.4.19. ſo the whole Church, in another reſpect, is here compared to ſuch a woman. For as that woman is weary of her burthen, crieth out to be rid of it, and ſtriveth, and endureth much pain; ſo the Chriſtian Church, being grown very populous, ſome few years before Conſtantines time, crieth unto God by daily prayers, to raiſe up a Chriſtian emperour, that might give them the free profeſſion of the Chriſtian religion in the Romane empire. For this end alſo they did ſtrive, joyning their forces with Conſtantines, to ſubdue the heathen perſecutours. This was a cauſe of many perſecutions to her, and much bloodſhed in the wars, for a time. Here it appeareth, that we muſt begin the time of treading the holy city under foot, and of the witneſſes, before the open profeſſion of Chriſtianity granted by Conſtantine. See notes on Chap. 11.14. For here, the things foretold in the former chapter begin to be more particularly deſcribed; as appeareth, in that the ſame ſpace of a thouſand two hundred and threeſcore days which was given to the two witneſſes, Chap. 11. 3. is here given to the Church in the wilderneſſe, v.6. and as fourty and two moneths were given to the Gentiles, to tread the holy city under foot, Chap. 11. 2. ſo the ſame ſpace is given to the beaſt, to tyrannize over thoſe places where the true Chriſtian religion had been profeſſed, while the true Church is hid in the wilderneſſe, Chap.12.5.

V. 3. wonder] Or, ſign; as v. 1.

in heaven] Either becauſe the Roman Emperours had power over the Church, or becauſe they thruſt themſelves into it by their deputies, to perſecute it. As for the viſion, it is likely John ſaw it in the viſible heaven, as he did the woman. See v. 1.

a great red dragon] The heathen Roman emperours ſucceeding one another, who did the devil ſervice, as in other things, ſo chiefly in perſecuting the Church, v.9. Chap.3.10. So Pharaoh is called, Pſal.74.13,14. Iſa. 27. 1. & 51. 9. Ezek. 29.3. He is great, becauſe of his large empire, Chap. 17. 18. Red, that is, bedewed with the blood of the ſaints, as if he were, dyed with it.

ſeven heads] Sitting on ſeven hills, Chap.17.9.

ten horns] Ten kings which aroſe after, out of this empire Chap.17.12. Or, ſo many provinces, which were the ſtrength of it, as horns are of beaſts, Dan.8.3,4,5,6.

ſeven crowns] Seven kind of governours one after another, on her ſeven hills, Chap.17.10.

on his heads] Not on his horns; for the ſupreme authority was in Rome, on the ſeven hills, not in the provinces. And as in Rome they had many heads to invent miſchief againſt the Church, and as much power to execute it; ſo in the provinces they wanted not more inſtruments of execution.

V. 4. his tail drew the third part] He ſubjected the third part of the provinces of the world to his empire, Chap.6.13. or ſeduced many of the miniſters, Chap.1.20. Dan.7.10,11,12. and that by craft, Chap.9.19. Unleſſe the force of the dragon be in his tail, as ſome write.

did caſt them to the earth] Put down thoſe princes whom he ſubdued, from their royal authority. Or, drew ſome doctours of the Church to forſake the truth, and follow earthly pleaſure or profit, Phil.3.18,19. 2 Tim 4.10.

to devour her childe] To deſtroy Chriſts myſtical Body, 1 Cor. 12. 12. and not to ſuffer it to live in the empire, or to hinder any Chriſtian likely to riſe to the empire. An alluſion to Pharaohs watching to deſtroy the firſt-born of Iſrael, Exod. 1.15,16. and to Herods endeavour to deſtroy Chriſt aſſoon as he was born, Matth.2.7,8, 16.. The like care did the Roman heathen emperours uſe, to ſuppreſſe any that were of more then ordinary parts, or favour with the people, that were likely to ſet up the Chriſtian religion. So Maximinus that dragon, devoured Alexander the ſon of Mammea, whom he ſaw to be favoured of, and favourable to the Chriſtians. Decius devoured the two Philips, the father and the ſon. Diocleſian and Galerius left no ſtone unrolled, that they might have Conſtantine away privily. They ſent him to fight againſt the fierce northern nations, as Saul ſent David againſt the Philiſtines, that he might be ſlain, 1 Sam. 18. 25. when he came home victorious, contrary to the expectation of Galerius, he perſwaded Conſtantine to fight with a lion in the theatre, to ſhew his courage. Maximinianus afterward laid ſnares for him, which yet through Gods mercy he eſcaped. Laſt of all, they fought with him, to deſtroy him; but God delivered him, and deſtroyed them.

was born] Or, ſhould be born. He hoped, that, though he could not hinder the Churches conceiving, travelling, and bringing forth, no more then Pharaoh could the Iſraelitiſh womens; yet he ſhould deſtroy that ſhe brought forth.

V. 5. a man-childe, &c.] As Moſes was born, in ſpight of Pharaoh, to deliver Gods people out of Egypt; ſo now the Chriſtian Church got a deliverer, a man-childe. The like phraſe is, Iſa.66.7. It cannot be underſtood of Chriſt; for it is a prophecy of things to come after Johns time. But the Church brought forth Chriſtians profeſſing the true religion openly in the Roman empire, or Conſtantine, who was afterwards to be emperour, to ſubdue the nations, and then rule ſtrongly over them, Pſal.2.9. Chap.2.27. & 19.15.

to God, and to his throne] Meaning Conſtantine and his ſucceſſours advanced to the Roman empire, and made Gods deputies, ſitting as it were on his throne. So Solomon and David are ſaid to ſit on the Lords throne, 1 Chron.29.23. For it cannot be underſtood of our Saviour Chriſts aſcenſion, and ſitting at Gods right hand. This John knew before, as being written in the Goſpel. And many things paſſed between Chriſts death and his aſcenſion. Neither was Chriſt caught up by anothers power, as we, 1 Theſſ. 4. 17. but went up into heaven, or aſcended thither, Pſal.47.5. & 68.18. Eph.4. 8, 9, 10. to wit, by his own power. Neither can it be underſtood of Conſtantines death; for the text would not joyn his death to his birth, ſeeing much concerneth him in the battel following. He was caught up ; for he got not the empire by his endeavours ; but being a ſon of the Church, profeſſing the Chriſtian religion, he was marvelloușly preſerved by God from the rage of heathen tyrants ; and ſeeking to avoid their ſnares, he came to his dying father, and by right of ſucceſſion, and the earneſt deſires of of the people of Rome, oppreſſed with the heavy yoke of Maxentius, obtained the Romane empire, and ſo was ſet on Gods throne, to be next to God. The witneſſes are ſaid to aſcend up into heaven; but he hath a throne in heaven, to rule next under God himſelf, over the nations, yea, even the enemies of the Church, with a rod of iron. He would have been content with his honour in France and Britain, his native countrey(as he was five yeers) had he not,by Gods providence, beencaught up to a greater empire then he expected.

V. 6. fled into the wilderneſs] Not now, but after the great battel following, and under antichriſt. See v.14. For then ſhe fled from the face of the angry dragon, who perſecuted her by antichriſt, as before by the heathen emperours. An alluſion to Chriſts fleeing into Egypt, for ſuccour from Herods cruelty, Matth.2.13,14. or to the Iſraelites fleeing into the wilderneſſe from Pharaoh, that great dragon, Exod.13.17,18.

a place prepared of God] When men perſecute her, God provideth a place of ſafety for her.

that they ſhould feed her] Either it is to be taken imperſonally, That ſhe ſhould be fed ; as Luke 12.20. or the two witneſſes ſhould feed her there : for this falleth out in the ſame time, as appeareth by the number of days here, and chap.11.3. So Elias was fed in the wilderneſs,in a place prepared by God, 1 Kings 17.3,4.

V.4. war in heaven] A great battel in the Church of God. For the dragon could not fight in the higheſt heaven : there is no war there.

Michael and his angels] Conſtantine and his ſouldiers, repreſented to the eyes of John in the form of Michael the archangel and his angels, mentioned, Dan.10.13,21. & 12.1. Jude v.9.

the dragon] Maxentius,Maximinus,and Licinius,in whom the devil wrought, as his principal inſtruments to ſuppreſs the Chriſtian religion.

V. 8. and prevailed not] Or, But they prevailed not. So this particle is uſed, Mat, 11. 19. That is, they were overthrown ; as Prov.12. 3. & 17. 21. Maxentins was drowned in Tiber; Maximinus died, that ſhould have been baniſhed; Licinius loſt his head. In memory of this victory, Conſtantine pictured over the gate of his palace a dragon pierced thorow with a dart, lying under his and his ſouldiers feet.

neither was their place, &c.[Dan.2.35. Pſal. 103.16. They ruled no more in the Roman empire, now converted to the Chriſtian religion,and publikely profeſſing it. The phraſe here uſed, noteth an utter extirpation, Dan.2. 3.35. Chap.20.11.

V. 9. the great dragon] The Roman heathen emperours,and the devil with them, who poiſoneth the earth with idolatry,was no more worſhipped.

V. 10. in heaven] In the Church of God. In this ſong, they praiſe God for deliverance of the Chriſtians from tyrants, the declaration of Gods ſtrength,and the Kingdom of Chriſt, in putting down heathen emperours,and ſetting up Chriſtian, and removing their accuſer.

now is come,&c. Now is manifeſted, Chap 11.15.

accuſer of our brethren] Called the devil ; for he accuſeth us before God, Job 1.9. & 2.5. And in the time of the ten perſecutions, when the Chriſtians met by night, for fear of danger the devil by his inſtruments accuſed them before men, as if they met in the night to practiſe all manner of looſneſſe.

day and night] Continually, Pſal.1.2. Joſh. 1.8.

V. 11. And they overcame him] In the former verſe, the power of the captain was commended ; now the proweſſe of the ſouldiers is ſet out.

by the blood of the Lamb] Or, for ; Rom. 8. 33, 34, 37. and 16. 20. By vertue of Chriſts Blood, they got power to overcome Satan, and all his wicked inſtruments ; not by worldly power and ſtrength.

by the word of their teſtimony] Chriſt honoured them with this victory, becauſe they bare witneſſe of his truth. It is called, The teſtimony of Jeſus, v. 17. Chap. 19. 10. becauſe he was the object of their confeſſion. Here it is called the teſtimony, becauſe they are the perſons who confeſſed him.

loved not their lives] Acts 20. 24. 2 Cor. 11. 23. & 4. 11. But expoſed them to death. Or, deſpiſed them, and ſet them alowe, in compariſon of the confeſſion of Gods truth. They made ſo little account of them, that they expoſed them to all dangers for the cauſe of Chriſt, joyning with Conſtantine in the war againſt the perſecutours. Some underſtand this of the martyrs who died for religion before Conſtantines time.

V. 12. ye heavens] All ye Churches on earth. An alluſion to Pſal.96.11. Iſa.49.13.

ye that dwell] Gr. ye that dwell as in a tent. So Joh. 1. 14. 2 Cor.5.1. Ye that abide ſafe here a while, as in a tent, under Gods protection, till ye be tranſlated to glory, Pſal. 31.20. & 91. 1.

wo] Great grief and ſorrow will come on you.

of the earth, and of the ſea] Or, Ilands. Who live any where out of the Church of God. For earth and ſea are here oppoſed to heaven, which is the Church. So that the fruit of this victory is the joy of the ſaints, and grief of ungodly men.

having great wrath] Becauſe he is caſt out of God Church, that he can no longer tyrannize over it, he will empty his ſpleen upon his own ſervants. So he did after upon the Romane Church by the Goths and Vandals.

but a ſhort time] Gr. but a ſhort ſeaſon. The end of the world was not yet here : but he could not have ſo fit occaſion to put the ſaints to death,as before,now his Viceroy's the heathen emperours were depoſed.

V. 13. caſt into the earth] See v. 9.

he perſecuted] By the popes, when he could do it no longer by the heathen emperours. Or it may be underſtood of the Arrian perſecution, under Conſtantius and Valens ; which came within this time,and was ſeconded by popiſh perſecution, till the time prefixed was finiſhed.

which brought forth the man manchilde] Verſ.5.

V. 14. two wings of a great eagle] God gave her ſtrength to flee into a ſafe place ſpeedily, Exod.19.4. Deut.32.11,12. and ſo wonderfully delivered and preſerved her from antichriſts rage.

into the wilderneſſe] Into a private place. So did the Waldenſes, for many years, in deſert places, as thoſe mentioned, Heb.11.38.

into her place] Which God had provided for her ſafety, and where her wicked perſecutours could not come at her to hurt her.

where ſhe is nouriſhed for a time, and times, and half a time] Theſe words ſhould be in a parentheſis ; for the words following depend on the former words, that ſhe might flee into the wilderneſſe from the face of the ſerpent.

from the face] For the red dragon, that ſought to devour her ſhewed his anger in his face. This phraſe alſo ſheweth that the Church, for ſome time, was not viſible to her enemies, Iſa.16.4. Or, for fear of the ſerpent. So this phraſe is uſed, 1 Sam.17.24. & 19.10. Iſa. 21.14.

of the ſerpent] Mentioned, v.9.

V. 15. out of his mouth] Sent out bulls abroad from the popes.

water as a flood] Or. river. By his bulls, he raiſed multitudes of ſouldiers to deſtroy the Waldenſes, and other proteſtants ſince. For the end of that chapter containeth a general deſcription of the ſtate of the Church all the reign of antichriſt, which is after limned out into particulars, in the chapters immediately following. So waters, for many people coming in hoſtile manner, Iſa. 59. 19. Rev. 17. 15. and violently ſweeping away all before them, like a river, Iſa. 59. 19. Amos 8.8.

after the woman] If this be a ſecond perſecution by the popes, then the former may be by the Arrians. See notes on v. 13. Or, the popes did more cloſely perſecute before, and now more openly ſend out Croiſado's againſt the Waldenſes and others in the wilderneſſe, to be carried away of the flood] To be utterly deſtroyed out of thoſe deſert places, as he had driven her out of the inhabited world before.

V.16. And] Or, But ; as v. 8.

the earth helped the woman] The Earl of Tholous,and divers others, that were papiſts, fought for their clients and ſubjects the Waldenſes, ſeing their faithfulneſſe and painfulneſſe, which brought profit to their lords by manuring deſert places.

ſwallowed up the flood] Deſtroyed many of the popes ſouldiers ſent againſt the Waldenſes, ſo that they could never quite be rooted out. Or, the carcaſes of ſuch as went to fight againſt the proteſtants, were ſcattered upon the earth, dying by famine or plague, or war, as the Iſraelites did in the wilderneſſe, Numb. 14. 29. So the land is ſaid to eat up her inhabitants, Numb. 13. 32. And divers of the popes ſouldiers were ſo conſumed. It may be an alluſion to Num. 16.31,32. where the earth ſwallod up Dathan and Abiram, and ſo preſerved Moſes and Aaron from their inſurrection. Or, the Roman empire, which is the earth, in this book, when oppoſed to the Church; was divided in it ſelf, and ſo Gods people eſcaped.

V. 17. And] Or, Then. So this particle is uſed, Mat. 23.32. and that tranſlation is more elegant. As if it had been ſaid, When the dragon could not keep the Church out of the wilderneſs, nor deſtroy it there; then he perſecuted all her favourers he could come at elſewhere.

wroth with the woman, &c.] The war with the ſeed ariſeth not from any hurt they had done the dragon; but out of an old quarrel againſt their mother, Gen. 3.15.

and went] The pope, being at Rome, ſtirred up the magiſtrates every where to perſecute the poor proteſtants.

with the remnant of her ſeed] That could not get into the wilderneſſe with the reſt. Thoſe few good Chriſtians which lay hid among the papiſts, were brought out and ſlain. Or, when he could not overcome the Church of the Waldenſes in the wilderneſſe, he ſet antichriſt on work to deſtroy the proteſtants that ſprung up in Bohemia, France, England, and other parts, and ſerved God privately, but had not yet meetings and miniſters, as the Waldenſes had.

CHAP. XIII.

Verſ. 1. And I ſtood upon the ſand of the the ſea] Or, I was ſet. John was removed by the ſpirit to a convenient place, where he might ſee the beaſt ariſe out of the ſea. See the like removes, Chap, 17.3. & 21.10. Ezeck. 8. 3. Dan. 8.2. Others read it, And he ſtood; that is, the dragon; and ſo annex it to the end of the former chapter. But that cannot be; for the dragon was gone away, to fight with the reſt of the ſaints, chap. 12.17. Neither need he ſtand there to ſee the original of the beaſt, which he knew very well. Neither are theſe revelations ſhewed to the dragon, but to John.

a beaſt] A great empire, Dan. 7. 3. It is no news in Scripture, eſpecially in Daniel, and in the Revelation, for ſuch fierce and cruel empires to be compared to wilde-beaſts; as leopards, and bears &c. Some conceive this beaſt and the other, v. 11. to be all one. Others interpret this of the popiſh Romane empire, and the other of the pope, who is the antichriſt.

riſe up] It is not ſaid to be raiſed up, but to riſe up, and to aſcend; for this beaſt was very greedy of ſupremacy, and ſought it by his own ſtrength, as well as by his friends. He ſeeth it aſcend up by little and little, til it came quite out of the ſea. So did the weſtern emperour and the pope grow up by little and little, till they got free of, and power over many nations. He is properly ſaid to aſcend out of the ſea, becauſe the ſhore is higher then it, and keepeth it in, Pſal. 24.2. Therefore mariners are ſaid to go down into the ſea in ſhips, Pſal. 107. 23. Iſa. 42.10. Or, to aſcend, by an uſual Hebrew phraſe, is to come from, or come forth of, Rev. 7. 2. & 10.9. Jer. 34.21. & 35.7.

out of the ſea] Out of many nations, Chap. 17.15.

ſeven heads, and ten horns] See Chap. 12.3.

upon his horns ten crowns] For ten crowned kings were afterward ſubject unto the popiſh empire, or antichriſt, which had not yet received their crowns, Chap. 17.12.

upon his heads the name of blaſpemy] Or, names. Monuments of idolatry were on the ſeven hills of Rome: or, their ſeveral governours were idolaters.

V. 2. like unto a leopard] A fierce beaſt, hating man ſo much, that he firſt fleeth upon his eyes, to pull them out; and in his rage will tear the very picture of a man out of paper. Or, as a leopard which lieth in wait for his prey, Jer. 5. 6. Hoſ. 13.7. A note both of fierceneſſe and ſubtilty. This empire was divided into many kingdoms, like the Grecian, typified by a leopard, Dan. 7.6. & 8.8,22.

as the feet of a bear] Ravenous, like the Perſian empire, Dan. 7.5.

as the mouth of a lion] Made idolatrous and cruel decrees, as the Babylonian empire did, Dan. 7. 4. & 3. 1, &c. Thus this repreſentation is formed of divers beaſts, becauſe no one was bad enough to ſet out the evil qualities of this dominion.

the dragon gave him his power] Gr. his own power. The devil gave him the power that he had given the heathen Roman emperours before, which they had loſt in Conſtantines time. The devil gave him ſtrength to manage his dominion, ſet him in Rome, where Satans throne was before, and gave him authority over many kings and kingdoms. All theſe are needfull to uphold an empire. Authority muſt be backed with honour, and honour with ſtrength; elſe an empire will not ſtand.

V. 3. one of his heads] The weſtern Roman emperour was grievouſly ſpoiled by the Gothes and Vandals: or the pope weakned, and brought very lowe, like one wounded in the head.

was healed] By raiſing up of the French and Germane empire, under the title of the Romane. So that now it ſeemed like a body which had been mortally wounded, and yet flouriſheth again, to admiration.

wondred after the beaſt] Chap. 17. 8. Submitted themſelves to the beaſt wholly, and wondered at his raiſing again, and followed him with great admiration.

V. 4. worſhipped the dragon] In obeying the emperours or popes idolatrous decrees, they not onely worſhipped them, but alſo the devil in them, Chap. 9.20. 1 Cor. 10. 20. For the dragon gave them that power, and his work they did. Therefore John ſetteth them all out, as falling down on their knees before the dragon. Not that theſe emperours or popes would confeſſe they had their power from the dragon, or that this people thought they had it from him, or worſhipped the dragon viſibly: but when they thought they worſhipped God, who in their conceit had ſet up his dominion, they did cloſely worſhip Satan, who ſet it up indeed. Or, as the Roman eagle was carried before the army, whereby the beaſt was followed and worſhipped, even with peril of life: ſo ſome write that they carried dragons before every troop; and they that carried them were called Dragoons. Thus they followed the dragon.

ſaying] Here they expreſſe their admiration, and their fear accompanying it, in the words following. They worſhipped them in words, as well as geſtures: as the elders worſhipped God, Chap. 4.10,11.

V. 5. there was given unto him] By the devil, who gave him his power, v. 2. Or, he was permitted by God to blaſpheme.

a mouth ſpeaking] Dan. 7.8,11,25. & 11.36.

great things and blaſpemies] He boaſted of his own greatneſſe, and vilified all others, even God himſelf, verſ. 6. Pſal. 12.3,4.

to continue] Or, to make war; as v. 7. Gr. to do great things. Or, to do what he liſt for a time, Dan. 8. 4,12. Or, to abide, James 4.13.

fourty and two moneths] See Chap. 11.2. The power of antichriſt, and the papiſts, is reckoned by moneths; for they are works of the night, guided by the unconſtant moon: but the courſe of Gods people is guided by the ſun, and ſet out by days Chap. 11.3.

V. 6. he opened his mouth, &c.] At firſt he counterfeited himſelf holy, when the power was newly given him; but now by degrees he cometh to blaſpheme God himſelf, with full mouth, Pſal. 73.9. 2 Theſſ. 2.4. Opening the mouth, is the beginning to ſpeak, Mat. 5.2.

his tabernacle] His Church, Pſal. 76. 2. & 87. 1,2. and his ordinances.

them that dwell in heaven] That ſerve God in his Church, as fellow-citizens of heaven, and being of Gods houſhold, Eph. 2.19. where God dwelleth as a Maſter, Pſal. 76. 2. and a Father, Mat. 6.9. Theſe then, in regard of their ſimplicity and weakneſſe, lie open to all reproaches and injuries from their powerful enemies.

V. 7. to make war with the ſaints] With Gods ſervants, who are ſanctified, Dan. 7.21. Chap. 11.7.

whoſe names] Whom God maketh no account to ſave. Leſt, becauſe the followers of the beaſt are ſo many, therefore we might think, none ſhould be ſaved; John aſſureth us, that none of Gods elect ſhall periſh, Mat. 24. 24. They ſhall be kept from this idolatry, Rom. 11.4,5.

in the book of life of the Lamb ſlain] Exod. 32. 32. Phil. 4,3. Chap. 3.5. & 20.12. & 21. 27.

from the foundation of the world] By vertue of whoſe Blood, they were ſaved who lived before his incarnation, as well as they who lived after it. Or, whoſe names are not written, from the foundation of the world, in the book of the Lamb ſlain: that is, who are not predeſtinated, from all eternity, to be ſaved by the death of Chriſt. See Chap. 17.8.

V. 9. If any man have an ear, &c.] Let every man obſerve this beaſt, that he be not deceived by him; for he cometh not now in the ſhape of the dragon, but is a Chriſtian by profeſſion. See Chap. 2,7. Mat. 13.9. yet, by the former deſcription, he may be known and avoided.

V. 10. into captivity] The two things to be expected from this beaſt by the people of God, are ſlavery and death: which calamities, as they inflict upon others, ſo they ſhall by others be inflicted on them, Iſa. 33.1.

he that killeth,&c.] Gen. 9.6. Matth, 26.52.

here is the patience] Chap.14.12. Here is the main matter, wherein the patience and faith of Gods ſervants ſhall be exerciſed, 1 Pet.1.6,7. Or, here is good ground for patience and faith in Gods ſervants: to wit, that God will certainly deſtroy their perſecutours, that make them ſlaves, and kill their brethren, and ſeek to deſtroy them daily. The certain hope of antichriſts ruine, ſhould uphold all Gods people that are perſecuted by him.

V. 11. another beaſt] Either the ſame in another ſhape, if both be meant of the pope, as ſome think, becauſe there is but one beaſt mentioned, Chap.17.8. but here repreſented by two beaſts: the former, in regard of that temporal power, the later, in regard of that ſpiritual power, he challengeth to himſelf. Or elſe the former is the French or Germane emperour ruling over many kings, and this is the pope or falſe prophet, Chap. 19. 20. One the political beaſt, the other the eccleſiaſtical.

out of the earth] From mean beginnings; and ſpreading far, Gen.2.9. Or, not coming from heaven, but from hell; as chap. 11. 7.

two hornes like a lamb] He ſeemed to be meek. Or, he was a Chriſtian by profeſſion, and called himſelf Chriſts vicar.

ſpake as a dragon] As he that was repreſented by the dragon; for dragons cannot ſpeak. He ſet up idolatry by his command, as he heathen emperours had done.

V. 12. all the power of the firſt beaſt] Took on him civil authority.

before him] In the city of Rome, which was the ſeat of the emperour, where he was wont to keep his court.

the earth, &c.] See chap. 12. 12. Unleſſe it be taken for the generality, as the world is, v. 3.

to worſhip the firſt beaſt] To acknowledg a Romane empire again, after the incurſion of the Goths: and to make the Romane city to be accounted holy, that all might flock to it. He doth not at firſt ſet up his power, but the emperours again, which was a thing more faiſable; and afterwards weakneth him, to ſet up himſelf.

whoſe deadly wound was healed] See notes on v. 3.

V. 13. great wonders] Matth, 24. 24. 2 Theſſ. 2. 9. Now he ſheweth how this ſecond beaſt worſhipped the firſt; namely, by working miracles; which the firſt beaſt could not do, though he had much power given him, v. 2. Yet theſe were no true miracles, but jugling, whereby he deceived the people, verſ. 14. Chap.18.23. Lying wonders, 2 Theſſ. 2. 12.

ſo that he] That is, ſuch great ones, that he may ſeem to be able to do the greateſt of all. Like that phraſe of removing mountains, Matth. 17. 20. Fire from heaven is named, becauſe ſignes from heaven affect men moſt, Matth.16.1. and becauſe the pope would endeavour to confirm his worſhip by fire from heaven, as God did his, Levit. 9.24. 1 Kings 18. 38. 2 Chron. 7. 1. and be in ſhew as great a prophet as Elias, 2 Kings 1. 10, 12.

maketh fire come down from heaven] By ſorcery; for ſome popes have been conjurers, and have made ſome ſuch ſhews to the people: as pope Zachary had fiery armies going before him to Ravenna, that he might be thought to be another Eliſha, 2 King 6.17. When pope Steven went into France, to get help of king Pipin, balls of fire were ſeen running up and down in the air. Such other ſtories the popiſh writers have ſtore of, to prove their pope to be antichriſt. Or, he excommunicateth men, as if he did thunder and lighten on them.

in the ſight of men] Publikely, to ſeduce men the more.

V. 14. deceiveth] All is ſet down in the preſent tenſe. He exerciſeth, doth wonders, deceiveth; either becauſe John now ſaw ſome ſuch thing in the viſion, or elſe becauſe it would be done as ſurely, as if the pope were then doing it.

on the earth] See v. 8.

miracles] Look on v. 13.

in the ſight of the beaſt] See on v. 12.

make an image to the beaſt] Set up a Romane emperour, that ſhould have nothing to do in Rome, and ſhould be like the former emperours, in ſetting up idolatry again.

by the ſword] By warlike incurſions of barbarous people invading the empire, v. 3.

and did live] Or, recovered, Iſai.38.21. & 39. 1. Though he were mortally wounded, v. 12. yet this beaſt maketh him live ſtill, that men might think he had life and death in his power.

V. 15. to give life] Gr. breath. He ſaw, by the raiſing of the ruines of the Romane empire, he had prevailed much; and now he maketh theſe later emperours act according to his will, that he may raiſe himſelf.

to the image of the beaſt] For the Germane Ceſar was not Romane emperour, till he was confirmed by the pope.

ſpeak,&c.] Should make laws, and puniſh ſuch as did not acknowledg him to be emperour, or himſelf to be Chriſts vicar. Others think it is an alluſion to their jugling tricks, making their images to ſpeak, thereby to ſeduce the people to idolatry.

image of the beaſt] Before, it was an image made to the beaſt, to uphold the ſtate of Rome; now, it is the image of the beaſt. The pope will have it acknowledged to be ſo.

ſhould be killed] Now he addeth cruelty to his ſubtilty, and dealeth by open force, having ſtrengthened the Romane empire again. So did Nebuchad-nezzar rage, Dan. 3. 6, 20.

V. 16. all] All ſorts of men, ſmall and great, &c. This ſheweth the largeneſſe of his dominion: and alſo his care, not onely to oblige the great ones to him, that might be moſt uſeful to eſtabliſh his kingdom; but alſo the meaneſt: for he knew that mean ones may raiſe great ſtirs in a ſtate, as a little ſpark may ſet on fire an houſe; and cities are taken often, where men leaſt ſuſpect. So are ſtates ruined.

to receive] Gr. that he may give to them. And by conſequence, that they may willingly take it at his hands.

a mark in their right hand] Not that he ſtamped a viſible mark upon them, but obliged them, by ſome external band, to ſerve and fight for the ſea and ſtate of Rome. To fight for him, as ſouldiers were wont to do for their Emperour or General, whoſe mark they had in their right hand, wherewith they uſed to fight.

or in their foreheads] To ſerve him, as ſervants did their maſters; whoſe they were known openly to be, by wearing their marks on their foreheads.

V. 17. buy or ſell] Either civil, by way of trading; or ſpiritually, by buying and ſelling pardons. It had been too cruel to have killed all at firſt, who refuſed his authority: therefore he forbiddeth them all trading, without which men cannot live; and ſo compelleth multitudes to come in to him.

mark] Except he be a ſworn ſervant of the pope. See v. 16. This maketh the full and proper ſubjects of that kingdom, and therefore cauſed all he could to receive this mark, v. 16. and they are threatned with damnation, who receive it, Chap. 14. 9, 11. Neither of theſe is ſpoken of thoſe who received the name, or the number.

or the name of the beaſt] Or, were a papiſt in religion. By the beaſt here is meant, the firſt beaſt. The Romane ſtate or emperours, whom the pope made men to ſerve, and whoſe authority he uſed, till he could raiſe himſelf to his height, v. 1,12. Chap.16. 2.

or the number of his name] Or, were eſteemed ſo to be, and numbred among ſuch.

V. 18. Here is wiſdom] It is a hard thing to finde out this mark or name.

for it is the number of a man] It is not onely known to me by revelation, but alſo may be found out by humane wiſdom, Let wiſe men therefore ſeek to finde it out.

and his number] It is to be found in the numbers of the Greek letters of his general name: for mens names in Greek, contained numbers in the letters. They had not other figures, as we have, but counted by letters.

ſix hundred threeſcore and ſix] Saint John would not plainly ſet down the name, leſt he ſhould make the Romane emperours offended with the Chriſtians; as Saint Paul doth not name him that letteth, 2 Theſſ. 2. 6,7. yet ſuch plain tokens are ſet down by both, that he, and antichriſt his upholder, might be known when he cometh. The truth is, this is the name of the beaſt, not of antichriſt; and ſo a national name, deſcribing that ſtate where antichriſt ſhould riſe and reign: and therefore though it is like to be comprehended in Greek letters, in which language John wrote; yet it is not likely to be a Greek word originally. Ireneus, and the ancients, take it for the word Latrinos, which, in Greek letters, maketh ſix hundred ſixty and ſix: ſhewing, that antichriſt ſhould be a Romane, or one of the Latine Church. Others ſuppoſe his power ſhould begin in the yeer of Chriſt ſix hundred ſixty and ſix. Others, that it ſhould laſt ſo many yeers in the height of it and lo] Or, behold. A note of ſome great matter enſuing, Matth.1.23. Iſai.7.14.

a Lamb] Chriſt, the true Lamb, Chap. 13. 8. Joh. 1. 29. 1 Pet. 1. 19. the Son of God the Father, appeareth in this verſe; oppoſeth the counterfeit lamb, Chap. 13. 11. See Chap. 5. 6.

ſtood] He himſelf appeareth to John now in a viſion, on a mountain like mount Sion. But the thing intended is, that he appeared in his miniſters publikely ſerving God.

on mount Zion] A type of the Church, Pſal. 48. 2. Iſai. 33. 20. wherein Chriſt in his ordinances appeared as in a city on an hill, Matth. 5. 14. more conſpicuouſly then before, after the long hidden eſtate of his Church perſecuted by the pope.

and hundred fourty and four thouſand] See Chap. 7. 4.

having his Fathers name written in their foreheads] The mark on their foreheads, the name of God, not mentioned Chap. 7. is here expreſſed: implying, that they did now in a more open and publick manner profeſſe themſelves his true ſervants, and were as manifeſtly known ſo to be, as if it had been written on their foreheads; alluding withal to ſuch marks as ſervants uſed to have. See Chap. 13.16,17. It is called, The name of his God. See Chap. 3.12.

V. 2. a voice from heaven] Out of the now viſible Church of God, Chap. 4.2,&c.

as the voyce of many waters] Of many people now acknowledging the true religion, Chap. 1.15. & 17.15. & 19.6.

of a great thunder] Chap. 6.1. A loud and open profeſſion of the truth, that the world might take notice of it.

of harpers] A ſweet and pleaſant thankſgiving, delightful to God and good men. An alluſion to the ſweet melody in the Temple at Hieruſalem, 1 Chr. 25.1. Pſal. 43.3,4.

V. 3. as it were,&c.] Such an one as John had not heard before, among all the heavenly voyces in this revelation.

a new ſong] They gave praiſe to God for their new deliverance from Popiſh perſecution, and the freedom they had by the favour of Chriſtian Magiſtrates, to profeſſe the Chriſtian religion openly. This ſheweth that this muſt not be underſtood of the perſecuted Church in the wilderneſſe, as ſome would have it; for the ſtate thereof affordeth not matter for this new ſong, Pſal. 137.3,4. neither is the Church in that ſtate called heaven, but when it is viſible, Chap. 12.7. It is meant then of the Churches breaking out again, when the witneſſes were taken up into heaven, that is, into a free viſible Church, Chap. 11.12. This then is another new ſong, different from that, Chap. 5.9. for that was in praiſe of Chriſt, for opening the ſeals. See notes there.

before the throne,&c.] Before God, his miniſters and people in the congregation, Chap. 4.2,4,6. Pſal. 107.32.

no man could learn that ſong] Not that any elſe went about to learn it; but none of the idolatrous Papiſts had that cauſe, or could tell how to praiſe God for this favour: for they were left in darkneſſe.

redeemed from the earth] Bought by the Blood of Chriſt, and brought out of Popery, 1 Cor. 6.20. & 7.23. 1 Pet. 1.18. from antichriſts earthly Church, Chap. 12.12.

V. 4. not defiled with women] Not polluted with Popiſh falſe doctrine and idolatry, which is ſpiritual fornication, 2 Cor. 12. 2. Epheſ. 5.27. Ezek. 15.16. Chap. 18.3. An alluſion to the Iſraelites, of whom many were entiſed to idolatry by the Midianitiſh women, but many were kept from it, Num. 25. Others underſtand all this of the Waldenſes, and ſuch as ſerved God purely in all the time of Popery; becauſe it is ſaid, They were not defiled. Their remainders are now found in the viſible Church.

follow the Lamb whitherſoever he goeth] Seek Chriſt in his ordinances, though with perill and loſſe, having forſaken communion with the Popiſh Church. And not following antichriſt for their head and guide, as others ſtill, but Chriſt onely.

redeemed] Gr. bought. See verſ. 3.

from among men] 1 Cor. 3.3. This expoundeth the former verſe. The earth, then ſignifieth, there are men of an earthly ſtate, out of whom Chriſt took his, and from whoſe ſociety he yet calleth them, Chap. 18.4.

the firſt fruits] Firſt converted, or openly making the firſt profeſſion of the reformed religion, Chap. 5.9. & 20.5. An alluſion to the firſt fruits in the law, Deut. 18.4. Prov. 3.9. James 1.18. They were paid to the Prieſts, as Gods due. All the world is the heap; the elect are God's and Chriſt's, in a peculiar manner.

unto the Lamb] This is more then to follow the Lamb; for it ſheweth a peculiar right he hath in them.

V. 5. no guile] Pſal. 32.2. John 1.47. They were true in all their ſayings. Or, in word they profeſſed the true religion, which they believed in their hearts.

without fault] Becauſe Chriſt hath redeemed, and paid the price of their ſins, with his Blood, Epheſ. 6.26,27. Or, free from Romiſh idolatry (to which they could not be drawn by all the Popes power and threatnings) and worſhipping God aright, and obeying all his commandments, to the uttermoſt of their ſtrength, Luke 1.6.

before the throne of God] Men may condemn them; but God, who knoweth their hearts, and accepteth of them in Chriſt, will acquit them. Or, they are blameleſſe, not onely before men, whoſe judgment is ſubject to errour; but even before God himſelf, as ſincere, that is, true and faithful ſubjects to God, Gen. 17.1. Iſa. 38.3.

V. 6. another angel] Different from them that blew the trumpets, or from him who ſhewed him theſe things, Chap. 1.1. or from him, Chap. 8.13. who threatned wo's to the earth.

fly] Making haſte to publiſh his meſſage thorow the world. A type of the miniſtery of thoſe times. And indeed, it paſſed from place to place very ſwiftly at firſt. So that this intimateth the free and ſpeedy paſſage of the Goſpel from place, by their miniſtery.

in the midſt of heaven] So that he could not be hindered from preaching, by any humane oppoſition. Or from whence he might be more conſpicuouſly ſeen, and his voyce moſt clearly heard on either ſide; as the light of the Sun doth moſt brightly diffuſe it ſelf into all parts of the hemiſphere, when it is about the meridian. See Chap. 8.13. This angel ſome take to be Wickliffe and his fellowes: others, to be Luther and his aſſiſtants. Such are called Angels, Chap. 1.20. & 2.1.

having the everlaſting Goſpel] For to the Miniſters is this word of reconciliation committed, 2 Cor. 5.19. as to the faithful ſtewards, to diſpenſe to others, 1 Cor 4.1,2. And it is called eternal, firſt, Becauſe it teacheth men not to fear antichriſts ſpoyling of goods or life, ſeeing it holdeth out eternal happineſſe unto them, Heb. 10.34. Secondly, Becauſe the ſum of it was from the beginning (and therefore it is not a new doctrine, as the Papiſts call it) and it ſhall be preached openly to the end of the world, in deſpight of all oppoſition, Chap. 11.15. for the witneſſes ſhall be no more ſlain. Thirdly, Becauſe it ſhall not be diſannulled as the legal covenant was.

unto them that dwell on the earth] To earthly-minded men, to call them off from earthly, to ſeek heavenly things, Col. 3.1. Such ſecure ones are thus deſcribed, Luke 21.34,35. Or, to all the inhabitants of the earth, ſo that every nation ſhall hear of it; as followeth in this verſe. So this phraſe is uſed, Chap. 5.9. & 7.9.

V. 7. with a loud voyce] To ſhew the weight of the meſſage, and that all might hear, Chap. 8.13.

Fear God] Worſhip the true God, and do not worſhip images any more, as ye have done. Or, fear not antichriſt any more, who can but kill your bodies; but fear God, who can deſtroy your ſoules elſe, Luke 12.4,5. He exhorteth them to that which hath been neglected, and the contrary done: For men had not feared God, but men; not honoured his grace, but mens merits; not worſhipped him, but ſtocks, ſtones, &c. Chap. 9.20. At firſt, the miniſters ſpake not ſo plainly and fully againſt Babylon, as after, verſ. 8. but did undermine antichriſts kingdome, by preaching the true knowledge and worſhip of God; too much before neglected and corrupted.

the hour of his judgment] He will not bear with your idolatry now, as he did in the times of ignorance, Acts 17.30.

and worſhip him] Pſal. 146.5,6. Acts 14.15.

heaven and earth,&c.] Which none elſe could make; much leſſe your Images. He nameth four principal works of God, to draw men to know and worſhip him aright. Firſt, the heaven; famous for breadth, light, motion, influence. Secondly, the earth; unmoveable ſince the beginning, and very profitable to men. Thirdly, the ſea; of huge compaſſe, and great uſe for fiſhing and navigation. Fourthly, the fountains; which run alwayes for the uſe of the living creature, as types of Gods eternity and bounty.

V. 8. another angel] Other miniſters. Some take it for the Bohemians: others, for ſuch after Luther as more clearly ſpake of Romes deſtruction.

Babylon is fallen] Iſa. 21.9. Jer. 51.8. Chap. 18.2. Theſe ſaw the Popes kingdom ſhaken, by the miniſtery of ſuch as went before them, and now declare boldly, that God hath laid the foundation of the deſtruction of it, and will as ſurely deſtroy it ſhortly, as if it were now down.

wine of the wrath of her fornication] Or, of the poiſoned wine of her fornication, chap. 17.2. For the Hebrew word to the which the Greek here anſwereth, ſignifieth poiſon, as well as wrath. As whores give ſpiced or enchanted cups to their lovers, to make them commit fornication with them; ſo did Rome, by ſubtil enticements, draw a great part of the world to her idolatry, which is often in Scripture compared to fornication; as Jer. 3. Ezek. 16. divers times. Or, ſhe made God angry with them, as well as with her ſelf, by drawing them to the ſame idolatry. Or, becauſe when God is angry, and goeth to puniſh wicked men, he is ſaid to have a cup in his hand, of poiſoned wine, to give every one his part according to his merit, that men might know theſe judgments came from him, and not by chance, Job 21.20. Pſal. 75.8. Iſa. 51.17. Jer. 25.15. & 49.12, 13. & 51.7,8. So Babylon and her followers ſhall alſo drink their ſhare, according to their deſerts. See verſ. 10. An alluſion to ſuch nations as uſed to kill malefactours with poiſoned cups.

V. 9. third angel] Other Miniſters after them. Martin Luther and his fellow-labourers, as ſome think; or later preachers, as others.

worſhip the beaſt] The Pope, who is antichriſt. See Chap. 13.11.

and his image] And follow the Germane Emperours, or other Princes, whom he made, as an image of the heathen empire of Rome, (Chap. 13.15.) to uphold his idolatries and ſuperſtitions.

receive his mark,&c.] See notes on Chap. 13. 16. The firſt angel did preach the true worſhip of God, welnigh loſt: the ſecond foretelleth the fall of Babylon: the third warneth men to come out of her, before it come; ſeeking to draw men out of the fire, Jude verſ.23.

V. 10. the ſame] Not onely the Pope himſelf, but all his obſtinate followers alſo, and ſworn ſervants. Or, as he hath taken the beaſts mark, ſo he ſhall periſh with him for company.

of the wine of the wrath of God] Of Gods ſevere judgement in the deſtruction of Babylon. See verſ.8. Pſal.75.8. Jer. 25. 15. Or, of Gods poiſoned wine; that is, of the wine that God giveth them to make them mad; as Pſal.60.3. which is poured by God into the cup of his wrath, for them to drink, whom God will be avenged on, as verſ. 8.

without mixture] Not allayed with the water of mercy at all, James 2.13.

with fire and brimſtone] In hell-fire for ever, beſides the heavy judgments he may endure at the fall of Rome, Chap. 9. 18. and 19.20. An alluſion to the deſtruction of Sodome, Gen. 19. 24.

in the preſence of the Angels, &c.] Publickly, before Chriſt and his angels. An alluſion to Sodomes deſtruction again, wherein Chriſt and his angels were employed. They that bear antichriſts mark before men, ſhall be forſaken of, and tormented before Chriſt and his angels, that their torment may be the greater, Mark 8.38. Luke 9.26.

V. 11. the ſmoke of their torment] Of the fire tormenting them. Their torment ſhall have no end; as we know the fire goeth not out while we ſee the ſmoke, Iſa.34.10.

no reſt] No intermiſſion, becauſe of the greatneſſe of their everlaſting pains. Here are ſome intermiſſions in the ſufferings of Gods people, though they be heavy for the time: but there ſhall be none, in theſe pains of the idolaters.

day nor night] Though they have a perpetual night in hell, as a perpetual day in heaven: yet he ſpeaketh after the manner of men here on earth, meaning, They never have one minute of reſt. See Chap. 7. 15. Here, the light of the day, and ſociety of friends, may ſomewhat allay thoſe pains that are terrible in the night; and ſleep in the night, may make us forget the labours of the day: but thoſe torments nothing can aſſwage.

who worſhip the beaſt,&c.] See verſ.9.

V. 12. Here is the patience] See Chap.13.10. Or, here is the vengeance that ſhall be executed on their enemies, who patiently endured death for obedience to God, and holding faſt the true religion, againſt the Papiſts. Or, now ſhall the patience and obedience of Gods ſervants be made known to the world. It ſhall appear who are true, and who are counterfeit Chriſtians. By antichriſts fierce perſecution, the chaffe ſhall be ſeparated from the wheat, and the droſſe from the gold. Or, after the Goſpel preached, and the Pope declared to be antichriſt, there ſhall be greater perſecutions then before, and the patience of Gods ſervants more tryed; as appeareth in the perſecutions and wars ſince the Waldenſes and Luthers time. The Pope, like the devil, rageth, becauſe his time is ſhort, Chap. 12.12.

V. 13. And I heard,&c.] Becauſe in the former verſe he had ſpoken of many troubles yet to come, to try the patience of Gods people; here he bringeth in a voyce from heaven, and commanded to be written, to aſſure them, that the greateſt evil antichriſt could bring on them, was but a ſpeedy way to happineſſe. And this conſolation was needful, leſt they ſhould think the primitive martyrs happy, who were put to death by heathen perſecutours; but themſelves unhappy, who were to be condemned by Chriſtians, for hereticks.

in the Lord] As members of Chriſt, or in the faith of Chriſt; as Rom.16.7,11. 1 Cor.15.18. 1 Theſſ.4.16. Heb.11.13. Or, for the Lord. So ſome interpret this phraſe, Rom.16.2,8,12. And the Hebrew particle anſwering to the Greek one here, is often ſo uſed.

from henceforth: yea, ſaith the Spirit] Or, from henceforth ſaith the ſpirit: yea. Though antichriſt muſt down, yet it will coſt ſo much blood ere it be done, that they are happy that dyed or ſhall dye before, in the fear of God. Or, ye may think that your perſecutions are all paſt, becauſe the Goſpel is openly preached again: but antichriſt, being now revealed, is more mad then before, and ye ſhall find more trouble then formerly; ſo that ye ſhall count the dead happy, Eccleſ.4.2,3.

may reſt from their labours] From the troubles that are to come, or by dying before. Or, from their labours endured here.

their works follow them] The reward of their works, 1 Cor. 15. 58.

V. 14. I looked] See Chap.8.13.

and behold,&c.] Before, God wrought by the word, ſending forth his three angels to preach, verſ.6,&c. Now, he taketh the ſword, and beginneth by deeds to pull down antichriſts kingdome. Which action is ſet out by two ſimilitudes; one, of an harveſt, verſ.15. the other, of a vintage, verſ.18. for in theſe, men uſe to cut down all the fruits.

a white cloud] A ſign of great glory.

like unto the Son of man] Or, like unto a ſon of man, Chap.1. 13. Some glorious angel, verſ.15. like a man; for he is ſet on work by another angel, verſ. 15. and an angel gathereth the grapes, verſ. 19. which is all one judgment with this. See notes on Chap.10.1.

a golden crown] For majeſty. Such Kings wear. It ſheweth alſo, that he ſhould get a glorious victory over antichriſt.

a ſharp ſicle] To do ſwift execution.

in his hand] That is, in his right hand; for with it men uſe to reap. He was both able and ready to execute what ſhould be committed to him, as harveſt-men with their ſicles in their hands, (which were the uſual inſtruments of cutting down the corn, Deut.16.9. & 23.25. and are ſtill) are to cut down the corn. This angel may be a type of ſome great and glorious Prince or Princes that ſhould begin to execute Gods wrath on the Pope. Many ſuch were in Germany in Luthers time.

V. 15. another angel] Differing from the three former, and from him that ſate on the cloud.

out of the temple] Out of the Church of God now opened, (chap.11.19.) as the other angel did, verſ.17. Repreſenting the miniſters of thoſe times, who ſhould call on the Princes to be Gods executioners, as baylies, who ſummon the harveſt-men to work, but reap not with their own hands.

crying with a loud voyce] Shewing his great deſire to have the thing done, and that all men might hear, and further the work. See verſ.7.

Thruſt in thy ſicle] Joel 3.13. Go about the work of deſtroying antichriſt and his upholders.

for the time] Gr. the hour. The time appointed by God: and therefore the buſineſſe will ſucceed well now, that would not before.

is come] As might appear by ſignes, or by divine incitation to the work.

for thee to reap] Wherein God calleth thee to do it, and therefore will proſper the work in thine hands.

the harveſt] Antichriſts followers are fit for vengeance, Jer. 51. 33.

of the earth] Of the falſe Church, or antichriſtian ſtate; Chap.13.12.

is ripe] Or, dryed. The Idolaters ſins are full, and ready for judgment, Gen.15.16. Jer.51.33. Iſa. 17.5. Or, withered; as this word is uſed, Matth.13.6. An alluſion to hay, which, when it is withered, is good for nothing, but muſt be cut down; elſe it will be ſpoyled it ſelf, and hurt the ground. So would theſe wicked ones grow ſtark naught, and hurt others, if they were not quickly deſtroyed. See the like, Pſal. 129. 6.

V. 16. thruſt in his ſicle] He did as he was commanded, and God proſpered it accordingly.

the earth was reaped] Antichriſt and his followers were deſtroyed.

V. 17. another Angel] Now the vintage followeth after the harveſt, as it uſeth to do.

out of the temple] Figuring ſome Miniſters of note, that ſhall aſſiſt the Princes in deſtroying antichriſt, and reforming religion.

a ſharp ſicle] For they uſed not then to gather grapes with the hand, as we do; but to cut them off with an hook or ſicle, for expedition, Iſa.18. 5. And ſo did ſome of the heathen.

V. 18. out from the altar, which had power over fire] It may be that angel ſpoken of, Chap.8.5. who ſtood at the altar of incenſe, and took fire from the altar of burnt-offering, and caſt it on the earth, from whence followed the judgements there enſuing. And in that reſpect he might be ſaid to have power over fire. Or at leaſt, it may be an alluſion to that ſtory, and may repreſent ſuch, as by their fervent prayers could prevail with God to bring his judgments on antichriſt and his followers, and as it were command Miniſters and Rulers to go about it, ſtirring them up with the ſlaughter of thoſe martyrs which lay under the altar, Chap.6.9. Or, this angel is ſaid to have power over fire; that is, to reſtrain the fire of contentions (Judg. 9.20.) from among Proteſtant Princes, that they might joyntly fight againſt the Pope.

gather the cluſters] The vine, is the Popiſh Church: gathering, is taking away: the cluſters of grapes, are the multitude of the members of that Church. So deſtruction of the wicked is ſet out by a vintage, as well as by an harveſt, Chap. 19.15. Iſa. 63.1,2,3.

fully ripe] See notes on verſ. 15.

V. 19. gathered the vine] Deſtroyed the Popes dominions, and ſlew thoſe that were guilty of the blood of Gods Saints. Some underſtand, by the harveſt, the deſtruction of Rome; and by the vintage, the utter ruine of Popery afterwards; as the vintage followeth the harveſt.

caſt into] An alluſion to the uſual manner of vintages, where they had always a wine-preſſe ready to tread their grapes in, aſſoon as they were gathered, before the moiſture was dried or dropt out of them, Iſa.5.2.

great wine-preſſe This ſheweth, that this was a greater judgement then the former; as great wine-preſſes have more grapes troden in them, then leſſer ones. This apeareth alſo by many former circumſtances. He that cut down in the harveſt, came from the clouds, v. 14. He that cutteth in the vintage, cometh out from the temple in heaven, v. 17. The encourager of the former came out of the temple, v. 15. of the later, out of the altar, ver. 18. and is ſaid to have power over fire. The former cryeth with a loud voice, v. 15. the later, with a loud cry, v. 18. The former is bid to thruſt in his ſickle, verſ. 15. the later, his ſharp ſickle, verſ. 18. The former, to reap, verſ. 15. the later more fully, to gather the cluſters of the vine of the earth, v. 18. The former is told, The harveſt is ripe, verſ. 15. the later, that the grapes are fully ripe, verſ. 18. The former reapeth the earth, v. 16. and taketh no care of threſhing: the later caſteth the grapes into the great wine-preſſe of Gods wrath, v. 19. So that the judgement here intended muſt needs be greater, unleſs it be the ſame ſet out by two ſimilitudes, as the famine of Egypt was, Gen. 41. 1, &c. And then the latter is added here, to ſet out the judgement the more fully; or to ſhew the certainty of it; as Gen.41.32.

V. 20. And the wine-preſſe was troden] The ſimilitude is proſecuted. When grapes are gathered, they are caſt into the wine-preſſe, and then trodden, Judg. 9. 27. and the juyce of them runneth out, Neh.13.15. Iſa.63.3,4. This ſetteth out the fierce execution of Gods wrath upon ſinners, Lam. 1. 15. and upon antichriſt and his, Chap.19.13,15.

without the city] They uſed to tread the wine-preſſes out of the city, becauſe it was a foul and troubleſom work, and the grapes might be hurt, and time loſt, in carrying them from the place they grew in. See notes on v. 19. Without the Church, the city of God, as ſome interpret it: ſo that God provideth for the ſafety of his Church, while her enemies are in deſtroying. But, as others ſay, the great battel ſhall be, not in the city of Rome, but in the territory thereunto belonging.

and blood came out of the wine-preſſe It is true, that wine is called, The blood of the grapes, Gen.49.11. Deut.31.14. But here the holy Ghoſt ſeemeth rather to paſſe ſuddenly from the type, to the thing it ſelf thereby typified; from the wine-preſſe to the war, where horſes are uſed, though not uſed in the other; and ſo giveth us light for expoſition. So he doth, Amos 9. 11, 12. from Davids tabernacle that is fallen, to the remnant of Edom, and the heathen: and Hab. 1. 17. from catching fiſh in their net, to ſlaying the nations.

to the horſe bridles] He alludeth to thoſe that in war purſue the enemies flight, to do execution: or to conquerours, who uſe to go forth, after the battel, to ſee the dead carcaſes of their enemies, Iſai. 66.24. and to take the ſpoil: which they do with much difficulty, when the field is covered with the blood of the ſlain, ſo that they are forced to ride, and the horſes wel-nigh to ſwim. The meaning is; the blood of ſlain men ſhould be like a deep river running over the banks; ſo great ſhall the ſlaughter of the antichriſtians be, Chap.16.14. & 19.13,18.

a thouſand and ſix hundreds furlongs] As the wine runneth out of the wine-preſſe, ſo the blood of the ſlain ſhall now flow a great length, and breadth, and depth. An alluſion to the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, wherein the blood is imagined to run over all the land of Canaan, ſuppoſed to be about that compaſs of ground: and ſignifying, that blood ſhall be found plentifully running in all the popes territory, or patrimony of the Church, which is eſteemed by ſome to be about that proportion of ground.

CHAP. XV.

Verſ. 1. A*Nother ſigne*] Differing from that, Chap. 12. 1. and foretelling different things; as appeareth, becauſe it is called another, and a marvellous one. Therefore the former victory over antichriſt, Chap. 14. and this ſong, muſt either have reſpect to ſomething done at the beginning of reformation, or be a general deſcription of this laſt overthrow, by way of anticipation, which is more particularly deſcribed in the vials following. And it is called a ſigne, to ſhew, that it came not accidentally, though it was a ſtrange light; but was ſent of God, to ſignifie things to come.

in heaven] Chap.12.1. In the Church, grown more viſible and glorious. As God did roar from Sion, Amos 1. 2, 3. when he foretold the deſtruction of the nations: ſo here, out of the Church, come the vials of Gods wrath, to be poured forth on antichriſt.

great and marvellous] In regard of the great changes and things it would bring to paſſe; or in compariſon of the former. In theſe reſpects the whole Church confeſſeth it to be ſo, verſ. 3.

ſeven angels] So are the publiſhers of Gods will, repreſenting the executioners thereof, called before, Chap.8.7,8,10,12. & 9.1,14. & 11.15.

the ſeven laſt plagues] Of whom they had theſe: and what they were, ſee v. 7. They are called, The laſt plagues, for the reaſon following; becauſe Gods wrath is filled up by them, and ſo the thing done, which God had decreed, on the antichriſtian ſtate, Chap. 10. 7. & 16. 17. They are the laſt that God will pour on antichriſt: and the Church and world ſhall have happier days after.

V. 2. a ſea of glaſs mingled with fire] Some take it for a type of their innumerable perſecutions they had ſuffered. Others, for the cryſtalline and pure doctrine of Gods word, Chap. 4. 6. mingled with much zeal againſt papiſts; or, many contentions among themſelves, as appeared in the controverſies about the Sacrament; yet might the truth be ſeen ſtill ſufficiently to ſalvation, Luke 12.49. Others, for the ſignes of Gods wrath, whereby their foes were deſtroyed.

That had gotten the victory] Such as had eſcaped the popes rage, and had helped to pull down his kingdom.

over the beaſt] Chap. 13. 11.

over his image] Chap. 13. 15.

over his mark, &c.] Chap.13.16,17.

on the ſea of glaſs] Trampling under feet their former perſecutions. Or, upheld by the doctrine of Gods word, notwithſtanding their differences among themſelves, and quarrels with their adverſaries. Or, treading on their wicked adverſaries, who are compared to a ſea, by reaſon of unquietneſſe, Iſa.57. 20, 21. And that of glaſſe, becauſe God ſeeth all their wickedneſſe, Heb. 4. 13. And is ſaid to be mingled with fire, becauſe they ſhall be deſtroyed with fire, Chap.16.8. Or, ſtand on the pavement before Gods throne, Chap.4.6. worſhipping God openly in his viſible Church. Or, ſtand at the ſea of glaſs. So the particle is uſed, Luke 12. 6. 30, 40. As the Iſraelites ſtood at the Red Sea, and praiſed God for their deliverance, Exod.14.30. & 15. 1. So theſe at the glaſſie ſea of fire.

harps of God] Excellent ones; as Gen.23.6. Heb. a prince of God; Pſal.36.6. Heb. mountains of God. Or, harps to praiſe God with, Chap. 5.8. & 14. 2. when they ſee their foes deſtroyed, Pſal. 58. 10, 11. Or, harps given of God. Having their hearts cleared by Gods Spirit, and well tuned to praiſe God for ſo great a victory; as appeareth by their ſweet muſick of praiſe, verſ.3,4.

V. 3. the ſong of Moſes] Such an one as Moſes ſung to the praiſe of God, for delivering Iſrael, and deſtroying the Egyptians, Exod. 15. 1, For God ſheweth his power now as much, in freeing his people from antichriſts yoke.

the ſervant of God] In a peculiar manner, by office, Deut. 34. 5. See Chap.1.1. and the ſong of the Lamb] Chap. 14. 1, 3. Or, taught them more fully by the Lamb; as they had the pattern from Moſes in part. Some take this which followeth, v. 3, 4. to be the ſong taught by the Lamb, and that Moſes his ſong is not ſet down, becauſe it was recorded before in Scripture.

great and marvellous] Pſal. 111. 2. & 139. 4. Gods works are ſaid to be ſo here, becauſe he had ſo long ſuffered antichriſts cruelty, and ſo ſtrangely deſtroyed him at the laſt.

Almighty] A fit title: for he had ſhewed his almighty power, in overthrowing ſo great force, and puniſhing ſo many enemies, Chap.1.4,8.

juſt and true are thy wayes] Pſal. 145.17. Juſt, becauſe thou haſt puniſhed antichriſt; and true, becauſe thou haſt performed thy promiſe to thy people. By Gods ways, is meant his conſtant works. A ſimilitude taken from a traveller.

King of ſaints] As thoſe over whom he ruleth in a more ſpecial and gracious manner, by his Word and Spirit, Pſalm 110. 2, 3.

V. 4. who ſhall not fear thee?] Jer.10.7. Every one ſhall do it. Or, who ſhould not (or would not) fear thee? Thou haſt given cauſe to all men to do it. By fear, is meant fear of reverence, and religious worſhip; as it followeth, and glorifie thy Name; Chap.14.7.

for] Or, ſaying, that. Thus they teach poſterity, why, and how to praiſe God. See the like, Pſal. 106. 1. & 107. 1. and 136. all over: 2 Chron. 5.13. And ſo the Jews uſe it in their lyturgy. See alſo, 1 Chron.16.41. Matth. 7. 23. In all theſe places it may fitly be ſo tranſlated: and ſo it is full in the Greek, Luke 19. 42. Saying, that if, &c.

thou onely art holy] Of thy ſelf, and infinitely, 1 Sam. 2. 2. and haſt ſhewed thy ſelf ſo to be, by deſtroying the unholy, and freeing the holy.

all nations ſhall come] Thou art now ſending forth thy forces to deſtroy antichriſt, and then thou ſhalt be rightly worſhipped in all the world, Iſai. 66. 23,24. Although, while antichriſt reigned, there was ſcarce any hope of any ſuch thing left in the world; yet, when he is deſtroyed, all that are left of thoſe that adhered to him, ſhall publikely worſhip thee accordingly to thy word, Chap. 11. 13. & 20. 5. None ſhall then refuſe to fall down to thee. They that knew thee not before, ſhall be converted.

thy judgements are made manifeſt] There is no man but ſeeth how juſtly thou haſt proceeded, and that, though thy judgements on them are great, yet are they no greater then they have deſerved. This thou haſt ſhewed, in freeing us from the power of antichriſt, already; and it ſhall be made more manifeſt, when thou deſtroyeſt him and his adherents. For thy judgements paſt, are an argument to us, to look for fuller declaration of thy juſtice in time to come; and every man may ſee what thou wilt do, by what thou haſt done.

V. 5. the temple of the tabernacle] That is, the innermoſt part of the tabernacle, called The holy of holieſt, and The moſt holy place; which tabernacle is termed, The tabernacle of the teſtimony, Num. 1. 50. & 17. 7. in regard of the two tables of ſtone, ſo called, Exod. 25. 21. becauſe in them was written the law of God, the teſtimony of his will, Exod. 34. 28. Pſal. 19. 7. & 119. 14, 22. which tables were put in the ark, Deut. 10. 5. 1 Kings 8. 5. and that ark placed in the innermoſt part of the tabernacle or temple, 1 Kings 8. 6. Heb. 9. 3, 4. The temple was ſo open, that men might ſee into it out of the court, now, which in the old teſtament they could not. See the meaning, Chap. 11. 19.

V. 6. ſeven angels, &c,] John ſaw them, verſ. 1. but now he ſeeth them coming out of the temple, to execute their charge.

out of the temple] See Chap. 14. 15. Out of the Sanctum ſanctorum, where the ark was, verſ. 5. It may import, that theſe were the laſt plagues, becauſe they lay hid in the ſecreteſt cloſet of Gods ſanctuary, till the reſt were finiſhed. Here is ſtill a gradation of judgements. The angels that blowe the trumpets are in heaven, Chap. 8. 1, 6. The reapers, and the encouragers, came out of the clouds, and the temple, and from the altar, Chap. 14. 14, 15, 17, 18. But theſe with the vials come out of the moſt holy place, Gods cloſet, and ſecret armory. They came alſo by command from God; for from the oracle did God uſe to anſwer Moſes, Exod. 25. 22. Numb. 7. 89. & 17. 4. So God ſtirred up men extraordinarily, to help pull down antichriſts kingdom. See Chap. 16. 1.

having the ſeven plagues] See notes on v. 1.

pure and white linen, &c.] Very glorious. An alluſion to the high prieſts garments (who onely went into the moſt holy place) both for the linen and girdle. See Exod. 28. 6, 8. They are clad like conquerours. See Chap. 19. 14.

their breſts girded with golden girdles] They were ready girt, to go about their work, Exod. 12. 11. 1 Kings 18. 46. Luke 12. 35. And with golden girdles, to ſhew their royal dignity, Chap. 1. 13. Some great religious princes they ſeem to ſet out, who muſt ſucceſſively weaken the popes kingdom, till it be quite deſtroyed.

V. 7. one of the four beaſts] Or, living wights, Chap. 4. 6. The miniſters. See why, Chap. 14. 15. It may be taken for the firſt, as Chap. 6. 1. Or, any one of them, becauſe the reſt are not named after, as in Chap. 6. The meaning is, that in every age after the reformation, God will raiſe up, as ſome eminent princes to fight againſt antichriſt; ſo alſo ſome famous miniſters to incite and encourage them thereunto.

ſeven golden vials, &c.] Each of them one vial full of the liquor of Gods wrath, to be poured on idolaters. Vials are cups wherein men uſed to drink, Pſal. 76. 8. Jer. 25. 15. Firſt were the ſeven ſeals, which were tokens of judgements to come on the world, if they repented not. Then the trumpets, thundering out greater troubles. Laſtly, the vials, which come without noiſe, becauſe they come not to warn, but to deſtroy the antichriſtians, as fire and brimſtone was poured down on Sodom and Gomorra, Gen. 19. They are golden, in alluſion to the veſſels of the ſanctuary, Exod. 25. 29. & 37. 16. Jer. 52. 19. Hereby is ſhewed, that Gods wrath is like gold, pure, and free from the dregs of paſſion; and alſo that God will get himſelf much glory by theſe judgements: For gold is the moſt pure and gliſtering metal.

full of the wrath of God] Not that God is angry with them; but by that which is contained in them, executeth his wrath on his foes: ſee how, Chap. 14. 8, 10. They contained many and great puniſhments in them.

who liveth for ever and ever] Chap. 5 14. & 10. 6. And therefore can puniſh them, not here onely, but alſo for ever in hell.

V. 8 the temple was filled with ſmoke, &c.] Smoke is uſed ſometimes, to ſet out Gods powerful and terrible preſence; as Exod. 19 18. eſpecially when he cometh in anger, to deſtroy the enemies of his Church, that he may ſhew mercy to his people, in delivering them, Pſal. 18. 7, 8, 14, 15, 16, 17. Iſa. 6. 4, 11. So here, God would ſhew his terrible and powerful preſence in his temple, by manifeſt arguments of his wrath againſt the enemies of his Church, in ſending ſome thence continually to plague the antichriſtian church, from the time of the Churches reformation, till antichriſts final deſtruction.

no man was able, &c.] God was ſo angry with the papiſts, that no man durſt come to intercede for them; but he went on in wrath, till he had rooted that religion out of the earth.

CHAP. XVI.

Verſ. 1. A Great voice] Signifying the work to be important, and to be done with great care.

out of the temple] Ch. 14. 15. It ſheweth alſo the work to be holy and juſt. It ſeemeth to be Gods voice. See Chap. 15. 6, 7. and the rather, becauſe the voice is ſaid to be heard, but no viſible form of the ſpeaker is ſhewed, Deut. 4. 12, 33.

to the ſeven angels] Signifying the inſtruments ready to execute theſe judgements, as the angels were ready to pour out the vials, and waited onely for a ſigne.

Go your ways] It is time for you now to pour out thoſe plagues upon the earth which are committed to you. They muſt go out of the Church, into antichriſts dominions, to afflict them.

pour out the vials] To the bottom. Leave nothing in. Execute Gods wrath to the full, as far as each of your commiſſions go.

vials of the wrath] Chap. 15. 7. Theſe vials were for the deſtruction of popiſh Rome, as the ſeals were for the overthrow of the heathen Romane empire. There is a great agreement between the trumpets, that weakened the Chriſtian Romane empire, and theſe vials, that ſhall ruine the popiſh Church. The evil of the firſt trumpet and vial lighteth on the earth; the ſecond, on the ſea, &c. The one ſheweth, that the popiſh Church ſhall be deſtroyed, as ſure as the heathen empire was: the other, that it ſhall be deſtroyed by ſuch like judgements as the heathen empire was weakened.

wrath of God] Yet God may be the ſpeaker, though he ſpeak of himſelf, in the third perſon; as he doth, Exod. 20. 7.

upon the earth] Upon the antichriſtian church and ſtate, as appeareth, verſ. 2. This is like to be the ſenſe here, becauſe ſome of the vials were poured on the ſea, and on the ſun, verſ. 3, 8. not all on the earth literally taken.

The firſt vial.

V. 2. the firſt went] Gr. went forth. They did not all pour out their vials at once, to ſhew, that this deſolation ſhould come by degrees, not all at once. The angels that ſounded the trumpets, ſtood before God and ſounded, Chap. 8 2, 7. theſe go forth to do it: which ſheweth, that theſe are types of thoſe princes that muſt deſtroy antichriſts kingdom by degrees.

poured out his vial] Left nothing in it. This ſheweth the greatneſs of the judgment, and his fidelity, in doing as he was commanded, verſ. 1.

upon the earth] Upon the common people, the popes footſtool. So it is to be taken here, becauſe the other vials were to be poured on the earth alſo; if it be taken for antichriſts whole kingdom, as it is, v. 1.

noiſom and grievous ſore] Gr. evil and wicked. Evil is put for noiſom, or offenſive to others, 2 Sam. 11. 27. 1 Chron. 21. 7. Wicked, for troubleſom to a mans ſelf, Eccl. 1. 13. Sore travel: Heb. evil thing. So Eccleſ. 4. 8. And on the contrary, good, is put for, pleaſing to others, Gen. 1. 31. to our ſelves, Pſal. 4. 6, 7. & 34. 12. & 106. 5. Now becauſe the place of the body is not noted, it may be ſuppoſed theſe ſores in the type went all over the body, as Jobs did, Job 2. 7. And the like is threatned, Deut. 28. 27, 35. This muſt needs be noiſom to others, and troubleſom to themſelves. Some take it for the rage of the common people, who went to fight againſt the Waldenſes; for they were the popes marked ſouldiers. Others, for the Neopolitan diſeaſe that came upon his warriours, one thouſand four hundred ninety and four. Others, for the envy of the idolaters againſt the Goſpel, and the preachers and profeſſours of it, when Luthers firſt began to preach. It made them like the Egyptians, that not onely could not abide to have their bodies touched, but alſo not to endure the company of others, Exod. 9. 10, 11.

upon the men] Like boils; that as they afflict within, ſo they appear withour, and ſtink when they break: ſo did their envy. Thus were the papiſts vexed, when the proteſtant religion was publikely profeſſed. Men that knew no grounds of religion, nor knew no cauſe of quarrel againſt them, would bring fagots to burn them; as appeareth in the book of martyrs.

mark] Chap. 13. 16.

which worſhipped his image] Chap. 13. 15.

The ſecond vial.

V. 3. upon the ſea] See Chap. 8. 8. Hereby is meant the popes juriſdiction which kept many provinces in ſubjection to him, as the ſea doth begirt the land.

it became] A greater defection then before. The third part onely was blood, Chap. 8. 8.

as the blood of a dead man] Exod. 7. 17. As the putrified blood of a dead carcaſe, which is ſo loathſom, that no man can drink it. Or, as if it were made all over red with the blood of many men ſlain.

every living ſoul died in the ſea] Whole provinces and kingdoms caſt off the popes juriſdiction; becauſe it was ſo corrupt, they could not live any longer in it. So it came to paſſe in Luthers time, before his death.

The third vial. V. 4. rivers and fountains of waters] Popiſh magiſtrates, and miniſters employed to uphold their church, who came to an ill end; as many did in England and France.

V. 5. angel of the waters] That had power given him to turn the ſea into blood, v. 3. Or, him on whoſe vial poured out, the rivers and fountains were turned into blood, v. 4. Like the angel of the fire, chap. 14. 18.

which art, &c.] Chap. 1. 4. judged] Puniſhed; as Gen. 15. 14.

V. 6. And thou haſt given them blood to drink] They were adjudged to death, as they had judged others. So the laws are againſt prieſts in England; and they have for their ill lives been put death by the ſecular power, in ſome popiſh countreys.

V. 7. another] Differing from him, chap. 9. 13. or from him, chap. 14. 18. or from him that ſpake out of the temple, v. 1. of this chapter. Or, one confirming the words of the angel the incenſe at the golden altar, chap. 8. 3 4.

Even ſo] So it ought to be.

true and righteous] Chap. 15. 3. Thou haſt judged incorruptibly, in giving blood for blood; and fulfilled thy promiſe, in revenging the blood of thy ſervants, chap. 6. 11.

The fourth vial. V. 8. upon the ſun] The popes temporal power over kings. Or, the houſe of Auſtria, which ſhineth brighteſt in the popiſh heaven. They have begun to be eclipſed.

unto him] Or, unto it. To the angel, or to the ſun. See the like, chap. 9. 1.

to ſcorch] Much fire and war have been in their territories of late: more may be.

V. 9. ſcorched] Or, burned. They were enraged with rancour and malice, as with a burning fire.

blaſphemed the Name of God] As the beaſt doth, chap 13. 6. which hath power over theſe plagues. Either he ſheweth the cauſe why they blaſphemed God, to wit, Becauſe he did inflict theſe plagues on them; or, did not keep them off: Or elſe he ſheweth their madneſſe, that made their plagues greater, by reſiſting him that could have removed them, if they had ſubmitted to him, and intreated his help, Iſa. 8 21.

to give glory to God] See chap. 11. 13.

repented not] See chap. 9. 20, 21.

The fifth vial. V. 10. upon the ſeat of the beaſt] On the city of Rome, chap. 13. 2. which ſhall then be deſtroyed. And then we ſhall certainly know, which of the vials are paſt, and which to come.

full of darkneſs, &c.] Though his city be deſtroyed, yet not his kingdom totally: that ſhall be much obſcured, when his throne is gone. The pope then muſt live ſomewhere elſe, when Rome is deſtroyed, (as once he did at Avignon) before his kingdom be quite overthrown: and his followers ſhall be in great agony, like thoſe that bite their tongues for grief and anger, ready, at the next encreaſe of pain, to devour or deſtroy themſelves. Or, it may be meant, They ſhall eat their words, and be aſhamed of their railings upon Gods ſaints, though they leave not their idolatry, v. 11.

V. 11. blaſphemed the God of heaven] Spake ill of him, becauſe they conceived their plagues came from thence: for they thought no humame power could have deſtroyed Rome.

repented not] See v. 9. Chap. 9. 20.

The ſixth vial. V. 12. upon the great river Euphrates] Chap. 9. 14.

and the water thereof was dried up] With the heat of the plague; or by the Jews, turned Chriſtians, diverted, that they may come to help ruine the beaſt, Iſa. 11. 15, 16. An alluſion to the taking of old Babylon, Jer. 50. 38. & 51. 32. and drying up the Red ſea, Exod. 14. and Jordan, Joſh. 3. Or, the deſtroying of the Turkiſh empire, that hindereth their coming, as of Aſſyria, Iſa. 8. 7. Theſe are not like to come to help deſtroy Rome; for that is to be done under the former vial. See notes on v. 10. But to help deſtroy antichriſt utterly, at the great battel of Armageddon, v. 16. Chap. 19. 17, 18. For their converſion is likely to be before that, though after the fall of Rome. See notes on chap. 19. 1, &c.

kings of the eaſt] The Jews, who are like to reign in thoſe parts again, Iſa. 24. 41. Others underſtand it of the Turks, to be brought in by the popes frogs to help him, v. 14.

V. 13. three unclean ſpirits] Divers kindes of incendiaries ſent abroad.

like frogs] Unclean perſons, and making a great noiſe, to draw men to fight for antichriſt, though Rome be down. They ſhould be either the Jeſuites, or ſome ſtirring ſect worſe then the Jeſuites, ariſing after Romes, and before antichriſts fall.

out of the mouth] By the command; as chap. 12. 15. Or, ſent to eſtabliſh their doctrine or religion.

of the dragon] Of the devil, chap. 13. 13. The Jeſuites ſeem to be ſent by him; for they keep a cabinet-council at Rome, diſtinct from the popes.

of the beaſt] The emperour, chap. 13. 1. who ſendeth ambaſſadours abroad, to uphold the popiſh cauſe.

of that falſe prophet] The pope, chap. 13. 11. who ſendeth his legats. See chap. 19. 20. & 20. 10. All theſe ſtir up other princes to further the catholike cauſe, as they call it. See the like, Gen. 14 3. Joſh. 9. 1, 2. & 10. 1, 2 3.

of the great day of God Almighty] Wherein God ſhall ſhew his Almighty power, in deſtroying the popiſh princes, chap. 19 17.

V. 15. Behold I come] This verſe ſhould be included in a parentheſis, becauſe the verſe following dependeth not on it, but on the former. It is put in, to comfort Chriſts ſervants againſt theſe great preparations, by his promiſe of his ſpeedy aſſiſtance.

as a thief] Chap. 3. 3. Matth. 24. 43. Unexpectedly.

watch] Taketh heed of the plots of theſe frogs. Or, doth expect my help continually.

keepeth his garments] Doeth nothing unbeſeeming the true religion; for for he will get no help from them by diſſembling but will be expoſed to ſhame, if he condeſcend to them.

V. 16. He gathereth them] God, v. 14. As he let Ahab be ſeduced by the falſe prophets, to his deſtruction, 1 Kings 22. ſo he letteth thoſe fooliſh kings hearken to the frogs, to come into the pit of perdition. Or, They gathered: that is, the frogs. Or, the meaning is, they were gathered; as Luke 12. 20.

Armageddon] The place hath this name given it from the future event; as Numb. 11. 34. Ezek. 39. 21. Some take it for an alluſion to Baraks victory over Siſera, by the waters of Megiddo, Judg. 4. 15. & 5. 19, 20. The word may ſignifie, Devoted to deſtruction: or, Deſtroyed by craft: that is, ſubtilty brought thither, to be ſuddenly deſtroyed.

The ſeventh vial. V. 17. the ſeventh angel] Under the fifth vial, was the deſtruction of the city of Rome: under the ſixth, the overthrow of the the kings that aſſiſt the pope in the great battel. Under this ſeventh, the remainder of the papiſts are deſtroyed.

into the air] Where Satans throne is, Eph. 2. 2. who upheld the beaſt and falſe prophet all this while, and uſed his utmoſt endeavour to uphold them in the laſt great battel.

a great voice] In the thunder, v. 18. See Joh. 12. 28, 29.

from the throne] From him that ſitteth on the throne; that is, God the Father, chap. 1. 4. & 4. 2.

It is done] It is certain, as if it were done, Hoſ. 10. 7. Chap. 21. 6. Babylon is undone, v. 19. Or, It was. Or, It is done. That is, it once had a glorious being, now it hath none at all.

V. 18. voices and thunders, &c.] See chap. 4. 5. & 8. 5. & 11. 13. 10. As if heaven and earth were troubled, or conſpired together, to deſtroy antichriſt. Or, it may ſignifie a deſtruction, not by humane help, but from heaven, as it ſeemeth, v. 21.

ſuch as was not, &c.] See Dan. 12. 1.

V. 19. the great city] The place where the remainder of the ſenate and people of Rome abide: for it was deſtroyed under the fifth vial.

divided] Gr. made. Or, became.

into three parts] Pulled all to pieces, as a city torn into three pieces by an earthquake.

cities of the nations] Other popiſh cities were deſtroyed. See chap. 11. 2. Or, of Turks and Gentiles: for all Chriſts enemies are to be depoſed from publike authority.

came in remembrance before God] He ſhewed, by deſtroying her utterly, that he remembred all her wickedneſſe. So good works are remembred, when rewarded, Act, 10. 4, 31.

cup of the wine, &c.] See chap. 14. 10. Jer. 25. 15, 16.

of the fierceneſſe of his wrath] This ſheweth the greatneſs of Gods anger, puniſhing them for their ſins which they were ſo many years in commiting.

V. 20. every Iland] Or, place beyond the ſea; as Pſal. 72. 10. Or, every land or countrey; as Iſa. 20. 6. & 41. 1. Jer. 47. 4. See chap. 6. 14. There, they were out of place; here, no more found, as if they had been removed or ſwallowed up by the earthquake. There ſhould be no more footing for popery in any remote place, or defenced cities. All of them ſhould be either converted or confounded.

V. 21. upon men] The judgment on the places was ſhewed before: now followeth the judgment on the men that eſcaped. God will deſtroy them ſtrangely.

a great hail] Great hailſtones (as Joſh. 10. 11.) ſignifying great judgements.

weight of a talent] See Ezra 8.26. Very great hailſtones, big enough, not to kill men onely, but alſo to daſh them to pieces.

blaſphemed God] They were ſo obſtinate in their idolatry, that they ſtood out againſt all Gods judgments, and blaſphemed God to the very laſt hour, v. 9.

CHAP. XVII.

Verſ. 1. O*Ne of the ſeven angels*] It was fit that one of the executioners of Gods wrath on Babylon ſhould inform John what ſhe was, Chap.16.1. Or, the firſt of the ſeven angels; as Chap. 6. 1. talked with me] See Chap.1.12. & 4. 1.

I will ſhew unto thee] As now the whore is ſhewed to John, and the manner of her deſtruction; ſo ſhe muſt be manifeſted to be a whore, to Gods miniſters and people, eſpecially to ſuch as ſhall be employed in deſtroying her; for that is a great encouragement to fight againſt her.

the judgement] The utter deſtruction of Rome. But it is called judgement, that men may know it came not by chance, nor undeſervedly, nor by mans power principally; but by a juſt ſentence of Almighty God upon her for her ſins, and that men are ſet on work by an higher power, to pull her down, and bring her lowe.

great whore] She was once the faithful ſpouſe of Chriſt; but now is turned harlot, Iſai.1.21. She is called a great whore, becauſe of the multitude of her ſpiritual fornications, Iſai. 23. 15, 17. Nah. 3. 4. Or, the damnation (as Matth. 23. 14.) of the great whore, by an Hebraiſm, for, the great damnable whore. As Matth.24.15. abomination of deſolation, for, abominable deſolation.

ſitteth upon many waters] Situated on the great river Tiber, as old Babylon on Euphrates, Jer.51.13. See what is meant by waters ſpiritually, v. 15.

V. 2. kings of the earth] Many great princes have been ſeduced to idolatry by her, and worſhipped her idols; and ſhe diſpenſeth with adulteries and inceſts in them, to keep them at her beck. Before, the nations onely are mentioned, Chap. 14. 8. here; the kings alſo, to ſhew, that this Romiſh idolatry ſhould be countenanced by authority in many nations.

inhabiters of the earth] Like a common ſtrumpet, ſhe proſtituteth her ſelf to baſe people alſo, for mony, that ſhe may put off her pardons and indulgences.

drunk with the wine] Allured to idolatry by her, with hope of gain, honour, pleaſure, ſo that they doted on it, and were mad againſt all that oppoſed them in that courſe; as wicked men do, who are entiſed to whoredom by the flatteries of a ſtrumpet, Prov.7.14. See v. 4. Chap.14.8. Jer. 51. 7.

V. 3. in the ſpirit] In a trance, his body abiding where it was, Chap. 4. 2.

into the wilderneſſe] A fit place to be private, that he might the better view ſo great a myſtery. Or, to ſhew, that this great whore was not yet viſible in the world. Or, that he might view the woman the better, being ſeparated from others, and in an open waſte, where nothing might hinder the ſight of her. Or, to intimate, that Rome ſhould be brought into a deſolate ſtate in the end; as Chap. 18. 21, &c. Iſai. 13. 19, 20, 21, 22. Jer. 50. 12.

a ſcarlet-coloured beaſt] The Romane, or French, or Germane emperour, ſet up by the pope. Or, as ſome, the pope, who upholdeth popiſh Rome. And the beaſt is ſaid to be ſcarlet-coloured; firſt, to ſhew the pride of theſe Romiſh idolaters, who would go like kings, and great commanders, and rich perſonages, Nah. 2. 3. 2 Sam. 1. 24. Matth. 27. 28, 29, 31. Secondly, to ſhew their cruelty, that were as it were dyed with the blood of Gods Saints, verſ. 6. Chap. 18. 24.

full of names of blaſphemy Uſurping names that belong to God and Chriſt onely, 2 Theſſ. 2. 4. and taking Gods power, or a greater, unto themſelves; as the pope and his adherents do at Rome, by diſpenſing with ſins and oathes. Now their blaſphemies are legible, to be ſeen with the eye, as ſpots on a beaſt; and they are all over beſpotted with them.

ſeven heads] See v. 9, 10, 12.

V. 4. in purple and ſcarlet colour] So the pope and cardinals are attired at Rome. Thus like a ſtrumpet they deck themſelves, to allure lovers. And it may alſo ſet out their pride, in their kingly and triumphant attire, Chap. 18. 7. Dan. 5. 29. and their luxury, whereof Rome is full.

decked] Gr. gilded.

with gold, &c.] It may ſet out the ſtately worſhip of the papiſts, their coſtly images, altars, copes, pales, or ſtately palaces.

cup of gold] The wine was mentioned, Chap. 14. 8. Now the cup is ſet out, and it is a golden on, Jer.51.7. to allure men to drink of it, or to ſhew, that golden means are uſed by the popes, to draw men to idolatry. Or, that Rome beareth the title of The catholike Church; but giveth the poiſoned cup of idolatry to others to drink, chap.14.8.

in her hand] Signifying, that Rome ſendeth abroad legats, to allure all men, eſpecially great ones, to her ſuperſtition.

full of abominations] More abominable, for idolatry and wantonneſſe, then any other place. Such cups of entiſing wine, whores were wont to give to their lovers, to allure them to folly, verſe 2. Or, alluding to ſuch enchanted potions, as by lewd perſons are given to work a ſtrong and ſtrange inclination of amorous affections towards them in others.

V. 5. upon her forehead a name] As common ſtrumpets anciently had their names written over their cells in the ſtews, and ſome on their foreheads; that all might plainly ſee, that ſhe is ſuch as ſhe is hereafter deſcribed.

written] By Gods appointment it was made known; for ſhe would never take ſuch a title to her ſelf; yet ſhe did ſo openly carry her ſelf, that men might ſee her faults in her forehead, Iſa.3.9. Jer.3.3.

Myſtery] Deceiving others, under the colour of divine myſteries, (whereas heathen Rome openly profeſſed idolatry) their whole religion being a myſtery of iniquity or wickedneſſe, 2 Theſſ.2.7. as the Goſpel of Chriſt is called, The myſtery of piety, or godlineſſe, Rom.16. 25. 1 Tim, 3.16.

Babylon the great] An alluſion to old Babylon, called Great Babylon, Dan. 4. 30. whom Rome imitateth, in oppreſſing Gods Church, and challenging an univerſal empire.

the mother of harlots] Or, fornications. A teacher and nouriſher of bodily and ſpiritual whoredoms, Ezek. 16. Hoſ. firſt and ſecond Chapters. So that ſhe not onely was idolatrous her ſelf, but brought forth, and brought up, children ſuitable to her ſelf.

V. 6. drunken with the blood, &c.] Not onely outwardly ſprinkled with it, but inwardly ſurfeted; ſuch abundance of martyrs did ſhe kill, and commanded every where to be killed, Chap. 16. 6. & 18. 24. She made others drink with her idolatry, verſ. 2. and thoſe againſt whom ſhe could not prevail, ſhe made her ſelf drunk with their blood.

of the ſaints, &c.] This encreaſeth her ſinne. It was a great tranſgreſſion to kill men; greater, to kill holy men; greateſt of all, to kill them for bearing witneſſe to Chriſt.

I wondred, &c.] John wondred not before, at the ſight of the two beaſts, Chap. 13. But now he admireth at the ſight of the woman on the beaſt, whom he had not ſeen before. And he wondred indeed, that God would ſuffer ſo much blood of his ſervants to be ſhed by her. But he did not ſo admire at her great power, as to follow her. This wicked men do, verſ. 8. Chap. 13. 3, 4.

V. 7. And the angel ſaid unto me] That angel that ſhewed me this repreſentation, v. 1, &c. now fulfilleth his word, and telleth me the meaning of it.

Why doſt thou marvel?] Johns admiration, is the ground of the future revelation.

I will tell thee] As John could not tell the meaning of this type, unleſſe the angel had revealed it: ſo we could never have known Rome to be Babylon, unleſſe God had made it known to us, v. 9.

myſtery] See v. 5.

that carrieth her] The emperours uphold Rome, and Rome upholdeth the pope.

V. 8. that thou ſaweſt, &c.] This beaſt appeared to John before in another ſhape, not as an upholder of popiſh Rome.

out of the bottomleſſe pit, &c.] Shall be ſet up by Satan to that end, and be deſtroyed with him, Chap. 11. 7.

ſhall wonder] See notes on v. 6.

whoſe names are not written, &c.] Chap. 13. 8. Though their impoſtures by very ſubtil, yet they cannot deceive Gods elect, Matth. 24. 24.

and yet is] Other copies read it, and yet ſhall be]. This beaſt ſome take to be the pope; others, the emperour: which appeared to John in another form before, Chap. 13. but now was vaniſhed, in regard of that form, and appeared as one that ſhould hereafter uphold popiſh Rome. Others ſay, Which was in reſemblance of power, but ſhould not be for a time in that greatneſſe; yet ſhould afterwards get a renewed power, Chap. 13. 4.

V. 9. minde which hath wiſdom] Here a wiſe heart may exerciſe it ſelf, to finde out this myſtery, Chap. 13. 18.

ſeven mountains] Rome was built on ſeven hills, yet to be ſeen there, though ſome of them now be without the walls of the city.

V. 10. There

V. 10. There are] Or, They are.

ſeven kings] The laſting heads,were hills ; the fleeting ones, are kings, that is, ſeveral ſorts of governments.

five are fallen] Kings , conſulls, tribunes, decemvirs, dictatours.

one is] Romane emperours.

the other is not yet come] Popes : or, the Gothiſh kingdom of Italy ; for it laſted but a while, in compariſon of the emperours.

a ſhort ſpace] It is literally true of the Gothiſh kingdom : but if it be meant of the pope, it intimateth, that the popes power ſhall not abide for ever. It may ſeem long to thoſe that ſuffer under it ; but it is ſhort, in Gods ſight, 2 Pet. 3. 8. and in reſpect of the eternal happineſſe of Gods ſaints, Rom. 8. 18. 2 Cor .4. 16, 17, 18. A longer time is ſaid to be ſhort, Chap.22.6,7,10,12,20.

V. 11. the beaſt] By a ſynecdoche. He meaneth, one head of that beaſt which he ſaw. Or, he is not the eighth beaſt, nor head ; for there were not ſo many in all : but the eighth king ; for with that word it agreeth in the Greek, and not with either of the of the other. He ſhould be ſo altered, that he ſhould ſeem rather to be a new beaſt, then an head of the old one, Dan. 7. 7.

is one of the ſeven] There were emperours before ; and after that they were depreſſed by the Goths, the weſtern emperour was ſet up by the pope, Chap. 13. 13. Or, he may be one of the ſeven, if it be underſtood of the pope ; becauſe he attained to ſuch power afterwards, as the emperours formerly had.

and goeth into perdition] Verſ. 8.

V. 12. The ten horns] Hereby it appeareth, that this is the firſt beaſt, Chap.13.1. for the ſecond had but two horns, Chap. 13.11. The ſecond beaſt, the pope upheld ; the firſt, the emperour or empire ; and the firſt upheld the woman, the city of Rome, v. 18.

ten kings] The kingdoms of Europe rent from the Romane empire. See the like, Dan. 7. 24. In Johns time, they had no kingdoms, but were ſubject to the Romane empire.

as kings] For they had crowns, Chap.13.1. whereas the ten horns of the dragon, Chap.12.3. had no crowns : they were but lievtenants to the Romane empire. The crowns were then on the ſeven heads, not on the ten horns, as now.

one hour] They ſhall reign a ſmall time with the pope, v. 10. Matth. 20. 12. & 26. 40. Or, at one hour, Chap. 3. 3. Joh. 4. 52. Acts 3. 30. For the pope ſoon laboured to divide the kingdoms of Chriſtendom, to uphold himſelf. And now there be divers kings, notwithſtanding the emperours remaining.

V. 13. one minde, &c.] They ſhall labour with one conſent, to uphold the pope, or the Romane empire. Before, nations ſubmitted ; now, kings. See on v. 2.

power and ſtrength] Or, force and authority. They ſhall uſe all their perſonal and royal authority over their people, to uphold the beaſt, Chap.13.2.

V. 14. Theſe] Some of theſe ſhall take part with antichriſt till the end, even after the fall of Rome, till they be deſtroyed at Armageddon, Chap. 16. 14. & 18. 9. & 19. 18. So, The thieves mocked Chriſt, Matth.27.44. that is, One of them, Luke 23. 39. Here the inſtruments of the popes war are ſet down by a ſimilitude taken from beaſts which fight with their horns, Zech. 1.18,19,21.

with the Lamb] Chap. 5. 6. Before, the beaſt made war with the witneſſes, Chap. 11. 7. and with all the Saints, Chap. 13. 7. but now, with Chriſt himſelf. This ſheweth the cauſe of his quarrel againſt them ; to wit, that they belong to Chriſt ; and the growth and height of his malice againſt Chriſt.

for he is Lord of lords, &c.] Chap. 19. 16. 1 Tim. 1. 16. God having given him ſupreme power over all, it is fit that all ſhould be willingly ſubject to him, or ſubdued under him, Pſalm 110. 1, 2, 3. Matth. 28. 18, 19, 20. 1 Cor. 15. 25.

called and choſen] Of high account with God, though the world call them heriticks. Or, ſuch as are pickt out by Chriſt himſelf, Jer. 49. 19. & 50. 44. and called to deſtroy antichriſt, and will faithfully do it.

V. 15. The waters, &c.] Here he ſetteth out the large territories of the beaſt, conſiſting of many people of ſundry languages, by the ſimilitude of many waters. So Iſai. 8. 7, 8. Jer. 47. 2. for the people are moveable and inconſtant, like water. And antichriſts kingdom is built on a fleeting foundation, like a houſe on the water.

which thou ſaweſt] The woman to ſit on, v. 1.

peoples and multitudes] See Chap. 5. 9. & 7. 9. & 10. 11. & 11. 19. & 13. 7. & 14. 6.

V. 16. Theſe ſhall hate the whore] Or, are theſe kings which ſhall hate the whore. For the gender is changed in the Greek, from horns to men. That is, ſome of theſe ; for others will take part with antichriſt to the end. See notes on v. 14. They ſhall, like raging enemies, out of hatred conſpire againſt her, and lay waſte her dwelling, as it were ſtrip her of her ſtate and pomp, uſe her moſt deſpightfully, and utterly deſtroy her.

make her deſolate] By leaving her communion.

naked] They ſhall take away her garments, conſiſting of purple, and ſcarlet, and gold, and precious ſtones, and pearls, v. 4. and convert them to their own uſe. So they ſhall make her poor and naked. Or, they ſhall forbid their ſubjects to go thither to buy pardons. So whores are impoveriſhed, when their lovers forſake them.

eat her fleſh] Spoil her, as a lion feeding on his prey. Or, ſhall feed themſelves on her ſpoils, which were as dear to her as her fleſh, Matth. 5. 29, 30. Or, members, Col. 3. 5. This ſheweth their great rage againſt her ; Pſal. 27. 2. Job 31. 31. but it appeareth more in the clauſe following, in that they were not content with eating her fleſh, Job 19. 22. but burnt the remainders of her.

burn her with fire] Deſtroy her utterly, not leaving a bone of her. They ſhall burn the whole city, when they have rifled it, as the Babylonians did Jeruſalem, Jer. 38. 23. & 52. 13. & 37. 10. and as harlots and ſtrumpets ſometimes were, Gen. 38. 24. Levit. 21. 9. Ezek. 23. 45, 47.

V. 17. For God hath put into their hearts] A reaſon is here given of the altering of their affections toward the beaſt now, and their enclining it ſo ſtrongly to it before : to wit, Gods will, who, as now in mercy he moved them to deſtroy the beaſt ; ſo before, for their own ſins, and cowardlineſſe, verſ. 13, 14. and the ſins of their ſubjects, in juſtice for a time gave them over to ſubject themſelves to the beaſt. So Pharoah is ſaid to harden his own heart, Exod. 8. 15. and God is ſaid to do it, Exod. 7. 13.

to fulfil his will] To deſtroy the city of Rome.

and to agree, &c.] Or, to do with one conſent. Or, to act that one ſentence, verſ. 13. that is, to ſubmit themſelves to the popes tyranny no longer then for a time ſet by God. So the apoſtle thanketh God, Rom. 6. 17. that they were no longer ſervants of ſin, not for that they were ſo for a time. Or, God, for a juſt puniſhment of their ſins, made them ſubject to Rome, as he did the nations to old Babylon, Jer. 27. 6. For it was not a ſin in it ſelf, to ſubmit to the Romane empire, though by the popes this power were afterwards abuſed to perſecution. No threats or allurements could have made them ſo ſervile to popiſh Rome, if God in juſtice had not given them over to that ſlavery : nor none have raiſed up their ſpirits again to deſtroy Rome, if God had not done it, and ſo made her friends her foes. Thus whoremongers uſe to deal with ſtrumpets, when they ſee what hurt they have got by them, Ezek. 16. 37, 39. Or, it may be read, And ſuffered them to agree. See the like addition of a fit word, 1 Tim. 4. 3.

until the words of God ſhall be fulfilled] Till the city of Rome ſhall have executed all thoſe cruelties, and enjoyed her dominion ſo long, as God hath appointed or foretold. We muſt not then accuſe God of ſlackneſſe, if Rome be not yet down ; but with patience expect Gods time, knowing, that as ſurely as he hath put into the hearts of theſe kings to ſerve that empire ; ſo ſurely he will, at his time determined, put it into their hearts to deſtroy that city.

V. 18. And the woman] Before, he had expounded the beaſt ; now, he telleth what the whoriſh woman is that ſat upon the beaſt.

the great city] Rome, which then had the empire. Before, he concealed the full deſcription of it : now, the time of deſtruction drawing neer, he doeth as good as name her. We may hope then her end is not far off, now ſhe is all over Europe proclamed to be the whore of Babylon.

CHAP. XVIII.

Verſ. 1. A*Fter theſe things*] The holy Ghoſt having ſpoken of the deſtruction of the ſeat of the beaſt under the fifth vial, Chap. 16. 10. ſheweth what that ſeat is, Chap. 17. 18. the city of Rome : now he goeth on to the overthrow of it. So that it ſeemeth we are now under the fourth vial, and the fifth is not yet poured out, becauſe Rome is not yet deſtroyed.

another angel] Differing from him before, Chap. 17. 1. Though God had given ſundry warnings of the fall of Rome before, Chap. 14. 8, 9. & 16. 10. yet he ſheweth his long ſuffering, and willingneſſe to have men forſake her, that they may not periſh, by ſending three angels more, to ſignifie that her deſtruction draweth nigh : one here, foretelling her fall once more ; another, verſ. 4. calling men out of her, as out of an houſe on fire, leſt they be deſtroyed with her ; as Numb. 16. 26. a third, verſ. 21. ſhewing her utter deſolation in expreſſe words, confirmed by a ſigne.

from heaven] Or, out of heaven. Sent with a commiſſion from God, to fortel the fall of Rome now at hand. It ſheweth, then, that this was no dream of his own, but Gods certain truth: and that this great judgement ſhould not come by accident; but by the will and providence of God. It may ſignifie ſome great man ſuddenly raiſed by God, and unexpectedly (as Pſal. 26. 6. & 57.3. & 102. 19.) to deſtroy Rome. Things that come out of the earth, muſt have time to grow: things from heaven come ſuddenly.

great power] Furniſhed with power fit for ſuch a ſervice. So that none could reſiſt him; but Rome muſt fall by his means. Others foretold the fall of it before; but this cometh to execute it.

the earth was lightned with his glory] That is, with his brightneſſe, in the viſion. So glory is uſed, Exod. 40. 34. Numb. 14. 10. 2 Cor. 3. 7. The thing ſignified may be, that, even earthly men, and papiſts, ſhall admire at the piety of him whom God ſhall ſet up to deſtroy that city; or at his majeſtical power, made known by his victories.

V. 2. mightily with a ſtrong voice] That all men might hear this tidings of the fall of Rome: for ſhe was ſo ſetled, that many believed ſhe could not be overthrown. Or, to ſhew the greatneſſe of her fall, and of Gods anger againſt her.

Babylon the great is fallen] Chap. 14. 8. Iſai. 21. 9. Jerem. 51. 8.

is fallen] It is doubled, to ſhew the greatneſſe, neerneſſe, or certainty of the fall.

habitation of devils] It was full of men, but now it is full of devils. Either becauſe men eſteem ſolitary places haunted with ghoſts, or becauſe the foul ſpirits do haunt ſuch places for their pleaſure, Iſai. 34. 11. Jerem. 51. 37. Matth. 12. 43. Mark 5. 3. Or, are confined thither by God, as to an hold or priſon; or keep there, to terrifie men that paſſe by ſuch places.

a cage of every unclean and hateful bird] Iſai. 13. 21. Of ſuch birds as were forbidden in the law, and hated by men, becauſe they are not good for food or ſong, but feed on other birds, and make hideous and diſmal noiſes. See a patern of ſuch deſolation, in the ruines of monaſteries: they once held unclean men; now now nothing, except perhaps unclean ſpirits and birds.

V. 3. all nations have drunk] Rome is compared to a famous ſtrumpet, who permitteth ordinary people to drink of her cup, kings and great ones to have to do with her, merchants to gain by her. Before, Chap. 14. 8. it was ſaid, She made them drink: now the phraſe is altered, They have drunk: to ſhew, that ſome might come in of their own accord, as others did by her perſwaſion or compulſion. Both theſe ways, men come to taverns and ſtews.

of the wine, &c.] See Chap. 14. 8.

kings] Chap. 17. 2.

merchants of the earth] Either worldly merchants, that ſold her delicate things for her luſt; or ſpiritual ones; as friers, monks, pardon-ſellers, and ſuch like, 2 Pet. 2. 3.

abundance] Or, power.

delicacies] Money, which they had of her for delicate things to ſerve her luſts.

V. 4. and her voice] A voice, without naming the authour, bringeth ſome great matter worthy of attention, Iſai. 40. 6. When Rome is to be deſtroyed, God will finde a means to call out his elect from thence, as he did Lot out of Sodom.

Come out of her] Jer. 51. 6, 45. & 50. 8. Iſai. 52. 11. God is careful of his, that they may eſcape Babylons ſins and puniſhment; which they would not do, unleſſe they come out before the burning of the city: for the people will ſtill ſollicite them to idolatry; and the ſword or fire cannot diſtinguiſh between friends and enemies.

my people] This then was Gods voice, or ſome angel's repreſenting God.

V. 5. reached unto heaven] Gr. followed. They were as it were one laid upon another, to make a mount to reach up to heaven, and cry for vengeance, Gen. 18. 20, 21. & 19. 13. Ezra 9. 6. Jon. 1. 2. Jerem. 51. 9. The leaſt ſins reach to heaven. God knoweth them all: but the phraſe is commonly uſed of great ſins, that will pull down ſudden judgements. God is compared to a patient man, who paſſeth by many ſmaller faults in his ſervants, without taking notice, as not being willing to puniſh them; which he ſhould do, if he took notice of them: yet when ſome great fault is committed, then he calleth his ſervant to account for it, and puniſheth him.

remembred her iniquities] He ſeemed to forget her ſins before, while he let her proſper; but now he ſheweth that he remembreth them, by puniſhing her for them, Chap. 16. 19.

V. 6. Reward her] Jer. 50. 15, 29. Some take it as ſpoken to all thoſe that come to deſtroy Rome. Others, of thoſe which came newly out upon his laſt ſummons, verſ. 4. whoſe ſpirits were moſt likely to be ſet upon revenge, by the harſh impreſſions of the ſins they lately ſaw there, and wrongs they newly received.

double unto her double] Not the double of her deſerts, but of thoſe miſeries ſhe hath brought on you before. And that is juſt, both becauſe God forbiddeth them to do it, and becauſe ſhe did wrongfully torture innocents; but they juſtly puniſh the whore.

in the cup] Not of her fornication, but of puſhment.

V. 7. how much] Gr. in how many things. This ſheweth, that ſhe was very high before, and muſt be brought very lowe, now.

glorified her ſelf] Set up her ſelf above others, and againſt God, Jer. 48. 26, 42. Lam. 1. 9.

ſo much torment] Her puniſhment muſt be anſwerable to her pride and luxury. This is ſpoken of worldly puniſhments at the fall of Rome; for none can be ſo high on earth, as they are brought low in hell.

ſhe ſaith in her heart] She thinketh ſo, Pſalm 14. 1. She durſt not ſay ſo, leſt ſhe ſhould be eſteemed proud, or be envied by others. Thus her pride foretlleth her fall, Prov. 16. 16.

I ſit a queen] Iſai. 47. 7, 8. I have a great command.

no widow] I am mighty, and full of people, and live happily. Chap. 12. 11. is the like phraſe: Loved not their lives, that is, made no account of them. Cities deprived of their power and people, are accounted widows, Lam. 1. 1.

ſee no ſorrow] Feel none in my ſelf.

V. 8. in one day] In a ſhort time, called one hour, verſ. 10, 17, 19. Not that one day would end the buſineſſe; but her enemies ſhould not give over the ſiege, till they had taken it. Or, in one day; that is, ſuddenly, againſt her expectation, Iſai. 47. 9. 11.

death, and mourning, and famine, &c.] In the ſiege of Rome, many ſhall be ſlain, and their friends that live, ſhall mourn for them; and they in the city ſhall ſuffer famine; and when it is taken, it ſhall be burnt down to the ground Chap. 17. 16.

for ſtrong is the Lord, &c.] Leſt any man ſhould think the city too ſtrong to be deſtroyed ſo quickly, he telleth of Gods power, who undertaketh the work, Jer. 50. 34.

V. 9. kings of the earth] Like adulterers that have loſt their pleaſures; ſo theſe kings ſhall make womanly lamentations for loſſe of their images and ſuperſtitions. This muſt be underſtood of ſuch kings as ſhall ſtand to the pope, after Rome is down. See notes on Chap. 16. 14. & 17. 16.

who have committed fornication] No good men bewail her. Such onely do it as have been naught with her, Chap. 17. 2.

ſhall bewail her] Ezek. 26. 17.

when they ſhall ſee the ſmoke of her burning] Chap. 14. 11. and 19. 3. Gen. 19. 28. Either it muſt be taken literally of ſuch kings as came to aſſiſt her, and fled away when they ſaw the city on fire: or figuratively, when they underſtood of her deſtruction.

V. 10. ſtanding afar off] Though they loved her, and could have wiſhed her proſperity to continue; yet they durſt not come neer to help her, leſt they ſhould be deſtroyed with her, by them that beſieged her, who would take ſuch as came, for friends to the whore, and deſtroy them, as Jehu did Ahazia's brethren, 2 Kings 10. 13, 14. Or, They were afraid of being burned, as they were that caſt the three Jews into the furnace, Dan. 3. 22. the flame was ſo great. Thus the Iſraelites fled, when the earth ſwallowed Dathan and Abiram, Numb. 16. 34.

that great city] Or, O great city!

judgement] See Chap. 17. 2.

V. 11. The merchants] Theſe weep not for love, as the kings did; but for loſſe of their gain, which they got by ſelling her dainty things, to ſatisfie the luſt of her prelats. Or, fine things for their idolatrous worſhip; as, for altars, images, veſtments. It may be meant ſpiritually, of thoſe that made gain of her ſpiritual merchandiſe.

mourn over her] As a father over a dead child.

for no man buyeth their merchandiſe any more] Ezek. 27. 27. For there is no wonted trading there; all traffick, both ſpiritual and temporal, being there ceaſed.

V. 12. gold, &c.] Things for fine apparel, and ſtately houſholdſtuff.

all thyne-wood] Or, ſweet. Some kinde of cedar: or, all kinds of ſweet wood, as all manner of veſſels. Or, this might be for uſe about buildings.

V. 13. and cinnamon, &c.] For pleaſing ſmell.

and wine, &c.] For dainty fare.

horſes and chariots, &c.] For princely port.

ſlaves] Gr. bodies. For ſervice. Servants are like bodies, acted by others: free-men, like ſouls, that guide themſelves, and theirs.

ſouls of men] Perſons of men, Ezek. 27. 13. Gen. 12. 5. and 46. 25.

46. 25. Men, though not ſlaves, yet uſed for ſeveral employments. Or, ſouls of men literally taken, of which they made ſpiritual merchandiſe.

V. 14. And the fruits that thy ſoul, &c.] Gr. the autumn, or autumn fruit of the deſire of thy ſoul. That is, deſired fruit: as, In fire of a flame; that is, Flaming fire, 2 Theſſ. 1. 8. This verſe ſhould be in a parentheſis. As if thoſe merchants ſhould like mourners ſpeak to periſhing Babylon. Or it may be the ſpeech of the angel, the revealer; as verſ. 14. or John the publiſher, objecting gluttony to Babylon. Theſe autumn fruits are moſt dainty and pleaſant to the taſte, and goodly to the eyes, like the fruits of paradiſe, Gen. 3.6. Of ſuch, Rome hath ſtore.

dainty and goodly] Gr. fat and ſhining.

no more at all] They are not onely loſt for the preſent, but for ever. There is no hope of recovering them.

V. 15. The merchants of theſe things] Or, the merchants, I ſay, of theſe things: Meaning thoſe ſpoken of, verſ. 11. He had before ſet down the cauſes of their mourning; now he ſetteth down the manner of it.

ſtand afar off] See verſ. 10.

V. 16. that great city] See verſ. 10. That uttered much merchandiſe.

in fine linen, &c.] This is ſuitable to the perſons mourning. The Kings that are mighty, mourn, becauſe the power of the city is gone, verſ. 10. The merchants mourn, becauſe the wealth of it is gone.

decked with gold] Gr. golded with gold, Chap. 17.4. Not onely wearing gold; but as it were covered with it from top to toe.

V. 17. in one hour] Like a whirlwind. See verſ. 10.

every ſhipmaſter, &c.] Chap. 8.9. All that traded with her by ſea, Ezek. 27. 29, &c. Or, ſuch as were then bringing wares to her by ſea, and ſaw the ſmoke of the burning of Rome afar off, as Abraham did, when Sodome was deſtroyed, Gen. 19. 28.

as trade by Sea] Pſal. 107.23. Or it may be ſpiritually underſtood of inferiour officers, who carried their pardons to ſell.

ſtood afar off] See ver. 10.

V. 18. And cryed] Jer. 50.46. Ezek. 37.32.

the ſmoke] Verſ. 9. Iſa. 34.10. Her deſtruction will ſuddenly be known, both by ſea and land.

What city is like unto this great city?] What city once ſo ſtrong and populous? See the like, Chap. 13. 4. Or, who would ever have thought this city ſhould have been thus laid deſolate.

V. 19. And they] Or, Yea, they; as Matth. 26.50.

caſt duſt, &c.] It was the manner of mourners. See Joſh. 7. 6. 1 Sam. 4.12. Job 2.12. Ezek. 27.30. Theſe mourned moſt, becauſe they were leaſt able to ſubſiſt, and therefore likely to periſh ſooner by want of trading, then the merchants that employed them. They cryed, in the former verſe: here weeping and wailing is added, to ſhew the greatneſſe of their ſorrow, verſ. 9, 15.

that great city, &c.] See verſ. 10, 16.

all that had ſhips] Not merchants alone, but ſhip-maſters: inferiour officers, as well as great ones.

in one hour] Verſ. 8, 10, 17.

V. 20. thou heaven] O Church. See Chap. 11.19. & 19.1, 6. Pſal. 58.11.

apoſtles and prophets] Miniſters, their ſucceſſours. God accounteth theſe like thoſe eminent perſons. A great comfort to them.

avenged you] Gr. judged your judgment; That is, conſidered the wrong done to you, and puniſhed her for it, Chap. 17. 1. Pſal. 9.4. Mic. 7.9. He hath avenged the death of your predeceſſours: or, the wrongs done to you by her, Jer. 51. 35, 36. Or, it may be an apoſtrophe to thoſe in heaven, ſhewing what cauſe of joy they had, if they were here to ſee the fall of Rome.

V. 21. a mighty angel] An alluſion to Jer. 51.63. Shewing, by a ſure token, that the fall of Rome ſhould be greater then the fall of Babylon. There, a weak man; here, a mighty angel: there, taketh an ordinary ſtone; here, a great milſtone: there, caſteth it into Euphrates; here, into the ſea: there, Babylon ſhall ſink; here, it ſhall be thrown down with violence: there, it ſhall not riſe; here, it ſhall be found no more at all, verſ. 14. Chap. 12.8. Iſa. 13.20. Jer. 51.63. A great milſtone will fall apace with its own weight; faſter, if it be caſt down; faſteſt of all, if by a ſtrong hand: neither can it then riſe any more, or be raiſed out of the bottom of the ſea. This ſheweth the violent and everlaſting deſtruction of Rome.

V. 22. of harpers] Jer. 7.34. & 25.10, 11. All things that ſerved for pleaſure, ſhall ceaſe.

in thee] The angel now turneth his ſpeech to Babylon. Some have told her face to face of her deſtruction.

no craftſman] All things tending to profit, ſhall be gone.

ſound of a milſtone] Gr. voice. In the cities they uſed hand-mills, which made a great noiſe. All things neceſſary ſhall be taken away. Well may the mills ceaſe, when none ſhall live there, for whom corn ſhould be grinded. The things abuſed, ſhall be all taken away, Joel 1.5. Jer. 25.10.

V. 23. light of a candle] The pooreſt men have candles in the night, that want many other comforts: but Rome ſhall have none, after this. Or, they ſhall not uſe candles in wedding and feſtival nights any more, Matth. 25.6, 7.

voice of a bridegroom] There ſhall be no more marriage there to people the city any more. Or, no merry meetings. Theſe things argue an utter deſolation, Jer. 7.34. & 16.9.

thy merchants] Nah. 3.16. Iſa. 23.8. Thou haſt made uſe of Kings for thy profit. Or, thy Cardinals were Kings fellows.

by thy ſorceries] Enchanted cups, Chap. 14.8. or, by Satans help: for ſome Popes have been ſorcerers.

deceived] Drawn to Idolatry.

V. 24. in her was found the blood] Though God defer, yet he will keep court at length, and find the blood of his ſervants in Rome, as if it ſtuck to the hands or clothes of the murderers, Iſa. 63.3. Jer. 2.34.

of Prophets] Faithful teachers ſlain, verſ. 20.

of Saints] Of private Chriſtians put to death for religion.

of all that were ſlain] To wit, for religion, as being ſlain by her authority, or incitation of the Princes to do it. Or, as Matth. 23. 32, 35. becauſe ſhe ſucceedeth the former perſecutours, and finiſheth the work, and ſo is counted guilty of all the blood ſhed before alſo.

CHAP. XIX.

Verſ. 1. After theſe things*] After the fall of Rome. He proceedeth to the things done under the ſixth vial; for the beginning of this Chapter anſwereth to Chap. 16. 12. The middle of it, to Chap. 16.13, &c.

a great voyce] To ſhew their affection in themſelves, and deſire to ſtir up others to praiſe God for it.

of much people in heaven] The Saints of God in the Church, upon the firſt news of Romes fall, bleſſe God for it. They all in general joy at this news. See the like, Chap. 11.15.

Alleluiah] Praiſe ye the Lord, Pſal. 111. and 112. and 113. This is the firſt time that it is uſed in the New Teſtament; and it is found four times here. It ſeemeth the Chriſtian Gentiles, after the fall of Rome, ſhall ſollicite the Jewes to come in to Chriſt, and to joyn with them in praiſing him for Romes fall.

Salvation, &c.] All the praiſe of this great work belongeth to God, Chap. 5.3. & 7.10. 1 Tim. 1.17. Glory is a great opinion of him: honour is the means whereby we expreſſe it, inwardly or outwardly.

unto the Lord] Is unto him. He hath given us cauſe to honour him, for deſtroying the beaſt, and putting us out of all fear of him. Or, be unto him. We praiſe him for it, and deſire that others do it alſo.

our God] He hath ſhewed himſelf our God, in deſtroying our enemies, and therefore we have eſpecial cauſe to praiſe him, Pſal. 147.20.

V. 2. true and righteous] See Chap. 15.3.

for he hath judged] They ſhew what cauſe they had to praiſe God for declaring his truth, in performing his threats againſt Rome, which many doubted would not be effected; and his juſtice, in deſtroying ſuch as would not be drawn from their idolatry by his word. Or, he hath not judged out of ſuſpitions and report, but in truth and juſtice, Gen. 18.21.

the great whore] See Chap. 17.1. Great, becauſe of her many fornications. Or, by alluſion to the thing ſignified, The great city, Chap. 18.18.

corrupt] The earth. See Gen. 6.11.

avenged] As was deſired, Chap. 6.10.

his ſervants] He had reaſon to avenge their blood, becauſe they were not ſlain for any wickedneſſe they had done, but for ſerving him, Pſal. 44.22.

V. 3. again] They double their thanks, becauſe of the greatneſſe of the benefit.

and her ſmoke] This ſentence ſhould be in a parentheſis. The ſenſe is; She is irrecoverably loſt, Iſa. 34.10. Or, for her ſmoke; as Luke 6.32. and then there needeth no parentheſis; but the meaning will be; The Saints ſhall ever be mindful of the fall of Rome, to praiſe God for it, as if they ſaw the ſmoke of it alwayes, to put them in mind of that fire that burned it down.

V. 4. And the four and twenty Elders, &c.] Chap. 4.4, 6. Before, verſ. 1. Gods people bleſſed God ſuddenly, where they heard of it; now they do it publickly in the Congregation, for deſtroying Rome. So Chap. 11.16. This better ſetteth out the greatneſſe of the benefit, with their deeper ſenſe of it, and ſtirreth up others the more to thankfulneſſe, Pſal 5.7. This is Romes funeral.

four beaſts] Or, living wights. Thorow all this book, there are beaſts or wights, and elders, and a throne, to ſhew, that Gods ordinances and right worſhip was ſtill ſome where in the world in uſe, during the heathen antichriſtian perſecutions: and ſo they will be to the end.

on the throne] Chap. 4. 2. & 5. 1. God ſhall then take his throne to himſelf, when Rome, which is Satans and antichriſts throne, chap. 2. 13. is deſtroyed.

Amen, Alleluia] They allow of the praiſe given to God before, v. 1. and perſwade the people to praiſe him more.

V. 5. a voice came out of the throne] Chap. 4. 5. The generall applauſe of the Chriſtian Gentiles, v. 1. and their ſolemn thankſgiving for the fall of Rome, v. 4. might come to the ears of the Jews; but God himſelf muſt ſpeak to their hearts, before they will joyn with the Chriſtians in this Alleluia. See the like method, Iſa. 6. 66. This may be Chriſts voice, becauſe it cometh from the throne; and yet he ſaith, Our God; as Joh. 20. 17.

praiſe our God] He doth not blame them, as if they had not done it well before; but giveth a new cauſe of praiſing God. See v. 7.

all ye his ſervants] Ye Jews, that once were his ſervants, joyn with the Gentiles in this Alleluia, Deut. 32. 43. Rom. 15. 10.

both great and ſmall] All ſorts of men, Pſal. 115. 13. See chap. 13. 16. & 20. 12.

V. 6. And I heard] Or, Then I heard. So this particle is uſed, Matth. 23. 32. Here is the effect of the former exhortation.

of many waters, &c.] See chap. 14. 2. & 17. 15. The Jews and Gentiles praiſing God together, for the fall of Rome, will make ſuch a noiſe, as will fill heaven and earth. Or, it may be underſtood of Gentiles converted from popery by the ſight of Romes fall.

reigneth] God is publikely worſhipped every where, as king, now the whore is deſtroyed.

V. 7. Let us be glad. &c.] Chap. 11. 10. Pſal. 118. 24. Matth. 5. 12. Let us prepare for feaſts and triumphs againſt the marriage of the Lamb.

give honour to him] As we have cauſe to rejoyce in it, ſo alſo to give God praiſe and thanks for it.

for the marriage, &c.] Matth. 22. 2. The Church is now called, as a bride, to dwell with her husband, after the whore is burned: before, ſhe was but as it were eſpouſed to him. Glorious times will follow Romes fall. This cauſe was not mentioned, v. 1, 4. but theſe converts, as they looked forward to the deſtruction of Rome, ſo they look backward to the converſion of the Jews, and marriage of the Lamb.

made her ſelf ready] As virgins uſe to deck themſelves when they are to be married, Pſal. 45. 13, 14. Iſa. 61. 10. ſo the Church is now purged from all ſuperſtition, and ready to entertain Chriſt in the purity of his ordinances. Or, the Jews being now come in, with the fulneſſe of the Gentiles, Rom. 11. 12, 25, 26. the Church is ready to be married to Chriſt. It cannot but be matter of great joy, that two ſiſters, ſo long parted, ſhould now be firmly knit together, Cant. 8. 8.

V. 8. to her was granted] Sanctification, the Churches ornament, Pſal. 45. 13. & 93. 5. is a dowry given her by Chriſt her husband, chap. 3. 18. Eph. 5. 26, 27.

righteouſneſſe] Gr. righteouſneſſes. That is, good works, which adorn Gods ſervants, as much as fine linnen or gliſtering garments do great men, Matth. 5. 16. and do as conſpicuouſly appear in their lives, as gorgeous apparel on the back or body of thoſe that wear it, Rom. 13. 12, 14. Col. 3. 12. 1 Pet. 3. 3, 4. & 5. 5. Phil. 4. 5, 8.

V. 9. he ſaith] The angel, mentioned, chap. 18. Now he goeth on with the ſtory, which had been broken off in the beginning of this chapter, with relation of the great praiſe given to God for deſtroying Rome.

write] The matter to come is weighty, and worthy to be conveyed to poſterity. So chap. 14. 13.

Bleſſed] Matth. 22. 2. They are happy times, and they are happy that are ſo called, that they come; that is, internally called. The things being ſtrange, and very unlikely to come to paſſe; the angel taketh a ſpecial care to confirm John in the truth of them, that he may the more confidently report them to others.

marriage-ſupper] It ſeemeth ſuch feaſts uſed to be then at night, v. 17. Luke 14. 16, 17. See notes on chap. 18. 22.

theſe are the true ſayings of God] They are not my words, but God's, and ſhall certainly by fulfilled in their time, Luke 1. 20.

V. 10. to worſhip him] Having ſo good news from him, John, being over-joyed, falleth down to worſhip him, as Cornelius, on ſomwhat the like occaſion, did to Peter, Acts 10. 25.

See thou do it not] Chap. 22. 9. Gr. See, not. The angels conciſe ſpeech, as if he had not time to ſay all, ſheweth how evil Johns act was, and how diſpleaſing to him, and dangerous to John, if he ſhould ſuffer him to do it. To that end alſo he ſaith, See: that is, Beware thou do it not.

thy fellow ſervant] One whom Chriſt uſeth to declare his will to others, as he doth thee. Therefore, for brethren, is put prophets, chap. 22. 9. It may be the angel that revealed this revelation to John, chap. 1. 1. yet, for all that, not to be worſhipped by John, his fellow-ſervant.

worſhip God] To whom onely religious worſhip is due, Matth. 4. 10.

is the ſpirit of propheſie] Chriſt onely can by his Spirit make us prophets to foretel things to come, from him. His revealing things to us, is the life of prophecy. He therefore muſt be worſhipped for it, and not we.

V. 11. heaven opened] Free acceſſe to Gods publike worſhip every where. Or, the Church opened, that Chriſt may ſtir up his people, v. 14. to go fight againſt antichriſt, who, after Romes fall, will be for a time ſome where elſe, gathering new forces. Verſ. 1*9*. a door was opened in heaven, before the riſing of antichriſt, chap. 4. 1. the temple was open in heaven after the death of the witneſſes, Chap. 11. 1*9*. Now heaven it ſelf, that is, the Church, is ſet wide open, that Chriſts armies may go forth to deſtroy the beaſt and the falſe prophet, v. 20. So the great gates of a city are opened, when armies go forth to battel, 2 Sam. 18. 4.

behold] This requireth attention to the great battel yet to come.

a white horſe] Chap. 6. 2. A ſign of Chriſts juſt carriage in the war, and certain triumph after it.

he that ſat upon him] Chriſt, who appeared then to John, as ready to deſtroy antichriſt utterly, and will do it by the kings that hate the whore, chap. 17. 16.

faithful and true] See chap. 1. 5. & 3. 7, 14.

in righteouſneſſe, &c.] He condemneth the enemies of his Church juſtly, and then executeth them accordingly. He will not abuſe his power, to deſtroy any that have not deſerved deſtruction.

V. 12. as a flame of fire] Chap. 1. 14. & 2. 18. He can ſee his enemies privy plots, and deſtroy them. His eyes do not ſparkle, but flame out with anger. Wo be to his enemies.

many crowns] All kingdoms are ſubject to him, v. 16. Pſal. 2. 8, 9. & 72. 8, 9, 10. Matth. 28. 18, 1*9*, 20. Or, for victories over many kings, v. 1*9*. whoſe crowns he taketh off their heads, and putteth on his own, 2 Sam. 12. 30. The dragon and the beaſt never had above ten crowns: he hath a multitude; his Kingdom ſhall be larger then ever theirs was.

a name written] Now to be made known: ſure alſo, and permanent.

no man knew] Chap. 2. 17. Judg. 13. 18. None knew the eternal generation of Chriſt, who is called The Word of God, v. 13. Or, none knew it, till it was revealed in the word, v. 13. Or, by his victories, v. 1*6*, 1*9*. So Gods name, Jehovah, was revealed, Exod. 6. 3.

V. 13. dipt in blood] Iſa. 63. 2. It ſheweth the exceeding great ſlaughter of his foes formerly: for his garments are not ſprinkled with blood, as Iſa. 63. 2. but dipt or dyed in it, Iſa. 9. 5. What could his enemies look for from him now; ſeeing the marks of his former victories, but deſtruction? Or, as if he ſhould come to revenge the blood of his ſervants ſhed by antichriſt, and ſhould wear one of their garments full of blood, to incite him to the greater revenge. Or, it might be to ſignifie the event of this battel, that ſo much blood ſhould be ſhed, that not the common ſouldiers onely, whoſe hands are moſt employed in war; but the general himſelf, whoſe head uſeth to be more employed then his hands, ſhall have his garments dyed in blood.

the word of God] By eternal generation, Joh. 1. 1, 14. Or, becauſe he maketh his Fathers word good, by deſtroying the foes of his people. Or, becauſe, by deſtroying antichriſt, he cauſeth Gods word to be freely preached every where, and God is known thereby, as by a name.

V. 14. the armies, &c.] Gods people being fluſht with the fall of Rome, ſhall be in arms, ready to deſtroy antichriſt utterly, when Chriſt ſhall call them to that work.

white horſes, &c.] Fitter for triumph then for fight; for here are no bucklers nor ſwords mentioned, which are more fit for war then fine linnen, a poor fence againſt blowes; but here is the apparel of conquerours: ſo that they made themſelves as ſure of the victory, as if it were already gotten. Thus, though the battel may be ſharp, Gods people ſhall comfort themſelves, by looking beforehand on the happy iſſue.

V. 15. out of his mouth] See v. 21. Chap. 1. 1*6*. & 2. 1*6*. He ſhall paſſe ſentence of death upon them, and execute it, Iſa. 11. 4. Or, he ſhall deſtroy them, according as he hath foretold, 2 Theſſ. 2. 8. Arms are attributed onely to the captain; for all is done by his power, though he uſe inſtruments.

the nations] Or, Gentiles, Chap. 11. 2. Popiſh enemies.

rule them, &c.] See Chap. 2. 27. & 12. 5.

treadeth] Treadeth on Gods enemies, gathered as it were into a wine-preſſe, at Armageddon, till their blood be all out of their bodies, Chap. 14. 20. Iſa. 63. 3. Thus he threatneth his foes with his mouth; ſtriketh them with his iron rod in his hand, trampleth them under his feet.

V. 16. on his veſture] That all men may ſee it, and fear him. Some footſteps of his power appeared before, in converting the Gentiles; but much obſcured by the perſecution under the heathen emperours, and afterwards under the popes: but when both theſe are deſtroyed, then all men may fully diſcern it.

on his thigh] That men might ſubmit to him, Gen. 24. 2, 9. & 47. 29. being ſubdued by his ſword, which uſeth to be placed on the thigh, Pſal. 45. 3. Cant. 3. 16.

King of kings] Chap. 17. 14. & 11. 15. Dan. 2. 44.

V. 17. an angel] Chriſts herauld, to bid all the fowls to a banquet.

in the ſun] That he might be heard all the world over, as the ſun is ſeen. A cleer token of the enſuing victory: and that the enemies ſhould be deſtroyed in the ſight of the ſun, as ſurely as we ſee the ſun.

with a loud voice] Chap. 18. 2. That the moſt remote might hear, and come to take their ſhare. It alſo ſheweth the weight of the matter. Men ſpeak loud, when they ſpeak of great things.

fowls] Warriours or ſouldiers mixing themſelves with Gods people, more for the love of the ſpoils, then of the cauſe. Or, it may be taken literally; for many dead carcaſes will be left unburied, to fill the fowls, v. 21. 1 Sam. 17. 44. Jer. 7. 33. Ezek. 39. 4, 17, &c.

in the midſt] See Chap. 8. 13. & 41. 6.

of heaven] Of the air, Gen. 1. 20. Pſal. 8. 8.

gather your ſelves] The fouls are called beforehand, to ſhew the certainty of the victory.

V. 18. that ye may eat] Chriſt will be married as a conquerour.

the fleſh of captains, &c.] Feed on the revenues and ſpoil of all the papiſts; for they ſhall all be deſtroyed, great and ſmall. There ſhall be variety of prey, to fit every ones appetite, as there is of diſhes at a feaſt, Chap. 17. 16. Or, it may be literally underſtood of the carcaſes of great men and ſmall, left for the fowls to devour, v. 17. Ezek. 39. 4, 17, 20. Jer. 7. 12.

V. 19. the beaſt, &c.] The Roman or German emperour, Chap. 13. 1. with ſome kings, Chap. 17. 16. after Romes fall, v. 1. ſhall aſſiſt the pope, living elſewhere, in his laſt war againſt Chriſt and his Church.

V. 20. the beaſt] The emperour, v. 19.

was taken] Like a beaſt in a ſnare. This ſeemeth to be at the concluſion of the ſixth vial, or beginning of the ſeventh. See chap. 16. 16, 17.

the falſe prophet] The pope, Chap. 13. 13. & 16. 13. Yet ſome take it for the popes clergy, and the pope for the beaſt. This is that falſe prophet that wrought miracles, Chap. 13. 13, 14, &c.

alive] Put to horrible tortures, being taken alive; whereas the kings and their followers ſhall be ſlain in the battel, v. 21. An alluſion to Num. 16. 31, 32. An extraordinary deſtruction is ſignified, to terrifie others from miſleading Gods people, Pſal. 55. 15.

lake of fire, &c.] Chap. 20. 14. & 21. 8. & 14. 10. An exquiſite torment, Ezek. 38. 22. Pſal. 11. 6. Gen. 19. 24.

out of his mouth] Verſ. 15. Gods word ſlayeth them, when he performeth his threatnings, Jer. 5. 14. Thus the prophecy, v. 18. is fulfilled. None ſhall be ranſomed for mony, Iſa. 13. 17, 18. A ſevere execution ſhall be on all that ſhall take part with antichriſt in this his laſt battel.

were filled with their fleſh] There were wealth enough for all comers, Jer. 50. 10. Or, carcaſes enough lying unburied, to glut all the fowls. See v. 18.

CHAP. XX.

Verſ. 1. A*N angel*] He that did open the bottomleſſe pit before, Chap. 9. 1. now ſhutteth it. Some take it of Conſtantines keeping under the heathen emperours, and conceive this chapter to depend upon the twelfth chapter; and to ſhew what became of the dragon, after he was caſt into the earth. But it is likely that the prophecy goeth on; and that the holy Ghoſt, having deſcribed the whore of Babylon, popiſh Rome, chap. 17. and ſhewed the fall of it, chap. 18. and the calling of the Jews, and deſtruction of antichriſt and his followers, Chap. 19. now declareth the proſperous eſtate of the Church for a long time after; and the deſtruction of the Turks, the day of judgement, and damnation of all wicked men, in this chapter: and then ſetteth out the hapie eſtate of all the godly in ſoul and body in heaven for ever, Chap. 21. and in the beginning of chap. 22. or elſe looketh back there to the flouriſhing eſtate of the Church on earth, when all her foes are deſtroyed; and ſo he concludeth with confirmations, exhortations, promiſes and threatnings.

a great chain in his hand] As going to apprehend ſome powerful perſon, that was to be attached, and bound, as a priſoner or captive, with a chain, Pſal. 148. 8. 2 Chron. 36. 6.

V. 2. dragon, &c.] See v. 10. Chap. 12. 9. The pope being deſtroyed, the devil would bring in the Turk, who ſeemeth yet to ſtand, or ſome other enemy like the heathen emperour, called the dragon, before, Chap. 12. 3. to perſecute and war againſt the Chriſtians: but God will not permit it till the thouſand years of the Churches proſperity be done: and therefore he cauſeth Satan to be bound with a great chain, that he might not let looſe another dragon before the time. Thus the Churches peace for that time is ſecured.

bound him a thouſand years] Either for ſuch a number of years; or for a long time indefinitely.

V. 3. into the bottomleſs pit] Which he deſired not to be ſhut into, Luke 8. 31. For the ſame Greek word is tranſlated the deep, there. He was caſt into the earth, before, chap. 12, 9. here, lower.

ſet a ſeal upon him] This ſheweth the devils rage, who muſt not onely be chained, but alſo ſhut up, and the door ſealed by authority from heaven, that he may be kept from doing miſchief, Matth. 27. 66.

deceive the nations no more] Not bring in heatheniſm or popery any more. Or, perſwade them to fight againſt the Church, by his wiles, v. 7, 8. or, wicked agents, chap. 16. 13, 14.

a little ſeaſon] After Satans looſing, the day of judgment will ſoon come.

V. 4. they ſate upon them] Or, ſome ſate upon them. Some underſtand this of Conſtantines time, chap. 6. 16. Others, of Luthers. Others, of the Church after antichriſts deſtruction. Others, of the day of judgement. In all which, the Saints rule, and perſecutours are brought to judgement.

the ſouls, &c.] Coming to demand juſtice againſt thoſe that had ſlain them, by the cry of their blood before kings here; or perſonally before God at the day of judgement, Chap. 6. 9, 10.

for the witneſſe of Jeſus, &c.] Chap. 6. 9. & 1. 9.

not worſhipped the beaſt] See chap. 13. 15, 16, 17. & 14. 9.

they lived and reigned] The Chriſtian judges in the begining of the verſe, who were eſteemed as dead men under the heathen emperours, or under antichriſt; now not onely were ſeen to live, but reigned alſo, to do juſtice to Gods people as Chriſts deputies. Or, thoſe beheaded ones lived in ſoul in heaven with Chriſt. Or, ſuch as they that were perſecuted before, ſhall live and reign after antichriſts fall. So we ſay, The Romans ruled the world from Julius Ceſar to Conſtantine, and after: yet we mean not the ſame perſons. So John is called Elias, becauſe he came in the ſpirit of Elias, Matth. 11. 14. Luk. 1. 17. So the two witneſſes are raiſed again. See chap. 11. 11.

a thouſand years] All the time Satan is chained like a mad dog, the Church ſhall flouriſh.

V. 5. the reſt of the dead] Others did not openly profeſſe religion in peace, till Luthers time. Or, ſome will not come in till after the thouſand years. Peradventure ſome Turks, or others, may come in at the eleventh hour, Math. 11. 6. for the papiſts were either converted before, or deſtroyed at the fall of antichriſt, chap. 16. 20. & 19, 21. Or, they that will not come in when the Jews do, and antichriſt is deſtroyed, will never come in to Gods Church: for, all Iſrael, and the fulneſſe of the Gentiles, will be come in then, Rom. 11. 25, 26. See the like phraſe, 2 Sam. 6. 23. Or, God will not right others oppreſſed, till the end of the world. Or, they lived not in any account, as before, Pſal. 88. 5.

This is the firſt reſurrection] Either the former part of the verſe muſt be read by a parentheſis, and the words depend on the fourth verſe: or, it may be underſtood of the end of the thouſand years in ſome of the former ſenſes. At Luthers time, or after the coming in of the Jews, and antichriſts deſtruction, there will be ſuch a new face of the Church, as if the ſaints were all raiſed up again, Joh. 5. 25, 28.

V. 6. Bleſſed and holy] As they are happy that ſuffer for Chriſt, v. 4. ſo they alſo whoſe eyes God doth open to ſee their errours, and embrace Gods truth.

part in the firſt reſurrection] This reſurrection is not of particular perſons, but of whole Churches and nations; as Rom. 11. 15. alluded to, in the raiſing of dead bones, Ezek. 37. 1. &c. In which they are ſaid to have part, who by the means then publikely and plentifully afforded, are ſpiritually quickned; that is, raiſed from the death of ſin, to the life of grace, Joh. 5. 24, 25. Acts 8. 21. Eph. 2. 1, 5.

ſecond death hath no power] They ſhall not go to hell, ver.14. Chap.2.11. & 21.8. by turning back to the world. Or, they ſhall no more be ſeduced by antichriſt. Or, not be deſtroyed by Turks, and other enemies deſcribed, verſ.9.

prieſts of God and of Chriſt] See Chap.1.6. & 5.10. Yet here ſeemeth ſomewhat more to be intended. For in thoſe places we are ſaid to be made Prieſts to God; that is, to offer ſpiritual ſacrifices to him: but here, to be Prieſts of God; that is, excellent Prieſts, 2 Pet.2.9. See the like phraſe, Gen. 23.6. Pſalm 36.6.

reign with him] Be free from their former perſecutions, as living now under Chriſt, not any longer under antichriſt.

V. 7. looſed] See verſ. 2.

V. 8. to deceive the nations] To draw them to fight againſt the Church, to their deſtruction. See ver.3.

in the four quarters] In all parts, ſome ſhall be deceived.

Gog and Magog] Ezek.38.2. & 39.1. Either the Papiſts not deſtroyed in Armageddon, Chap.16.16. & 19.21. or rather, the Turks, or other foes, aſſailing the Church a little before the day of judgment, verſ. 11. For the riſing of the Turkiſh empire is ſpoken, Chap. 9.3, &c. but their fall no where, till now. It ſeemeth they ſhall be reſtrained for the thouſand years of the Churches proſperity after the fall of the Pope, from fighting againſt it; but afterwards let looſe and deſtroyed, as the Popiſh Empire before.

the camp of the Saints] The Church militant, compared to Iſrael in their tents, Num.2. and now being in tents, to fight againſt the Turks, or other unchriſtian enemies.

the beloved city] The Church of God, driven to ſome ſtrong place for ſhelter.

fire came down, &c.] Gods wrath, ſhewed in an extraordinary way, delivered his Church, by deſtroying theſe enemies, Heb. 10.27. & 12.19. Job 20.26. Pſal.21.9. Gen. 19. 24. 2 Kings 1. 10, 12.

V. 10. the devil] The Turk, the devils new agent, another dragon, like the heathen Emperour, verſ.2. Chap. 12.3. Or, ſome other enemy, no Chriſtian by profeſſion, ſhall be ſent to hell, to keep the laſt Pope and Popiſh Emperour company. Here it may be noted, that the foes of the Church, that profeſſe not the Name of Chriſt, as the heathen and Turkiſh Emperours, are in this book compared to dragons and ſerpents, and to the devil himſelf: but the Popes, and Popiſh Emperours, who profeſſe Chriſtianity, are compared to wild beaſts.

where the beaſt, &c.] See Chap.19.20.

for ever and ever] Gr. to ages of ages. As one ſucceeding another, without any end.

V. 11. And I ſaw] This may well be underſtood of the day of judgment; which was to come ſhortly after the looſing of Satan again, verſ.3. It ſheweth, that from the fall of the Turk, to the day of judgment, the Church ſhall have peace. And alſo, that thoſe enemies of the Church that are left after that great battel, though they eſcaped the ſword then, and dare not openly oppoſe the Church any more; yet God will call them to judgment.

a great white throne] Fit for him that cometh now to judge all the world, Luke 1.32. Tit.2.12. Acts 17.31. And white, to ſhew the uprightneſſe and glory of the judge, Chap.19.11, 14. But ſome underſtand it of Conſtantines judging heathen idolaters, and freeing Chriſtians perſecuted formerly by the heathen, Chap.6.14,15. Others, of the ſolemn deſtruction of antichriſt, and gathering of the Jews. Both which, are lively reſemblances of the laſt day. Others, of the deſtruction of the Turks, newly ſpoken of.

according to their works] The wicked muſt be judged according to their works written in the books. The juſt, written in the book of life, ſhall not come into judgment, Joh.5.24. Chap. 21. 27.

V. 13. And the ſea, &c.] All men muſt riſe to judgment, whether drowned in the ſea, or denyed burial on earth, or buried in the grave. Or, death and ſea gave up their bodies to be judged, and hell their ſouls.

hell] Or, the grave, Chap.6.8.

V. 14. death and hell] Or, the grave. Men dead and buried before, were now ſent to hell in ſoul and body both. Or, there ſhall be no more death nor grave for Gods people to fear, nor any torment remaining, but for thoſe that are in hell.

CHAP. XXI.

Verſ. 1. AND I ſaw] As the Church is altered, ſo muſt her dwelling. It may be ſpoken of a glorious Church on earth: and then the day of judgment is ſet before it in the former chapter, that the downfal of the enemies of Gods Church might be ſet down altogether. And then the Churches felicity, after the deſtruction of the whore, beaſt, dragon, and all covert and open enemies: which new eſtate will abide till glory come: ſecurity is like to be her onely trouble, when Chriſt cometh, 1 Theſſ.5.2,3. 2 Pet.3.3,4. Matth. 24. 37, &c. and 25.1,2, &c. Bringing in of eaſtern kingdoms to the faith, and deſtroying all the enemies of the Church, may well be called, A new world. Or, it may be taken literally for the happy eſtate of Gods Saints in heaven, in ſoul and body, after the day of judgment.

a new heaven] Iſa.65.17. & 66.22. 2 Pet.3.13. For the old were gone, Chap.20.11.

no more ſea] Either literally: for there will need none for trade: the fire perhaps at the worlds end, may utterly dry up the ſea. Or figuratively, no more war againſt, nor trouble in the Church; but holineſſe in good men, ſecurity onely, not enmity, in others; a firm peace all the world over, as at Chriſts firſt coming. Then the Church ſhall not be like the raging ſea, but like the quiet earth.

V. 2. the holy city] Matth.27.53. Jeruſalem is ſo called. Either heaven, or the Church formerly troden under foot, Chap. 11.2. but now made glorious, Iſa.54.11,12. & 51.23. & 52,1,2. & 60.1.

new Jeruſalem] The Church of God, whereof old Jeruſalem was a type, Gal.4.26. The city wherein Gods people dwelleth. And it is called, The new Jeruſalem, not in reſpect of the old Teſtament only, but of the former eſtate of it in the new. It ſhall be free from all former troubles.

coming down out of heaven from God] If it be underſtood of heavenly glory, the ſenſe is; It will be more fully revealed by Gods Miniſters inviting them to it then, then in former times. See Chap.3.12. If of the Church on earth, it ſheweth, that it receiveth the glory and luſtre it hath, not from men on earth, but from God in heaven, John 1.17. 1 Cor.15.47,48,49. Becauſe God is the greateſt height, all that comes from him, is ſaid to come down, 2 Cor.5.1,2. Jam.1.17.

as a bride] Adorned as a bride, Iſa.61.10. Heb.11.10. Therefore he ſaw the citizens, as well as the city. He ſaw many men, verſ.3. He ſaw them adorned as a bride ready to be married; yet he ſaw not the glory of it ſo fully as verſ.10.

V. 3. a great voyce] To publiſh the greatneſſe of Gods mercy, and the Saints glory, to all men, Chap.19.1.

Behold] A thing wonderful, Iſa.7.14. and preſent to his view in the viſion, John 1.29.

the tabernacle of God is with men] An alluſion to the people of the Jews, which had the tabernacle; and an intimation, as ſome think, that theſe here meant, were not yet glorified in heaven. Therefore it is called, A tabernacle, not, An abiding city, Heb.9.10. and God ſaid to be with them, and not they with him, 1 Theſſ.4.17. He will give them abundance of grace. And the tabernacle is mentioned, as ſome think, to ſhew, that the Jews were come in to the Church. See on Chap.16.12. & 19. 1. So the ſervice of God under the New Teſtament is called incenſe, and offering, Mal.1.11. Or, heaven may be called ſo, in alluſion to the tabernacle, Pſal.15.1, Ezek.37.28. where God is preſent with his for ever, as the ark was in the tabernacle, as long as it laſted.

they ſhall be his people] So is his Covenant, Gen. 17. 8, 9. Jer. 31. 33. Ezek. 37. 27. He will protect them from all foes.

V. 4. And God ſhall, &c.] Chap.7.17. He ſetteth down the fruit of Gods dwelling with them.

wipe away all tears] Their former perſecutions which lay ſo heavy upon them before, and cauſed them to ſhed ſo many tears, ſhall ceaſe, Iſa.54.14,15.

no more death] An alluſion to Iſa.25.8. & 13.14. applyed by the Apoſtle to the happineſſe of the Saints after the reſurrection, on, 1 Cor. 15.54,55. and ſo it may be underſtood here. Or elſe of the happy eſtate of the Church on earth a little before, when Pope, and Turk, and all enemies are deſtroyed. And as then they ſhall be free from perſecution; ſo men ſhall not be ſlain with plague and famine ſo frequently as in former times. The happineſſe of the Church is deſcribed negatively, by removal of evils: yet abundance of comforts, ſpiritual and corporal, is included alſo. So that the Church then, ſhall be a lively type of the glorious Church in heaven: and they ſhall not dye by perſecution, as before; but death ſhall be a quiet paſſage to heaven.

neither ſorrow, &c.] No inward grief, no outward expreſſion of it, no heavy labour or pain to cauſe either. They ſhall not be, like the Iſraelites in Egypt, put to hard labour in ſlavery, and grieving at it, and crying for deliverance, Exod.3.7,9. See the like phraſe, Iſa.54.14. & 60.18. & 61.3,7.

former things are paſſed away] All the miſeries of this world. Or, the beaſt, falſe Prophet, and all that did hurt the Church.

V. 5. he that ſate upon the throne] Chap.4.2. Becauſe it ſeemed incredible that all things ſhould be made new, God himſelf confirmeth it, and ſaith, I make all things new; taking the work upon himſelf, who was able to do it.

Behold] See notes on ver.3.

I make all things new] Iſa.43.19. 2 Cor. 5. 17. When old things were, new muſt needs ſucceed. This may intend the glorious ſtate of Gods Saints after the reſurrection: or, a more ample reſtauration of the true doctrine and ſincere worſhip of God on earth, before the end.

write] See Chap.14.13. & 19.8. Iſa.8.1. & 30.8. Job 19.23. Hab.2.2.

for theſe words are true] Or, that theſe words are true. They muſt be written as it were in table-books, to ſhew that God would do it, and his people might expect it.

V. 6. It is done] Chap.16.17. All that the Prophets ſpake of the Churches deliverance, and the deſtruction of her enemies, is accompliſhed, Chap.10.6,7. Her foes are all deſtroyed, and ſhe ſhall have a quiet ſtate to the end. Or, the world is at an end, and glory promiſed is come.

V. 7. He that overcometh] Chap.2.7. God will give heaven to thoſe that heartily deſire it: but yet they muſt fight for it, before they enjoy it. They muſt overcome the dragon, the beaſt, Gog and Magog.

I will be his God, &c.] Pſal.89.26,27. 2 Sam.7.14. 2 Cor.6.18. I will tender him as a father doth his ſon. This argueth extraordinary comfort, here or in heaven.

V. 8. But] Such ſinners as follow, ſhall have no part in this new heaven and earth: and, leſt they ſhould ſlight this loſſe, he threatneth them with hell-fire beſides.

the fearful, &c.] If it be ſpoken of the day of judgment, it may be taken generally for all ſuch ſinners. If of the Church before, it ſignifieth, that though no perſecutours remain, yet there will be many wicked men, who ſhall go to hell, when they dye, although they lived to ſee this glorious eſtate of the Church. The fearful then may accordingly be either ſuch as at any time do evil, or omit good, againſt light of conſcience, for fear of danger, Matth.10.28,33. & 16.15. That overcome not, but are overcome, verſ.7. Or, ſuch as were afraid of Gog and Magog, the laſt enemies, and durſt not fight againſt them.

unbelieving] That believe not in Chriſt. Or, that for all this, did not expect the promiſed felicity of the Church, when they ſaw Gogs army, but deſpaired of victory.

I will ſhew thee the bride] He ſaw her, verſ.2. but not ſo diſtinctly as ſhe is after deſcribed.

the Lambs wife] The riches of the heavenly city. So he that ſheweth a man a Kings palace and treaſury, may be ſaid to ſhew him the king. She is now dreſt like a bride, and ſhall be ſoon married to Chriſt, and made his wife, Cqap.19.7.

great and high mountain] Chriſts ſpouſe cometh now to be openly ſeen. John ſaw the whore in a wilderneſſe, Chap.17.3. he ſeeth the Church now on an hill, becauſe the city was high. So Ezekiel was carried up into a mountain, to ſee the city and temple, Ezek.40.2. Moſes, to ſee the pattern of the tabernacle, Exod.25.40. Heb.8.5. and the land of Canaan, Deut.34.1. The temple was built on a hill, 2 Chron.3.1. It was called a mount, Chap.14.1. but here, a great and high one. So Iſa.2.2. It may ſignifie the glory of the laſt Church on earth, or the height of glory in heaven.

V. 11. having the glory of God] Exceeding great glory. So great things are ſet out, Gen.23.6. Pſal.36.6. Or, glory given them of God, 1 Cor.15.40,41.

her light] He beginneth with light, as the principal grace of a city. That light is not meant, whereby ſhe ſhined to others; but that which ſhined to her, and enlightned her. So the ſun and moon are called, Two great lights, Gen.1.14,15,16. This light is Gods glory, or Chriſt, verſ.23. This Church ſhall ſee more of God and Chriſt, and of holy and heavenly things, by that light, then either the Jewiſh ſynagogue, or any Chriſtian Church ſaw before.

like a jaſper ſtone] The laſt ſtone in Aarons breſt plate, Exod. 28.20. & 39.13. One of the king of Tyrus his jems, Ezek. 28. 13. Uſed, to ſet out Gods glory ſhining in the Church, chap.4. 3. and ſo here alſo; unleſſe it ſet out his majeſty in heaven. The walls of his Church are built of it, verſ.18. and it is the firſt in the foundation, verſ. 19. He compareth not this light of that Church to any light in heaven or earth; for the ſun is ſometimes darkened by clouds, and hurteth our eyes, if we look too wiſtly on it: the moon and ſtars loſe their light, when the ſun appeareth: and our made-lights decay. But it is compared to a jaſper, which is not darkned by clouds, neither doth hurt our eyes; but, the more we look on it, the more it pleaſeth us; neither doth it leave ſhining, when the Sun ſhineth, nor doth the brightneſſe of it go out at any time.

clear as cryſtal] Now he ſheweth what kind of jaſper it is like. Not the green, or yellow, or purple jaſper; for that taketh away the native colour of other things, and maketh them look like it: but the white, like cryſtal, which is moſt pure from ſpots, and moſt clear to look thorow. He doth not ſay, It was like cryſtal; but, like a jaſper ſtone clear as cryſtal, becauſe the jaſper ſhineth more then the cryſtal. So that it had the brightneſſe of the jaſper, and the purity of cryſtal, Chap.4.6.

V. 12. a wall great and high] That none might either pierce it, or ſcale it. The Saints are ſafe there from all foes.

twelve gates] Wayes in, out of all parts of the world, Ezek.48. 30,31. If Jeruſalem had but twelve gates, it may be an alluſion thereunto.

at the gates, twelve angels] As porters, to receive men into heaven, Luke 16.22. Not cherubins, to keep us out, Gen.3.24. Or, to guard us in the Church on earth. Or, miniſters, to teach us the way to heaven, Chap.1.20.

names written thereon] For direction, to guide men to it.

of the twelve tribes] Chap.7.4. Signifying, that the godly of the Church of the Old teſtament are gone thither, and we ſhould endeavour to follow them. Or, if this verſe be underſtood of the laſt Church on earth, it ſignifieth, that the Saints ſhall be ſafe there, men ſhall have free acceſſe unto it, the miniſters ſhall receive them into the ſervice and protection of the God of Iſrael.

V. 13. on the eaſt] Matth.8.11. Mark 13.27. To ſhew, that ſome out of all parts of the world ſhall come in, and be received.

V. 14. twelve foundations] Made of twelve ſtones, or rowes of ſtones, lying one by another, verſ.19. or one upon another. However, ſurely founded it is, and will laſt.

of the twelve apoſtles] Their doctrine is a foundation of our ſalvation, and eternal happineſſe by Chriſt, Epheſ.2.20,21.

V. 15. he that talked with me] The angel, verſ. 9,17. Chap. 22.6,8.

a golden reed] To meaſure the heavenly city. A plain one ſerved to meaſure the earthly one, Ezek. 40. 3,5. Chap. 11. 1. There, the temple onely; here, the gates, and city, and walls, are to be meaſured. The Church will be now more exact then before.

V. 16. four ſquare] A firm and ſtable building; not a round and voluble one.

twelve thouſand furlongs] Some Greek copies are, Twelve times twelve thouſand, one hundred fourty and four thouſand. A furlong for every member, Chap. 7.4. & 14. 1. John 14. 2. and in ſome proportion to be the breadth of the wall, one hundred fourty and four cubits, verſ.17. Or, each ſide in length, and the houſes in height, and the city it ſelf each way in breadth, was twelve thouſand furlongs. Some think that every ſide, from corner to corner, contained but three thouſand furlongs.

longs, and ſo the whole compaſſe was twelve thouſand. It is large enough to contain innumerable angels, and ſaints of all ages and places.

the length and the breadth] From corner to corner, it is every way of equal meaſure. It is not properly called length and breadth, when it is no longer one way then another, as it is in a ſquare.

V. 17. the wall thereof] Perhaps the houſes and towers were higher then the wall, as in many cities it is, that it might appear glorious to comers; and then the height of it may be ſet down in this verſe. Or it may be underſtood of the breadth of the wall; and then the height of it might be equal to the city, verſ. 16.

meaſure of a man,&c.] Cubit of a man in that ſhape the angel appeared.

V. 18. of jaſper] See verſ.11. Cities are eſteemed according to their matter: but there is none like this. It is not of wood, or ſtone; but of gold and jems, Iſa.54.11.

the city] The houſes and palaces there. Or, the pavement of the ſtreets; as verſ.21.

like unto clear glaſſe] See verſ.11. Gold is an excellent metal; but it is not tranſparent, like glaſſe: yet the gold of this city hath that property alſo.

V. 19. the foundations of the wall] Nothing is more precious then Chriſt taught by the apoſtles, compared to twelve precious ſtones like Aarons breſtplate, Exod.28.27, &c.

with all manner of precious ſtones] Iſa.54.11,12.

jaſper] See ver.11.

a ſaphir] A jem, of which, ſee Chap.4.6. It was the fifth in Aarons breſt-plate, Exod.28.18. See alſo, Iſa.54.11. Ezek.1. 26. & 10.1. & 28.13. Cant.5.14.

a chalcedony] A precious ſtone, of one colour, like fire, found about Chalcedon.

an emerald] A ſtone ſo green, that other green things ſeem to have loſt their colour, when it is preſent. It is very pleaſing to the eyes, and men may ſee their faces in it. It was the fourth in Aarons breſtplate, Exod.28.18. It is mentioned, Ezek. 28. 13. Chap.4.3.

V. 20. ſardonix] A precious ſtone looking white without, and red underneath, like the nail of a man. It hath the name from a ſardius and an onix; it partaketh of both their colours.

ſardius] A jem found about Sardis, of a bloody colour. It is the firſt in Aarons breſtplate, Exod.28.17. called A ſardine, Chap.4.1.

a chryſolite] A ſtone in Ethiopia, of ſuch a golden colour, that gold looketh like ſilver to it, when they are together.

a beryl] The tenth in Aarons breſtplate, Exod. 28. 20. An Indian ſtone, of a pale green colour. See Cant. 5.14. Ezek. 1. 16. & 10.9. & 28.13. Dan. 10.6.

a topas] A green jem of Ethiopia. The ſecond in Aarons breſtplate, Exod.28.17. Job 28.19. Ezek.28.13.

a chryſopraſus] A green Indian jem.

a jacinct] A precious ſtone of a violet colour.

an amethiſt] A ſtone for colour much like a jacinct. The ninth in Aarons breſtplate, Exod.28.19. By theſe jems, is ſet out the glory of heaven, or, of the laſt Church on earth.

V. 21. twelve pearls] Of great price and eſteem. A man may ſell all, to get in at one of thoſe gates, Matth.13.45,46. The very entrance into heaven, or into the laſt Church on earth, is of more worth then all worldly riches.

of one pearl] It muſt needs be of great price, when a pearl was ſo big, it could make a gate. We read of none ſuch in this world.

the ſtreet] No dirty ſtreet, as in ſome great cities, nor ſtony; but clean, and ſmoothe to walk in. No uncleanneſſe nor trouble there, verſ.27.

pure gold,&c.] Verſ.18.

V.22. I ſaw no temple therein,&c.] Fair temples are commendations of cities: but in heaven there ſhall need none; for there ſhall be no ritual worſhip there, but purely ſpiritual, Joh. 4.23. Temples are to lift up mens minds to God: there needeth none, where they ſee God. The earthly Jeruſalem had a temple, and viſible ſigns of Gods preſence in it; the heavenly needeth not: God will ſhew himſelf there for ever. If it be underſtood of the laſt Church on earth, then it ſignifieth, that the worſhip of God ſhall be more pure, and ſpiritual, and like to the heavenly, then ever before.

V. 23. And the city,&c.] Chap.22.5. Iſa.11.9. & 24.23. & 60. 19. Jer.31.34.

for the glory of God,&c] See verſ.11. They need not worldly comforts in heaven, they have ſo much in God. So light is taken for joy, Pſal.97.11.

the Lamb is the light thereof] Even in heaven, all our communion with God is through Chriſt. If it be underſtood of the Church on earth, the ſenſe is; They ſhall have ſo much ſweet communion with God in Chriſt, that they ſhall make light account of all worldly contentments.

V. 24. And the nations,&c.] Iſa.60.3.

of them which are ſaved] Or, of them which are to be ſaved; as Acts 2.47. The firſt way of reading reſpecteth the Church in heaven; the ſecond, that on earth.

ſhall walk in the light of it] An alluſion to men trading here by the benefit of the light of the ſun. The ſenſe is, They ſhall enjoy the felicity of it. Light is often put for proſperity; and darkneſſe, for adverſity, Iſa.60.1,2.

the kings of the earth,&c.] Iſa.45.14. & 49.23. Dan.7.14. As if ſea-men, returned from a voyage, ſhould bring their choiſeſt things to dedicate in ſome temple. It ſhal be as glorious, as if all kings had brought all their glory thither. Or, good kings ſhall be glorious there, more then here. Rich and noble citizens, are a cities glory. Here, all citizens are Kings, chap.22.5. Luk.12. 32. Or it may be underſtood of the flouriſhing ſtate of the Church on earth before the day of judgment, and the kings that ſhall joyn themſelves to it, and uphold and enrich it.

V. 25. And the gates] Iſa.60.11. City gates are open in the day, for paſſage; ſhut in the night, for ſafety. Here it needeth not, where no night nor danger is.

for there ſhall be no night there] I need not ſay, Nor by night, as Iſa.60.11. for there ſhall be no night there.

V. 26. And they ſhall bring] The kings ſhall, verſ.24. Or, it ſhall be brought, Luke 12.20.

the glory and honour of the nations into it] Whatſoever is glorious among the nations, ſhall be brought thither. No want can be there, when all glory and wealth ſhall be brought thither. Or, a great number of the nations, which is a glorious ſight. Or, the prime men of all nations, ſhall be converted and ſaved: which, in Saint Pauls time, was not ſo, 1 Cor.1.26, &c. It is no mean glory to the Church, that ſo many kings and great men ſhall come in to it.

V. 27. there ſhall in no wiſe enter] Though the gates alwayes ſtand open, yet no ungodly man can enter, there are twelve angels to keep them out, verſ.12.

that defileth] There ſhall be no ſoyl nor contagion in this great city, ſuch as crept in before, by antichriſts ſubtilty. A neat city, that hath no foul thing nor perſon in it, nor any thing to offend eye, ear, or noſe. So it will be in heaven, 1 Cor. 6.9,10. Epheſ.5.5. Pſal.15.1,2. & 24.3,4. Iſa.52.1. & 60. 21. Joel 3.17. Zech.14.21. Matth. 13. 41. In the laſt Church on earth alſo, diſcipline in likelihood ſhall be ſo ſtrictly executed, that no profane perſons ſhall be found there. Only ſuch as are elect, as far as men can judge.

book of life] Chap.3.5. & 20.12. Phil.4.3.

CHAP. XXII.

Verſ. 1. A*Nd he ſhewed me*] The deſcription of the holy city is finiſhed in the five firſt verſes of this chapter; and the concluſion of the book followeth.

a pure river] A river is a great ornament to a city; it is pleaſant and profitable, to convey perſons and proviſions to it. This is no pond, but a river: and not a troubled or muddy river, but a pure one.

of water of life] So called, not onely becauſe it floweth alwayes, and putteth forth new waters; in which reſpect, waters that come from a fountain are called Living waters, Gen.26.19. but alſo becauſe it preſerveth life in thoſe that drink of it, Joh. 4. 41.

clear as cryſtal] Tranſparent, and exceeding all fountains, in cleerneſſe. Moſt pleaſant to the eye, as ſhewing to it all that is therein to the very bottom: and moſt pleaſing to the taſte, as free from mud and filth.

proceeding out of the throne] The river of paradiſe came out of the earth, Gen.2.10. That in Ezekiel, out of the temple, Ezek. 47.1. This here, out of Gods throne.

of God, and of the Lamb] God and Chriſt ſit on one throne. See verſ.3. This ſheweth Chriſt to be God, equal to the Father. Some interpret this river of the Holy Ghoſt, who proceedeth from the Father and the Son, as a river from a fountain, and ſatisfieth all that thirſt, with his Spiritual gifts, John 7. 38,39. Others apply it to the Church on earth, thinking that it importeth ſomething to be fulfilled in the famous Church, conſiſting of Jews and Gentiles, before the end of the world; and to be an alluſion to Ezek.47.1. where the waters are ſaid to come from the temple and altar, verſ. 1. But here being no temple nor altar, chap.21.22. it is ſaid to come from the throne of God and the Lamb. Therefore it is ſaid to go toward the eaſt, Ezek. 47.1,8. Zech.14.8. And it ſignifieth the pureſt preaching of the Goſpel thorow the world, which bringeth life and health to the ſoul, as living waters to plants, Ezek.47.9. and refreſheth the Church, Pſal.46.4. Others underſtand it of heavenly glory, which is moſt pleaſing and perſpicuous, and cometh from Gods mercy, and the merits of Chriſt, Tit.2.11,13. & 3.4,5,6. and bringeth us to communion with them both, 1 Joh.1.3. Heb.12. 22,23,24.

V. 2. in the midſt] An alluſion to the earthly paradiſe, where the tree of life ſtood in the midſt of the garden, Gen.2.9.

of the ſtreet] An open river for all, not a ſealed fountain.

of it] Of the city, chap.21.21,27.

and of either ſide of the river] That is, many trees of this kind grew there, ſome on the one ſide of the river, ſome on the other, as Ezek.47.7,12. that men on either ſide might have plenty of fruit, and come eaſily at it. Or, and of the river, which ran on each ſide of it; that is, one tree of life grew in the midſt of the river, which compaſſed the earth whereon it grew, as it were with two arms; and this tree was ſo great, that it did ſtretch out boughs, with leaves and fruit on them, plentifully to both ſides. So fruitful are trees that grow by rivers, Pſal.1.3.

the tree of life] Alluding to that tree in paradiſe, which ſhould have been to Adam a ſeal of everlaſting life, if he had continued in the eſtate of innocency, Gen.3.22. See chap.2.7. Here is meat and drink, and that in great plenty, and for perpetuity, Pſal.36.8. Fruitful trees planted by the waters, wither not, Pſal.1.3.

twelve manner of fruits] Twelve divers kinds of fruits, ſo that they need not be cloyed with one kind. It ſerveth inſtead of all Ezekiels trees, if it be but one. Or, twelve fruits of one kind, brought forth twelve times in a year. The former argueth variety of comforts; the later, plenty. The former is an help againſt loathing; the later, againſt lacking.

every moneth] It is autumn here alwayes. There is no need to lay up food againſt the winter.

for the healing] Ezek.47.12. Mal.4.2. Not by feeding on the leaves, but by covering themſelves with them, or laying them on their wounds. For although leaves of trees be not uſually eaten, yet they are uſed many times phyſically, to heal wounds. So that they ſhould not onely live, but alſo live in health.

of the nations] Or, of the Gentiles, chap.11.2. And then the fruit was to feed ſuch as were in the Church; the leaves, to heal others, that they might come in: as the bread is for children, the crums for dogs, Matth.15.27. Either it is to be underſtood of Gods word, which is food and phyſick to us here, 1 Pet. 2. 2. Heb.5.12. Pſal.107.20. which ſhall be more clearly and plentifully preached, before the end of the world, then yet it ever was: or elſe of Chriſt our Saviour, who is All in all to us, and by whom we ſhall live for ever in heaven.

V. 3. no more curſe] Evil thing, perſon, or action. Or, curſe, that is, deſtruction. Gr. curſe againſt any one. Such ſhall be the force of diſcipline, and vigilancy of paſtours, and Gods bleſſing on their labours, that God ſhall not need to deſtroy obſtinate ſinners from heaven, for contempt of his ordinances and miniſters, Zech.14.11.

the throne of God, &c.] See verſ.1.

ſhall be in it] God will ſettle his throne there. There ſhall be no rotten members, to make God to depart from it, as he did from Shiloh, Pſal.79.58,59,60. and from Jeruſalem, 2 King.21.14,15. But this is that Sion where God will dwell for ever, Pſal. 132.14.

ſhall ſerve him] Though Gods ſervants ſhall enjoy abundance of grace and comfort here on earth, before the end of the world, and perfection of glory in heaven; yet the relation of ſervants to God, ſhall abide ſtill.

V. 4. they ſhall ſee his face] They ſhall converſe familiarly with him, 2 Sam.14.32. Deut. 30. 10. 2 Joh. verſ. 12. They ſhall worſhip God ſo purely, that he ſhall ſeem to converſe with them face to face. Or, it ſetteth out their full happineſſe in heaven, which conſiſteth principally in ſeeing Gods face, Mat.5.8. Job 19.26. 1 Cor.13.12. 1 Joh.3.2.

his name ſhall be in their foreheads] Gods name, chap.3.12. & 14.1. His Image ſhall be more fully imprinted on them, then on other Chriſtians in former times. Or, he ſhall own them publickly, and all that they have, Zech. 14. 20,21. Or, they ſhall glory moſt in this, that they are Gods children. Or, they ſhall as children converſe with him in heaven. For there it will appear who are Gods children, though here it do not. The Saints ſhall know one another, as the high prieſt was known, when Holineſſe to the Lord, was written in the plate on his forehead, Exod.25.38.

V. 5. And there ſhall be, &c.] Chap.21.23.

no night there] No ſuch darkneſſe of ignorance, confuſion, or affliction, as was before. Or, no darkneſſe literally, or of affliction at all, if it be underſtood of heaven. In the day here, they feared night; in proſperity, adverſity: there, they ſhall not need to do it. To heal that fear, that which was ſaid, Chap.21.23. is here repeated.

they need no candle, &c.] They need not light by day or night. They have ſo much knowledge of God, and comfort in him, that they ſeem to have no need of outward means and comforts, Iſa.19.20. Or, in heaven they ſhall need no reading or preaching of the word, the light of the ſoul, Pſal. 119. 105. 2 Pet.1.19. 1 Cor.13.8.

for the Lord God giveth them light] Knowledge and comfort ſhall ſo abound in them, that all may ſee they come rather from God, then from the means, Iſa.54.13. Jer.31.34. Or, they receive fulneſſe of knowledge and comfort from God in heaven.

ſhall reign] Leſt men ſhould think it an hard ſervice ſpoken of, verſ.3. he addeth, They ſhall reign, to ſhew, that their ſervice ſhall be a moſt happy Kingdome.

for ever and ever] Their kingdom begun here, ſhall never end, but be tranſlated to heaven. Or, they ſhall reign in heaven for ever.

V. 6. And he ſaid unto me] The concluſion of the book. In Geneſis, the firſt book, is ſet out the beginning of the world, and of the Church. The hiſtory of both, is continued in other books for a long time; and it is carried on in this laſt book, by way of prophecy, to the end.

and true] See Chap.19.9 & 21.5. The Spirit knew that this book would be more queſtioned then others, and therefore by his angel confirmeth the truth of all things written in it, in the concluſion, by many arguments; becauſe the ſervants of God, hearing of them, would be very deſirous to ſee the event of all theſe prophecies. As if he ſhould ſay, All is now revealed, and all that is revealed is true: nothing remaineth, but that ye give credit to it, and patiently expect Gods performance, which will undoubtedly follow in his time.

God of the holy Prophets] See Luke 1.70. God, who ſeparated and inſpired holy men to be Prophets, that they might foretel things to come; hath revealed theſe things alſo by his angel, Chap.1.1. and therefore they ſhall certainly come to paſſe.

V. 7. Behold] Chap.21.3. He bringeth in the Lord God of the Prophets mentioned in the former verſe, ſpeaking in his own perſon in this verſe. Or, Chriſt ſending his angel to reveal theſe things, verſ. 16. may interpoſe, and ſpeak himſelf, when he pleaſe. Or, the angel ſent by him, ſpeaketh ſometimes in his own perſon, ſometimes in the perſon of Chriſt.

I come quickly] See verſ.12,20. I begin ſoon to execute theſe things; and that ſhall be a pawn to you, that I will not give over the work, till I make an end of all. Therefore they muſt not be ſealed, verſ. 10. that men ſeeing ſome things foretold ſoon performed, might with patience expect the performance of the reſt.

bleſſed is he, &c.] The concluſion is like the Preface, chap.1.3.

V. 8. I John] He ſheweth, that this book was not written by any falſe prophet, but by himſelf, who was well known in the Church.

ſaw theſe things] He confirmeth the revelation here, as he did his Goſpel before, John 19.35. & 21. 24. and his Epiſtle, 1 Joh.1.1.

and heard them] I ſaw the viſions, and heard the words. He was worthy to be believed; for he receiveth nothing at the ſecond hand, but ſaw and heard himſelf, what he writeth. All the Churches knew, that he received what he writ, from Gods Spirit, and did faithfully diſpenſe it.

I fell down, &c.] Before, Chap.19.10. Or it may be, now, toward the end, being more fully acquainted with the glory of the holy city then before, he forgat himſelf, and out of weakneſſe erred the ſecond time, as Abraham did about his wife, Gen. 12. 13, & 20.2. It ſeemeth John did it now again, becauſe it is after he had ſeen all the viſions: and other words are attributed to the angel here, then were, Chap.19.10.

V. 9. See thou do it not] See on Chap.19.10.

V. 10. Seal not the ſayings] Propound it openly; conceal no part of it: as ſealing is concealing, Chap.10.4. Iſa. 8. 16. & 22.11. Dan.12.4,9. Leſt John ſhould think that he ought not to reveal ſo great myſteries to the people, he is bidden not to conceal them; and a reaſon is added, Becauſe the time is nigh.

of the prophecy of this book] Look on verſ.7.

for the time is at hand] Myſteries are often kept ſecret, till God ſee a fit time to reveal them, Chap. 10.4,5. They are revealed, when the Church may get moſt good, as when the time of fulfilling draweth nigh. The time, in the Greek, is, the ſeaſon; that is, the fit and appointed time.

V. 11. He that is unjuſt] If it be objected, Some will abuſe theſe things, to hurt themſelves and others; the anſwer is here included, They muſt not be concealed, for all that. Others will make a better uſe of them. Good men muſt not be deprived of the knowledge of theſe comforts, becauſe men to whom they belong not, will abuſe them.

unjuſt] Towards others. To this, righteous is oppoſed.

filthy] In himſelf. To this, holy is oppoſed.

let him be filthy ſtill] Thoſe that remain obſtinate, ſhall be given over to their own luſts, and grow worſe and worſe, Pſal. 81.11,12. Ezek.3.27. & 20.19. Dan.12.10. Amos 4.4. 2 Tim. 3.13. Or, ſuch as are obſtinate, and incorrigibly wicked, let them be left, and given over to their own [illegible] of life; as 1 Cor.14.38.

holy ſtill] Or, more holy. Either [illegible]

[illegible] to be the ſame,

V. 12. And behold, I come quickly] As I ſaid before, verſ. 7. [illegible] time will paſs, from the foretelling of theſe things, to the beginning of fulfilling them. Look therefore for my coming to [illegible] them, as a ſervant forewarned doth for his maſters, Mat. 24.44,45.

my reward is with me] Chriſt cometh not empty-handed. His reward is ready, for good men and bad, Iſa.40.10. & 62.11.

to give, &c.] Rom.2.6.

V. 13. Alpha and Omega] Chap.1.8, & 21.6.

the firſt and the laſt] Iſa.41.4. & 44.6.

V. 14. his commandments] Chriſt's, if the angel ſpeak in his own perſon. Or God's, if Chriſt ſpeak, or the angel in the perſon of Chriſt. See verſ.7,12.

that they may have right] And ſo may inherit heaven, as Gods children, Matth.25.34. and coheirs with Chriſt, Rom. 8.17, 18.

to the tree of life] See verſ.2. Chap.2.7, through the gates] Chap.21.12. For over the wall they could not go, it was ſo high, Chap. 21.12,16,17. An alluſion to a guarded city, whoſe high walls keep out ſuch as have no right to enter, and porters at the gates let in ſuch as have.

V. 15. For without] Gr. But without.

dogs] Men that bark and ſnarl at all goodneſſe, Phil. 3.2. Matth.7.6. It is an happineſſe to be without the ſociety of ſuch. Or, filthy perſons, ſuch as are ſpoken of, verſ.11. called Dogs, Deut.23.18. 2 Pet.2.22.

and murderers] Chap.1.1.

V. 16. I Jeſus, &c.] Now Chriſt confirmeth the truth of all theſe things, by his own voyce acknowledging, that they came all from him.

have ſent mine angel] Chap.[illegible]7.

to you] In the ſeven Churches, Chap.1.4. Hereby he ſheweth what great honour he did to thoſe Churches, to commit this treaſure to their cuſtody.

I am the root, &c.] Chap. 5. 5. Iſa. 11.1. I can give you the promiſed happineſſe; for I am the Meſſias of Davids ſeed, that muſt reign for ever.

the bright morning-Star] Chap.2.28. His birth was manifeſted to the wiſe-men by a ſtar, Matth.2.2,9,10. to ſhew that he was the Star foretold, Num.24.17. which bringeth the day of knowledge to the Church, and glory, after the night of ignorance and miſery, 2 Pet.1.19.

V. 17. the Spirit] The Holy Ghoſt breedeth deſire of Chriſts coming in the heart of the Church, which is Chriſts Bride; who alſo freely anſwereth to his motions, verſ. 20. Rom. 8. 23,26. 2 Cor.5.2,4.

the Bride] She deſireth to be married to Chriſt; for ſhe had made her ſelf ready, Chap.19.7. Gods children deſire the fulfilling of theſe things, that they may be more neerly joyned to Chriſt. See Chap.6.10. & 19.17. 2 Tim.4.8.

Come] To fulfil theſe things. Or, to judgment, that we may be with thee for ever.

let him that heareth] Not onely the Church in general, and each Chriſtian then alive; but alſo their poſterity, when they ſhall hear of theſe glorious things, ſhall long for the performance of them.

let him that is athirſt come] Chap.21.6. Iſa. 55.1. The prophecy may kindle this thirſt in good men; the performance will quench it: elſe were the expecters miſerable, Prov.13.12. 1 Cor.15.19.

the water of life] Of the river, verſ.1. So here is water of life to drink, and a tree of life to give food.

freely] Let them participate of grace or glory, as freely and plentifully, as if it were water, 1 Tim. 6. 17. James 1. 5. Or, Though they ſhall have abundance of both, yet it is of Gods free grace; for they deſerve not one drop of this water, nor cannot procure it by any ſtrength or wit they have of themſelves, Rom.6.23.

V. 18. For] It may be left out, as it is, Acts 4.34. & 8.31. in the beginning of the verſes: for it yeeldeth no reaſon of that which went before. Or it may be read, And, as Acts 8. 39. in the end of the verſe. Or, no doubt; as 1 Cor.9.10.

I teſtifie] Gr. I teſtifie together. As Moſes did of the law; Deut.4.2.& 12.32. & 30.6. ſo do I of this Prophecy. It is therefore of divine authority, as that book is. Or, I ſent my angel to teſtifie theſe things, verſ. 16. now I confirm his teſtimony, by threatning all that adde to, or take from it. Or, I confirm what John averreth, verſ.8.

the words of the Prophecy of this book] Verſ.7,10.

ſhall adde unto him] Or, ſhall lay upon him.

V. 19. the words, &c.] See verſ.18.

out of the book of life] Chap.21.27.

out of the holy city] Chap.21.2.

the things which are written in this book] Chap.1.3.

V. 20. He which teſtifieth theſe things] Chriſt, verſ. 16, 18, the faithful witneſſe, Chap.1.5. from whom, as the Goſpel came, ſo likewiſe this Revelation.

I come quickly] He had ſaid ſo before, verſ.7,12. Now he repeateth it the third time, that we may not think he ſtayeth too long for us.

Even ſo. Come Lord Jeſus] Johns voyce, deſiring it may be as Chriſt hath ſaid. He grew old, and deſired to be with Chriſt quickly, as other of the Saints do, verſ. 17. and Paul, Phil. 1. 23. Thus John, who received theſe myſteries from heaven, and writ them in a book, concludeth it with a double wiſh; one, of Chriſts coming, in this verſe; the other, of the continuance of his favour to his Church in the mean while, verſ. 21. teaching us to do the like. Or it may be the Churches voyce, deſiring to be ſpeedily joyned to Chriſt; as verſ. 17. according to his promiſe here and before.

V. 21. The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, &c.] This ſheweth the whole revelation to be an epiſtle ſent to the ſeven churches. See notes on Chap.1.4. He beginneth with this requeſt there, and endeth with it here. Chriſts favour is the firſt and laſt thing he wiſheth to the Church. So doth Paul, writing by the ſame Spirit, Rom.1.7.& 16.24. 1 Cor.1.3.& 16.23. 2 Cor.1.2 & 13.14. Gal.1.3. & 6.18. Epheſ.1.2. & 6.24. Phil.1.2. & 4.23. Col. 1.2. & 4.18. 1 Theſſ.1.1. & 5.28. 2 Theſſ.1.2. & 3.18. 1 Tim. 1.2. & 6.21. 2 Tim.1.2. & 4.22. Tit.1.4. & 3.15. Philem. v.3, 25. This he writ in the end of his Epiſtles, with his own hand, 1 Cor.16.21,22,23. Col.4.18. It was the token of his genuine Epiſtles. Though they were written fair by others, Rom. 16. 22. yet he writ this ſalutation, or the like, in the end, with his own hand, 2 Theſſ.3.17,18.

Amen] So be it. This is alſo added in the end of Pauls Epiſtles. See the places newly cited.

at the calling of their name, Plin. Nat. Hiſt. lib. 18. cap. 70. and the greateſt of them the Whales, God hath ſubjected to the power and prudence of man in great meaſure, though ſometimes for his rebellion againſt his God, they be in rebellion againſt him to his ruine; as God threatneth, Lev. 26. 22. and hath ſometimes executed, as 1 King. 13. 24. 2 King. 2 24. and he can take as great revenge by the leaſt and weakeſt creatures, as by frogs, and flyes, and lice, Exod. 8. 5, 17, 24. and by worms, Act. 12. 23.

V. 3. Every moving thing] Or, creeping thing. That which creepeth moveth, but not contrariwiſe, all that moveth creepeth; for man, and beaſts, and birds do move, but do not creep, therefore the original word is well rendred moveth, which is a word of a larger extent then the word creepeth, and ſo more meet to expreſſe the beneficence of God in this conceſſion of ſuſtenance to man.

that liveth] That is, that dyeth not of it ſelf, Lev. 22. 8. but being alive is killed by your hand, and not found dead already, as that which is torn by beaſts in the field, which is to be caſt to dogs, Exod. 22. 31. for many of the ceremonial lawes given to Moſes from God, and by him to the Jewes, were in uſe long before. See the Annot. on Gen. 7. 2. Object. But many living things are not mans meat, as Lyons, Bears, Tygers; and many birds, as Hawkes, or Kites, and many fiſhes, as the Whale, and others; but for creeping things many of them are not onely loathſome to man, but very unwholeſome, and ſome of them no better then plain poyſon; as Toads, Scorpions, Spiders: for anſwer hereto, ſee the next Note.

ſhall be meat] As by bread in the Lords Prayer is meant not onely bread it ſelf, but all neceſſary food and Phyſick which is of uſe to preſerve or recover the health of man, and to prolong his life; ſo here many of the creatures by way of ordinary diet, and ſome of them by a phyſical vertue ſhall ſerve to ſuſtain the life of man, even Vipers, and Scorpions, & Lice, and the excrements both of men and beaſts have their uſe in phyſick for mans good, whereof ſee abundant inſtance in the Preface, to the Sanctuary of a troubled ſoul: Here is the firſt mention of mans feeding upon the living creatures, and the firſt grant of that liberty, as divers learned Commentators conceive, which yet might be in uſe before, as corn, and bread, and drink, though they be not ſpoken of before; and as the Rain-bow was from the beginning, though not mentioned untill after the floud. And here was eſpecial cauſe to mention the allowance of eating the living creatures, both becauſe herbs and fruits were ſpoyled with the floud, and for that God would by this grant the more oblige them to forbearance of bloud, ver. 4. as he did the more binde Adam to abſtinence from the fruit of one tree by his liberal beneficence and allowance to eat freely of all other fruits that grew in the Garden of Eden: and this not by command, for though it be given in a term of command, Gen. 2. 16. is in effect but a conceſſion or permiſſion, as Lev. 11. 3. See alſo, and compare Mat. 19. 7. with Mark 10. 4. where what is called a commandment in the former Evangeliſt, is ſaid to be a ſuffering or tolerating in the other; and of this permiſſion the godly, it is like, made uſe as well as the wicked; for it is not probable that Abel being a keeper of ſheep kept them only for the wooll, or milk, and left their fleſh being as pleaſant and as wholeſome then as ſince, to be devoured of wild beaſts, or to rot either above or under ground; and it is very probable, that generally before the flood there was rather an exceſſe in the uſe of lawful meats, becauſe our Saviour, Mat. 24. 38. noteth the old world for their eating and drinking, that is, for being too much addicted to delicacy, variety, and plenty of proviſion for the fleſh at the time when the overflowing ſcourge came upon them; yet a moderate uſe was then allowed and taken into practiſe, which might be put into an expreſſe permiſſion or conceſſion now, not only with reſpect to the refreſhing of man, but withal for a religious conſideration referring to the glory of God, viz. for reſtraint of Idolatry, or worſhipping, or honouring the creature more then the Creator, againſt which the killing and eating of them for ordinary dyet, was a practical preſervative; and it was not without need in reſpect of mans proneneſſe to Idolatry; whereof ſee Pſal. 106. 19, 20. Rom. 1. 23. nor without fruit; for though ſome did ſo abuſe themſelves and other creatures alſo, as to make gods of ſuch things as they did eat, yet to thoſe who made uſe of their reaſon, it was a great conviction of the vanity of ſuch Idols that they might be ſo devoured, and turned as well to excrement, as to nouriſhment; and therefore did Moſes enjoyn the drinking of the water wherein the powder of the golden Calf was put as a potion for the peoples cure of that brutiſh Idolatry, Exod. 32. 20 as the green herb] That is, as freely as the green herb, Chap. 1. 29.

V. 4. But fleſh with the life] That is, living fleſh with the bloud in the veines; or, the bloud let out of the veins, wherewith the life and ſoul of the creature is powred out; for the ſoul of a beaſt, or fiſh, or fowl, hath no exiſtence without the body, (as the ſoul of man hath) being rather a vitall faculty, then a ſubſtance; and the life is called the bloud, and the bloud the life, becauſe the ſpirits which are the livelieſt parts of the creature, are produced of the pureſt part of the bloud, and with it diffuſed throughout the whole body, by the operation and activity whereof the members are lively, and active, and without which there is no bodily life in man or beaſt, though the bloud continue in the body, as in creatures ſtrangled. By this in Gods intention is, firſt, morally forbidden all cruelty, not onely to man, but to other creatures. Secondly, the eating of fleſh and bloud together, or either of them raw, whereby men might become (by degrees) to feed upon mans fleſh, as thoſe who for ſuch a babarous manner are called Anthropophagi, that is, men-eaters, Plin. Nat. Hiſt. lib. 6. cap. 30. Thirdly, afterwards, the eating of all manner of bloud was expreſly forbidden, Lev. 7. 2. & Chap. 17. 10. and that not onely becauſe the bloud is the life of the fleſh; as here, and Lev. 17. 14. or the life of the fleſh is in the bloud, as the reaſon is expreſſed, Lev. 17. 11. but there is a reaſon myſticall againſt the eating of bloud in the ſame verſe, and that is, becauſe in ſacrifices the bloud was to be let out and ſprinkled, to ſignifie that the life of man by ſinne is forfeited to God, and to be offered to him, as the Authour from whom at firſt it was derived, and to whom at laſt it is to be preſented, and for that mans life was to be redeemed by the bloud of Chriſt: To theſe two ſome add a third, viz. a Phyſical cauſe of forbearance of bloud, which may ſerve for all times, and it is becauſe the bloud of beaſts is ſomewhat groſſe, and yeeldeth not very wholeſome nouriſhment to the body of man; and therefore the beaſts which were to ſerve for food, were not to be ſtrangled, but to be killed, that the bloud might be let out and parted from the fleſh. And from this prohibition of bloud in this Chapter, before the ceremonial law was ordained, and the decree of the Apoſtles for forbearance of things ſtrangled and of bloud, Act. 15. 20. after the obligation of it was expired, ſome infer a perpetuity of prohibition of all ſuch meats, eſpecially ſince in the Apoſtles decree pollution of Idols, ſo ver. 20. or, meats offered to Idols, ver. 29. and fornication are forbidden, and all in one tenour, as neceſſary things to be forborn, ver. 28. ſo that to this day they hold it unlawful to eat any thing made of bloud, though mingled with other materials, and broyled and dreſſed as other meats are: and therefore the Chriſtian Greeks find fault with the Latines for uſing their Chriſtian Liberty herein, as Theod. Balſamon on the 63. Can. of thoſe ſuppoſititious Canons which are intituled to the Apoſtles.

But firſt for anſwer to the Poſition, it may be alledged, that all meats which are wholeſome (though ſome be more wholeſome and nutritive then others, and to ſome ſtomachs and conſtitutions groſſer meats may be more ſuitable then fine) are by Evangelical liberty lawful to be eaten; for that ſee the fifteenth of Matth. ver. 11. Act. 10. from ver. 10. to the 16. 1 Cor. 8. 1, 8. & Chap. 10. 25. Tit. 1. 15.

Secondly, this prohibition of the Apoſtles touching the eating of meats ſtrangled, and bloud, was occaſional, and in caſe of ſcandal, that the converted Gentiles ſhould not be offended with the converted Jews for their forbearance of ſuch meats, nor offend them by their uſe.

Thirdly, for the forbidding of bloud, beſides the preſent reaſon concerning the ſtate of the Church, and the antiquity of the abſtinency preſcribed ſoon after the floud, there might be a reaſon of it from the future, viz. a ſlander of the Chriſtians for bloudy and unhumane banquets of humane fleſh, ſuch as are reported of the Tyrant Phalaris, Ariſt. Eth. lib. 7. cap. 6. and are ſometimes threatned and inflicted by God as curſe; whereof ſee Deut. 28. 56, 57. 2 King. 6. 28, 29. Lam. 2. 20. & Chap. 4. 10. which the Holy Ghoſt foreſaw would be charged upon them, and meant to meet with it by this decree, and the obſervation of it for a time, out of which the Primitive Chriſtians made their Apology, convincing their accuſers of falſhood, and acquitting themſelves from all juſt ſuſpition of ſuch a crime by their forbearance of all uſe of bloud in what kind ſoever, as we find their defence ſet down in the writings of Minutius Fœlix Euſeb. Eccleſ. Hiſt. lib. 5. cap. 1. Tert. Apologet. cap. 9.

Fourthly, for the ſorting of this prohibition of bloud and things ſtrangled with forbearance of meats ſacrificed to Idols and fornication, it followeth not that they ſhould be alike lawful or unlawful; for the ſame puniſhment, much more the ſame prohibition, may be ſet upon things of a very different nature; as death is the penalty of murder, Gen. 9. 6. and of having leavened bread, Exod. 12. 15, 19. yet the one is forbidden by a moral, the other by a ceremonial precept; yet for the ſinne of fornication, divers of the Gentiles held it but for a thing indifferent.

Fifthly, for calling of them neceſſary things, they were ſo, and alwayes will be, ſo far as the obligation is from a moral precept, as the caution againſt Idolatry and Fornication; and for thoſe things which are in their own nature indifferent, as the abſtinence from things ſtrangled, and from bloud, the forbearance of them was neceſſary for a time, in caſe of ſcandal to any believing Chriſtian, 1 Cor.8.13.

V. 5. I will require] That is, the Magiſtrate, my deputy, ſhall require bloud for bloud; or if he do not know or puniſh homicide or manſlaughter, ſome hand of violence like that of the manſlayer ſhall repay him like for like; or mine eye ſhall diſcover it, and mine own immediate hand avenge it: See Exod.21.12. Lev. 24. 17. Numb. 35. from ver. 16. to the 19. Deut.19.21. Ezek.35.6. Mat.26.52. Rev.13.10. See alſo Joſeph. Antiq.lib.1.cap.4. but eſpecially Philip Lonicerus Theat. Hiſt. pag. 392. ad pag.513.

at the hand of every beaſt] A man commonly when he killeth another uſeth his hand to that wicked work, ſo that which other creatures uſe in ſtead of an hand is figuratively called by that name; ſo the Spider is ſaid to take hold with her hands, Prov.30.28. and the beaſt muſt be put to death to put a fear of murder upon man, as the Dog beaten before the Lion to make him afraid: See Exod.21.28.

every mans brother] The former prohibition is a preparative to this, the moderation towards beaſts that were to be killed by abſtinence from their bloud preſcribed by God, Lev.17. 14. was to be reſtraint of cruelty towards man, whoſe life was more pretious, ſince he was made after the Image of God. See ver.6. and this an univerſal Law, inforced with an impartial penalty, death for death, bloud for bloud, whoſoever he be that ſheddeth it without juſt cauſe and lawful warrant.

V. 6. by man] Murder or killing is to be puniſhed with death, like for like, Exod.21.12. Lev.24.17. Mat.26.57. Which is to be underſtood of witting and wilful murder, Numb.35.31. for if one had killed another at unawares, there was a City of refuge for the ſlayer, to ſave him from the hand of the purſuer, ver.11. otherwiſe, he that ſheddeth mans bloud, by man ſhall his bloud be ſhed. Some read the words, whoſoever ſheddeth the bloud of man in man; and the Original Text dam haadam baadam, will allow it, which may be rendred, the bloud of man in man, and ſo the ſenſe may be, Whoſo letteth that bloud out of man which is and ſhould remain in man, his bloud ſhall be ſhed. But the firſt letter Beth, in the latter word, ſignifieth variouſly, according to the ſenſe of the place, either in, or with, or for, or by, and that inſtrumentally, as in this place both the conſtruction of the words, and the Hebrew accent Zakeph-Katon do import; ſo that we may read the word, as our laſt Tranſlation doth, by man, that is, ordinarily by the Magiſtrate to whom is committed the ſword of Juſtice for that purpoſe eſpecially, Rom.13.4. and extraordinarily God in his juſtice uſeth the hand of one murderer to do execution upon another, when humane juſtice (as either blind or lame, either wanting eyes to ſee it, or hands to puniſh it) doth paſs it over with impunity; or ſome way or other he ſhortens the life of the bloudy man, ſo that he liveth not out half his dayes, Pſal.55.23. It is queſtioned by ſome whether murder or any other crime were puniſhed otherwiſe then by excommunication, (or caſting out of the ſociety of men,) whether ſacred or civil, before the floud; but eſpecially whether death were inflicted on any offendor before Noah his return to Land again. The chief cauſe of the doubt is, the reprieve of the firſt murderer by God himſelf, though guilty of the greateſt cruelty againſt man, and of the ſtouteſt contumacy againſt God of any profeſſing ſervice to him (as he did by ſacrifice) in the Scripture, on whom God ſet an eſpecial mark that man might not meddle with him, Chap. 4.15. But his caſe of reſervation was extraordinary, (as was his crime) too high and heinous to be rewarded with the ſword of juſtice, ſomewhat worſe then death, a wretched life (which for his greater puniſhment was prolonged) was a more meet recompence for ſuch a tranſcendent malefactor; yet many times it might be otherwiſe. If it be ſaid, we find neither any ordinance or example of the inflicting of capital puniſhment on any offender before that of this Chapter: It may be anſwered, that many things might be in uſe before the flood, though not recorded in the fore-going Chapters; whereof ſee the ſecond Annot. on ver.1. of this Chapter: and though there were no ſuch political power as was exerciſed after the floud, when Nimrod had raiſed himſelf to the height of Monarchy, whoſe ambition and tyranny hath been followed ever ſince in many parts of the world, yet it ſeemes there was an œconomical or domeſtical power of life and death in particular families by the ſtory of Judah and Thamar. Gen.38.24. The Anabaptiſts (who deny the legal and military uſe of the ſword, yet ſometimes uſe it againſt thoſe who favour not their fancies: ſee Philip. Lonicer. Theat. Hiſt. pag.107, 108.) will have the texts for puniſhing offenders to be taken not preceptively but prophetically, becauſe they are phraſed in the future tenſe, and ſo they ſhall imply not a command, but a bare commination; whereas, if ſo, being general they would contain an untruth, for many bloudy malefactors often do eſcape the ſword they have deſerved: beſides, it is uſual, in the Hebrew, to put the Future tenſe for the Imperative mood; as Exod. 20. 13. and elſewhere: and this and ſuch like Texts, do not onely juſtifie the uſe of the Magiſtrates ſword as lawful, but require it as a duty; and in ſuch a caſe mercy to a bloudy man may become cruelty to many innocent perſons; as where pardons for murders are eaſily granted, there murders are exceedingly multiplyed; as in France in ten years ſpace no fewer then ſix thouſand Gent: have been ſlaughtered, and the bloudy guilty ſheltered from ſuffering juſtice by the Kings indulgence, as appeareth by the Court Roll of the Kings pardons: againſt which merciful cruelty (for there be cruel mercies, Prov. 12.10) the Chaplains of Kings ſhould often remember them of the ſtory of Ahab and Bennadad, and the Prophets commination againſt Ahabs remiſneſs, 1 King.20.42. and of the Law, Deut.21. from ver.1. to the ninth.

for in the image] Therefore to commit murder or manſlaughter is not onely an injury and cruelty to man, but an impiety againſt God; and though it be greater ſin to kill a good man, as Cain did, Gen.4. 8. then a bad man, as the ſervants of Abſolom by his command did when they killed inceſtuous Amnod, 2 Sam.13.29. yet ſince a bad man hath ſome remainders of the image of God in him, God is diſhonoured if he be killed any other way then is warrantable by his authority. And by adding this reaſon, for in the Image of God, he meant to put a greater awe upon the minds of men, againſt the ſin of murder, as if he had ſaid, If common humanity will not work upon you, to with-hold your hands from ſhedding of bloud, let my majeſty, the reverence of my Image in man, make you afraid to lay violent hands on any, for the contempt of mine Image, I ſhall take as contempt to my ſelf, and ſhall accordingly puniſh it. By this argument did Macedonius diſſwade the Emperour Theodoſius from a ſlaughter of the Antiochians which he intended againſt them, pulling down an image of the Empreſſe Placillaes, and dragging it contumeliouſly about the ſtreets: Theodor.lib.5.Hiſt. Eccleſ.cap.9. for the living Image of God was of much more eſtimation, then the liveleſs Image of the Empreſſe.

V. 7. be fruitfull] See Chap.1.28. Chap.8.17. ver.1. of this Chapter.

V. 9. my Covenant] Mine, that is Gods, not mans; for man neither brought that floud, nor can keep off ſuch another, if he pleaſe to ſend it. By this Covenant, as by an Oath, God giveth aſſurance unto man, that the world ſhall no more be deſtroyed by an univerſal deluge as of late it was, Iſa.54.9.

your ſeed after you] This Covenant is not like that, Chap.6. 18. for that was but for a few: this is general both for the preſent age and for poſterity; but this is but for a temporal bleſſing: the ſpiritual Covenant likewiſe, if the conditions be kept, is hereditary, made to believers and to their children, Act.2. 39.

V. 10. every living creature, of the fowl] Though they were not capable of the Covenant for their part, yet God for his part maketh the promiſe for their preſervation for mans ſake, for whom they were made at the firſt, and afterwards upon his provocation of God for his ſake deſtroyed: and this Covenant is the more comfortable, becauſe it is general for the kinds and individuals or particular creatures, and perpetual for time, comprehending both the preſent ſtock and future increaſe throughout all generations. Some alledge this place againſt the Anabaptiſts, and thus it may ſerve to refute their fancy, viz. that the Covenant of God may be made with, and the Seal of the Covenant applyed to Creatures that have not the uſe of reaſon, which they deny, in denying the Adminiſtration of Baptiſm to Infants.

V. 13. my bow] The rain-bow was now firſt made, as ſome affirm; others (and that more commonly and more probably) conceive, that from the beginning it was in its cauſes, which are clouds, and the ſhining of the Sun; and thoſe cauſes did ſometimes produce that effect before this time, and ſo it is like the rain-bow was often ſeen before the flood; but now God made choice of it for a ſign of his covenant with the world, that there ſhould be no more an univerſal flood as before there was: this was no natural but an inſtituted ſign, and therefore it may ſeal the aſſurance of the promiſe, though there were no correſpondency betwixt it and the thing ſignified; and yet it was the fitter to be a ſign of ſecurity from a future flood, Firſt, becauſe of the place, which is in the clouds of heaven, whence came the rain that drowned the world before. Secondly, becauſe the bowe is bended upward towards God; not towards the creature below; as when it is taken in hand to ſhoot at a mark; nor is there in the bow any arrow which is ſaid to be made ready upon the ſtring when hurt is intended, Pſal.11.2. Thirdly, becauſe the Rain-bow appeareth commonly with rain, and ſo where men might begin to fear the Judgment, there they may take comfort againſt it in that it is a ſign of his Covenant for ſafety. Fourthly, becauſe the Rain-bow appears not but when there is a clearneſs and brightneſs in ſome part of the sky, but at the general flood it was all black with rain. See the Annot. on Chap. 8. 22. To which ſome adde a fift reaſon, which is, that in the Rain-bow conſiſting of divers colours) to the admiration of ſome of the wiſeſt Heathens) by the water colour is repreſented the overwhelming rain paſt and not to return, and by the fiery colour is prefigured the deſtruction of the world by the element of fire, as it is foretold by Saint Peter, 2 Pet.3.10. And ſome by theſe colours make a myſtical intimation of the two Sacraments of the New Teſtament, with reference to that of, 1 Joh.5.6. And, laſtly, a ſixt reaſon, becauſe the Rain-bow where it toucheth upon any ſhrubs leaveth a very ſweet and fragrant ſmell behind, Plin. Nat. Hiſt.lib.12.cap.24. which anſwereth to that pleaſant acceptation of God, obſerved before. See Annot. on Chap. 4. v. 21. Laſtly, though this Rain-bow here be a ſign of a temporal covenant, in the general extent of it to all creatures, yet the godly may look upon it with reference to Chriſt in whom all promiſes of what ſort ſoever are yea and Amen, and who is repreſented ſitting in his Throne compaſſed with a Rain-bow in ſight like unto an Emerauld, Revel.4. verſ.3. ſee alſo Revel.10.verſ.1.

V. 14. when I bring a cloud] Not whenſoever I bring a cloud; for it may ſuffice that it is ſeen at ſometimes to make it remembred at all times.

V. 16. that I may ſee it and remember] God needeth not any tokens or marks of remembrance for performance of his promiſe, becauſe he cannot poſſibly forget any thing of how ſmall moment, or how long date ſoever it be: this therefore is ſpoken after the manner of men for their better apprehenſion of the firmneſs and ſtedfaſtneſſe of God in his Covenant; for this remembrance imports a real and aſſured ratification of his promiſe; and hereby may men call to minde what he hath covenanted, and with undoubted confidence relye upon it, for his faithfulneſſe will make good what his favour hath ſaid. See Exod.28.12.29. & Annot. on Chap.8. verſ. 21.

V. 17. This is the ſign of the Covenant] Gods often repeating of his Covenant is for further confirmation of faith, and for intimation of mans dulneſſe duly to remember and conſider of his juſtice and mercy to man, and of mans both diſobedience and duty towards God.

V. 19. the whole earth overſpread] The habitable part of it was peopled by Noahs poſterity, a very plentiful increaſe of a very poor ſtock; this manifold multiplication of mankinde from ſo few as eight perſons, as a manifeſt evidence of the vertue of the Divine benediction, Gen.1.28. & verſ.1. & 7. of this Chapter.

V. 20. began to be an husbandman] It is not unlike but he uſed husbandry before as a ſon of Adam, Gen. 3. 19. but all that was at an end, his husbandry was drowned in the flood; now in the new world he was a new beginner, and ſo of thoſe vines which (preſerved by the Divine providence) he could meet with diſperſed here and there, (as the earth brought them forth) with diligence and induſtry he planted a vineyard, and preſſed the grapes to make drink of them, which before (as ſome hold) were eaten onely as they grew in cluſters.

V. 21. was drunken] Whether through ignorance of the ſtrength of the juyce of the grape, or through weakneſſe being accuſtomed to drinke water before the flood, or whether through intemperance of appetite, or weakneſſe of brain, or to cheer up his heart againſt the ſadneſſe whereto by the deſolate condition of the world he was diſpoſed; what ever the cauſe was, we are ſure of the effect, he was drunk, he who in the midſt of a moſt wicked world was a juſt and upright man, and walked with God, Chap. 6. 9. (and therefore eſcaped the flood) is laid along, drowned with wine, and ſhamefully uncovered; the report hereof is committed to Record not for contempt of Noah, but for Caution to his poſterity, that by his example thoſe that ſtand may take heed leſt they fall, 1 Cor.10. 12. and for the comfort of thoſe that fall into groſſe ſins, that they may riſe again by repentance and finde acceptance with God, (as Noah did) notwithſtanding their fall; and to teach us that the righteouſneſſe of Noah was not a righteouſneſſe of works, but of faith; and laſtly to note the impartiality of Scripture ſtory which concealeth not the fouleſt faults of thoſe it praiſeth moſt, as we may obſerve in the ſtory of Abraham, Gen. 12.19. & 20.2. of Moſes, Exod.4.1. 10. 12. Numb. 20. 24. & Deut.32.51. of David, 1 Sam.11. 2 Sam.24.10. of Job, Chap. 3. 3. &c. of Jeremy, Chap. 20. 14. of Peter, Matth. 26. 70, 72, 74. and others, which may be warrant for a friendly freedome in reproof of the faults of the beſt, and may diſpoſe the beſt patiently to hear the worſt that truly may be objected to them.

uncovered] The manner of theſe times and people haply was, as in after ages, when men, as well as women, wore long and looſe garments without breeches; and ſo by wind, or careleſſe compoſure of the body, the covering might light beſides the place it was to hide; thence might Michal take occaſion to deride David when he daunced before the Ark, more cordially and zealouſly, then curiouſly or artificially, for ſo his looſe garment by the various and vehement agitation of his body, might leave ſome places bare, which uſually were covered, 2 Sam.6.20. Againſt the like inconvenience it was ordered by God himſelf, that the Prieſts when they were to miniſter, were to put on linnen breeches, Exod.28.42. Ezek. 44. 18,19. ſo obſervant is the Lord of modeſty and decency; whereof Noah being not now apprehenſive, as at other times, ſomewhat was undecently diſcovered, which both piety and prudence, (had they been awake) would have charily concealed; now though Noah were no drunkard (for one action is not enough to give a denomination to the actor, and he was drunk but once:) we may hence be warned againſt truſting a drunkard with a ſecret, for a drunkard is as like to tell all when he is awake, as to ſhew all when he is aſleep.

V. 22. the father of Canaan] See Annot. on verſ.25.

told his two brethren] Ham was now by computation about one hundred years old, and therefore his miſcarriage towards his father was no childiſh errour: by his ſin Noah (when he was awake) might take notice of a part of Gods juſtice, or (as to the good) of his Paternal correction in chaſtiſing one ſinner with his own, or with anothers ſin, as 2 Sam.12.11, 12. yet though God here were juſt towards his ſervant, Ham was moſt injurious towards his Father, whoſe fault ſhould have affected him with pity and ſhame, which would rather have fetched a mantle to cover him, then call for company to note his nakedneſs, and to ſcoff at him, as it ſeemeth he did: ſuch ſons are they, who uncover the nakedneſs of thoſe, that in age and gifts they ſhould accompt their fathers; eſpecially, when they are aſleep, and aſleep as Lazarus was, Job 11.verſ. 11. and ſo ſhut up in ſilence, that they cannot anſwer for themſelves.

V. 23. and went backward] Shem and Japhet not willing to ſee their fathers ſhame, by their modeſty condemn (as by a legal teſtimony of two witneſſes) the impudence of Ham; here was ſome comfort to Noah, at his awaking out of ſleep, to ſee he had two good ſons for one bad one, and in them wee have an excellent Patern of ſhamefaſtneſſe and reverence, in children towards thier natural parents, fit for imitation alſo towards parents ſpiritual, yea, for brethren alſo, when any ſuch a one is overtaken with a fault, Gal. 6. yet in this there is a difference betwixt private and publike perſons, thoſe may conceal what theſe may not; and therefore it may be doubted, whether Conſtantines reſolution, to caſt his robe over an adulterous Biſhop, if he took him in the evil act, as Theodoret writes of him, Eccleſ. Hiſt.Lib.1.cap.11. did not fail in juſtice, as well as abound in mercy.

V. 24. knew what his younger ſonne] That is, Ham or Canaan (for ſome think he was called the younger ſon, as Othniel is called Calebs brother, being the ſon of his brother, Judg. Chap.1. 13.) had done unto him; Noah finding the garment upon him, which before he had not, he might inquire, and did finde out what was done, both by his bad ſon Ham, and by his two good ſonnes Shem and Japhet: Good offices are not loſt, though they be not alwayes obſerved while they are acted; and many times when they are offenſive in the act, they produce a good effect afterward: For this, ſee Prov.28.23.

V. 25. Curſed be Canaan] Canaan was the ſonne of Ham, verſ.18. and ſhall the ſonne bear the iniquity of the Father? contrary to that of the Lord by the Prophet, Ezek.Chap. 18. v. 20. eſpecially, if (as ſome think) he was yet unborn; for he was none of the eight perſons that were preſerved in the Arke. Anſw. It is more probable that he was now born, and of a competent age, both to know his duty to his grand-father, and to deſerve a curſe for his contempt; and the rather, if he firſt ſaw the uncomely nakedneſſe of Noah, and deriding him alone, called his Father to bear him company in that contempt, which made him more worthy of the curſe by Noah pronounced againſt him. But why was not Ham rather curſed then Canan, ſince his ſinne is evident; and his duty obliged him more to honour his father, as more neer in relation, and more mature in diſcretion? Anſw. By naming of Canan, Ham is not paſſed over with patience and impunity, but his curſe, both preſuppoſed and aggravated; preſuppoſed, becauſe he was the principal offender; and aggravated, in that parents wiſh well to their children, eſpecially, if they be like them, and they are more tender and chary of them many times, then of themſelves; as then Joſeph is ſaid to be bleſſed in Jacobs bleſſing of his children, Gen. 48.verſ.15,16. ſo is Ham curſed in his ſon Canaan, and the curſe intailed to his poſterity; and the rather is his name and perſon mentioned, and the curſe intitled to it (though Ham have four ſons named in the next Chapter, of which, as he is ranked, he ſeemeth to be the youngeſt, Chap. 10.6) becauſe God intended to make the curſe hereditary to the name and Nation of the Canaanites; And he juſtly puniſh the iniquity of the fathers upon the children, not only to the third and fourth generation of them that hate him, as Exod.20.5. but to a thouſand generations, if they continue in the ſame ſin; and if they be partners in the ſame ſins, he may make them partakers in the ſame plagues, not only temporally but eternally; but in reſpect of humane Juſtice God hath given another rule (which man is bound unto, though God be free to do with his creatures as he pleaſeth) and that is, that the parents ſhall not be put to death for the children, nor the children for the parents, Deut. 24.16. ſee 2 King 14.6. Jer.31.29. 30. But ſhould not Noah rather have prayed for his ſon and grandchild, then have curſed them both? It was not with Noah as we read in Juſt. Martyr, Dialog. cum Tryph. that inflamed with wine and wrath he was too haſty with his curſe; for his ſleep no doubt had ſettled his brain in a right temper; and now awakened out of it, he uttered but that which the ſpirit of God ſuggeſted unto him; for both his curſe and bleſſing were prophetical, and ratified by God himſelf, ſo that here is no warrant for parents to be bitter to their children, as paſſionately to pour out curſes againſt them, eſpecially, without or upon a very ſmall cauſe; and though in ſuch a caſe the cauſeleſſe curſe do not often come to paſe, Prov. 26. 2. ſometimes notwithſtanding it may have a temporal ratification of God for their puniſhment who raſhly utter it; whereof there are many examples in humane ſtories, and therefore it is the childrens part to take heed they provoke not their parents, eſpecially as Ham and Canaan by deriding of them, for againſt ſuch there is a particular curſe upon record, Prov. 30. 17. and the parents dutie, to take heed of ſuch precipitation of ſpirit as makes them ready to denounce a curſe when they ſhould pronounce a bleſſing.

a ſervant of ſervants] That is, a moſt vile ſlave; for the Hebrew phraſe expreſſeth the ſuperlative degree by ſuch a duplication: as Eccleſ, 1. 2. Hoſ. 10. 15. The condition of ſervitude fals upon ſome by povertie of eſtate, weakeneſſe of reaſon, or the prevailing power of war, but upon ſome it cometh as a particular curſe, as in this caſe where the Canaanites are fore-doomed to a moſt ſlaviſh eſtate. Object. This prediction in part took place in the Gibeonites who were Canaanites; ſee Joſh 9. but it may ſeem to fail of effect, becauſe it took not place in Ham nor Canaan, nor in the deſcendants from Ham or Canaan to the third and fourth generation, according to the commination of God, Exod. 20. 5. for the poſteritie of Ham were Kings, and the firſt Monarch Nimrod was of his race; nor came the Canaanites under ſubjection to the Iſraelites until four hundred and thirty years after the promiſe made to Abraham. Reſp. But firſt, the principal part of the curſe upon Ham and Canaan and their iſſue was ſpiritual, which made them ſlaves to ſin, and ſo juſtly excommunicate from God, and contemptible as the vileſt ſlaves unto the godly. Secondly, though God profeſſe himſelf more prone to mercy then to revenge, (when he mentioneth the third and fourth generation in viſiting the iniquitie of the fathers upon the children,) he doth not thereby bind himſelf either to begin his puniſhment ſo ſoon, or to end it there: and whereas in this prediction there is no ſet time choſen for accompliſhment, the curſe may come at what age or time, and begin with what perſon he pleaſeth; as in the time of Joſhua with the Gibeonites, Joſh. 9. 21. Gods forbearance of the Canaanites was not in favour, but that they might fill up the meaſure of their iniquity to the full; ſee Gen. 15.16. and ſo receive a full and final reward according to their wickedneſſe, wherein the delay was recompenſed with a degree of vengeance ſo much the more ſevere, as it was more ſlow and long in coming; yet was not this curſe ſo intailed upon the Canaanites but that ſome of them might become proſelytes and converts to the covenant of Iſrael, as Araunah the Jebuſite. 2 Sam.24.18.

unto his brethren] They are called brethren as united in the brother-hood of Shem, Ham, and Japhet.

V. 26. Bleſſed be the Lord God of Shem] Though God be named, Shem is bleſſed; for bleſſed are the people whoſe God is Jehovah, Pſal.144.15. and ſo Shem is bleſſed, in that God is ſtyled his God, and that before any other in particular; and though Japhet be joyned with him in that modeſt ſuccour to his fathers credit, yet he rather then Japhet may be mentioned, as he is uſually named before him, as being firſt in the courſe taken to cover their fathers ſhame, and as the progenitor of Abraham, and of Chriſt, who came from his Line, and not from Japhets; and yet God is bleſſed alſo; that is, praiſed (for the modeſty and piety of Shem) as the Authour of every good thing whether in parents or in children.

his ſervant]. Or, ſervant to them. That is, to Shem and Japhet; the poſteritie of Canaan was ſervant to Shem, when thoſe that deſcended from him had dominion over them as over the Gibeonites, Joſh. 9. And they were ſervants to Japhet, when the Chriſtian Emperours of Europe had the ſoveraignty over the Nations among whom were the remnant of the Canaanites; and yet the prophecy might take effect before this time, when Alexander the Great of the poſterity of Japhet overcame the Tyrians and Sidonians, who by their parentage were Canaanites.

V. 27. God inlarge Japhet] Or, perſwade Japhet. (for ſo the Original may be rendred) Wherein is a pleaſant Paranomaſia, or a verbal alluſion, Japht Elohim Lejepheth, that is, God inlarge the inlarged, or, perſwade the perſwaſible. After the former reading, the word inlarge imports a temporal bleſſing upon Japhet, for the increaſe of his poſterity, and an inlargement of their territorities; for the European Gentiles, eſpecially the Romanes, of the poſterity of Japhet, extended their Temporal Empire ſo far as to account themſelves Lords of the world. According to the latter reading, God perſwade Japhet, the meaning of the bleſſing, prayer, or prophecy, (for it is all) is, that the Gentiles who came of Japhet, and were ſeparated in Religion from the Church, ſhould by converſion be joyned to it, Epheſ. 2. 13. and that this converſion ſhould be wrought by the powerful perſwaſion of the Word and Spirit of God, and not by humane Oratory, though never ſo eloquent.

tents of Shem] By the tents of Shem is meant the Church of Chriſt: But ſhould it not rather be called the tents of Japhet (if thoſe of his poſterity were the moſt renouned Chriſtians) then the tents of Shem? Anſw. No, becauſe firſt the Church was ſettled, and moſt continued in the Line of Shem. Secondly, becauſe Chriſt, the head of the Chriſtian Church, deſcended from Shem according to the fleſh. And the Church is called a Tent or Tabernacle, rather then a Palace, becauſe of the moveable condition of it; as when the members of it perſecuted in one place, are fain to flie to another: See Heb. 11. 9, 13, 37. & Heb.13.14.

V. 29. All the dayes of Noah were nine hundred and fifty years] Whereof three hundred and fifty years were after the flood, which expired about the year of the world, 2006. twenty two years, (as ſome reckon) but two years (as others) before the birth of Abraham, as may appear by the Genealogy and computation in the 11. Chapter.

and he dyed.] Among the many obſervations of Noah, ſome make him parallel to Adam in many particulars, wherewith we may fitly conclude his ſtory; they were alike in honour and diſhonour; in honour, for they were both of them publick and common fathers of two worlds, Adam of the old world before the flood, Noah of the new world after it; they both were abſolute Monarchs of the whole Earth, none had a foot of land but under them, and by a derivative right from them; they both were honoured by the unreaſonable creatures; to Adam they came to receive their names, to Noah they came to be received for ſafety: and they were alike in diſhonour, in ſin and in ſhame; both ſinned by the palate, Adam by an unlawful act in taſting of the forbidden fruit, Noah by exceeding meaſure in that which was lawful: and for ſhame, they were both ſhamefully naked, and were charitably covered, Adam by God, Noah by his ſons: to which may be added, that both having ſlept, they both knew when they awaked what was done unto them.

CHAP. X.

Verſ. 1. THeſe are the generations of the ſons of Noah] Of all the ſons of Noah, now the fifth time named, and in number no more then three; Beroſus and Nauclerus Gener. 11. make an augmentation of this number, ſuppoſing that the bleſſing of multiplication, Chap. 9. verſ. 1. was actually and litterally verified in Noah after the flood, as well as in his ſons; but (as hath been noted on that verſe) the parents are bleſſed in the fruitfulneſs of their children, and ſince the ſons of Noah are ſo often named, and never numbred above three, we muſt not preſume to father any more upon him, as thoſe Authours do, taking the boldneſſe to name a fourth ſonne of Noah, whom they call Tuiſco, and make him the founder of the German Nation.

unto them were ſonnes borne] To wit, thoſe which are after named; but not thoſe onely, but ſome more renowned then the reſt, who gave denominations to divers Nations; at leaſt they were the firſt Inhabitants of ſeveral Countries, to whom the Original of the people is referred: but particularly to reduce the Nations that now are, to cognation or kindred with the names and perſons here ſet down, is a matter of more difficulty, then uſe, depending upon mere conjecture, wherein many ſhew more preſumption then prudence; ſince for many of them, the relation is brought in upon no better grounds then ſcarce probable conjecture, and ſometimes upon a mere preſumption and groundleſs fancy; wherefore what is here affirmed from the Nations, as deſcendents from theſe Patriarchs, muſt be taken, for the moſt part, not as undoubtedly, but as probably true, though every particular be not mentioned with ſuch a qualifying addition.

Shem, Ham and Japhet] Of the order of their nameing, ſee Annot. on verſ. 2. & verſ. 21. of this Chapter; and of their order of birth and age, ſee Annot. on Chap. 11. verſ. 10. Joſephus Antiq. lib. 1. cap. 7. divides the world among the three ſonnes of Noah, thus, Japhet with the progeny (ſaith he) poſſeſſed all Europe to the Gades, and in Aſia (wherein was Egypt and a part of Syria) all from the mountains Taurus & Amamis to Tanais, to the Arabick Sea, and even to Babylon, Euphrates, and Tygris, and of him were the Medes, who lived beyond thoſe rivers toward the North; Shem and his poſterity poſſeſſed Eaſtern Aſia, from the river Euphrates to the Indian Ocean; the Sons of Cham poſſeſſed Syria, and all the region that bordereth on the mountains of Amanus and Libanus, extending their Territories toward the Sea. Some give in a ſhorter account, ſaying, Shem peopled the Eaſt, Cham the South, Japhet the North.

V. 2. the ſons of Japhet] The Genealogy of Japhet is ſet down before that of Ham, becauſe he was in himſelf, and in his poſterity, better then Ham and his poſterity: and Moſes bringeth in Shem and his off-ſpring laſt, becauſe he meant moſt to inſiſt on them, drawing down the continuance of the Church, and the hiſtory of the Patriarchs by his Line; and therefore he diſpoſed and diſpatched the pedigree of Japhet and Ham, that having begun the ſtory of Shem, he might not be occaſioned unſeaſonably to break it off to bring in theirs; and of Ham and Shem he ſaith the more, and bringeth their Genealogy neerer together, becauſe of Ham came the Canaanites, of Shem the Hebrews, of which two Nations Moſes hath moſt to ſay, not onely in Geneſis, but in the other four bookes written by him.

Gomer] Of him are ſaid to be deſcended the Gomerites (called by ſome Cimmerians, by other Cimbrians, a Northern Nation of Europe. See Ezek.38.6. which ſome make the ſame with the Danes) and that people of the Weſt, whoſe Countrey the Gallogræcians afterward inhabited.

Magog] Of the land of Magog mention is made, Ezek.38.2. againſt which God threatneth a fire, Chap.39.6. thoſe are now called Getæ, Meſſagetæ, Scythians, and Sarmatians, and Tartarians, are conceived to come from this Magog.

Madai] After the diſperſion of Babel, Madai went into the Countrey, which from him and his poſterity was called Media, Iſa.21.2. and the Inhabitants Medes, of whom mention is made, Iſa.13.17. Jer.51.11. Dan.5.28.

Javan] From him came the Grecians. See Iſa. 66.19. who with ſome little alluſions to his name, are called Ionians, and Greece, Ionia.

Tubal] From him came the Thobeli, otherwiſe called Iberi: of which there are two ſorts of Nations, the one inhabiting Aſia neer the Euxine ſea; the other an European people, moſt commonly known by the name Spaniards. See Ezek.27.13. & 32.26. & 38.2,3.

Meſhech] To him by ſome is referred the Original of the Cappadocians, or (which is more like by the neerneſs of the name, and their Northern habitation) the Muſcovites. See Ezek.38.2,3.

Tiras] The Tyrians may ſeem to be derived from him; but more generally the Thracians are taken for his off ſpring. Of theſe by ſecond derivations came other people, and ſometimes by Merchandize, Wars, and Colonies were people diſperſed and diſtinguiſhed by their kindred and Countrey, which needed not be particularly mentioned; and haply cannot be truly ſet down: wherefore many of theſe that follow, may be paſſed over in ſilence, onely giving a touch of ſuch as are more conſiderable for their clearneſs and pertinency to Hiſtory or Doctrine.

V. 3. Aſhkenaz] (Jer. 51. 27.) The progenitour of the people of Pontus and Bithinia, Countries in Aſia the leſſe: the Jewes confidently refer to him the Originals of the Germans.

Riphath] (1 Chr.1.6.) Of him the Paphlagonians a people of Aſia the leſſe are thought to be deſcended, their ancient names Riphatees, or Riphees, import ſo much.

Togarmah] (Ezek.27.14.) The Chaldee Paraphraſe of Togarmah makes Germany, and taking away To, garmah ſoundeth ſomewhat neerer it; ſome take the deſcendents of Togarmah to be the people of Armenia the leſſe; the Jews will have them to be the Turks; all that is certain is, that they are a Northern Nation, Ezek. 38.6. though yet it be not known diſtinctly who they be.

V. 4. Eliſha] (Ezek.27.7.) Of him came the Eolians, a people of Aſia the leſſe, called now Natolia.

Tarſhiſh] (Ezek.27.12. Jon. 1. 3.) The Cilicians are ſaid to ſpring from his ſtock: Cilicia is ſituate upon the South part of Anatolia, the chief City whereof was Tarſus, the birth-place of Paul, Act.22.3.

Kittim] (Num.24.24. Dan.11.30. Iſa.23.1. Jer.2.10.) The conceits and conjectures of the progeny of Kittim are ſo various and uncertain, that it is better to ſay nothing, then ſo many things, without any proof of Scripture or reaſon.

Dodanim] (1 Chr. 1. 7.) Some read Rodanim, varying the word from the ſimilitude of two Hebrew letters, Daleth and Reſh; the deſcendents of theſe alſo are various and uncertain.

V. 5. By theſe were the Iles] The Hebrews call all thoſe Countries Iles, to which out of their own Country they can not paſſe but by ſhips, whether they be properly Iles (that is ſurrounded with water) or not, Jer.25.23. In this name are comprehended all the Provinces of Europe compaſſed or divided by the Mediterranean Sea.

divided] The poſterity of Noah for divers years continued together, as the people of one kindred or countrey, and were of one Language, till many of them tranſplanted themſelves into the Plain of Shinar, Chap.11. ver.2. but upon the confuſion at Babel whereby their Language was divided, the Sons of Japhet were divided as ſeveral Colonies in the moſt Countries of Europe.

after his tongue] As it fell out afterwards, in the diviſion of Tongues, the ſtory whereof is particularly related in the next Chapter.

V. 6. Cuſh] His poſterity in their own Language call themſelves Cuſhians; their more uſual name is Ethiopians, and their Countrey Ethiopia; but in Scripture we find a two-fold Ethiopia, the one in the Eaſt neer the Arabian Sea, inhabited by the Cuſhites; the other is in the Weſt of Africa, which is vulgarly called Ethiopia, without any addition or term of diſtinction. See the note on ver.7.

Mizraim] Of him came the Egyptians; in the Old Teſtament Egypt and the Egyptians are uſually called Mizraim; in the New, the name Egypt is ſtill uſed; the Arabians and Turks call Egypt Meſra or Maſra, which hath neer cognation with this name of the ſecond ſon of Ham.

Phut] By this name was his poſterity and countrey called, Ezek.27.10. and in the 38. of Ezek. ver.5. our Tranſlation turneth Phut in the Original into Lybia (noting Phut in the margine) and that name Lybia is uſual in humane Writers. See Jer. 46.9.

Canaan] The infamous Father of the odious Canaanites; from him deſcended eleven ſons, and people which poſſeſſed the land of Canaan, which are reckoned, ver.15, &c.

V. 7. Seba] In the ſame verſe there is another of the ſons of Cuſh, which in ſome verſions of the Bible is called Seba alſo; but in the Hebrew there is this difference, the former is written with Samech, the latter with Schin; the former, Sebu, and his iſſue inhabited a part of the African Ethiopia bending towards Egypt, (whereof mention is made, Iſa. 43.3.) From this Seba the Abiſſines in Africa are thought to take their Original, whoſe chief City and Court is Seba, whence it is ſuppoſed the Queen took a journey unto Solomon, 1 King.10.1,4. Ezek.27.22. Mat. 12.42. Act.8.27. The other, Sheba, is thought by ſome to be the Father of thoſe Arabick Sabeans whoſe Countrey abounds with Frankincenſe; but ſome thinking it too much honour for one of Hams wicked race to be intitled to ſo good a Countrey (and yet Sodome was a very good land, and the Sodomites extreme bad people) aſcribe that land rather to a ſon of Abraham by Keturah of that name, Gen.25.3.

Raamah] Ezek.27.22.

Dedan] Ezek.27.15. & Chap.38.13.

V. 13. Cuſh begat Nimrod] Moſes reſerved the mention of Nimrod for the laſt place, among the ſons of Cuſh, becauſe he meant to ſpeak more of him then of any of the reſt.

began to be a mighty one] The word Nimrod ſignifieth a Rebel, for ſuch as are moſt ſtubborn toward their ſuperiours, are moſt tyrannical over their inferiours: this Nimrod is thought to be the ſame, whom ſecular ſtories call Belus, and ſet him forth as the founder of the Babylonian Monarchy, from whoſe name many Idolatries (as that of Belial, Baal-Peor, Beelzebub) are derived.

V. 9. a mighty hunter] Both of beaſts (though not for ſacrifice, as divers Jewiſh Doctors make the Gloſſe upon his title) and of men; for the one hunting many times is a preludium or preparative to the other, as Ariſtotle obſerveth, l. 1. Polit. c.8. But here his hunting of men is principally meant, he was the firſt that after the floud ſet up an abſolute arbitrary and violent domination over men, purſuing them (who would not willingly come under his command) with no more reſpect or pity, then hunters ſhew to beaſts whom they hunt to death, and therefore is tyranny in Scripture ſet forth by hunting, Jer.16.16. Lam.4 18.

before the Lord] That is, though he were ſometimes crafty as well as cruel, God ſet his obſervant eye upon all his greedy and bloody plots and practiſes; ſo that none of them (how cunningly ſoever they were contrived) could eſcape his view. Or, he was a mighty hunter before the Lord, that is, he was ſo deſperately bold in his boyſterous and violent tyranny, that he was not afraid to act it before the Lord.

wherefore it is ſaid] His cruelty and tyranny was ſo notorious, that it became a Proverb of reproach; as if one ſhould ſay of another naughty man of his haughty ſpirit, He is a very Nimrod; ſuch an hunter as he was.

V. 10. And the beginning of his Kingdome was Babel] The meaning is, either that Babylon was the Palace or Royal ſeat of his powr; or that from thence he got ſtrength to invade and conquer other Potentates, to raiſe himſelf a Monarchy out of their ruines.

Babel] Or, Babylon, Rev.17.5. The City was called Babel, from the confuſion of tongues, whereof ſee Gen.11.9. in which, and with which, the Aſſyrian Monarchy was firſt ſet up by Nimrod, though afterward the ſeat of that Monarchy was tranſlated into Aſſyria; and Babel, or Babylon, being the beginning of this Kingdome, the report of profane Authours, whether Hiſtorians or Poets, is not true, which makes Semiramis the wife of Ninus, (ſon to this Nimrod, or Belus) foundreſſe of this City; ſhe might repair it, inlarge it, and adorn it, but Nimrod firſt built it; and though after Nimrods time the ſeat of that Monarchy (which began with him) was changed from Babylon to Aſſyria, which might occaſion the diſtinction betwixt the land of Nimrod, and the land of Aſſyria, Mic. 5.6. yet many years after Babylon being by wars, or ſome other miſhaps demoliſhed or defaced, was re-edified by Nebuchadnezzar (whereof he proudly boaſteth, Dan. 4.30.) ſo Joſephus, lib. 10. Antiq. cap. 11. out of Beroſus, and Euſebius, lib. 9. cap. 4. de præparatione Evangelica.

land of Shinar] So is that whole circuit of land called which encompaſſeth Babylon; ſo that it comprehends Meſopotamia, a part of Arabia, Perſia, and Syria; but ſome more ſtrictly take it for that land which is ſituate betwixt two rivers, Euphrates and Tygris, and therefore called in Greek Meſopotamia. See Annot. on Gen. 11.2.

V. 11. Out of that land went forth Aſhur] Or, out of the land he, that is, Nimrod went forth into Aſhur, or Aſſyria, a countrey lying neer to Shinar, having the name of Aſhur, whoſe ambition would not ſuffer him to abide at home, though never ſo well or commodiouſly ſeated, but made him to paſſe from place to place to enlarge his dominions. Some take the name of Aſhur for a ſon of Shem, ſo named, ver. 22. but here ſpoken of by occaſion of Nimrod; for Nimrod having ſeized on Chaldea which belonged unto Aſhur, he, as neither by patience able to bear, nor by power to over-bear that uſurping tyrant, went out of that land, the land of Shinar, and planted himſelf beyond the river Tygris, where he founded the Monarchy of Aſſyria, and built the city of Nineveh. Some will have this Aſhur not to be he who was ſon of Shem, but another Aſhur of the race of Ham; and there might be one of that name, and of Hams progeny; but which ſoever it was, he ſeems to have been ſo eminent as to give denomination both to the Aſſyrian Monarchy and countrey. Some conceive this Aſhur to be Ninus the ſon of Belus, called Aſhur by anticipation, becauſe afterward he was Monarch of Aſſyria. This conſtruction of the words having the laſt place, and the leaſt ground, either of the former may have approbation before it.

and the city Rehoboth] Or, Rehhoboth; or, the ſtreets of the city, ſo the word ſignifieth in an appellative ſenſe; it cometh of Rahhab, which ſignifieth to inlarge, and ſo ſome take it as an explication of Nineveh, by the ſpatiouſneſſe or largeneſſe of the ſtreets. Some take it for the name of another City diſtinct from Nineveh, whereof mention is made, Gen. 36.37. 1 Chron. 1.48. which yet might have its name from the length or breadth of the ſtreets of it as well as Nineveh.

V. 12. the ſame is a great city] That is (not Calah laſt ſpoken of, but) Nineveh, for there is an hyſteroſis in the words, which in ſenſe muſt be made up thus; and he built Rezen between Calah and Nineveh, the ſame, that is, Nineveh is a great City, ſo called by God himſelf, Jonah 1.2. & Chap. 3.2. & Chap. 4. ver. laſt. But how great it was at this time, it is hard to know; In the Prophet Jonah his dayes, it was a city of three dayes journey, Jonah 3.3. which would take up three dayes to go through the ſtreets, or to compaſſe the walls of it about; and the number of Inhabitants was evidence of the greatneſſe of it, for it had in it an hundred and twenty thouſand infants which knew not the right hand from the left, Jonah 4. laſt. And it is probable that the dimenſions of it varied with the ages through which it paſſed; for great cities, if wars or fire do not leſſen them, commonly grow greater and greater.

V. 13. Ludim] (Lud, Iſa. 66.19, &c.) the off-ſpring of ſuch as are here named, are for the moſt part unknown; yet ſome ſay the Lybians came of Ludim; but others refer them to Lehabim; ſome more ſuitably to the ſound of the word ſay, Ludim was the father of the Lydians; if ſo, there muſt be other Lydians then thoſe which inhabited Aſia the leſſe, for they are noted under another original.

V. 14. Pathruſim] His poſterity inhabited Egypt, eſpecially that part where the City Pathros, Iſai. 11.11.) was built.

out of whom came Philiſthim] Either as deſcended from the ſtock of Caſluhim, or coming from dwelling among that people; (whereof he was progenitor) as a part of a promiſcuous multitude, (ſuch as went with the Iſraelites out of Egypt, Exod. 12. 38.) and changing their dwelling; for though the Philiſtines were not the off-ſpring of Canaan, they made themſelves room, and an habitation in the land of the Canaanites, by driving out the ancient inhabitants.

V. 15. Canaan begat Sidon] Heb. Tſidon; who built the City Sidon, or Zidon in Phœnicia, Joſh. 11. 8. & 19. 28. whence it may be, that by the name of Canaanites, the Sidonians ſhould be underſtood, at leaſt that they be principally comprehended in the name of Canaanites, which are diverſified under ſeveral titles, ſometimes more, and ſometimes fewer; ſometimes the general name is taken for a particular, and ſometimes contrarily; ſometimes the ſame under divers particular names, that it is very difficult, to make a perfect diſtinction of their titles and portions; but the beſt is, the matter is of no great uſe.

Heth] From whom came the Hittites, Gen. Chap. 23. verſ. 3, 5, 7, 10.

V. 18. the Semarite] So 1 Chron. 1.16. where the genealogy of this Chapter is repeated; ſome conceive that Samaria and the Samaritans had their name from hence, but the contrary is manifeſt, 1 King. 16. 24.

V. 19. the border of the Canaanites] Which Moſes more exactly ſetteth down, becauſe the land of Canaan was promiſed to the poſterity of Abraham, Gen. 15. 18, 19. which portion was afterward enlarged to the Iſraelites, by the addition of two kingdoms beyond Jordan.

Gaza] Heb. Ghnazza.

V. 20. Theſe are the ſons of Ham] There are more in the number of deſcendents from him, then the iſſue either of Shem or of Japhet; and above twice ſo many as are reckoned of Japhets linage, notwithſtanding the bleſſing and promiſe of his inlarement, Chap. 9. 27. and that he had ſeven ſonnes to begin his progeny withal, verſ. 2. and Ham had but four, verſ. 6. Fleſhly fruitfulneſs is none of the beſt bleſſings of the Father of ſpirits, nor any good evidence of prelation, either in mankind, or other creatures: for Sarah was a wife many years, and yet barren, when Hagar her handmaid, and her husbands concubine conceived quickly after her admiſſion to her miſtreſſes bed: and among the increaſe of creatures, the moſt contemptible, as Mice, are moſt numerous, one bringing forth one hundred and twenty upon one generation, Plin. Nat. Hiſt. lib. 10. cap. 65. while the Elephant, a more noble creature, both in reſpect of his ſtature and ſtrength, as alſo in reſpect of his faculties, and docility, goeth two years at leaſt, and as ſome conceive, ten years with young, and hath but one birth during life, though he live (as ſome write of him) two or three hundred years, Plin. Nat. Hiſt. lib. 8. cap. 10.

V. 21. unto Shem] Why Shem, though the beſt of the ſonnes of Noah is with his iſſue brought in laſt, ſee Annotations on verſ. 2.

the father of all the children of Eber] He was great grand-father to Eber, yet he is called a father of Ebers children, to note the reference of poſterity to progenitors, though at farre diſtance, which may be matter of hope and fear to their iſſue for many deſcents, thereafter as their anceſtors have been, either in favour with God, as Iſai. 45. 4. or under the offence and indignation of God, Jer. 15.4.

of Eber] He was the father of all the ſonnes of Aram and his iſſue, as well as of Arphaxad and his poſterity, whoſe grandchild was Eber. Why is he not called the Father of ſome other of that line, as well as of Eber? Anſw. Eber is mentioned for honour and favour to Shem and Eber both; as Canaan the ſon of Ham, is named by way of diſpleaſure to, and diſgrace of his Father and himſelf in the curſe, Chap. 9.25. For in the line of Eber continued the language ſpoken by Adam, the true Religion and worſhip of God, though Joktan one of his two ſonnes named, Chap. 10. verſ. 25. (Peleg was the other) made defection from it; and God in his good providence, continued his life longer then any of thoſe that were born after the flood. See Chap. 11. verſ. 16, 17. From him therefore have the people of God been called Ebrewes. The word Eber ſignifieth beyond, whence ſome have thought Shem to be called the father of them, who dwelled beyond the River Tygris; but it is rather to be taken here for a proper name, which might yet be given unto Eber by his Father, upon ſome occaſion of removal of his family, or paſſage to another place: ſome conceive they are called Ebrewes or rather Ebræi, as it were Abrahæi, becauſe they were the poſterity of Abraham; but the former notation of the name is more natural, and by the more judicious Writers more generally received.

the brother of Japheth the elder] Hebr. the great. For the Hebrew language hath no comparative degree, but uſeth the prepoſition Min, or the article Ha for emphatical expreſſion, as in the word Haggadhol, Gadhol ſignifying great not greater; and the Hebrews wanting ſuch difference of termination in caſes, as the Greeks and Latines have; the word here uſed, and properly Engliſhed great, and commonly greater, may be rendred, either in the Genitive caſe, and ſo it maketh Japheth the elder, or in the Ablative caſe, and ſo maketh Shem the elder: and from this ambiguity in the Original, ariſeth diverſity of opinions concerning the ſeniority of theſe three ſonnes; for ſome from hence rendring the adjective in the Ablative caſe, and ſo in conſtruction agreeing with Shem, and from the ordinary rehearſal of them in the Scripture, (wherein Shem is placed the firſt in order) take him to be the eldeſt; others, becauſe the Original Text will alſo admit of the adjective to be taken in the Genitive caſe, and ſo joyned with Japhet, make him the elder; and this expoſition may have the prerogative of an elder brother to be preferred before the other, which may be proved thus; 1. Cham was not the eldeſt, for he is called, Noahs younger ſon, Chap.9.24. according to the Hebrew, His little ſon. 2. Shem was not the eldeſt, for 1 Noah begat (that is, began to beget) his three ſons, when he was five hundred yeares of age, Chap.5.32. 2. In the ſix hundreth year of Noah, the ſecond moneth of that year, and the ſeventeenth day of that moneth, came the flood, Chap. 7. 11. 3. Two years after the flood Shem (when he begat Arphaxad) was a hundred years old, Chap.11.10. therefore Shem was begotten in the five hundred and ſecond year of Noah. 4. And if Noah began his fruitfulneſſe in the year five hundred, and begat one of his three ſons that year (as hath been noted out of Gen. Chap. 5. 32.) it muſt needs be Japhet, and ſo he muſt be elder then either Shem, or Cham; yet Shem might be uſually named before them both, becauſe he had the honour to be Patriarch of the national Church of the Hebrews, ſo much honoured and favoured by God himſelf, according to the precedent Annot. ſo that his precedency before Japhet, is by order of dignity, Chap. 9. 26,27. not of nature; and ſo is Abraham ſet before Nahor and Haran, Gen.11.26. and Jacob before Eſau, Gen. 28. 5. and Ephraim before Manaſſeh, Gen. 48.20. though neither Abraham, nor Jacob, nor Ephraim were elder then their brethren before whom they are named. See Annot. on Chap.11. verſ. 27.

V. 22. Elam] From him came the Elamites or Perſians, mentioned, Act.2.9.

Arphaxad] The Chaldeans are thought to be his off-ſpring; upon what ground it doth not appear.

Lud] From him ſome will have it, that the Lydians are deſcended; others derive them from Ludim of the race of Ham; ſee ver.13.

Aram] To him the Original of the Aramæans, or Aramites, is referred, which peopled divers Regions, eſpecially Armenia; the Hebrews commonly call Syria by the name of Aram, but with addition, and diſtinction of the ſeveral parts of that Countrey, as Padan-Aram is the Syrian Meſopotamia, Chap. 25. 20. and elſewhere, Aram Naharaim, that is, Aram of two Rivers, or ſituate betwixt two Rivers, as Chap. 24. 10. 1 Chron. 19. 6. Pſal. 60. tit. Aram Dammeſec, that is, Syria of Damaſcus, 2 Sam.8.5.

V. 23. Uz] (Job 1.1.) In the land of Uz dwelt the people of Edom, or the Idumeans, Lam.4.21. who in probability might be the progeny of this Uz.

Maſh] Or, Meſhech, 1 Chr.1.17. Of him it may be the people of Myſia were deſcended.

V. 25. unto Eber] 1 Chr.1.19.

the name of one was Peleg] Which imports diviſion; for Palag in Hebrew ſignifieth to divide, and in his dayes was the earth divided; and the diviſion (as Joſephus Antiq. lib. 1. cap. 4. ſheweth, and many Authours hold with him) was two fold, the one by Noah, as it were by will and teſtament aſſigning to his three ſons the three parts of the world, Africa, Aſia, and Europe; and this is thought to be about the birth of Peleg: afterwards upon the confuſion of Babel there was a real diviſion, or an actuall occupation or poſſeſſion of the ſeveral parts of the earth, whereto they were preſently compelled by a kind of imperious neceſſity, ſince with ſuch diverſity of tongues (which ſome take upon them to reduce to a certain number, as they do the Nations of that diſperſion) it was not convenient for them to live together: and this diviſion alſo fell out in Pelegs time, and to him was that name given as a memento of that diviſion, wherein concurred the high provoking pride of man, and the admirable juſtice and prudence of God; which may mind us of nominal, as here, and ſometimes real memorials of Gods memorable acts, as Numb. 38.40. whether of favour or of anger; for we are naturally prone to oblivion of ſuch works as ſhould make a very deep and durable impreſſion in our minds; whereof ſee Pſal. 106. 13. ¶ But for the name Peleg in particular, and for the reaſon of that name forementioned; how fitly may it be a pattern for our unhappy times! how great cauſe have we to call the children that are born in theſe diſmall dayes by the name of Peleg? for how are we divided, not in tongues alone, as at Babel, but in heads, and hearts, and hands! what diviſions are there, not onely of Reuben, Judg. 5. 15. but of all the Tribes of our Iſrael! and were we but divided, our caſe were leſſe lamentable, but we are ſub-divided into many factions in the State, and ſnipt out into many ſchiſmes in the Church: and what hatefull and horrid hoſtilities are reciprocated betwixt thoſe who are brethren by Nature, Nation, and profeſſion of Religion! How might we fill our Regiſters with the name of Peleg, if we ſhould take to heart the woſull breaches that are made among us, as the parents of this Peleg did the diviſion in their dayes! O when will it be that the noiſe of our moſt unnaturall war ſhall be huſht, that the manifold ruptures of our ſacred and civill peace ſhall be cemented up, that our condition be not ſtill a cauſe of fighting to all good Chriſtians, and true Patriots, and of inſulting to the enemies both of our Church and State! O when will it be that the pathetick perſwaſion of the Apoſtle ſhall take place with us: Now I beſeech you brethren, by the Name of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, that ye all ſpeak the ſame thing, and that there be no diviſions among you, but that ye be perfectly joyned together in the ſame mind, and in the ſame judgment! 1 Cor.1.10. Give leave, good Reader, to the oppreſſed ſpirit of the Writer to give ſome vent unto his grief of heart. It may be a memorandum of our miſery here, and of the ſad condition of three Kingdomes at once all involved in moſt bloudy and woful confuſion; and may mind a godly and prudent Chriſtian of the danger of abuſe of a long continued peace, and of the ſevere chaſtiſement of God upon the Churches and States which rather profeſſe the forme then practiſe the power of Evangelical piety; and it may preach and preſſe the duty of repentance and reall reformation with more preciſe caution againſt ſpiritual relapſes; and may ſtirre up the hearts of ſuch as are pious and compaſſionate to betake themſelves more frequently to private ſupplication, and to perform both that and the publick with more ſincerity and fervency of affection; that the God of peace may be pleaſed to put an end to our wars, ſuch wars as may ſteep our victories as well in the tears of the victors, as in the bloud of the vanquiſhed, ſince whoſoever gains, the Kingdome loſeth many loyall ſubjects, the Church many Chriſtian Proteſtants, and divers of them no worſe (as we may well hope) then ſuch as have been redeemed by the precious bloud of our Lord and Saviour: and laſtly, it may be he may (by the mercy of God to his people, and his juſtice on their enemies) ſee the reſult of all this rage redound to the ruine of the Antichriſtian combination, who firſt kindled, and have ever ſince fomented theſe fearful combuſtions; and that Pererius his application of the Prophecy concerning the adjourning of the judgment of God againſt the Amorites to the Proteſtant State in England (Tom.3. in Gen. Diſp.8. pag.576.) may be made good upon the wicked of the Popiſh party: The words of the Jeſuite rendred in Engliſh are theſe: If any begin to wonder why God ſuffers the Engliſh Principality to execute ſuch a crual perſecution on the Catholicks, and yet to flouriſh and prevail; he will leave off to wonder if he bethink himſelf of Gods toleration of the Amorites for this reaſon, becauſe their iniquities were not yet made up to the full, Gen.15.16. but they will come at the length to their full growth and accompliſhment; there will come a time of Divine vengeance, too late for us perhaps, but for the diſpenſation of the Divine prudence and providence ſeaſonable and ſoon enough; which time (ſaith he) if any man think to be neer at hand (ſince that Nation (he meaneth the Engliſh) hath now ſo far proceeded in raging perſecution) he ſhall not much miſſe of the truth, as I ſuppoſe. So far this Authour; which prediction (upon the like grounds) may juſtly be retorted upon the Romiſh Church, and on the pretended (but miſ-called) Catholicks, whoſe rage hath been of late more rampant then ever, and therefore there is a great hope the time is drawing on that they may be made couchant under Chriſts Iron Mace, who would not be brought to bow under the ſway of his golden Scepter.

Joktan] The diviſion of the earth into different Languages and people is noted by the name of Peleg; but here ſome obſerve another diviſion of the family of Heber; for Joktan (ſay they) divided himſelf from the true Religion of his fathers houſe; which cannot be proved by Scripture: for he is mentioned but in this Chapter, and in 1 Chr.1. and in neither of theſe places is any ſuch thing recorded of him. From him is ſuppoſed to deſcend the people of the Eaſt Indies, and of America alſo, where ſome ſay are remaining marks of that name, but in ſuch particulars we cannot be certain, nor muſt we be either over-curious or peremptory.

V. 29. Havilah] From whom it is thought the land of the Iſmaelites and Amalekites was named Havilah, Gen.25.18. 1 Sam. 15.7. There was another Havilah deſcended of Cham, verſ. 7. See Annot. on Chap.2.11.

V. 30. Their dwelling was from Meſha] Theſe names are not cleared by any other place of Scripture, and they are unknown to the ancient Geographers, much more to thoſe of later times, and therefore we muſt leave this Text without any other Note but our ignorance of the terms contained in it.

CHAP. XI.

Verſ. 1. The earth] The earth for the Inhabitants of the earth in the uſual phraſe of Scripture, Gen.6.21. 1 Chr.16.23. Pſal.33.8. and elſewhere.

one language] Heb. one lip.

one ſpeech] Heb. one words; That is, one ſort of words, as many think the tongue which Adam ſpake, and which was uſed in all the world about the ſpace of one thouſand ſeven hundred and fifty years, viz. until about 130 years after the flood: this is thought to be the Hebrew tongue by the Etymologies of Adam, Eve, Cain, & others, though ſome fond men have given the Seniority to other Languages many ages younger then the Hebrew.

V. 2. they journeyed] To wit, Nimrod and his company.

from the Eaſt] That is, not immediately from Ararat, or Armenia, (where the Ark reſted) which is not Eaſtward from Chaldea, but from ſome other place (which was Eaſt-ward in reſpect of the ſituation of Chaldea) whither they removed, either becauſe the place wherein they were was not large enough, or not ſo commodious and comfortable for their habitation as they deſired.

plain of Shinar] Which was not the name of it at this time, for that was given to it afterward; it was a ſpacious and fertile Plain ſince called Shinar, and now Meſopotamia; ſome ſay it was afterward called Chaldea, Aſſyria, and Babylon: Of Shinar, ſee Chap.10.10.

V. 3. they ſaid] Heb. a man ſaid to his neighbour.

burn them] Heb. burn them to a burning.

brick for ſtone] They would (if the place would have afforded it) have built their Tower of ſtone, (as if they had had good mortar they would not have uſed ſlime) but in that place they were not furniſhed with ſtone for ſuch a purpoſe.

V. 4. build us a city] They were moved with pride and ambition, preferring their own glory before Gods honour.

whoſe top may reach up to heaven] An Hyperbole, that is, a ſpeech uſed to expreſſe things in an high and incredible degree, as Deut.1.28. & 9.1. Pſal.107.26. Mat.11.23. wherein too much is ſaid that enough may be believed. The height of this Tower (as ancient Writers have given the meaſure of it) was four thouſand paces; by ſuch a Tower ſome (as the prime promoters of the building, for it would not receive many at the top) might hope to ſave themſelves from another floud, if another came, and might the better hold up a tyrannical dominion; and by that they expected to be united, and to prevent their ſcattering and diſperſion upon the earth, which they might apprehend from their increaſe, too populous for the place wherein they were, which might occaſion their diſtribution into Colonies; and if it were ſo, they hoped to retain an honourable memorial of their former cohabitation, whereby they expected not to be caſt into confuſion, and ſo diſperſed both ſooner and in a worſe way then they apprehended.

make us a name] By erecting ſuch an high and huge monument of their power and coſt, as ſhould make them famous in after times.

V. 5. came down] The Scripture cometh down to the capacity of men, ſpeaking after the manner of great men in high place; who, when they mean to take a particular view of things below their ſtate, come down for ſpecial notice of them, with a purpoſe to take ſuch a courſe with them, as ſhall be requiſite; though in propriety of ſpeech, God neither aſcends nor deſcends, for he is every where, Pſal.139.7. and needeth not come neerer to any thing then he is to all things, to know it better then he doth, Pſal.139.2.

V. 6. Behold, the people is one] God ſpeaketh this in deriſion (as Gen.3.22.) becauſe of their fooliſh perſwaſion and preſumption in their enterpriſe.

V. 7. let us go down] He ſpeaketh as if he took counſel of his own wiſdome, and power, to wit, with the Son and the Holy Ghoſt. See the Note on Gen.1.26.

confound their language] The City or Tower was to be built by their hands, and God hinders their work, not by maiming them in any of their limbes, but by confounding their ſpeech ſo that they did not underſtand one anothers words, God having ſtricken them with oblivion of their former language, and put into their minds a new Dictionary of words; which though underſtood by the ſpeaker, was altogether ſtrange and unknown to the hearer: hence for one Tongue (as many collect from this Chapter) there were ſeventy two Languages according to the number of the Nations deſcended from Noah's three ſons; ſome think there were as many tongues as ſeveral kindreds or families; but the number of them cannot be certainly taken, but by this confuſion God gave an illuſtrious evidence of his own wiſdome and power, and expoſed to their folly and impotence to the more ſcorn.

V. 8. ſcattered] Their intendment in their building was to prevent their diſperſion or ſcattering, verſ. 4. and God makeing their puniſhment anſwerable to their ſin (which was to ſtrengthen themſelves in their proud project by keeping together) ſcattereth them aſunder, by dividing their Languages; according to that of Solomon, The fear of the wicked ſhall come upon him, Prov.10.24.

V. 9. Babel] That is, Confuſion, becauſe there God confounded their Language. Some think it was called Babel, from Balbel, abating the letter l for better ſound; Druſ. obſer. ſacr. lib.11. cap.23. pag.275. Balbel is according to the Chaldee Dialect, for Balal the Hebrew word ſignifying, he hath mingled or confounded, Schindl. Pentag. col.201.

V. 10. generations of Shem] He returneth to the Genealogy of Shem to come to the hiſtory of Abraham; wherein the Church of God is deſcribed, which is Moſes principall purpoſe. Of the ſeniority of Noahs ſons, ſee Annot. on Chap. 10.21.

V. 12. Arphaxad——begat Selah] Betwixt Selah and Arphaxad the ſeventy Interpreters interpoſe Cainan, and according to their Catalogue of names, doth Luke draw up the Genealogy of Chriſt from Joſeph to Adam; the reconciliation of which difference belongeth to the third of Luke, ver.36. as to its proper place.

V. 25. Nahor lived after] Nahor was the firſt of the Patriarchs that fell to Idolatry, by whoſe gods Laban ſware: The lives of men after the floud were far ſhorter then before, to keep them from exceſſe of ſin, whereof the long living before the flood was a great cauſe; and Nahor lived but an hundred fourty and eight years, which is not much more then half the life of his predeceſſors. See Annot. on Gen.31.53.

V. 26. begat Abram, &c.] That is, began to beget, for they were not all of a year; the like we have noted of the ſons of Noah, Gen.5.32.

V. 27. begat Abram] Though Abram be named firſt among the ſons of Terah, he was not the eldeſt, (no more then Shem the eldeſt ſon of Noah, though uſually firſt named) yet he is firſt mentioned, becauſe he is the prime man, eſpecially in reſpect of his ſpiritual prerogative in the Church, on whom and his poſterity the principal part of the ſtory of the Book of Geneſis is beſtowed; for Abram, when he went out of Haran was ſeventy five years of age, Chap. 12.4,5. before which time Terah was dead, verſ. 32. of this Chapter, whoſe age is ſummed up to two hundred and five yeares in the ſame place; out of which deduct the age of Abram at the time of his departing out of Haran, which preſently followeth the death of his father, and the birth of Abram will fall out to be about the one hundredth and thirtieth year of Terahs age. And for the order of his ſons, it is probable that Haran was the eldeſt, though named laſt, Nahor the ſecond, and Abram the youngeſt, though named firſt; for Sarai Abrams wife the daughter of Haran, was but ten years younger then Abram, Chap. 17.17. and ſuppoſing her father was not leſſe then twenty years elder then ſhe (which is probable enough) he muſt be ten years elder then Abram. Others conceive Abram to have been the eldeſt, as born in the ſeventieth year of Terah, according to this Text, and that he departed out of Haran into Canaan, while his father yet lived; but having there no ſettled poſſeſſion of any part of that Land till after the deceaſe of Terah, when he purchaſed a burying place of the ſons of Heth, Gen.23. verſ. 17, 18. which being done by the Divine diſpoſition, Stephen ſpeaketh of his dwelling there according to the date of that particular, Act.7.4. So by way of purchaſe he had a portion there, as any ſtranger might have, though not by way of inheritance, which is the meaning of Stephen, Act.7.5.

V. 29. Iſcah] Some think that this Iſcah was Sarai mentioned in the next verſe; for Haran the eldeſt ſon of Terah had two daughters, Milcah who married her Uncle Nahor, and Iſcah, or Sarai (if the ſame woman had two names) who married her Uncle Abram, and therefore is called Terahs daughter in law, verſ. 31. Such marriages were not yet forbidden, Exod. 6. 20. though afterwards they were, Lev.18.14.

V. 31. Terah took Abram] Albeit the Oracle of direction came to Abram, yet this honour of execution is given to Terah, to wit, to be named as the leader of the company, becauſe he was Abrams father, who being admoniſhed of Gods Will by his ſon, conſented to it both in approbation and practiſe.

* Ur of the Chaldees] (* Neh.9.7. Act.7.4.) Some read, out of the fire of the Chaldees, for Ur, in Hebrew, ſignifieth a valley, light, or fire. See Iſa.24.15. Text and Margine; and according to that, they find or fain a ſtory, that Abram was caſt into the fire by the Chaldeans, becauſe he would not worſhip the fire their Idol, but was miraculouſly delivered from that danger; yet it is certain that the Chaldeans were Idolatrous, and probable that fire was a chief Idol among them, and that this City might have its name from that Idol.

Haran] Which was a City of Meſopotamia bordering upon Canaan. So in the Geneva Annot. and ſo Adricom. Delph. Theatr. Terr. Sanc. in the Tribe of Manaſſeh, pag.86. col.2. & 96. col.2. which ſeemeth to be contradicted by that of Stephen, Act.7.2,3. where he ſaith, that God appeared to Abram while he was in Meſopotamia, before he dwelt in Charran, or Haran, ſo that when he went to Charran, he went rather out of Meſopotamia, then to a City of Meſopotamia. To which doubt the anſwer is, That Meſopotamia is ſometime taken in a generall acception, and ſo Saint Luke takes it for a large compaſſe of land (beyond Euphrates in reſpect of Canaan) comprehending both Meſopotamia properly ſo called, and Chaldea; which (as Topographers deſcribe it) borders upon it on the Eaſt-ſide; and ſo Babylon the Metropolis of Chaldea is reckoned as in Meſopotamia by Pliny, lib.6. cap.26. Now Abram being called while he was in Ur of Chaldea, the Eaſtern part of Meſopotamia taken in a general ſenſe, went with his father into Charran a City of Meſopotamia properly ſo called, and diſtinct from Chaldea, though called ſometimes (as here by Stephen) by the ſame name, ver.2,4.

CHAP. XII.

Verſ. 1. THe LORD had ſaid] This oraculous appointment of God came to Abram (as is probably conceived) while he was in Ur of the Chaldees (where he was born) while his father lived, and whereupon they departed from Ur to go towards the land of Caanan, as is ſaid, Chap. 11. verſ. 31. and in the way thitherward they ſtayed a time at Charran or Haran, where Terah dyed; after that by virtue of the ſame call he went onward to Canaan with Lot.

out of the countrey] That is, Chaldea, where he had his call from God.

from thy kindred] If they had rather remain behind thee, then remove with thee.

into a land] In appointing no certain place, he proveth ſo much the more his faith and obedience; for he went from his place of birth, and wonted abode, to go from place to place, he yet knew not whither. See Heb. 11. 8.

V. 2. ſhalt be a bleſſing] That is, more then thou ſhalt have a bleſſing, for in this bleſſing is vertually compriſed the happineſs of both worlds, and of all that are truely bleſſed in all ages; whereof though God be the onely Authour, Abraham is honoured to be a principal means under him to bring it to paſs, in being the progenitour of the promiſed Seed, and ſetting ſuch an example of belief, as might qualifie him to be ſtiled Father of the faithful, Rom. 4. 11, 12. The world ſhall receive by thy ſeed which is Chriſt, the bleſſing which it loſt in Adam, This Covenant in Chriſt was four hundred and thirty years before the Law, and therefore (as the Apoſtle argueth) cannot be diſanulled by the Law, coming ſo long after it, Gal. 3. verſ. 16, 17.

V. 3. * And in thee ſhall] * Gen. 18. 18. & 22. 18. Act. 3. 26. Gal. 3. 8.

V. 4. as the LORD ſpake] Some think Abraham was now called the ſecond time; firſt in Ur of Chaldea, his birth-place, whereupon he went with his father Terah to Charran; and again in Charran, whereupon he departed thence towards Canaan: but neither here nor Acts 7. is there mentioned two callings of him, and it is like he went on in the virtue of his firſt call, though by degrees, reſting at Charran till the death of his father Terah, and from thence taking his journey towards Canaan, verſ. 4, 5.

V. 5. ſouls] Souls are put for perſons, becauſe the ſoul is the better part; and ſo by an ordinary figure called Synecdoche, it is taken very oft in Scripture for the whole perſon, Exod. 1. 5. and elſewhere. See Chap. 14. verſ. 21.

which he had gotten] Not begotten as a father, but taken as a Conquerour, or hired as a Maſter, or purchaſed as a Merchant upon a price, as ſlaves were bought and ſold in ancient imes out of many nations, but eſpecially the Canaanites, who of all others were deſigned to that baſe condition, Gen. 9. verſ. 25, 26, 27.

Canaan] So called, becauſe the poſterity of Canaan, the ſon of Cham, poſſeſſed it.

V. 6. Abraham paſſed] He wandred to and fro in the Land, before he could finde a ſettling place: thus God exerciſeth the faith of his children.

Sichem] Hebr. Shechem, ſo called when Moſes wrote; but in Abrahams it had its name from an Oake: ſome ſuppoſe it the ſame with Mamre, Chap. 13. 17. which others doubt of, and in our Savours time it was called Sichar, a City of Samaria, Joh. 4. 5. See Annot. on Chap. 13. 18. It was ſituate in the middle part of the land of Canaan, in the mountainous part of the Tribe of Ephraim, Joſh. 21. 21. Judg. 8. 31. 1 Chron. 6. 67.

the Canaanite] Properly ſo called for diſtinction from the Hivites, Jebuſites, Perizzites, &c. which was a cruel and fierce nation, by whom God kept his people in continual exerciſe.

in the land] That is, in the plain of Moreth, next before ſpoken of.

V. 7. builded an Altar] So did Noah, Chap 8. 20. for though the principal part of mans devotion to God conſiſt in his heart, yet there muſt be ſome evidence of it by external ſervice, whereby it may appear to others, that we account God worthy of open worſhip, and his mercies and favours worthy of monuments of remembrance.

called he upon the name] See Annot. on Chap 4. 26.

V. 8 removed from thence] Becauſe of the troubles he had among that wicked people, for that he ſerved the true God, and renounced Idolatry, not changing his Religion with the place, but every where ſerving the ſame God in the ſame manner.

Bethel] Called at this time Luz, not Bethel until afterwards, Gen. 28. 19.

on the Weſt] See Annot. on Gen. Chap. 1. verſ. 10. and on Deut. 11. 24. See alſo Gen. 13. 14. & 28. 14. Numb. 3. 23. & Deut. 3. 27.

Hai on the Eaſt] Called Ai, Joſh. 7. 2. Jer. 49. 3. & Ajah, Iſa. 10. 28. a fair City of Canaan, ſituate on the mountainous part of the land, which fell to the lot of the Tribe of Benjamin.

V. 9. journyed going] Heb. in going and journeying. The beſt of Gods children may be reſtleſs in their outward condition, and fain to ſhift from place to place: which may make them more deſirous of heaven, where there is perpetual repoſe, without either toyl or change, Heb. 11. 10.

V. 10. a famine] This was a new trial of Abrahams faith, whereby we are taught to expect at the end of one affliction, to meet with a nother.

V. 11. Egypt] By the Prophet uſually called Mitſraiim from the ſon of Cham of that name, Chap. 10. 6. on the Eaſt ſide is bounded with the red Sea, and part of Arabia, on the Weſt with Cyrene a part of Africk, on the South with Ethiopia ſuperior, called, by ſome Habaſſia, or Abaſine.

thou art fair] When Abraham came with his family to Egypt, Sarai was about ſixty years of age, yet then ſhe was ſo beautiful, not onely in compariſon of the Egyptians (who were not of a very lovely colour, or complexion) but abſolutely, as Abram judged of her. And her beauty might hold out, though threeſcore years old, both becauſe it was not impared by breeding, or bearing of children, (being barren) and for that God might preſerve it in eſpecial manner, as an occaſion for the working and obſerving of his providence, which followed thereupon; yet here we ſee that beauty is a double ſnare, both to them that have it, and them that love it.

V. 13. ſay thou art my ſiſter] Wherein in ſome ſenſe he ſpake truth; yet by the name of ſiſter, he intended to make them to believe a lye, to wit, that ſhe was not his wife. An example not of imitation, but of caution, whereby the beſt may be warned againſt the uſing of ill means to good ends; and may learn not to put others in danger, to ſave themſelves. Albeit it may be that Abram feared not ſo much death, as that if he ſhould dye without iſſue, Gods promiſe ſhould not have taken place; wherein appeareth a frailty of Faith, at this time, though for other things, and at other times, his Faith was more firm. See Chap. 20. 12.

V. 15. into Pharaohs houſe] With a purpoſe to make her his wife or concubine, Ver. 19.

V. 17. Pharaoh] Pharaoh was an uſual name among the Kings of Egypt, untill the Greeks prevailed over it, and then they were commonly called Ptolomees; haply for ſome very eminent King of that name; as the Emperours of Rome and Germany are called Cæſars, from Julius, or Auguſtus Cæſar. Or they might be called Pharaohs, becauſe the word Pharaoh ſignifieth in Hebrew, liberty from ſervitude; and Kings are ſervants to none but God, and in the Chaldean Dialect, revenge, or puniſhment, as having a preeminence of power, for the puniſhment of the wicked, as well as for the protection of the good, Rom. 13. 4.

the Lord plagued Pharaoh] Though Kings have great power for doing, Eccleſ. 8. 4. and more protection from ſuffering then other men in the guard of their perſons, yet they may not do what they will with whom they will; for ſome are ſuch Favourites of the King of kings, as to be accepted as his anointed, and under that title to be ſecured from the tyranny of Kings, Pſal. 105. 14, 15. 1 Chr. 16. 21, 22. which places have an eſpecial application to this ſtory of Abraham and Pharaoh, in whoſe example Kings muſt be admoniſhed of their ſubordination to God, Eccleſ. 5 8. and of Gods tender care of godly perſons, whom he will not, though they be ſtrangers and friendleſſe, give up to the oppreſſion of Potentates though never ſo great.

and his houſe] Great mens ſins are dangerous, not onely to themſelves, but to others that belong unto them. It is not ſafe to dwell in the houſe with ſuch as are wicked. See Pſal. 101. verſ. 6, 7.

with great plagues] Great men when they offend are ſo much more plagued by God then others, as his benefits more oblige them to obedience, and their greatneſs frees them from humane puniſhment, when they deſerve it by their diſobedience.

V. 18. Why diddeſt thou not tell me?] Yet he knew her not to be his wife, untill by plagues he was made apprehenſive of Divine pleaſure, which might occaſion an humble inquiry into the cauſe; whereupon God was pleaſed ſome way to reveale it unto him, either by Sarai, or ſome other way; but he was puniſhed before he was advertiſed of it; and therefore ignorance of ſin is no priviledge for impunity, nor protection againſt puniſhment; and it is not unlike that the King was too much ſwayed by his carnal appetite, that he made ſo much haſte to take her for her beauty, and for that he might be puniſhed the more.

V. 20. commanded] Not onely diſmiſſed him without harm or damage, but for his ſecurity laid a charge upon his people to let him paſſe where he pleaſed without any harm.

CHAP. XIII.

Verſ. 1. VV*Ent up*] Canaan was higher then Egypt; and the ſituation of Egypt being lower, was the fitter to be made fruitful by the overflowing of Nilus.

into the South] That is, the Southern part of Canaan, Chap. 12. 9. (from whence he went into Egypt) for otherwiſe the whole Countrey of Canaan, in reſpect of Egypt, is ſituated Northward.

V. 2. very rich] Great riches, and great goodneſs may meet together in one man, Job 1.1,3.

V. 3. Bethel] The place is here called by that name, which it had long before Moſes time, though not at this time; when Abram travelled towards it. See Annot. on Chap. 12.8.

V. 4. * place of the altar] * Chap. 12.7.

V. 6. to bear them] They wanted convenient ſpace for diſtinction and paſture of their flocks; the Canaanites an harſh natured people having poſſeſſion of the land, ſo that they could not be well accommodated for their company and eſtates neer together.

not dwell together] Though men account that happineſs conſiſts in riches, there is this unhappineſs in them, that they do not onely ſeparate men from friendly ſociety, but often times are occaſions of contentions between them.

V. 7. a ſtriſe between] Good, and quiet maſters may have contentious ſervants, therefore the one muſt not be condemned for the other.

the Canaanite, and the Perizzite] For Canaanites and Perizzites; as Chap. 12.6. and Angel for Angels, Pſal. 34.7. and ſo (as divers learned Divines expound) Rev. 2.8, 12, 18. & Chap. 3.1, 7, 14. and Inhabitant for Inhabitants, 2 Sam. 5.6. Quail for Quails, Pſal. 105.40. Frog for Frogs, Pſal. 78.45. Tree for Trees, Pſal, 105. 33. And the Perizzites dwelling in the Land of Canaan were Canaanites, but upon ſome eſpecial reaſon, they had an eſpecial name given them, by which they were diſtinguiſhed from the reſt of the Canaanites; and among them that dwelt in the Land, ſome might have the name of Canaanites by an eminence and more ordinary uſe, See Annotations on Chap. 15. 21. So names are ſometimes of a more large, and ſometimes of a more ſtrict acception. See the Note on Chap. 11. 31. Now their dwelling in the Land is brought in by occaſion of the diſſention betwixt the Herd-men of Abram and Lot, becauſe the Land was ſo populous by the number of theſe Inhabitants, that there could not be allowed room ſufficient for the increaſe of their cattel, which might be a cauſe of future contention more then at the preſent betwixt the emulous ſervants of their amicable maſters; and quarrels betwixt two ſuch worthy perſons would be very ſcandalous before ſuch Infidel Idolaters as the Canaanites and Perizzites were.

V. 8. Abram ſaid to Lot] Abram the elder, and the worthier perſon, both in reſpect of Grace, and of Nature alſo, (for he was Uncle unto Lot) craves peace of his inferiour. It is no diſparagement to be the firſt in ſeeking reconcilement, for ſo was God in atonement with man, Iſa. 65.1. 2 Cor. 5.20.

brethren] That is, neer kinſmen of the ſame fleſh and bloud, Rom. 9.3. Or, brethren of the ſame belief, and profeſſion of Religion; otherwiſe in propriety of ſpeech, Abram was not his brother, but his uncle, for Lot was his brothers ſon, Gen. 12.5. See Annot. on Chap. 14.14.

V. 9. If thou wilt take] Abram reſigneth his own right to buy peace; yet he was not poſſeſſed of a foot of the Land of Canaan, Act. 7.5. as his own right, and by virtue of promiſe; therefore what he injoyed there, it was either by the preſuppoſed, or purchaſed conſent of the Canaanites, to whom he might make himſelf acceptable both by his great wiſdome, goodneſs, riches, and beneficence. See his carriage toward, and acceptation with Ephron, and the children of Heth; of whom he would not take ſo much as a burial place; but he would pay the worth of it, Gen. 23.11, 12, 13. and for Lot, Abram gave him no title to the Land, but ſuch an uſe of it, as upon fair and reaſonable termes he might obtain and enjoy.

left hand] By the left hand, ſome Expoſitors conceive he underſtood the North; and by the right, the South: and this according to the Chaldee, which preſuppoſeth an uſual phraſe of local diſtinction among the Hebrews: the Philoſophers ſince Ariſtotle make the Eaſt to be the right hand, and the Weſt the left.

V. 10. as the garden of the Lord] So are things called that are eminently great and goodly, as the Hoſt of God, 1 Chron. 12.22. the City of God, Pſal. 46 4. the Cedars of God, Pſal. 80.10. See Annot. on Chap. 23.6. and Chap. 30.8. and ſo it may be in this place. Or it may be a particular compariſon with the Garden of Eden, Gen. 2.10. See Iſa. 51.3. Ezek. 28.13. and Chap. 31. ver. 8.

land of Egypt] Made fruitful by the overflowings of the River Nilus, eſpecially that part of the land, in the plain of Jordan, which is the way from Bethel to the little City, afterwards called Zoar, but in former time, and at this time, Bela, Chap. 14.2. Adricom. Delph. Theatr. terr. Sanct. in Trib. Judah. page 54.

V. 11. journeyed Eaſt] Or, Eaſtward; as Gen. 2.8. From the Eaſt, ſo the Genev: and Arias Montan. but Bethel (where Abram and Lot were when they concluded to ſeparate) was Weſtward in reſpect of Sodome, whither Lot went, and going thither he went towards the Eaſt, not from the Eaſt, ſo it is better (as to the ſenſe of the place) to read, Lot journeyed Eaſt, or Eaſtward; which conſtruction the Original word here uſed will bear, as well as the other (from the Eaſt) and ſo it is taken, Gen. 2.8. God planted a garden Eaſtward in Eden.

one from the other] Which was done by Gods eſpecial providence, that onely Abram and his ſeed might dwell in the Land of Canaan.

V. 13. the men of Sodome were wicked] Lot thinking to get Paradiſe, found Hell; the land was very good, the Inhabitants extremely bad: they are called ſinners before the Lord exceedingly, becauſe their ſins were ſuch as drew his eye eſpecially to be upon them, with a purpoſe to puniſh them. See Chap. 10.9.

V. 14. Lift up now thine eyes] The Lord comforted him, leſt he ſhould have taken thought for the departure of his Nephew.

look from the place] (Deut. 34.1. Mat. 4.8.) The promiſe was made for a larger compaſs, then the eye of man could particularly view; but God might ſupply that defect either by diſcourſing of the particular places in each tract, Eaſt, Weſt, North, and South, as Abram had his proſpect; or by ſome other Revelation or repreſentation, as himſelf thought fitteſt to make him apprehenſive of his liberal promiſe. The Devil did ſomething in this kind, Mat. 4.8. & Luk. 4.5. by Gods permiſſion: but God doubtleſs had a better and a clearer way to manifeſt the compaſſe of his bounty unto Abram. Though Abram himſelf were not actually poſſeſſed of the land of Canaan, as in his own right; (whereof ſee the Annotations on ver. 9.) yet is the promiſe made to him, becauſe of Gods eſpecial favour to him, for whoſe ſake he was ſo graciouſly affected to his poſterity, in whom their progenitors are bleſſed in a joyful apprehenſion, that they ſhall be bleſſed, as in good-will to them, and for their ſakes: See the Annot. on Chap. 9.25.

V. 15. and to thy ſeed] (Chap. 12. 7. & 26. 4. Deut. 34. 4.) That is, to thy ſeed, and for thy ſake.

for ever] Upon preſuppoſal of their obedience, and keping covenant with God, otherwiſe not, Levit. 18. 28. Deut. 4.25, 26. Iſa. 48. 18, 19. and to ſuch as ſhould prove faithful in their adherence to God, here is a promiſe of an everlaſting poſſeſſion of the heavenly Canaan, whereof the earthly was a Type: And concerning temporal poſſeſſion, the words for ever, reach to the coming of the Meſſiah, which is the period of ſuch promiſes for the Old Teſtament; from thence begins a date of new bleſſings to the ſpiritual children of faithful Abram, which will hold out, until they attain an everlaſting happineſſe, Heb. 11. verſ. 10.

V. 16. number the duſt of the earth] That is, by way of compariſon; for as no man can number the duſt of the earth, Gen. 32.12. the grains of it are ſo many; ſo the ſeed of Abram, whether by the fleſh, or faith of Abram (for they that believe as he did, are his children) ſhall be ſo many, as that to men they ſhall be innumerable. See Heb. 11.12. Rev. 7. 9.

V. 17. walk through] By this God doth not command Abram to make an exact ſurveigh of it, but offers unto his choyce the ſatisfaction of himſelf by his own view of it.

the length and breadth] See the Annot. on ver. 14.

V. 18. plain of Mamre] Heb. plains. Or, the oak, or grove of oaks of Mamre: for the Hebrew word Elon, ſignifieth an oak: the Plain it is like was ſet with oak trees, and it is called the plain of Mamre, from the man who either planted or poſſeſſed it, who was an Amorite dwelling in Hebron, Chap. 14. ver. 13, 24.

built an altar] Abram is conſtant in his holy courſe of true Religion, ſtill building an Altar, where he abode; not, as the Heathens, to many falſe gods, but to the one and onely true God.

CHAP. XIV.

Verſ. 1. IN the dayes] This was in the year of the world, 2092. four hundred thirty ſix yeares after the floud, in the eighty fourth year of Abram's age: This is the firſt War mentioned in any ſtory, as ſome ſay, yet Joſephus writes (and it may be true) that there was a precedent War before this, whereby Chedorlaomer brought theſe people of the five Cities under ſubjection, from which they revolted into rebellion.

Amraphel] This is thought to be Nimrod King of Elam, or Perſia, or Babylon.

Shinar] Or, Sennaar. (as Joſephus cals it, Antiq. lib. 1. cap. 5.) a ſpatious Plain in the Region of Babylon, put here for Babylon where Nimrod laid the foundation of his Monarchy. Some hold that this Amraphel was King of Aſſyria, the ſeat of whoſe Kingdome was not Babylon, but Nineveh; but becauſe in the beginning one man (who ſome ſay was Ninus) had the dominion both of the Babylonians and Aſſyrians, the ſame King is often indifferently called King of Babylon and of Aſſyria.

nations] The word Gojim in the Original ſome take for a City, or Country ſo called: but it ſignifieth Nations, and it may be this King had ſeveral Nations under his command, or was Captain of a company of ſeveral Nations; or Ruler of ſome City of great Merchandize, frequented by the people of divers Countreyes; as for the ſame reaſon Galilee was called Galilee of the Nations, or Gentiles, Iſa.9.1. Mat.4.15. frequented by Arabians, Egyptians, and other Neighbour Nations, being of a fruitful ſoyl, and commodious with Ports and Havens. Strabo, lib.16.

V. 2. King] By King here is meant the chief Governour of a City.

Zoar] Or, Zoghnar. So called upon Lots requeſt, and refuge thither, for his ſafety, Gen.19.20,22. But before it was named Bela, of the Land of Canaan; theſe five Cities, ſituate in the Plain of Jordan, were (all but Zoar) about five years afterward conſumed by fire and brimſtone, Gen. 19. 20, &c. Deut. 29.23.

V. 3. Siddim] Hath its name of a plainneſſe coming by beating of the clods, to lay the ground level: and ſo was this vale fitter for the conflict of the adverſe armies: but after the deſtruction of the City of Sodome, and her ſinful ſiſters, it was turned into the Lake Aſphaltites, or ſalt Sea. Joſephus ſaith, it was neer the Land of Sodome, and Gomorrah.

ſalt ſea] Called alſo the Lake Aſphaltites, neer Sodome and Gomorrah, which was not a ſalt ſea, or lake at the time of the battel, for that had been no fit place for ſuch a purpoſe, but (as ſome write) it had formerly been a pleaſant valley furniſhed with trees, untill by Gods judgment for the ſins of the Sodomites it was turned into that Lake of the accurſed water powred out upon it, which is ſo filthy and groſſe that no fiſhes can live in it, nor (as ſome write) birds fly over it without taking deadly infection from the exhalations, which ariſe out of it, wherefore it is called alſo the dead ſea, of which many ſtrange things are reported by Pliny, Nat.Hiſt.lib.5.cap.16. Juſtine the Hiſtor, lib.36. cap.3. Joſephus of the Warres of the Jewes, lib. 5.cap.5. Adrichom.Delph. in his Theater of the Holy Land, pag. 52. in the Tribe of Judah.

V. 4. Chedorlaomer] Though Amraphel who is ſuppoſed to be the ſon of Ninus the King of Aſſyria be named firſt, ver. 1. and others before Chedorlaomer might be more ancient Kings, or Kings of places of more honour and account; yet in this expedition he was chief, as appeareth by this, and the next verſe; for the cauſe of the war was a defection from, or a rebellion againſt the government of Chedorlaomer, to whoſe aſſiſtance the other Kings joyned themſelves, as for recovery of his right with expectation, and it may be alſo with capitulation for the like aid, if it ſhould be their lot to be ſo deſerted, or reſiſted by their ſubjects.

rebelled] After twelve years ſubjection, eſpecially if they ſubmitted to Chedorlaomer upon covenant and oath, their rebellion was unlawful, for they ſhould have continued their obedience in lawful things. See Ezek.17.15.

V. 5. Rephaims] The word Rephaim, Deut.2.11. is uſed for Giants; but here, as Chap. 15. 20. it ſeemes to be taken for a ſtrong and fierce people dwelling in Canaan; as the Hittites and Perizzites; the people mentioned in this and the two following verſes, were ſet upon by the four Kings, perhaps as confederates with the Sodomites and the reſt, or that they might not aid them, they were firſt aſſaulted. Of the Rephaims, ſee Annot.on Chap.6.4.

Emims] See Annot.on Deut.2.10.

V. 6. Horites] See Annot.on Gen.36.20. & on Deut. 2. 12.

Elparan] Heb. the plain, or, oak of Paran. Of Paran, ſee Annot.on Num.Chap.10.12 & on Deut.33.2.

V. 7. which is Kadeſh] So called in Moſes his time; (though more anciently it had the name of Enmiſhpat) it was ſituate in the deſert of Zin, Num.Chap.20.1,14,16,22. Of this Kadeſh, ſee Annot. on Numb 20.16

Amalekites] That was their name when Moſes wrote this, but not at the time of the war; for Amalek was the grandchild of Eſau, Gen.36.12. the ſon of Iſaac, the ſon of Abram, but Abram at this time had no child, neither by Sarai nor by Hagar; here then is an anticipation in reſpect of the ſtory, (for the Amalakites were not yet a people) though not in reſpect of the time of Moſes his writing of it, for in his time, and before, they were a people, and poſſeſſed a particular Countrey.

V. 10. vale of Siddim] Which afterwards was overwhelmed with water, and ſo called the ſalt ſea. See Annot. on ver.3.

ſlime-pits] Heb. pits pits. The doubling of the word importeth plurality, becauſe there were many pits there: ſo in the ſecond of King. 3. 16. the words in Engliſh is make this valley full of ditches; but in the Hebrew, make this valley ditches ditches.

fell there] Flying from their enemies they fell into the pits, (whereof they were many in that place) and there they found at once both their death and burial: the five Kings choſe that place of purpoſe for the battel, becauſe thoſe pits were not ſo well known to their enemies as to themſelves. Here the Kings of Sodome and Gomorrah are ſaid to fall, but that is to be underſtood rather of the ruine of their armies, then of their perſons; for the King of Sodome met Abram coming from the victory afterwards, ver.17. Some think thoſe that fell there, fell not into the pits caſually, but that purpoſely they caſt themſelves into the pits, as chooſing rather to be drowned, then to be mangled with the ſword of their enemy, or to fall into their hands as captives and ſlaves.

V. 12. took Lot] The godly are plagued many times with the wicked, therefore their company is dangerous, Num.16.26. Rev.18.4.

V. 13. the Hebrew] Who was ſo called not from Eber, (as ſome think) becauſe there were five progenitors of Abram which came between him and Eber; but rather from the Hebrew word Ghneber, ſignifying paſſage, becauſe he paſſed over the River Euphrates, coming out of Chaldea into Canaan: yet others ſuppoſe Abram had his name of Eber, and he rather then any of his Anceſtors of the poſterity of Eber was called an Ebrew, becauſe thoſe who deſcended from him, kept the ancient Language, and true Religion of Eber.

confederate] Heb. lords, or maſters of the covenant. The word Baal, though moſt frequently uſed for an Idol, or falſe god, in the Scripture, (in which acception it occurreth about fifty ſeven times) yet in the general and grammatical ſenſe it ſignifieth a Lord, or Maſter; and many times alſo it imports emphatically a great affection or diſpoſition to a thing, or a faculty, skill, or fitneſs for a thing: ſo Joſeph, who in our Engliſh Verſion is called a dreamer, Gen.37.19. in the Hebrew is called lord, or, maſter of dreames; and cunning and skilful Archers are called maſters of arrowes. See Annot.on Chap.49.23. and ſo Elijah addicted to the wearing of an hairy garment, or nouriſhing the hair of his head and beard, wearing it long, was called an hairy man, ſo in our Engliſh Bibles, 2 King.1.8. but according to the Hebrew it is Lord, or maſter of hair.

confederate] God moved them to joyn with Abram, and preſerved him from their Idolatry and Superſtition; the proſperity of Gods people makes thoſe that obſerve it deſirous to be in league with them: upon that ground did Abimelech and Phichol deſire to enter Covenant with Abraham, Gen. 21.22, 23. and the like motion for the ſame reaſon was tendered to Iſaac his ſon, Gen.26.27,28,29. and though afterward it were forbidden to make a Covenant with the Canaanite, Exod. 34. 15. Deut. 7. 2. and Jehoſaphat was reproved and threatned for his aſſociation, in aſſiſtance of the wicked King of Iſrael, 2 Chr. 19.2. yet without the caſe of eſpecial prohibition, it is not unlawfal to make leagues of peace or war, or commerce with Infidels in caſe of neceſſity, with due care taken that there be no content in any thing that is ſinful, or prejudicial to the truth of Religion, nor any appearance of approbation of what is unlawful, as either againſt the true faith, or good manners.

V. 14. brother] Here, and ver. 16. Lot is called Abrams brother (for ſo are they ſometimes called in Scripture, who are of mere kindred, or affinity) though the proper or particular relation of Abram and Lot, was of an Uncle and Nephew, for Lot was Abrams brothers ſon, ver.12. See Annot.on Chap.13. 8. and compare 2 King.10.13. with 2 Chr.22.8. where is the like uſe and meaning of the word brother.

trained] That is, bred and brought up, and diſciplined in his family, and it may be alſo trained in a military ſenſe; that is, exerciſed in arms; for he knew he might meet with many and great enemies, and therefore his wiſdome would dictate unto him the beſt way of due defence for himſelf and his friends.

three hundred and eighteen] As he was a man of great eſtate, Chap.13.2. ſo he had a great family, and in reſpect of both the children of Heth called him a mighty Prince, Chap.23.6. An excellent pattern for ſuch as are ſo rich and great as he was to be good and gracious like him.

Dan] A place on the Northern part of Canaan, anciently called Leſhem, until it was won by the Danites, whereupon they called it Dan, Joſh.19.47.

V. 15. divided] A Military policy to make ſhew of a great Army diſperſed divers wayes, and to prevent the eſcape of the enemy.

V. 16. And he brought back, &c.] Religion is no impediment to Military courage, and prudence, Abram had a better cauſe of quarrel then the rebel Kings, for (not being ſubject to Chadorlaomer, but in right, and by Gods promiſe King of Canaan) his charity, and piety to his Nephew unjuſtly ſpoyled, and taken captive was better warrant for the war, then they had; and no doubt he had Divine direction for what he attempted, as well as Divine aſſiſtance for what he effected, ver. 20.

V. 17. Kings dale] That is, King Melchizedeks, (as ſome take it) or it might be ſo called for the pleaſantneſs which might delight a King; as Chap. 49. 20. It was not ſo called when this ſtory was in action, but afterwards: it is like it was the valley named, 2 Sam. 18. 18. where Abſolom ſet up a pillar, inſtead of a ſon, to keep his name in remembrance.

V. 18. Melchizedek] Moſt of the Jewiſh Rabbines, and many learned Chriſtians, take this Melchizedek to be Shem; and for the time of their living it is probable enough, for Melchizedek lived ſeventy five years after Abrahams coming into Canaan: but other learned, both Jewiſh and Chriſtian Writers, conceive he was a Prince, and Prieſt of another kindred from that of Abraham, Heb. 7. 6. extraordinarily raiſed up by God of the Canaanites, and brought in without mention of parents, Original, or end, without any predeceſſour, or ſucceſſour in the Prieſthood, as a Type of the Royal, and eternal Prieſthood of Chriſt, Heb. 7. 17 21. which cannot be ſaid of Shem, whoſe Genealogy is ſet down in Scripture.

King] Here, and Heb. 7. 1. he is called, and was alſo both a King, and a Prieſt; two callings rarely, and by extraordinary inſtances, concurring in one perſon.

of Salem] Called alſo Jebus, and after Hieruſalem, and ſince that ſometimes Salem, Pſal. 76. 2. Some take it for that Salem mentioned, Joh. 3. 23. Of which (though there be no certainty for either) the firſt is more probable.

brought forth] For Abrahams and his ſouldiers refection, and as a preſent of gratulation, and not to offer ſacrifice. See Deut. 23. 4. Judg. 8. 5, 6 16.

of the moſt high God] Though the poſterity of Abram were Gods viſible Church, there were ſome without it, who were not without the knowledge and worſhip of the true God.

V. 19. bleſſed him] In that Melchizedek was bountifull to Abraham, and his Army, he declared himſelf to repreſent a King: in that he bleſſed him, the high-Prieſt, Heb. 7. 6. and in both he was a type, or figure of Chriſt.

V. 20. And bleſſed be the, &c.] This was a gratulatory ſacrifice of praiſe; but no expiatory ſacrifice did he offer at all, for that requireth bloud-ſhed, Heb. 9. 22.

which he hath delivered] Man makes the adventure, but God gives the victory in battel.

he gave him tithes of all] Abraham gave tythes to Melchizedek, Heb. 7. 2. The payment of tythes is ancienter then the Levitical Law. See Chap. 28. 22. and being payd to Melchizedek a type of Chriſt, they are not aboliſhed by the Goſpel, but may be continued as an Evangelical revenue for the maintenance of thoſe, who exhibite Sacramental bread, and wine (the materials of Melchizedeks beneficence) to the people, and bleſſe them in the Name of God, as Melchizedek did Abraham.

V. 21. the perſons] In Hebrew it is, the ſouls; for the ſoul is both here, and in many other places, put for the whole man; to teach us to give the ſoul the preheminence above the body, both in eſtimation of it, and care for it.

V. 22. I have lifted up my hand] An outward geſture uſed at the taking of an oath, Deut. 32. 40. Ezek. 20. 15. Dan. 12. 7. Rev. 10. 56 Signifying, that God above knoweth the truth of what we ſwear, and invoking his juſtice, if we ſwear untruly. Abraham it ſeemeth had made a vow to God, before he ſet forth, that he would have no part of the ſpoyl.

V. 23. that I will not take] In Hebrew it is, If I take from, &c. A ſuſpenſive, and paſſionate ſpeech, importing a ſtrong denyal above the utterance of words; as Pſal. 95. 11. compared with Heb. 3 11, 18. and withal intimating a curſe, but forbearing the expreſſion of the words, either out of fear or unwillingneſſe to mention it in particular, or as yeelding to any curſe in general, if they do otherwiſe then they profeſſe.

from a thread] A thread, and ſhoe latchet, are things of ſmalleſt value, importing (in a proverbial ſpeech) a reſolute, and univerſal refuſal of gain, or advantage by the preſent buſineſſe. See Annot. on Gen. 31. 34.

leſt] Abraham withholdeth his hands from the ſpoyl, as the Jews, Eſth. 9. 15, 16. that it might appear that his charity, not covetouſneſſe, drew him to the Warr; and that having his riches from the eſpecial bleſſing of God, he would not have it thought he was enriched by man, eſpecially by any ſo wicked as the Sodomites were.

V. 24. young men] That is, the Souldiers, who for the moſt part were of the younger ſort.

portion of the men] He would not that his liberty ſhould be hurtful to others.

CHAP. XV.

Verſ. 1. T*Heſe things*] Or, words. Spoken by Abraham to the King of Sodome in the former Chapter: the Original word ſignifieth firſt [words], then things, celebrated or ſpoken of by words, Schindl. Pent. col. 358. as Lev. 5. 2. Deut. 17. 5. and in other places; for in good things, he that ſpeaketh a word, ſhould make it good by his deed; and in evil, he that ſpeaketh ill, hath a mind to do as ill, as he ſpeaketh.

a viſion] Properly is a divine repreſentation of things ſhewed to ſuch as are awake; ſuch were the viſions of the Prophets in the Old, and of Zachary, Peter, and Paul, and John, in the New Teſtament, diſtinguiſhed from revelation by dreames to men aſleep.

fear not] Viſions at their firſt apprehenſion affect the party to whom they are preſented with fear. So Dan. 10. 8. Luk. 2. 9. but before the viſion, Abraham might haply fear a new aſſault of his enemies, or the envy of the wicked at his proſperity, and in reſpect of ſuch fear, God calls himſelf his Buckler, Pſal. 18. 30. Prov. 30. 5. 2 Sam. 22. 31.

thy ſhield] To protect thee from hurt, Pſal. 5. 12. and thy reward to beſtow on thee good; yea I will beſtow my ſelf upon thee, and be thy portion, Pſal. 15. 6.

reward] A reward above all pretence of merit, a reward to ſuch eſpecially as do not reſpect the rewards of men, as Abraham did not, when he refuſed the offer of the King of Sodome; and they may be cheerful in their work, ſince they ſhall be ſure of a reward, Pſal. 58. 11. of an exceeding great reward, great beyond all meaſure, exceeding far above mans merit; for God is their reward, and he is infinite, and therefore ſuch a reward as nothing in man can purchaſe upon equal price.

V. 2. I go childleſſe] Heb. and I going: Some render the words, ſince I go on, or perſevere, or am going away; that is, ſince my age goeth on towards mine end, and I am yet not come to the poſſeſſion of thy promiſe, and mine expectation.

childleſſe] Abraham deſired a ſon above any worldly thing that God could give him: yet his fear was not onely leſt he ſhould not have children, but leſt the promiſe of the bleſſed ſeed ſhould not be accompliſhed in him; and he makes it his complaint to God, in whoſe power it was to make him a father, Pſal. 127. 3. as well as to promiſe him a plenteous poſterity, Chap. 13. 16.

Damaſcus] Whoſe name is Damaſcus the ſon of Eliezer, or whoſe Anceſtors were of Damaſcus, though he were born in Abrahams houſe, who was the eldeſt ſervant of his Family, chap. 24. 2. and from a ſervant (as ſome conceive) became ſo great a Lord, as to be the founder of the faireſt City of Syria, called Damaſcus, after his name.

V. 3. heir] If he had no child of his own, (his Nephew Lot having none but daughters) it was in his thoughts to make his chief, and moſt faithful ſervant his heir; or if he were dead, having all under his charge, he might make himſelf heir of his Maſters eſtate.

V. 5. Look now] The Stars, though it were day, might be repreſented in a viſion, or the entercourſe betwixt God and Abraham might be continued until night, from the time when it began.

number] Though ſome ancient Aſtronomers have taken upon them to number the Stars to 1022. and ſome later Writers have increaſed the number to 1322. Alſted. Uranoſcop. part. 1. cap. 13. Tom. 1. Eucycl. col. 2020. Yet as there hath been a difference of the earth in regard of diſcovery, in which reſpect one part hath been a long time called the Southern unknown part of the world, ſo the wiſer ſort of Chriſtian Aſtrologers, eſpecially, have diſtinguiſhed the Stars into numerable and innumerable, Magir. Phyſ. lib. 2. cap. 5. which will be a true diſtinction to the worlds end, not only betwixt the Stars, but betwixt God that made them, and men that obſerve them; for while to men they are innumerable, to God they are exactly known both for their number and their names, Pſal. 147. 4.

ſo ſhall] the promiſe of multiplication of Abrahams ſeed is made by a compariſon; ſometimes to the duſt of the earth, chap. 13. 16. ſometimes to the Stars of heaven, as here in prophecy, and we have it in hiſtory, Deut. 1. 10. where neither by duſt is their humiliation, nor by the Stars is their exaltation intended, but their multiplication in both; and this is meant not only of Abrahams children according to the fleſh, but according alſo to the Faith.

V. 6. believed] He believed the Lord, not only for the multiplication of his ſeed, but in particular for the principal ſeed, the promiſed Meſſiah, in whom all the nations of the world ſhould be bleſſed, Chap. 12. 3.

righteouſneſſe] Righteouſneſs by imputation, or juſtification by Faith without works, is no new doctrine, but as old as Abraham. See Gal. 3. 8. Rom. 4. 3. The Faith of a Believer in Chriſt, is like that of Abraham touching the ſeed; for as this was not grounded on any thing in nature, (for ſo both Abraham, and Sarah were too old to be parents) ſo hath the faith of a true believer nothing of nature, but mere grace to ſupport it, Rom. 4. 17, 18.

V. 8. whereby ſhall I know] This was a ſpeciall motion of Gods Spirit; therefore it is not lawfull for all to do the like in asking ſigns, but was permitted to ſome by a peculiar favour, as to Gideon, and Hezekiah; which they did not ſo much out of incredulity, as out of a deſire to be fortified againſt humane infirmity. See Judg. 6. 17, 37. 2 King. 20. 8. Luk. 1. 18. Or, he asked this queſtion, not ſo much doubting of the thing promiſed, as deſiring to know ſomewhat more particularly of the manner of performance.

V. 9. Take me an heifer] God entring into eſpecial Covenant with Abraham, will have it confirmed by ſacrifice, as Pſal. 50.5. in ſacrifice and oblations what is here required, was afterward by the Levitical Law eſtabliſhed, Levit. 1. verſ. 2, 10, 14.

V. 10. divided] The creatures were divided, and the parts ſo placed, that the parties covenanting might paſs betwixt them, Jer. 34.18. the meaning whereof was, that as part anſwered to part (for they were ſo to be laid, that the parts might be anſwerable to each other) ſo the minds of the Covenanters ſhould be ſet in a mutual correſpondence; and withal there was an implicite imprecation of the like diſſection, to the party that brake the Covenant; but in this place was alſo prefigured the diſtreſſes, and diſtraction of Abrahams ſeed, and withal, their joyning together again, to which purpoſe the parts were ſo orderly diſpoſed. See Ezek. 37.7.

the birds] Were not divided, becauſe they appertained not to the confirmation of the Covenant, but were to ſerve for ſacrifices, Levit. 1.15, 17. Or, becauſe they were little, and each laid whole againſt the other were anſwerable to the other parts that were divided; and by theſe might be intimated the innocency, and ſimplicity of Gods people, eſpecially in their making, and keeping of Covenant. For Doves and Pigions, mentioned in the precedent verſe, and meant in this, are noted for their innocence, Matth. 10.16. and the Turtle Dove is commended for an example of keeping the covenant of marriage.

V. 11. the fowles] Ravenous birds reſemble wicked men, who are ready to make a prey of Gods holy portion, and to diſturbe holy perſons in their beſt actions. See Ezek. 17.3.

V. 12. darkneſs] The condition of Gods people in this life is very various, Abraham hath favourable viſions, and frightful dreams: promiſes of a numerous iſſue, and of them predictions of grievous diſtreſſes, like diſmal darkneſs, which put him into a diſtemper of horrour, and this followed with preſages of lightſome liberty to ſucceed it.

V. 13. ſerve them] That is, the owners, or Lords of the land wherein they are ſtrangers.

four hundred years] Or four hundred and five, for in a great ſumme ſo ſmall a number cometh under no particular accompt, as the Interpreters of the Old Teſtament out of Hebrew into Greek were ſeventy two, but they are commonly called the ſeventy, not ſeventy two Interpreters; and this accompt is to begin at the birth of Iſaac; but from the giving of the promiſe to Abram to the deliverance of the Iſraelites out of Egypt, and the giving of the Law were four hundred and thirty years, Exod. 12, 40. Gal. 3. 13. of which neither four hundred and five, nor four hundred, much leſſe the whole of four hundred and thirty was ſpent under Egyptian perſecution; for though the account end with their parting thence, it did not begin with their coming thither, as it is ſaid of Terah that his dayes in Charran were two hundred and five years, Gen. 11.32. where he ſpent not all that time (and it may be alſo not the moſt part of it) but ended it; but ſo much of the time was run up before Jacobs coming thither, and ſo much after that peaceably paſſed on until the death of Joſeph, that ſome rate the time of their rigid ſervitude, but to one hundred and fourty years, and ſome, but to one hundred twenty one at the moſt, which may appear from this computation following. The ſum of four hundred and thirty years equally divided, the one half of them was ſpent before their going into Egypt, the other half in their abiding there. Two hundred and fifteen years paſſed before their paſſage into Egypt, which may be reckoned thus; from the promiſe given to Abram to the birth of Iſaac twenty five years, compare, Gen. 12. 4. with Gen. 21. 5. from the birth of Iſaac to the birth of Jacob threeſcore years, Gen. 25. 26. from thence to their coming into Egypt, an hundred and thirty years, Gen. 47. verſ. 9. which made up into one total ſumme, amount to two hundred and fifteen years, the other two hundred and fifteen were taken up in their ſojourning in Egypt, namely, ninety four before the death of Levi, who ſurvived all the eleven Patriarches his brethren, and an hundred twenty one, betwixt his death and their diverance out of Egypt: For Levi and Joſeph were both born, in the ſeven years of Jacobs ſecond ſervice under his Uncle Laban, Gen. 29. & 30. Levi in the fourth, and Joſeph in the ſeventh, ſo that there were about three years between them: Now Joſeph, when his father and brethren came down into Egypt, was thirty nine years old, compare, Gen. 41. 46, 51. & 45. 6. and then was Levi fourty three or thereabout; and Levi lived one hundred thirty and ſeven years, Exod. 6. 16. out of which thoſe fourty three being deducted, which he had ſpent before their coming into Egypt, it appeareth they were in Egypt ninety four years before his death, and thoſe ninety four (in which they were well intreated for Joſephs ſake) being deducted out of the two hundred and fifteen (which they ſpent in that land) it remaineth that there were one hundred twenty one years from his death, to their redemption out of bondage; the moſt of which time after there aroſe another Pharaoh, that knew not Joſeph, Exod. 1. 8. was ſpent in heavy ſervitude, which moved the Lord, by a mighty and miraculous power, to wreſt his own people out of the hands of the proud and perſecuting Tyrant. But that the words of the Text may not be thought to contradict this limitation of time, for the afflicted ſtate of the poſterity of Jacob, they are to be read with a parentheſis, thus, Thy ſeed ſhall be a ſtranger in a land that is not theirs (and ſhall ſerve them, and they ſhall afflict them) four hundred years, ſo that their affliction ſhall fall out within thoſe four hundred years, not hold out all the time of their ſojourning.

V. 15. to thy fathers] Not meaning the particular place where the ſouls of Terah and Nahor were, but to the general condition of the dead, whereto his forefathers led him the way.

V. 16. fourth generation] That is, in the four hundreth year, or ſomewhat above, which for eavenneſs of number is not reckoned, as of the Jewiſh Interpreters of the Bible hath been obſerved on the thirteenth verſe: Or, by generation is meant betwixt the geniture or birth of the father, and the ſon; ſo the fourth generation is to be reckoned from the deſcent of the ſons of Jacob into Egypt, to their entrance into Canaan, as in the Tribe of Judah, from Judah to Phares, from Phares to Heſron, from Heſron to Caleb.

hither] That is, into Canaan, where Abraham was when God made his Covenant with him.

iniquity of the Amorites] And of the Canaanites, as appears by Levit. 18. Deut. 6. & 12. and their iniquities were chiefly of three kinds, all very heinous; one was Idolatry of a moſt execrable ſort, ſacrificing their ſonnes and daughters unto Devils; another was grievous oppreſſion of the poor and ſtranger; the third was prodigious luſt, not onely by inceſtuous uncleanneſs with their neereſt kindred, but even by Sodomy and beaſtiality.

yet full] There is a fulneſs of ſin, which groweth by degrees to a juſt meaſure of merit of extraordinary vengeance from above. See Jer. 51.13. Dan. 8. 23. Matth. 23.32. Dan. 11. 36. Which may be a preſervative of patience, at the proſperity of the wicked, ſince the reward of their wickedneſs is ſure, though it be ſlow.

V. 17. a ſmoaking furnace] The ſmoaking furnace, and burning lampe, or lampe of fire paſſing betwixt the parts, ſignified Gods aſſent to the Covenant, after the manner noted, verſ. 10. for God is compared to fire, Heb. 12. verſ. laſt. and makes apparitions by fire, Exod. 3.2. & 20. 18. And Chriſt, who is God, appeared to Daniel and John, with eyes like a flame, Dan. 10.6. Revel. 1. 14. and the ſmoaking furnace, whoſe fire is not ſeen, may note that God himſelf is inviſible, though he ſhew a burning lampe as a glimpſe of his glory. Beſides, the ſmoaking furnace may note the great affliction of the Iſraelite[illegible] n Egypt, Exod. 1. verſ. 11, 18. See Pſal. 21.9. Lam. 5.10. Mal [illegible]. but eſpecially, Deut. 4. 20. Jer. 11.4. and the burning lampe deliverance from it, or ſalvation out of it; as Iſai. 62. 1. an[illegible] hat in this order, firſt, the furnace of affliction, and then the lampe of ſalvation.

V. 18. have I given] Gods promiſes for the future, are oft times ſet down, as already performed, by reaſon of his faithf[illegible]neſs, and infallibility.

from the river] Which ſome expound to be from the fountain of Euphrates the fall; moſt take it for the River Nilus, or for a branch of it, running betwixt Peluſium and Rhinocorura, or Rhinocolura, ſo named, from the ſeverity of an Egyptian King, cutting off the noſes of notorious theeves and malefactors, and baniſhing them to that place, Diodor. Sic. lib. 2. cap. 1. Some derive this River from the mountains of Kedar, and ſome affirm it hath not its Original and ſupply from the earth; but from heaven by rain, and therefore it is called by ſuch a name in Latine, as ſignifieth a Brook, which ſometimes may be dry; howſoever, it bordereth on the South part of Paleſtine, or the Land of Canaan. The uſual limits of the Land of Canaan, are noted for the Longitude to be from Dan, (a Northerne City, ſituate at the foot of Mount Lebanon) to Berſheba (a Southern City in the Tribe of Simeon) that is, about an hundred and ſixty miles in length, and the latitude or breadth from Jordan in the Eaſt, to the great Sea Weſtward, which is about eighteen miles, Andrichom. Delph. Epiſt. Prefixt. Theatr. terr. Sanct. and in the 34. of numbers, where the parts of the Land of Canaan were moſt exactly deſcribed, it is confined far ſhort of the extent here ſet down; but we are to conceive, that this promiſe was not made perſonally to Abram, but for his poſterity, and to be made good by degrees, for all that the Iſraelites poſſeſſed they had not at once, Exod. 23.29. nor in the ſame manner and tenure, for they had the Land of Canaan in poſſeſſion, afterwards the ſeed of Abram had the dominion of other Countries, according to the amplitude of the promiſe in this place; as we ſee, 1 King 4.21. or if they had not, the cauſe was in their breach of Covenant with God, not in Gods with them.

great River] (Joh.1.4.) The River Euphrates was called the great River, not that of it ſelf it was greater then any other, but for that by the falling of Tygris into it, it ſwelled beyond the breadth of other rivers.

V. 19. The Kenites] Are thought to be the ſame with the Midianites, Judg.1.16. compared with Exod.3.1. Here are reckoned ten ſorts of people in Canaan, which by mixture, or diminution of ſome of them, afterwards were reduced to ſeven, as they are diſtinctly named, and definitely numbred, Deut. 7.1.

the Kenezites] Theſe are thought to be the off-ſpring of Kenaz a Duke of Eſaus race, Gen. 36.15,42. and more uſually ſtyled Idumeans: and though thoſe that dwelt in Mount Seir might not be meddled with,(God having made an expreſſe prohibition even to a foot of ground, Deut.2.4,5.) yet this ſeemeth not to be general in regard of perſons,nor of times,for the Edomites that deſcended from Eſau, and bare his name (for one of his names was Edom) were all of them ſubdued by David, and brought under ſervitude, 2 Sam.8.14.

V. 21. Canaanites] That name is ſometime taken generally for any one of the Land of Canaan, and ſometime ſpecially, as here, and Deut.7.1. for a particular ſort of Canaanites, who for ſomething notable above the reſt retained the name of the whole Nation. See Annot. on Chap.13.7.

CHAP. XVI.

Verſ. 1. S*Arai bare him no children*] Thoſe, whom God moſt favoureth, are not alwayes moſt fruitful, though the fruit of the womb be his reward, Pſal. 127.3. See verſ. 10.

V. 2. reſtrained] She religiouſly acknowledgeth the reſtraint of her fruitfulneſſe to be from God, but faileth in binding Gods power to the common order of nature, as though he could not give her children in her old age.

V. 3. her maid] Her bondwoman, Gal.4.22. whom ſhe made choice of, rather then of a freewoman, becauſe of ſuch a one the iſſue ſhould be as hers, as Rachel ſaid of her hand-maid Bilhab, Gen.30.3. Of ſuch adopted iſſue, ſee 2 Sam.21.8. Eſth. 2.7.

gave her] Abraham ſet no affection upon her as a bed-fellow, before Sarai offered her for a wife; it was not then unlawfull luſt, but a deſire both of Abraham, and Sarai, that he might be the father, though ſhe were not the mother of the promiſed ſeed; and this was practiſed by the Patriarchs in that time, though the firſt inſtitution were otherwiſe, Gen.2.24. Mal.2.15.

to be his wife] That is inſtead of a wife, as touching ſociety in the bed, but otherwiſe ſhe was inferiour to a wife. See Annot. on Chap.25.1.

V. 4. And he went] The firſt promiſe God made to him, was for multiplication of his progeny, but he told him not how,and he ſeemed after long expectation to conceive that it muſt be fulfilled by an adopted heir, Chap.15.3. God tells him, ver.4.that he ſhould have an heir of his own loynes, and having no ſuch p[illegible] for Sarai, nor any hope by her contemned barrenneſſe, o[illegible] ſſue by her, he takes her offer for her maid, wherein th[illegible] failed through infirmity of faith.

[illegible]] This puniſhment declareth what they gain, who a[illegible] any thing againſt the Word of God; evill counſel proveth worſt to thoſe that give it; and for Hagar, we ſee in her a note of an ill condition, which is to be proud, and ſcornful, when ſhe ſhould have been more humble,and thankful. See Prov.30.21.

V. 5. My wrong] I ſuffer wrong by the inſolency of my handmaid, who hath ill requited my kindneſſe to thee,and her, and I muſt lay the blame upon thee, who ſhouldeſt make her to be of better behaviour towards me; or her wrong of me will be a wrong upon thee, ſince being one fleſh with thee by marriage, her contempt of one muſt needs turn to the diſparagement of both.Some take the words not ſo much for a complaint, as for a commination, as if Sarai ſhould threaten to be meet with him, and to recompence his wrong with ſome ill requital; howſoever herein ſhe bewrayes more paſſion then either Religion or judgment, as the Iſraelites, Exod.5.21. and the wife of Moſes, Exod.4.26.

V. 6. in thine hand] To correct her for her fault; though Sarai ſhewed too much wrath to her maid, and too little reverence to her husband, yet he gives her the reſpect of a wife, and the authority of a miſtreſſe,without any return of intemperance, or contumely towards her.

hardly] Geneva, roughly. Heb. afflicted her. Correction given in anger, hath uſually more of rigour, then of right.

V. 7. Angel] Which is Chriſt, as appeareth by verſ. 10, 13. who is called an Angel, Exod.14.19. & Chap.23.20,21,23. Iſa. 63.9. Mal.3.1. and who deſcended to the meaneſt in their miſeries, to adviſe and comfort them.

to Shur] That was a City in the way from Canaan to Egypt, her native Countrey, according to her name which ſignifieth flying, Schindl.Pentaglot. Col.422. ſhe played the fugitive from her miſtreſſe, her pride, and impatience of correction made her ſet light by the beſt family in the world, and ſo in effect to excommunicate her ſelf from it, and in likelihood from Religion, to her Egyptian Idolatry.

V. 9. Return] She ſhould not have left her place for the diſpleaſure of her miſtreſſe, Eccleſ.10.4. nor have run away with her maſters child; but have ſubmitted to the correction which ſhe deſerved, 1 Pet.2.18. and that is the counſel which the Angel giveth her.

V. 11. Iſhmael] His name was given him by an Angel, and it ſignifieth as ſome render it, the Lord ſhall hear; as others, the Lord hath heard; which is more agreeable to the reaſon rendred by the Angel for it, viz. becauſe the Lord hath heard thy affliction.

V. 12. a wilde man] Or according to the Hebrew, a wilde aſſe man; That is,fierce and unruly,as a wilde aſſe among men; ſee Job 39.5,6,7,8. Jer.2.24. Hoſ. 8,9. A contentious man is like a wilde aſſe, without either wit, or manners; this is the condition of the Saracens the poſterity of the Iſhmaelites, who have their name from Sarie, which in the Arabian Tongue ſignifieth a thief, Schindl. col. 423. Such eſpecially have their hands againſt every one for booty,and every ones hand againſt them for ſafety.

his hand ſhall be] He ſhall be a very quarrelſome man, ſhewing himſelf an enemy to many, and provoking many to be his enemies.

dwell in the preſence] So did Iſhmael,who is named with Iſaac, as in a brotherly ſociety coming to the funeral of his father, Gen.25.9. and dyed in the preſence of all his brethren, Gen. 25. 18. And for the Iſhmaelites (his poſterity) the meaning is, that they ſhall multiply, and inlarge their habitations about the borders of their brethren; who were ſome of them his brethren by the fathers ſide, as the ſons of Keturah the Midianites, and others his neer kinſmen, as the Idumeans, Ammonites, and Moabites.

V. 13. here looked] To have a Viſion of God, or revelation from God in her holy maſters family was no ſuch great marvell, as that here in the wilderneſſe God would vouchſafe ſo much grace to ſo unworthy an handmaid, ſo inſolent a ſervant to ſo gracious a miſtreſſe,ſo tranported firſt with pride of her favour, and then with impatience of deſerved correction.

Looked after] That is, have I (after a viſion of God, who ſees me, and hath talked with me) power to look, and live? for the appearance of God, or of an Angel was conceived to be a forerunner of death: therefore theſe be words of wonder, that after that entercourſe betwixt God, and her, ſhe yet liveth, which muſt ariſe by compariſon of mans ſinful frailty, with Gods omnipotent purity. See Gen.32.30. Exod.24.11. & 20.1. & 33. 20. Deut.4.33. & 5.24. Judg.6.22,23. & Chap.13,22. Eſay 6.5. Luke 5.8.

V. 14. Beer-lahai-roy] (i.) the well of the living that ſeeth me: Either becauſe the Angel of the living God ſaw her; or becauſe ſhe ſaw the Angel of the Lord, and yet lived, but the former Interpretation is rather to be received.

CHAP. XVII.

Verſ. 1. A*Lmighty*] The word is Shaddai, ſignifying Almighty; for God can do any thing, Job 42. 2. The Geneva renders it alſufficient, and ſo muſt he needs be, who is Almighty; this is a good ground of Abrahams belief of all the promiſes of God, though in things above nature, or againſt it.

Before me] (Gen.48.15. Pſal.116.9. 1 King. 8. 25.) That is, whitherſoever thou goeſt,have me ſtill in thy thought to believe what I tell thee, and to do what I bid thee. See 1 King.2.4. & Chap.3,6. 2 King.20.3.

Be perfect] Or, upright and ſincere. The way to perfection is ſo to live with men,as to conſider God a looker on for all a man doth, and ſo to converſe with God, as if men were ſpectators of his moſt private actions. See Annot. in Chap.6.9.

V. 2. Make my Covenant] That is, renew it, or eſtabliſh it, being made, as ver.7. Lev.9.24. Ezek.3.23. Dan.8.17.

V. 3. Fell] Proſtrate adoration is not unſuitable to gratulation, or rejoycing. See ver.17.

V. 4. many nations] Heb. a multitude of Nations.

V. 5. thy name] Ab ſignifyeth Father, Ram, high; ſo that Abram ſignifieth high Father, and the letter [he] inſerted, maketh the name to end in ham, and Ham is the firſt ſyllable of Hamon, ſignifying a multitude, and that multitude includeth many Nations, Rom.4.17. the Gentiles, as well as the Iſraelites, and thoſe not only his natural iſſue, as the Iſhmaelites, Midianites, and Idumeans, but all true believers of what Nation ſoever, who are Abrahams children, Rom.4.11,12. So his name now ſignifieth a high Father of a multitude; yet is not this name ſo given him, that it ſhould be altogether unlawful to uſe the other, for we ſee contrary, Nehem.9.7. but it rather noteth Gods eſpecial favour, then preſcribeth a neceſſary rule for that appellation. Some take the giving of a new name, to note a Sacramental renovation in the new ſenſe of Circumciſion, which now was firſt added to the Covenant, and thence hath it been the practice of ſuch as profeſſe Religion, to give names to their children at their Circumciſion. See Luk.1.59 & Chap. 2. v. 2.

V. 7. God unto thee] I will exerciſe my perfections with eſpecial reſpect to thy protection, and comfort; and for thy ſake, to thy ſeed after thee. See Heb. 8.10. Revel.21.3.

V. 8. unto thee] See Annot. in Chap.35.verſ.12.

ſtranger] Heb. of thy ſojourning.

everlaſting poſſeſſion] So Eſa. 60. 21. yet this was but upon condition of the peoples part of the Covenant, which is faith, and obedience, which broken by them, they enjoyed the Land but a little while, Eſa.63.18. but to the repentant beleever, the promiſe is made good by an eternal inheritance, Heb. 9. 15. 1 Pet.1.4.

V. 10. Covenant] Circumciſion is called the Covenant, becauſe it is appointed by God as a Seal of the Covenant, and hath the promiſe of Grace joyned unto it; which is common to all Sacraments. See Exod. 12. 11. Matth.26.18. Luk.22.20. Col. 2. 12. and as it is performed, as a condition of the Covenant enjoyned by God, it is a Moral obedience; as exerciſed through faith in Gods promiſe, it is Sacramental.

V. 11. man-child] Male-children were onely circumciſed, becauſe the beginning of generation is from that ſex, and ſo the original of corruption by generation, was rather male then female; yet ſerved it for a ſigne of that covenant to the female ſex, becauſe the woman is of the man, as the Apoſtle ſaith, 1 Cor.11.8. and the females were accompted (as to this Sacrament) with reference to their fathers, or to their husbands; ſo that to them (if they did believe and aſſent unto the Covenant, as God ordained it) may be applyed the ſaying of the Apoſtle, 1 Cor.7.19. Gal.6.15.

foreskin] To wit, of the genital part, which ſo ſoon as ſinne appeared, was for ſhame kept out of ſight, and which is not onely corrupt in it ſelf, but the means to conveigh corruption to another, which yet God can dignifie with an holy uſe, in a Sacramental ſenſe, and hereby upon this diſhonourable part he hath ſet ſo much honour, according to that of the Apoſtle, 1 Cor.12.23. that many Nations have willingly taken up circumciſion, as an honour to themſelves; and the want of it, hath been ſometimes upbraided by way of contempt, as 1 Sam. 17. 36. The uſes of circumciſion were, partly, to diſtinguiſh Gods people from other nations, and to ſeparate them from them; ſo that, without they would yeeld to that, they were to have little communion with them, Gen.34.15. Partly, to ſignifie the cutting off of concupiſcence, and the extirpation of ſin. Deut.10.16. & 30.6. Jer.4.4. Rom.2.29. & 4. 11. Philip.3.3. Col.2.11. which cometh by that part, in propagation from man to man. And partly, to betoken the purity of the promiſed ſeed, who was to have mans nature, but without any corruption, which in ordinary generation is derived from it; and withal, not onely to be a ſigne of Gods Covenant with Abraham, and his ſeed, eſpecially the godly, but to be a Seal of the righteouſneſs of faith, Rom. 4. 11. and remiſſion of ſins by the bloodſhedding of the promiſed ſeed, Heb. 9. 22. Some add, that it is a type of Baptiſm.

V. 12. eight dayes old] Heb. a ſonne of eight dayes. Yet if the child were too weak to beare circumſion, it might bee forborne till it were ſtronger; See Joſh.5. verſ. 5, 6. but ſooner then the eighth day the child was not to be circumciſed, leſt it ſhould be too weak to endure the pain; nor were young cattel to be offered, until they had been nouriſhed ſeven dayes with the damme, Levit. 22. 27. And it was better for the mother, who, by that time, might be in better caſe to beare her part of the ſeverity of that Sacrament, (viz. her motherly compaſſion for the pain of her child.) Here is ground for Baptiſm of Infants; for Baptiſm ſucceedeth in the place of Circumciſion, as the Sacrament of admiſſion, or entrance into the Church, Col.2.12.

V. 13. He that is born] All the Males of his family, whether natives or ſtrangers, bond or free, muſt needs be circumciſed, ſo are the words of this verſe; which is to be underſtood of the children of ſtrangers, for none of them, if of age to conſent or diſſent, was to be compelled to be circumciſed; for Circumciſion was to be uſed but as a token of the Covenant, verſ.11. and he that was out of the Covenant (as all thoſe, who were not of Abrahams ſeed by the free-woman, were, unleſs they were Proſelytes, and willingly betook themſelves to the profeſſion of the Religion of Abraham, and then they were Abrahams ſpiritual, though not his carnal, poſterity) was kept out from Circumciſion alſo; upon this ground it is probably conceived, that neither Iſhmael nor Eſau, if they had been out of the families of their fathers, had been bound to receive Circumciſion.

everlaſting] The word Olam, or Ghnolam, in the Original, is ſometimes referred to the time paſt, as remember the dayes of old, remove not the ancient land marke, Prov. 22. 28. The word rendred old, and ancient, is Olam, or Ghnolam in both places. Sometimes it is taken for the time to come, and that either for term of life, as Deut.15.17. or for ſome long duration, determined by ſome notable change, or alteration of things; as the doors of the Temple, are called everlaſting doors, Pſal. 24.9. by which the King of glory, that is, the Ark, with Gods eſpecial preſence between the Cherubims, 1 Sam. 4. 4. was to enter; yet thoſe doors were deſtroyed with the Temple, and in the ruine of it, after the coming of Chriſt, was Circumciſion, and other ordinances of the old Prieſthood at an end; ſee Heb.7.12. Chap.8.verſ.9,10. and the Covenant may be ſaid to be everlaſting, in reſpect of the ſpiritual part, for which Circumciſion was ordained; and in reſpect of the long continuance of the outward ceremony.

V. 14. cut off] Which cutting off, may be conceived to be of three kinds; 1. By capital puniſhment by the Magiſtrate, on ſuch as were bound unto it, and did contemn it: 2. By excommunication of them, as not appertaining to the people of God. 3. By Divine judgement, where the former means were not, or could not with conveniency be uſed. But howſoever it fell out with offenders of full age, (for it is doubtful, how this cutting off ſhould be underſtood) yet it cannot be meant of Infants; for though the Septuagint add to child [eight dayes old] that is not in the Hebrew Text, nor can they be ſaid to break the Covenant, who can do nothing that belongeth to the keeping of it; and the words from the original may be read thus, The male that doth not circumciſe the foreskin of his fleſh: that is, who could do it himſelf, or actually conſent to the doing of it by another and would not: they then by whoſe default Circumciſion is omitted here are threatned, and ſo we ſee that Moſes, who ſhould have circumciſed his child, was in danger to be killed, not the child it ſelf, Exod.4. verſ. 24,25. Beſides, that the want of Circumciſion (except in caſe of contempt, or wilful neglect) was not ſo perillous and penal, (as to be puniſhed with cutting off) may appear by the omiſſion of it for fourty years in the wilderneſs, Joſh. 5. 7. which is not yet reproved in the Scripture; and the Paſſeover preſcribed to bee kept the fourteenth day of the firſt moneth upon the ſame terms, as an Ordinance for ever, Exod.12.14,16. and on the ſame penalty, verſ. 15. might yet upon extraordinary occaſion, be put off until the fourteenth day of the ſecond moneth, Num. 9.10,11. and was omitted, for the moſt part, during the Iſraelites journeying in the wilderneſs; for it was celebrated but once in fourty years, nor was to be eaten by any that was not circumciſed. There was then no ſuch neceſſity to ſalvation either of the one, or the other, as that damnation ſhould be the puniſhment of a mere omiſſion, eſpecially in Infants not capable, either of the command, or contempt; yet if any not circumciſed in his childhood, ſhould, when he were come to ripeneſs of years, refuſe the Sacrament, he would become guilty of the contempt of God in it, and ſo would deſerve to be cut off, either by the hand of the Magiſtrate, or by excommunication out of the Church, or by the Juſtice of God, as in the caſe of Moſes before mentioned; and if he continued in that contumacy, he deſerved to be cut off from all communion of the Saints, both on earth and in heaven: The like commination is made for the breach of other temporary ordinances; as Exod.12.15. & Chap.32.14. Levit.7.20. & Chap. 10.6,7,9.

V. 15. but Sarah] That name Sarai (as ſome expound it) ſignifieth my Lady, or Princeſſe, or in the plural number, my Princeſſes: they that gave her that name wiſht her much honour, and with her name, at leaſt in their affection, propheſied of it; but that name, having a term of reſtriction, my, is not ſo honourable, as that which is given her by God: For now as her husbands name was changed, to note the multiplicity of his ſeed, ſo is hers for the ſame reaſon, I changed into H, the firſt letter of Hamon ſignifying multitude, for ſhe was to be a fruitful mother of much people, by the ſpreading of Iſaac's poſterity, her natural ſon; and by multiplying ſpiritual daughters, 1 Pet. 3. 6. ſo that though ſhe was but a Lady of a particular family now, ſhe was to have a female preeminence of much larger extent and compaſs.

V. 17. fell upon his face] See Annot. on verſ. 3.

laughed] (Pſal.126.2.) This laughing is of admiration at Gods favour, not of diſtruſt in his power, Rom.4. 19,20. though he had hitherto found an indiſpoſition in his body to beget a child, and having been ſo long without, he could not but entertain the promiſe, by way of wonder and rejoycing; and in this rejoycing, his faith might reach, as far as the joy of the Meſſiah, Luk.2.10. for our Saviour ſaith, he ſaw his day and rejoyced in it, Joh. 8. 56. and it might be ſtrange to him, that Sarah, whoſe preſent condition was paſt hope of conception, ſhould now bring forth; and that himſelf, having ſo long been onely an husband, ſhould now, and not [illegible] father, and that they both ſhould be [illegible] youth had been barren.

an hundred years old] His years at that age of the world ſeem not in themſelves to be any great impediment to procreation of children; and we read long after this, that Cato the famous Cenſor was Father of a child at 80 years of age; and King Maſſiniſſa at 86 years, Plin.Nat.Hiſt.lib.7.cap.14. But there was ſomewhat more in Abrahams caſe then mere age, to make the promiſe more admired, and that was, That he found an indiſpoſition of body to beget, as if (as to that purpoſe) it were dead, as the Apoſtle ſpeaketh, Rom.4.19. If it be ſaid, that 37 years after this, when Sarah was dead and buried, his body was not ſo dead, but that he marryed again, and had ſix children by Keturah, Gen.25.1,2. It is true, and therein God might ſhew his power, in renewing his vigour as the youth of an Eagle, Pſal. 103.5.

And ſhall Sarah] The matter was more ſtrange that Sarah now ſhould be a mother, then that Abraham ſhould be a father, (though the ſame reaſon be rendred for it, that is, the barrenneſſe of both, Rom.4.19.) for as females are marriageable ſooner then males, and ſo may be mothers younger then the male kind are fathers, ſo the virtue and power of conception ceaſeth ſooner then in men, as when they are about 50 years old, Plin. Nat.Hiſt.lib.7.cap.14. whereas it is uſual with men after that age to be fathers of children.

V. 18. O that Iſhmael] His affection to Iſhmael whom he knew, makes him leſſe glad of Iſaac, whom yet he knew not. Ignorance of better, makes many take up their content with the worſe; ſo many embrace the preſent world with little longing after the future, though much more worthy both of deſire and endeavour, becauſe they have none acquaintance with it: yet Abraham ſheweth himſelf a pious and an indulgent Father, wiſhing he might live in Gods ſight, that is, in his favour, as in the light of his countenance, Pſal.4.6. for favour is ſignified by ſight, as diſpleaſure by hiding of the eyes, Iſa.59.2.

V. 19. call his name Iſaac] Which ſignifieth laughter, from his laughing, not from hers, for yet ſhe had not laughed at the promiſe: Or, he might have his name of laughter, for the joy that both of them might have by the birth of ſo hopeful a ſon.

everlaſting] See Annot. on v.13.

V. 20. Twelve Princes] Gen.25.16.

V. 21. But my covenant] He promiſeth to Iſhmael a numerous and noble progeny of twelve Princes, ver.20. but his Principal bleſſing which is ſpiritual, he will ſettle upon Iſaac by ſolemn covenant.

V. 22. went up] He withdrew the demonſtrations of his eſpecial preſence; as Gen.35.13. Judg.13.20.

V. 23. the ſelf ſame day] They were well inſtructed which ſo readily obeyed to be circumciſed without reſiſtance; Which thing declareth, that maſters in their houſes, ought to be as Preachers to their Families, that from the higheſt to the loweſt they may obey the Will [illegible] and it declareth likewiſe, that this [illegible] by undoubted aſſurance of Divi[illegible] authority inferiour to that it had [illegible] have been rejected with indignation and [illegible] both ſhameful and painful, and in reſp[illegible] no wiſe Father, nor tender-hea[illegible] have given conſent to ſhed the bloud of [illegible] but of eight dayes old; but the majeſty of [illegible] with the appointment, that Abraham [illegible] perſwaded to it.

Verſ. 1. P*Lain of Mamre*] See Annot. on Chap.13.18.

V. 2. three men] That is, three Angels in mens ſhape, ſo they ſeemed to him, and as ſuch he entertained them; and ſo (though he knew it not) he had Angels for his gueſts, Heb.13.2. and among them Chriſt, for he aſſuming an humane ſhape as the other two did, made one among them, and was the chief of them, as the title given to him, ver.3,17. ſheweth: and he is called an Angel alſo, Mal.3.1.

V. 2. towards the ground] He did them humble reverence after the manner of the Eaſtern Countreys.

V. 3. Lord] Speaking to one of them, in whom appeared to be moſt majeſty, he calleth him Lord, and that truly; for he is indeed the Lord not only of men, but of Angels, Heb.1.6.

V. 4. waſh your feet] For men uſed becauſe of the great heat to go bare-footed in thoſe parts, either altogether bare, or with ſandals which had ſoles below, but were open above, and faſtned to the foot with a buckle or lace: therefore it is noted by the Apoſtle for an act of charity to waſh the Saints feet, 1 Tim.5.10.

V. 5. a morſell of bread] He ſpeaks ſparingly, but entertains bountifully, verſ.6,7. It is good to have our deeds exceed our words.

therefore are ye come] (Chap.19.8. & 33.10.) As directed to me by the ſpecial providence of God, to give me occaſion and opportunity to expreſſe my reſpect, and to do offices of charitable obſervance unto you.

V. 6. unto Sarah] Though Sarah were a great woman, ſo great, as to be ſtyled Lady, or Princeſſe, having at leaſt three hundred and eighteen ſervants under her, yet ſhe is bidden to make ready meal, knead and bake cakes of it; and if ſhe did it not with her own hands, ſhe was (at leaſt) to overſee the doing of it in due manner, and with good diſpatch: A good example for great Ladies, that they do not think themſelves too great or too good to play the good huſwives. See Prov.31. from verſ.10. to the 24.

three meaſures] The leaſt meaſure among the Hebrewes, was of the quantity of an Hens egge, whereof twenty four make a Cab, and ſix Cabs are thought to be one of theſe meaſures.

fine meal] Well and curiouſly ſifted for the ſeparation of brans, and all the groſſer part of the corn when it cometh from the Mill.

V. 7. ran] This hoſpitality of Abraham is very commendable, not onely for the plenty of proviſion, and choyce of the beſt, but for the ſpeedy preparation.

V. 8. eat] As God gave them bodies for a time, ſo he gave them the faculties thereof to walk, to ſpeak, to eat, and drink, and ſuch like; yet what was let into body in an extraordinary manner, might afterwards be reſolved into ayr; and what they did might not be ſo much by any natural faculties of thoſe bodies they aſſumed, as by a ſupernaturall application of thoſe parts they had to what they did; and though our Saviour ſay, Luke 24.37,38,39. that a Spirit hath no ſuch parts as man hath, and therefore gives them ſenſible ſatisfaction by handling that he was no ſpirit, yet ſpirits might, and ſometimes did aſſume humane ſhapes.

V. 9. Where is Sarah] This queſtion is moved not out of ignorance, but to take an occaſion by it for what was after to be ſaid, as Gen.4.9,10.

V. 10. return] Heb. returning I will return. By a viſitation of performance, as now of promiſe.

time of life] (2 King.4.16. Rom.9.9.) Some refer this to the Angel, as if he ſhould ſay; If I live, &c. but then it muſt be taken after the manner of men, for Angels die not. Or, according to the time of life, may import as much aſſurance of the thing, as of the life of an Angel, who is immortal; or, when the child ſhall come into this life by thy conception and delivery, wherein was an implicite promiſe both of the mothers and of the childs life alſo, this God could have effected preſently, but he would not haſten the pace of production before the ordinary time of bringing into life.

behind him] It ſeemes by this time he was neerer the Tent then Abraham was, and ſtanding with his face towards Abraham without it, Sarah was at his back; being in the door of the Tent.

V. 11. ſtricken in age] Though Abraham, being 99 years of age, was paſt the prime of his ſtrength, and ſo in a declining ſtate of body, and in reſpect of fruit as a dead tree in his own conceit, Rom.4.19. (eſpecially, having continued childleſſe until this time) yet living to the age of 175 years, he was not ſo far decayed, as to be altogether unapt for the begetting of a ſon. See Annot. on Chap.17.17.

manner of women] Who have helps to conception, which after that age do uſually ceaſe with that ſexe, though ſometimes they may continue longer, and ſome now and then conceive without them. Ariſt. hiſt. animal. lib.7. cap.2. and it is reported by Pliny, of one that bare a child at ſixty years of age, of another at eighty: Plin. Nat.Hiſt. lib.7. cap. 14. Howſoever Sarah being of this age, and ſtate of body, the prediction of her childbearing, muſt needs be of Divine revelation, and the accompliſhment of it by a Divine virtue.

V. 12. laughed] Not as Abraham did out of joy and admiration, Chap.17.7. nor as the wicked, by way of deriſion; but out of ſome diffidence mingled perhaps with ſome degree of irreverence, by reaſon of her own defect of Faith, for ſhe rather had reſpect to the order of nature, then believed the promiſe of God: but this was at the firſt apprehenſion of the news, which then ſeemed to be more ſtrange, then true, but afterwards ſhe recollected her religious thoughts of God, and believed that which at firſt ſhe but admired, rather then believed. See Heb. 11.11.

within her ſelf] Secretly, which gave her confidence to deny what ſhe did, but that was ſoon turned into fear, when ſhe ſaw had to do with one that could diſcover what unto men was moſt ſhe concealed.

my lord] Though ſhe failed of Faith in the promiſe, ſhe was not wanting in her due reſpect to her husband, whom in her heart ſhe honoured as her Lord, and not only termed him ſo in outward ſpeech, 1 Pet.3.6.

V. 14. too hard] See the Annot. on Chap.17.1.

V. 15. ſhe was afraid] To her weakneſſe of Faith, ſhe addeth the telling of an untruth; and fearing to receive a rebuke, ſhe is not afraid to deſerve it by denying what ſhe did. Such failings of the godly are noted not for imitation, but for caution.

V. 16. * bring them on the way] * Act. 20.38. Rom. 15. 24. 1 Cor.16.6,11. Tit.3.13.

V. 17. Lord] Jehovah, the Hebrew word ſheweth, that this Angel was Chriſt; for this word is onely applyed to God.

hide] As it is a part of friendſhip to have the ſame friends, and the ſame enemies, and to communicate in ſecret counſels, ſo God ſheweth that he taketh Abraham for his friend, 2 Chro. 20.7. in both; for the former, ſee Gen.12.3. and for the later, this place is ſufficient evidence, where it appeareth, that God ſheweth himſelf as a familiar friend to his faithful, and obedient ſervants, communicating unto them his ſecret counſels, Gen. 6.13. Pſal.25.14. Amos 3.7. Joh.15.15. They then, being ſo inſtructed of God, may well be wiſer then other men, Pſal.119. 98,99. This Judgment was the more meet to be revealed unto Abraham, as to a chief member of the Church, and might and would thence give good documents, and inſtructions to his Church. Whereof God giveth him a very good teſtimony, verſ.19. and it was alſo to give him occaſion to exerciſe his charity and devotion in praying for the Sodomites.

V. 18. a great Nation] By reaſon of his multiplyed poſterity.

bleſſed in him] That is, by reaſon of Chriſt deſcended from his loynes.

V. 19. I know] God knoweth not only what a man is, but what he ſhall be; not only what he doth, but what he will do; therefore we muſt not meaſure his dealing with men by mens rules or examples, who know no further then for the preſent.

he will command] (Gen.28.1. Deut.32.46. Prov.6.20.) That which is here ſaid of Abraham, ſhould be done by every father of a Family; who is ſo religiouſly to order his houſhold, as to make it like unto a Church: ſo it is like Philemon did, verſ.2. Though the Church in his houſe might be alſo the Aſſembly of Chriſtians in the Primitive and perſecuting times of the Goſpel.

after him] The godly precepts of parents, and maſters, binde their children and ſervants to obedience when they are dead. See Jer.35. from the 16. to the end of the Chapter.

that the Lord may bring] Mans obedience is no meritorious cauſe, though it be a condition of Gods beneficence; his love is the root, the goodneſſe, and good things of his children the fruit of it. Deut.4.37.

upon Abraham] The happy condition of poſterity redounds to the honour, and to the comfort of their progenitors; and ſo on the contrary parents may be ſaid to ſuffer in their children, Mat.15.22.

V. 20. the cry] The notice that God takes of ſin is figuratively ſet out by a great cry or noyſe that cannot but be heard; be the ſin never ſo ſecret or ſilent, he knowes it as well as that which is moſt open and clamorous.

Sodome and Gomorrah] There were two Cities more deſtroyed with fire and brimſtone, but he nameth only theſe two, as being more notable for eſtate and greatneſſe, and more notorious for lewdneſſe: they were guilty of other ſins beſides theſe expreſſed in this ſtory. See Ezek.16.49.

V. 21. I will go down] (Gen.11.5. Exod.3.8. Mic.1.3.) God ſpeaketh after the manner of men, to let them know, that he taketh eſpecial notice of notorious ſinners, and will take a courſe to puniſh them; and to ſet them an example to enter into Judgment with good [illegible] as Job ſaith of himſelf, The cauſe which I knew not, I ſearched out, Job 29.16. But God knoweth all things preſent, as without ſearching, though never ſo ſecret; certainly, without [illegible] though never ſo doubtful, in reſpect of men. See Chap.2.19.

cry] Our ſins cry for vengeance, though none accuſe: it is a figurative phraſe, importing that God is much provoked before he puniſh, Jonah 1.2. See the Annot. on verſ.20.

V. 22. ſtood yet before] Abraham by this time knew him, whom he talked with, to be God, to whom he ſueth as to the Judge of all the world, v.25. and he taketh it upon him, and ſweareth as having [illegible] God to ſave, and to deſtroy when the other two, that walked with him, were gone before toward Sodome.

V. 23. the righteous] (Ezek.9. & Chap.21.3.) That is ſuch as his Nephew Lot, or others who were not guilty either by act, or approbation of thoſe hainous crimes, which called for vengeance upon that ſinful City.

V. 25. ſhall not the Judge] And in this negative queſtion is emphatically implyed an affirmative poſition, which is that God, above all others, muſt and will do right, becauſe from his Judgement there is none Appeal.

V. 27. duſt and aſhes] Duſt, by the baſeneſſe of his original, and end for his bodily part, Gen. 3.19. and aſhes, as deſerving to be burned to aſhes, if God ſhould deal with him rather in juſtice then in mercy: of this he is the more apprehenſive, by his neerer approach unto God. See Iſa.6.5. Luk.5.8.

V. 32. this once] If God refuſed not the prayer for the wicked Sodomites, even to the ſixth requeſt, how much more will he hear the prayers of the godly for the afflicted Church? In this interceſſion of Abraham, his charity, his humility, his modeſty, his fervency and importunity, excellent qualifications for a petitioner to God, are worthy to be obſerved and uſed in prayer. It is to be noted, that he prayeth not for Lot in particular, not doubting but God would ſet him in ſafety from puniſhment, as well as he had kept him from ſociety in ſinne. See verſ. 23.

ten] He ſpeaks of Sodome onely, (and in Sodome (as ſome conceive) with eſpecial reſpect to Lots Family) which had moſt provoked God to wrath, and which for Lots ſake he deſired moſt to be ſpared. God declareth that his Judgments were done in great mercy, for as much as all were ſo corrupt, that not onely not fifty, but not ten righteous men could be found there, and alſo that the wicked are ſpared for the righteous ſake. See Gen.12.3. Jer.5.1. Iſa.65.8. yet theſe be acts of eſpecial grace, granted to great Favourites, as Abraham was; but are not to be drawn into a general rule, Ezek.14.18.

CHAP. XIX.

Verſ. 1. TWo Angels] Two of the three which were with Abraham, wherein we ſee Gods provident care in preſerving his, albeit he reveal not himſelf to all alike; For Lot had but two Angels, Abraham three that appeared unto him, and were entertained by him, Gen.18.2. of which three, one was God, or the Son of God; Called an Angel, Mal. 3.1. though in the reſemblance of man; who ſtayed with Abraham while the other two went toward Sodome, Chap. 18. 22. to deſtroy it, verſ. 13. of this Chapter.

in the gate] As Abraham at his Tent door, Chap.18.1. where he might beſt obſerve who were the meeteſt objects for charitable entertainment, eſpecially ſtrangers, who at this time of the day (that is, evening) were either to take up their lodgings, or to abide in the ſtreets all night.

V. 3. preſſed upon them] That is, prayed them inſtantly.

turned in] In the precedent verſe they ſaid they would abide in the ſtreet all night, and they meant ſincerely ſo to have done, if Lots importunity had not preſſed them to turn in to him; for a ſlight invitation may be ſeriouſly refuſed, and that which is ſerious and urgent accepted afterwards, and that without either hypocriſie in the one, or levity in the other. See the like, Luk. 24.28,29.

eat] See the Annot. on Chap.18.8.

V. 4. old and young] All the people; nothing is more dangerous, then to dwell where ſin reigneth, for it corrupteth all: See Exod.16.2. Jer.9 4. & 32.32. Ezek.14.5. Nah.3.1. therefore better to ſtay all night in the ſtreets as the Angels ſpake, verſ.2. then to take up a lodging with ſuch lewd hoſts as the Sodomites were. And here we ſee that community in conſent is no good argument of a good cauſe, for the whole City is aſſembled for a moſt wicked purpoſe againſt godly Lot, and his heavenly gueſts.

V. 5. know them] The Scripture in this word, knowing, modeſtly intimateth a moſt immodeſt meaning, not fit to be mentioned in plain terms. See Gen. 4.1. Num. 31. 17. Judg. 19. 22. This ſin is from theſe men (men in ſhape, though worſe then beaſts in their luſts, as the angels in humane appearance were better then men) called Sodomie (as the buying of ſpirituall [illegible] his offer, Act. 8. 18. is called Si- [illegible] ther ſexe againſt nature; ſee Levit. Chap. 18. 22. & 20. 13. Rom. 1. 23, 24. wherein the Sodomites were moſt impudent, Iſa. 3. 9. and to their impudence was added violence as by thoſe ſons of Belial, Judg. 19. 22.

V. 7. brethren] Not by blood, or affinity, nor by profeſſion of Religion; but by community of nature, and vicinity of dwelling. In this courteous compellation, and ſubmiſſive ſupplication to thoſe, who were diſpoſed to do the fouleſt deeds that could be, he ſhewed his patience and his prudence; when many are vehemently bent againſt one, ſmooth words muſt ſerve in ſtead of rough reſiſtance; this is according to the Apoſtles counſel, 2 Tim. 2. 25.

V. 8. daughters] He deſerveth praiſe in defending his holy and honourable gueſts from diſhonourable violence, and violation of their purity; but he is to be blamed for ſeeking unlawful means; for we may not do evil that good may come thereof, Rom. 3. 8. and it was the more evil becauſe his daughters were betrothed, and in a manner married, verſ. 14. though yet virgins, verſ. 8. and howſoever it had been more ſhame in the Sodomites to offer that abuſe to his gueſts, it was more ſin in Lot to offer to proſtitute his daughters to their brutiſh and boundleſſe luſts. Some think he made this motion, making account that ſuch an offer would qualifie them ſo, as to take them off from both; as if one ſhould pacifie an enraged man againſt a third perſon, by offering a dagger to kill himſelf to ſpare the other; or as Reuben, Chap. 42. 37.

for therefore] That I ſhould preſerve them from all injury; that was Lots intent in his invitation, and thereto they yeelded their conſent, as if they came of purpoſe to put themſelves under his protection.

V. 9. Judge] When the godly do but their duty, the wicked impute unto them uſurpation above right, Exod. 2. 14. 2 Chro. 25. 16.

worſe] The wicked become worſe by that which ſhould make them better, and from ſhameleſs impudence, proceed to fearleſs violence.

V. 11. with blindneſs] Which though it were univerſal as the ſin was, yet it was not total, for it ſeems they could diſcern the houſe, but not the door, as the Aramites, who had but a dim or confuſed ſight, when they followed the Prophet they knew not whither, 2 King. 6. 18. The ſame word that is here uſed for blindneſs, (or blindneſſes in the plural number, becauſe of the number of thoſe that were blinde, or the extraordinary manner of the blindneſs it ſelf) is uſed but once more in the Scripture, that is, 2 King. 6. 18. for the blindneſſe of the Aramites, who had ſuch a glimmering of ſight that they could follow the Prophet, though they did not diſtinctly diſcern who he was, or the way they went, or the City where they were: See Mar. 8. 24. Luk. 24. 16. And this blindneſs might be occaſioned by the Angels repreſentation of the door, as a continued wall, or of another figure then appeared before, or by thicking and darkning the air, that it could not clearly convey the ſpecies to the eye, or by weakning the eye-ſight, or troubling the common ſenſe, that it could not plainly diſtinguiſh of the objects preſented unto it, which ſometimes we may diſcern in drunkards, who have their eyes open, and yet do not diſtinctly diſcern what is ſet before them. The Sodomites eyes being before (as Saint Peter ſpeaketh) full of adultery, 2 Pet. 2. 14. that cannot ceaſe from ſin, but ſtill luſtfully gazing after beauty without diſtinction of male or female, were juſtly and ſutably puniſhed in this ſort.

V. 12. ſons in law, or ſons] They mention theſe ſeveral titles to note how gracious Lot was, that for his ſake thoſe that pertained to him, under what relation ſoever, ſhould be preſerved, if they would be warned of the danger; but it ſeemeth Lot had no ſons of his own, elſe he would have ſpoken to them as well as to his ſons in law, verſ. 14. whether he had other daughters then thoſe two, whom he offered to the Sodomites as pure virgins, verſ. 8. may be doubted; if he had not, theſe ſons in law were yet but eſpouſed to them, becauſe they were virgins; and the word [married] verſ. 14. may according to the Original be rendred [taking his daughters] that is, about to take, as well as had taken them to wife, or ſhould marry (as ſome Tranſlations vary the reading) See Deut. 22. verſ. 23, 24. & Gen. 38. 11, 14. & Matth. 1. verſ. 18, 19, 20. & 25. and theſe eſpouſals were uſeful and commendable preparatives before the conſummation of marriage.

V. 15. which are here] Which phraſe doth not neceſſarily imply that Lot had other daughters elſewhere, for which are here, or found, is according to the Hebrew word, no more then which.

iniquity] Or, puniſhment. So neer of kin are ſin and puniſhment, that the one followeth the other, as the effect doth the cauſe, and that one name may ſerve to ſignifie both: ſee Gen. 4. 7, 13.

V. 16. laid hold] The mercy of God ſtriveth to overcome mans ſlowneſſe in following his calling. See Joh. 6. 44.

V. 17. he ſaid] That is, neither of the other two Angels, but he who ſtaid behind with Abraham, Chap. 18. 22. while they went toward Sodom, and now in their return met them, and made himſelf known to Lot, as the paſſage betwixt them in the enſuing verſes ſhews.

look not behind] (Luk. 9. 62. Matth. 24. 18.) The words though particularly ſpoken to Lot, were (as the event ſheweth, verſ. 26.) directed to the reſt, who were ſo farre to renounce the delights, and to deteſt the lewdneſſe of Sodom, and to make ſo much haſte from it, as not to vouchſafe a looke towards it.

eſcape leſt] Humane meanes is not to be contemned, though the deliverance be of Divine grace. See v. 12. & Rev. 18. 4.

V. 18. not ſo] (Act. 10. 14.) Lots infirmity of faith, and fearfulneſſe here appears, which makes him ſpeak, as if he ſaw a better way of ſecurity to himſelfe, then God had ſhewed him.

V. 19. I cannot eſcape] See Annot. on v. 22.

V. 20. a little one] A place for the ſmalneſs of it of no great importance, but to be made an example of vengeance. The name of the City, Zoar, or, Tſoar, verſ. 22. ſignifieth little; and being ſo, it is like there was the leſſe ſin, and the more ſafety; and it was but a little way off, and ſo Lot might be ſooner there, then at the mountain.

V. 22. I cannot] Becauſe Gods commandement was to deſtroy the Cities, and ſave Lot; it was thus decreed by God, and thus it needs muſt come to paſſe; wherein appears how much the wicked are beholding to the godly for their company, and how much the godly are bound to God for his benignity. See Iſa. 65. 8.

Zoar] Which before was called Bela, Chap. 14. 2.

V. 24. Sodom and Gomorrah] And the neighbour Cities, Jer. 49. 18. to wit, Admah, and Zeboim, mentioned as examples of Gods wrath, Hoſ. 11. 8. and all four are named together, as partners in the ſame puniſhment, Deut. 29. 23.

brimſtone and fire] A fit puniſhment for ſo horrible a ſin; the ſtinke of brimſtone and the heat of fire, anſwering to the noyſomeneſſe and burning of ſuch uncleanneſſe; a ſin ſo contrary to God and man, that nature ſeems to be inverted to puniſh it, and the pains of hell to come down from heaven, fire, contrary to its nature, deſcending, and rain, contrary to its nature, not quenching, but burning where it fell.

from the Lord] That is, from himſelf, after the Hebrew phraſe, putting the Noun for the Pronoun, as Gen. 1. 27. and 2 Chron. 7. 2. and this ſhewing, that this fierce vengeance came not from any inferiour, but from the ſupreme cauſe, even God himſelf. They who underſtand this place ſo, that the Lord raining from the Lord, ſhould be meant of God the Son, raining from God the Father, ſhew an attentive mind to the doctrine of the Trinity; but hence to argue for that point againſt the Jews, or Anti-Trinitarians is not ſo proper, ſince they may alledge there is an Hebraiſm in the phraſe, whereby the Nown is uſed for the Pronoun, (as hath been ſaid and ſhewn out of Scripture:) therefore the Syrmian Counſel, which anathematizeth thoſe that deny this place for a proof of the Trinity, was rather raſh then truly religious. See Caranz. Sum. Concil. fol. 9. p. b. in duodecimo.

V. 25. and all the plain] Which had five Cities in it, Sodom, and Gomorrah, Admah, and Zeboim, and Zoar, whereof all, but the laſt and the leaſt, were conſumed by the miraculous judgement, verſ. 21. See Deut. 19. 23. which made the Lake Aſphaltites, called the dead Sea, becauſe no living creature is nouriſhed in it, or the ſalt Sea; See Annot. on Chap. 14. 3. which in breadth, is about five or ſix miles, in length, about four or five dayes journey; of which memorable and horrible things are reported by Joſephus de Bello Judaico, lib. 5. cap. 5. and Adrich. Delph. Theatr. ter. Sanct. in the Tribe of Judah, p. 52. nu. 186. p. 44. nu. 66. and in particular, he reporteth that there are trees bearing fruit, fair without, and but with a touch falling into aſhes; the like is teſtified by Solinus, cap. 48. and by Joſephus in the place forecited. So doth God turn a fruitful land into barrenneſſe for the wickedneſſe of them that dwell therein, Pſal. 107. 34.

V. 26. looked back] As too much minding the wicked City, or too little heeding the prohibition of God, who was to be obeyed to a glance or look of the eye, though that glance would have ſaved thoſe Cities.

pillar of ſalt] That place is noted for Salt, as well as for Brimſtone, Gen. 14. 3. & Deut. 29. 23. This change was made as touching her body onely; ſome think ſhe was ſtrook dead with lightning, and that her body was hardned, and fixed in the place where it ſtood, and that it was of a ſalt and brackiſh ſmell, & therefore was called a pillar of ſalt. But Joſephus, according to the letter of the Text, ſaith, ſhe was turned into a pillar of ſalt, Antiq. lib. 1. cap. 12. and that he hath ſeen it, and that it remained unto the day wherein he writ the report of it: and Plin. Nat. Hiſt. lib. 31. cap. 17. maketh mention of ſalt ſo hard, as to ſerve for ſlate for the building of houſes, and to hold out againſt all means of melting. Howſoever, this change was a notable monument of Gods vengeance (to all that paſſed that way) for perpetual memory thereof; for ſalt preſerveth things from periſhing and putrefaction, therefore a perpetual Covenant is called a covenant of ſalt, Num. 18. 19. 2 Chron. 13. 5. and we muſt keep her judgment in memory, for a caveat againſt Apoſtaſie in the leaſt degree, by virtue of our Saviours memorandum, Luk. 17.32.

V. 29. remembred Abraham] It is not unlike that Abraham made particular interceſſion for Lot, at leaſt, that he had him in his mind when he prayed for Sodom; the prayer of one faithful perſon avails much for another, Philem. 22. And Lot had the more need of Abrahams prayer, becauſe, for his living among the wicked, (when he might have done otherwiſe) he deſerved to be made partaker of the temporal puniſhment.

V. 30. mountain] He was bidden before, verſ. 17. to fly to the mountain, but refuſed, and made choice of Zoar as more ſafe; now he is afraid of Zoar, and flyeth for refuge to the mountain. Want of faith in God, and obedience to God, makes us fickle, and unſtable, as Jam. 1.8.

feared to dwell in Zoar, and dwelt in a cave] His fear might be leſt Zoar might be guilty of the ſame ſins for which Sodom was conſumed; or, that he as a noted oppoſite to the Sodomites, ſhould be accuſed as ſome cauſe of their calamity; for the wicked are very forward in criminal charges againſt the godly; witneſs the complaints of the Heathens againſt the ancient Chriſtians, to whom was imputed whatſoever miſery, whether from the hand of God or man, befel mankind. See c. 19.9.

V. 31. not a man] Meaning in the Countrey, which the Lord had now deſtroyed; being ſhut up in a cave, they expected no acceſs of others unto them; elſe from the mountain they might diſcern Zoar remaining, and might (but that their minds were troubled) have thought of their Uncle Abraham, and his numerous family, who lived out of the compaſs of this terrible deſolation, though not very far from the places that were deſtroyed: See v. 28.

V. 32. drunke] For he would never have done that abominable act, if he had not been overcom with wine, which might make him forget what was become of his wife, and ſo cauſe him not to doubt but that ſhe was in his bed.

V. 33. perceived not] Drunkenneſs drowns both the underſtanding, ſenſe, and conſcience: See verſ. 35.

V. 34. this night alſo] Lot offended againſt the chaſtity of both his daughters, in offering them up unto the Sodomites, and they now conſpire againſt his chaſtity, ſo is he puniſhed in the ſame kind, wherein he offended; which is juſt, as from God, though evil in them; ſee Judg. 1.7. 1 Sam. 15.33. 1 King. 19.21.

V. 36. with child] Thus God permitteth him to fall moſt horribly in the ſolitary mountain, whom the wickedneſs of Sodom could not overcom; God ſuffers ſuch commixtions to take effect, while he makes more lawful conjunction fruitleſs, for the greater ſhame of the fact.

V. 37. Moab] Signifieth of the father, or, according to the meaning, a ſon begotten by my father. See Annot. on verſ. 38.

Moabites] Who, as they were born of horrible inceſt, ſo were they and their poſterity vile, and wicked: ſee Numb. 21. 29. & Chap 25. verſ. 1, 2, 3. yet of ſuch came virtuous Ruth, Ruth. 3.11. and of her was our bleſſed Saviour lineally deſcended, Mat. 1.5. So can God out of the corrupteſt ſtock produce the moſt pleaſant, and wholeſom fruit.

V. 38. Ben-ammi] That is, ſon of my people: ſignifying by this, and the former name Moab, verſ. 37. that they rather rejoyced in their ſin then repented for it: Or, rather in their fruitfulneſſe then in their offence; for they minded not carnal pleaſure ſo much as the propagation of poſterity, and to preſerve ſeed of their religious Father; in whoſe example we ſee many proofs of humane infirmity, as in the inconſiderate offer of his daughters to the Sodomites, his feeble faith touching his ſafety; firſt in the Mountain, then in Zoar; his drunkenneſs and inceſt, though without his knowledg, which are recorded for Caution againſt preſumption; for in many things we ſin all, ſaith Saint James, Jam. 3. 2. and againſt indiſcreet imitation of the examples of the beſt, which we muſt take but with limitation, 1 Cor. 11. 1. and for conſolation of thoſe that offend of frailty; for notwithſtanding his diſtruſt, and in part diſobedience, his ſuit was accepted, verſ. 21. and after the worſt of all this, the holy Spirit maketh honourable mention of him by Saint Peter, God delivered juſt Lot vexed with the filthy converſation of the wicked, 2 Pet. 2.7.

CHAP. XX.

Verſ. 1. THence*] That is, from the Plain of Mamre where he entertained the Angels, Chap. 18. 1. and where he had abode above fourteen years, hee removed thence, haply, becauſe the aire was leſſe wholeſome, being neer that noyſome ſulphurious Lake, which was a memorial of Gods vengeance on thoſe wicked Cities deſtroyed by fire and brimſtone. The diſtance betwixt the two places, is meaſured to ſix leagues.

Kadeſh and Shur] Two deſerts.

Gerar] The name both of a Countrey and City of the Philiſtines, bordering upon the Southern part of Canaan.

V. 2. ſaid of Sarah] That is, to thoſe that asked of him.

my ſiſter] Abraham had now twice fallen into this fault; ſuch is mans frailty, that the beſt may fall into the ſame fault more then once. So Jehoſaphat, though reproved by Jehu for joyning in league with wicked Ahab, 2 Chron. 19. 2. did again do the like in his confederacy with Ahaziah, and was again reproved by another Prophet, 2 Chron. 20.37. See Annot. on Gen. Chap. 12. 13.

Abimelech] A name uſual among the Kings of Paleſtine, as Pharaoh with the Kings of Egypt; it is compounded of benignity and authority, ſignifying a Father and a King, for Rulers (and among them Kings are the chief) are Fathers to ſuch as are ſubordinate to them, as 2 King. 5. 18. Job 29. 16. and under that title are they to be honoured by the fifth Commandement; and hereby is implyed that they muſt rule with indulgence, as Fathers; and their ſubjects obey with benevolence, as children.

V. 3. dream] Dreams, for the moſt part, proceed of multitude of buſineſs, or thoughts of the day, Eccleſ. 5. 3. Or from the temperament of the body, or diſpoſition of the mind; but ſometimes they are ſent of God, though very rarely; and when they are ſo, they are for the moſt part imparted to holy perſons, and for holy and weighty reaſons; and they bring their evidence and aſſurance with them, that they are no illuſions of Satan, or of vain fancy, or fiction, as thoſe reproved by the Prophet Jeremiah, Chap. 23. verſ. 25, 27. And hereby God hath a preeminence above all humane teachers, for they can teach onely ſuch as are awake, whereas he can inſtruct ſuch as are aſleep in their dreams, and thereby he can work, both the conviction, and converſion of a ſinner. See Chap. 20. 3.

dead] This was ſaid to him, when Gods hand was upon him in the plagues he ſent upon him and his houſhold, which were not deadly; but now to prevent the accompliſhment of his purpoſe, and the further puniſhment due unto it, God cometh upon him with this commination; which ſheweth how greatly God doth deteſt the breach of marriage: This death was deſerved by that he had done already, and purpoſed to do; and had been certainly inflicted, if he had perfected his ſin. See verſ. 7. See alſo, Chap. 2. 17. & Joh. 3. v. 18.

V. 4. not come neer] He was kept at a modeſt diſtance from her, by Gods reſtraining power, ver. 6.

righteous nation] Here he confeſſeth that God would not puniſh but upon juſt cauſe; therefore whereſoever he puniſheth, the cauſe is juſt, he conceiveth that the plague which his family felt, was for his ſake inflicted upon his other ſubjects, as well as on his own family; for many times the ſubjects ſmart for the ſins of the Rulers: whereof there is example, not onely in the Scripture, as here, and Chap 34. 24. & 2 Sam. 24. 17. but in humane ſtories; and he accounts himſelf and his people righteous, becauſe they knew not Sarah to be a wife.

V. 5. integrity of my heart] As one falling by ignorance, and not doing evil of purpoſe, nor thinking to any one any harme; or not meaning to enjoy her otherwiſe then as his lawful wife, though he had one before, verſ. 17. for Polygamy was not taken for a ſin in thoſe dayes.

V. 6. I with-held thee] God maketh the reſtraint of ſin, Gen. 31. 7. & 1 Sam. 25. 26. and the hearts of Kings are in his hand, Prov. 21. 1. and he doth it ſometimes by ſecret inſtinct, ſometimes by open inſtruction, and ſometimes by divine correction, as in this place.

from ſinning] If Abimelech had lien with Sarah, though he knew not that ſhe had an husband, he had ſinned; for ignorance though it be an excuſe in part, doth not excuſe from the whole, Luk. 12. 48.

againſt me] Though the ſin were immediately againſt Abraham's right, and Sarah's chaſtity, yet God having forbidden all unlawful actions, he cannot ſin againſt man, but he muſt ſinne againſt God. See Gen. 39. 9.

V. 7. reſtore] Reſtitution of that which is unlawfully taken, muſt be made before ſin be remitted, or puniſhment removed. See Lev. 6. 4, 7.

a Prophet] That is, one to whom God revealeth himſelf familiarly; and by the Spirit of Propheſie he did foreſee Chriſt many hundred years before he was born, Joh. 8. 56. and no doubt as a true Prophet did foretel and inſtruct others concerning his coming in the fleſh, therefore do him no harm, Pſal. 105. 15. He reproveth Kings for their ſakes, ſaith the Pſalmiſt, alluding to this of Abimelech and Abraham.

and thou ſhalt live] A godly mans prayer is a ſoveraign cure of the Kings Evil, 1 King. 13. 6. whereby the pooreſt Chriſtian may gratifie the greateſt King.

all that are thine] One ſin of one man, eſpecially of a publick perſon, may raiſe Gods wrath to the ruine of many, 2 Sam.24.17. wherein (though as from God they may juſtly ſuffer for their own ſins)their ſuperiours are puniſhed,in regard of their intereſt in them,and participation with them.

V. 9. offended thee] To bring one to ſin is rather an act of grudge,then of reſpect and love.See Rev.2.14.

kingdome] See Annot.on ver.7.

V. 11.fear of God] He ſheweth that no honeſty can be hoped for where the fear of God is not.See Gen.42.18.& Prov.16.6.

V. 12. my ſiſter] By ſiſter he meaneth his neer kinſwoman; for ſo the Hebrews uſe theſe words, ſee Gen. 13.8. and ſhe is thought to be the ſame with Iſcah the daughter of Haran Abrahams brother,Gen.11.28,29. Of ſuch marriages ſee Annot.on Chap.11.29.& on Lev.18.14.

the daughter of,&c.] That is, my fathers grand-child (for grand-children are reputed as ſons and daughters, Chap. 31. 28.Exod.2.18.) but not the grand-child of my mother, becauſe it is like,his brother Haran and he had divers mothers, though the ſame father.

V. 16. a covering of the eyes] Moſt Commentators complain of the difficulty of this place,which is covered or vailed over with ambiguity of the pronoun, Hu, and of the noun Cheſeph; the former word is rendred as,referring to the gift of the King, or to the perſon of Abraham; and the word Cheſeph is tranſlated (by the beſt Hebricians) pieces of ſilver; and thoſe pieces ſome will have to be very little pieces of ſilver; ſome half a ſhekel; ſome a whole ſhekel; hence the ſenſe may be, referring Hu to the gift,that with that money (if it were a ſmall piece like the Spaniſh Marevedines) whereof fourty make up the price of a Romane penny, Marian. de ponderibus & Menſuris, cap. 23. p. 119.) ſhe might buy her a veil; as if it were half a ſhekel, or a whole one, it might buy her many veiles from time to time, as ſhe ſhould have occaſion to uſe variety or new ſupply; and it is probable it might be ſhekels, (or ſome coyn of value) both becauſe he was a King that beſtowed the gift,who was like to be more liberal then another man; and becauſe the obſervation of ſome concerning the word Cheſeph (which ſignifieth ſilver) is,that when it is named alone it ſtands for a ſhekel; as Num. 7.85.as where ſhekel is ſet down.and the metal not expreſſed, it is meant of ſilver,and not of any other metal; as Exod. 30. ver. 13.15.compared with Chap.28.25,26.and ſo this with the ſheep, oxen,men-ſervants,and maid-ſervants given to Abraham, with liberty to live where he liked in his Land, was as well a royal munificence, as a reaſonable recompence for the wrong done unto him. Of ſhekels ſee Annot. on Chap. 23.15. And the uſe of the veile ſome conceive to be to conceal her beauty, (that others might not be tempted by it;) others, that by wearing of a veile ſhe ſhould profeſs her ſelf a married woman, (as Rebekah,Chap.24.65. See 1 Cor.11.10. and ſo might not be miſtaken and ſolicited as a ſingle woman, as now ſhe was thought to be by Abimelech,ver.5.and by Pharaoh before, Ch. 12.ver.15.) Others, ſhamefaſtly to cover her ſelf, becauſe her deceit was now detected.) Others, to make her ſo brave and glorious,as to caſt a kind of awfull fear on beholders, that they might not (at leaſt any of the vulgar ſort) preſume to violate her chaſtity. Of theſe the two firſt Expoſitions are worthy of the firſt place for probability and appearance of truth and pertinency to the words of Abimelech; But if we refer the word Hu to the perſon,it importeth that by owning and acknowledging ſo worthy a man for her husband, the reverent regard of him ſhould ſtand betwixt her and the eyes of wantons; ſo that ſhee ſhould be thereby as veyled, or covered as with a veyl, that they could not ſee her, at leaſt they would not luſtfully look upon her,with any hope to enjoy her.

unto all that are with thee and with all] There is no more in the Hebrew Text; therefore for ſupplement of the ſenſe the word others or elſe-where is to be added; the meaning is, that ſhee muſt make uſe of her veyl in their company with whom ſhe commonly converſeth, that they may not have ſuch a full view of her beauty as may invite their concupiſcence to deſire it; and when ſhe goeth abroad where ſhe is not known, ſhe muſt put on her veyl, where ſhe may not only be luſtfully looked on, but others deceived,as Abimelech was.

reproved] God cauſed this heathen King to reprove her, becauſe ſhe diſſembled, ſeeing God had given her an husband as a veyl and defence; and ſhe was reproved not onely by words, but by deeds, for his integrity compared with her deceitful and dangerous enſnaring of her ſelf and him, makes her the worthier of rebuke; eſpecially if he be conſidered as an heathen King; ſhe as a profeſſor of the right faith, and religion, and the wife of a Prophet.

V. 18. cloſed up] So that (as many obſerve) ſuch as were not with child could not conceive, and they that were with child could not bring forth; but there was ſomewhat more in this plague then this; for if that were all,it could not ſo ſoon be obſerved as a common chaſtiſement; and this was ſo both to male and female, for it was upon Abimelech as wel as upon his wife, or other women, verſ. 17. It is like then thoſe paſſages of nature which appertain to generation and conception, were ſo ſhut up, that men and women could not but with pain, and without hope of iſſue company together. Thus is barrenneſſe ſometimes the puniſhment of incontinency, whereof there is a memorable example in Solomon,whoſe 1000 female bed-fellows left him but one ſon, Rehoboam, to reign in his ſtead, and him ſuch a one as was nothing like his father, either in prudence or proſperity.

CHAP. XXI.

Verſ. 1. V*Iſited*] Viſiting is ſometimes taken for ſome actuall evidence of Gods gracious promiſe, or providence to thoſe he loveth. See Exod.4.31.Ruth 1.6.as the Lord viſited Hannah, ſo that ſhe conceived and bare three ſons, 1 Sam.2. 21. And as for production, ſo for preſervation, Thou haſt granted me life, and favour, and thy viſitation hath preſerved my ſpirit, Job 10.12. And it is uſed not only of temporal, but of ſpiritual favours,as of that moſt gracious miſſion of the Meſſiah our bleſſed Saviour, of which it is ſaid in the Song of Zachariah, He hath viſited and redeemed his people, Luke 1.68. And it is alſo uſed in a ſenſe of ſevere juſtice, as in the ſecond Commandement,Exo. 20.5. & Deut.2.9. and in many more places: But here Gods viſiting of Sarah, is the juſt performance of his gracious promiſe for her fruitfulneſſe at the time prefixed, ver.2. foretold,Chap. 18. ver.10. Promiſes being as a ſending to ſome one that is abſent by another, and performing being as the viſiting of a friend by perſonal preſence.

V. 3. Iſaac] God gave him that name when he prophecied of his birth, Gen.17.19. and it ſignifieth Laughter, becauſe Abraham laughed at the newes of their promiſed fruitfulneſſe in their old age, Gen.17.17. though his laughter were of admiration,Sarahs was of ſuſpition or miſtruſt of the promiſe,for which ſhe is reproved, Chap.18.13,14. wherein ſhe was now reformed and laughed without offence, verſ.6. and conceived that all that heard of his birth would laugh with her, as partakers and approvers of her joy. See Eſay 54.1.

V. 4. eight dayes old] See Annot. on Chap.17.12.

V. 6. made me to laugh] She laughed before,and was blamed for it; ſee Annot. on Chap.18.12. now ſhe will laugh for another cauſe, in another manner, not, as before, with doubt or irreverence, but with joyful aſſurance.

V. 7. who would have ſaid] It was more then nature could effect, or natural reaſon could conjecture; for women commonly give over child-bearing after fifty years of age, Plin. nat. hiſt. lib.7. cap. 14. And hence was the commendation of her faith,for though at firſt ſhe doubted,ſoon after ſhe believed,and thereupon conceived, Heb.11.11.

give children ſuck] Which may be meant by an Enallage of number, the plural for the ſingular, as Gen.46.23. or becauſe though yet ſhe had but one, by the ſame power that made her the mother of one, ſhe might be mother of more; or becauſe of the abundance of her milk,which was enough for divers children; and ſo they that abound in milk give an almes of their ſuperfluity,as nurſes to thoſe Infants to whom they are no mothers.

Suck] Sarahs practice may ſerve for a pattern to all women, whom God hath enabled to give ſuck, as well as to bring forth, that when God hath made them mothers,they make themſelves nurſes; for the bleſſing of bearing,and nouriſhing in nature are joyned together, Pſal.22.9. as the miſcarrying womb, and dry breaſts are threatned together as a curſe, Hoſ. 9. 14. a wilfull curſe to thoſe that againſt the courſe of nature dry up thier milk, and will not beſtow it, as God and nature ordained it, for the bringing up of the child they have brought forth; their greatneſſe will not excuſe their neglect, for Sarah was wife to a very great man,reputed a mighty Prince, Gen. 23. 6. highly eſteemed, and ſought unto by Kings for favour, and confederacy, Gen.20. 14, 15. & verſ. 22. & 23. of this Chapter; and ſhe was Miſtreſſe of three hundred and eighteen men-ſervants, beſides hand-maids in her family, the government whereof might require a great deal of attendance; beſides, ſhe was aged; but neither greatneſſe, nor buſineſſe, nor agedneſſe keeps her from this motherly duty; which is indeed to be preferred before the outward acts of publick piety; and therefore Hannah became a mother, and reſolved as a Nurſe to tarry at home from the Temple, until the weaning of her child; and that reſolution was confirmed by the conſent of her husband, 1 Sam. 1. 23.

V. 8. weaned] It is not ſaid at what age; nor is the weaning of children to be ſtinted to a certain time,(as ſome do to two years,ſome to three,as in the ſecond of Maccab, 7. 27. ſome to five, becauſe when the life of man was longer, his infancy was proportionably longer,and ſo ſome conceive Iſaacs weaning to be the fifth year of his age) but according to the health and ſtrength of the child, to digeſt ſtronger meat then milk, it is to be proportioned; this difference of diet and growth, is applyed to ſpiritual proficiency,Heb.5 12,13,14.

Feaſt] The making of a Feaſt at the birth, is not ſo ſeaſonable, for then the mother is weak, nor at the circumciſion (as the Iews do, Buxtorf.c.2.Synagog.Judæor. miſapplying this example of Abraham to their practice) but when the child hath eſcaped the greateſt danger of his nurſing, and groweth on to good hope of health, and ſtrength, then it is convenient by a Feaſt of rejoycing among men, to profeſs thankſgiving to God, who hath given the occaſion of ſuch gratulation, and meanes, and liberty for a liberal enjoyment of the creatures with cheerfulneſs; for he hath given not onely bread for mans ſuſtenance, but wine to make glad his heart, and oyl to make him have a ſhining countenance, Pſal.104.15. See 1 Sam.1.24,25. And if it be true, (as ſome Hebrews obſerve) then all the while the child ſuckt, the husband and wife did forbear familiar ſociety, then this rejoycing and ſolemnity might be as a Feaſt for a new marriage.

V. 9. mocking] The word Metſahhek is properly rendred laughing; but here and elſe-where it is taken for mocking; as Gen.19.14. Or, deriſion, or laughing to ſcorn; as Ezek.23.32. which may be ſo uſed, as to be counted a perſecution, as this was, Gal.4.29. See Neh.2.19. & Chap.4.1. What the manner was, whether in words or geſtures, or both, and what the cauſe, whether becauſe of his heirſhip, or by reaſon of ſome childiſh miſcarriage, the Text ſaith nothing: ſome think that Iſhmaels mocking was an inviting of him to Idolatry by way of ſport and play, according to that in Exod.32.6. but Sarah who obſerved it, apprehended it as ſome bitter, and malignant ſcorn, which raiſed her wrath to a great height, as the next verſe ſheweth. With this mocking of the Egyptian womans Son (as ſome conceive) began the four hundred yeares of Egyptian affliction; but for that, ſee Annotations on Chap.15. ver.13.

V. 10. caſt out] (Gal.4.30.) Of this the Apoſtle, Gal.4.24. maketh an Allegory; which (ſo far as concerneth conformity to this Text) a late godly Preacher now with God, in his Book of Prototypes, hath briefly noted thus. Here be two mothers, a bond-woman, and a free-woman: two Covenants, the Covenant of works, and of grace; two manners of begetting, by promiſe, or by faith; and after the fleſh, or by nature; two kinds of children, bond-men, and free-men; and the bond-men perſecuting the free: at this perſecution Sarah (though otherwiſe a good woman) breaketh out into paſſion; caſt out, &c. yet there might be reaſon why ſhe deſired their removal out of the family, both in reſpect of Hagar, and of her Son; for now Sarah was a mother, ſhe could not, as before, endure her partnerſhip in her husbands bed; and his dear affection to Iſhmael expreſſed, Gen.17.18. might make both the mother, and the ſon leſs reſpective both of Sarah and Iſaac; and by Iſhmael as Iſaac was mocked now, ſo he might be corrupted in his manners, becauſe he was wicked; beſides the honour of his holy Pedegree would not be preſerved ſo pure without mixture, and confuſion, as if they had their dwellings at a diſtance: and therefore ſome conceive that Sarahs rejection of the ſon of the bond-woman was not onely paſſionate but Prophetical, as foreſeeing and foreſpeaking the ſeparation of the holy ſeed from the profane, whereof Abraham through his fond affection to Iſhmael was not at that time ſo apprehenſive as Sarah was; nor did either of them perhaps ſo underſtand or lay to heart as they ſhould have done their corrupt choice of an evil courſe for accompliſhment of the Divine promiſe, as if God would not keep his word unleſs they betook themſelves to ſuch a ſinful ſupply by Hagar the Egyptian, a daughter or deſcendent of the race of Cham, who derided his own father; and this might juſtly occaſion the diſturbance of their houſhold peace, as before in the pride and contempt of a ſervant towards her miſtreſs, ſo here of a brother toward his brother.

V. 11. becauſe of his ſon] Not becauſe of Hagar, which ſheweth that ſhe was not his wife; for if ſo, he ſhould have preferred her before his ſon; nor would he ſo far have given her over to the correction of Sarah as he did, Gen.16.6. had ſhe been a wife; ſo that he had authority over her not as a wife, but onely as a ſervant.

V. 12. hearken unto her] Sometimes the Superiour muſt yield to the Inferiour, eſpecially betwixt man and wife, who ſhould never be angry both at once, but one bear with the others paſſion, and for a time give way unto it: there is alſo a diſcreet condeſcending ſometimes of Kings to their Subjects, which maketh them afterwards more to be beloved, and better obeyed. See 1 King.12.7. 2 Sam.18.4. Here though God biddeth Abraham hearken unto Sarah in all that ſhe hath ſaid, he giveth not away the authority of the husband to the will of the wife; but for this particular caſe God ratifieth her words, whereto he yields, not as in obedience to her paſſionate appointment but in his own diſcretion and duty to God.

in Iſaac] (Rom.9.7,8. Heb.11,18.) The promiſed ſeed ſhall be counted from Iſaac, and not from Iſhmael; and the ſpiritual prerogative ſhall be intailed to him, who by a ſupernatural bleſſing is born unto thee.

V. 13. a nation] (Gen.17.20. & ver, 18. of this Chapter.) The Iſhmaelites ſhall come of him.

V. 14. early] Before, while Sarah required the caſting out of Hagar and Iſhmael, it was grievous in his ſight, becauſe of his ſon; now having Gods command for it, he is very forward to perform it.

bread] By bread may be underſtood other neceſſaries, for humane ſuſtenance, as in the Lords prayer, and Mat.6.36. compared with Mat.14.15. yet being no more then Hagar could carry on her ſhoulder, it was ſtrange that ſo rich, ſo good, and kind a man as Abraham, would ſend them away ſo ſlenderly furniſhed with proviſion. It is not unlike that he meant to ſend after them other ſupply; or that God ſo ordered their departure, to exerciſe his own providence in the particular paſſages that followed afterwards.

and the child] Iſhmael at this time was about eighteen years of age, which hath troubled many in the expoſition of this Text, ſuppoſing the Text ſaith, that the bread, and bottle, and child were all laid on Hagars ſhoulder; but the word child, is to be conſtrued with the Verb took, going before, not with the Verb put, and the words are to be read with a parentheſis, (as our laſt Tranſlation hath it) thus; And Abraham roſe up early in the morning and took bread, and a bottle of water, and gave it unto Hagar (putting it on her ſhoulder) and the child; and ſo the ſenſe is clear, and the abſurdity of ſuch an importable burden ſhunned. The like ſpeech is in Exod.29.3. thou ſhalt bring them (that is, the unleavened cakes) (in a basket) with the bullock, and the two rams; where the words in a basket, muſt be put in a parentheſis, elſe they will run as if the bullock, &c. were put in the basket with the cakes.

ſent her away] True faith renounceth all natural affections, to obey Gods commandement: this is further manifeſted by Abrahams readineſs to offer up Iſaac in ſacrifice, Chap.22.3.

the wilderneſs of Beerſheba] So called not when this ſtory was acted, but afterwards, ver.31.

V. 15. caſt the child] Theſe words are not to be underſtood, as if the child had been laid on her ſhoulders, for ſhe might do ſo if he were led in her hand, being almoſt ſpent with drought and thirſt in the wilderneſs, and unable to go any further; or fainting in the way ſhe might ſit down, and ſet him on her lap, and thence being hopeleſs of life, might in a pang of paſſion caſt him from her; and this expoſition is further cleared, ver.18. where Hagar is bidden to lift up the lad, and hold him in her hand; not lay him on her ſhoulder, or bear him in her armes.

V. 17. God heard] God hath a merciful ear to the voice of miſery. See Gen.16.11. Exod.22.23,27. 2 King.13.4. and that every where, in the wilderneſs, (as here) as well as in the City, and therefore every where men ſhould lift up pure hands in prayer, without doubting, 1 Tim.2.8.

where he is] Gods preſence and providence are not fixed or confined to any place; whereſoever miſery is, there is not only his preſence, but his power and pity to give relief.

V. 19. opened her eyes] Except God open our eyes we can neither ſee, nor uſe the means before us: yet was ſhe not blind before, but either her mind was paſſionately diſturbed, that ſhe did not mark what was before her, or her eye-ſight, as touching that object, was miraculouſly reſtrained; as the eyes of the two Diſciples going to Emmaus were with-held, ſo that they knew not our Saviour when they talked with him, Luk.24.15. Or, her much weeping might for a time cauſe a dimneſs of her ſight; but whatſoever was the impediment to her perceiving of the Well it was now removed.

V. 20. with the child] As touching outward things, God cauſed him to proſper, Gen.17.20.

V. 21. the wilderneſſe of Paran] A great wilderneſſe by which the Iſraelites paſſed from Egypt to Canaan, of which Adrichom. Delph. ſaith, it is ſuch an horrid wilderneſſe, ſo deſtitute both of meat and water, that neither man, nor beaſt, nor bird live in it, Adrich. Delph. Theatr. Ter. Sanct. pag.116. Object. How then could Iſhmael dwell there? Anſw. The Deſert is ſaid by that Authour to be eleven dayes journey over the length of it; and though the moſt part of it be extremely barren, all is not ſo; and Iſhmael being a wilde man, Gen.16.12. he was fitter to live in the wilderneſſe, then in any civil ſociety; and there is a part of that wilderneſſe called Kedar, from one of Iſhmaels ſons of that name, Chap.25.13. or the Region of the Iſhmaelites or Hagarens, Pſal.83.6. ſituate toward Egypt, where they lived in Tents, and maintained themſelves by prey and pillage: the wilderneſſe of Judea, Mat.3.1. likewiſe was partly deſart, and partly inhabited.

his mother took] (Gen.24.4. & 28.2. Judg.14.2.) It is the right of Parents to diſpoſe of their children in marriage; for they are in Gods ſtead, and have as juſt a title to them, as to any goods they have; ſo that without wrong, they cannot (but by their conſent, much leſs againſt their good will) be alienated from them, and transferred to another family.

V. 22. at that time] Not at the time of Iſhmaels marriage laſt mentioned, but the time of Iſaac's weaning, which was celebrated with a ſolemn feaſt, ver.8.

Abimelech and Phicol] Abimelech a King, and Phicol a Captain, ſeek for friendſhip with Abraham: for God can eaſily make the godly gracious with the greateſt men, Neh. 2. 6. Dan. 3, 30. & Chap. 6. 2. Gen. 41. 37, 38.

V. 23. ſwear that thou] (1 Sam. 30. 15.) Heb. if thou ſhalt lye unto me. That is, thou ſhalt not lye unto me; the ſpeech is ſuſpenſive, or imperfect, concealing a curſe, which is to be underſtood as imprecated againſt the party that takes the oath, and doth not keep it. See Annot. on Chap. 14. 23.

V. 24. I will ſwear] It is a lawful thing to take an oath in matters of importance, to teſtifie the truth, and aſſure others of our ſincerity, and to put an end to a controverſie, Heb. 6. 16. Queſt. But was it lawful for Abraham, being by Gods free gift, Lord of Canaan, to acknowledge a King in that Countrey, and to promiſe peace to him and his heires? Some Rabbines ſay, it was Abrahams ſin to make a covenant for enjoyment of any right in the Land of Canaan, and that God puniſhed him for it many wayes. Anſw. Firſt, though he had a right for the future, by virtue of the promiſe, he had yet no preſent poſſeſſion of any part of it; for he lived there rather as a ſojourner, then a rightful Inhabitant. Secondly, he promiſed but for himſelf, not for his poſterity, though to Abimelech, and his poſterity. Thirdly, the oath was but againſt falſe dealing, which Abraham might keep without any prejudice to the right of himſelf, or his ſeed.

V. 25. Abraham reproved Abimelech] Concerning a Well which Abimelechs ſervants had taken from his ſervants, as touching their propriety and uſe: before he entred covenant with him, he freely diſcovered the exception he had againſt him, that all occaſion of grudge removed, their friendſhip might be ſurely grounded in ſincerity of affection, without diſſimulation.

V. 26. neither heard I] Wicked ſervants do many evils unknown to their maſters, though done in their maſters names, as in their right, or for their uſe: ſo did Gehazi belye his good maſter Eliſha, and abuſe Naaman the Syrian, 2 King. 5. 22.

V. 27. Abraham took ſheep and oxen, and gave them] Abimelech gave Abraham ſheep and oxen, men-ſervants, and maid-ſervants, when he diſmiſſed him, Chap. 20. 14. Now Abraham preſents him with the gifts for the cattel; ſome think they were a return of the ſame, leſt Abimelech ſhould ſay, I have made Abraham rich, as he ſaid when he refuſed the gifts of the King of Sodome, Chap. 14. 22, 23. which he did not ſo well think of when he received them, as upon a ſecond conſideration afterwards; but it is more probable that Abraham being rich in cattel, gave the King a Preſent out of his own ſtore, and Kings, though they have no need, receive ſuch tokens of reſpect from their inferiours, and ſometimes the omiſſion of them is branded with reproach, as being a ſign of contempt of royal majeſty, 1 Sam. 10. 27. And he might give it him out of ingenuous gratitude for favours formerly received, or out of a generous diſpoſition as a covenanter with the King at this time, to be upon eaven terms with him, for in ſuch a capitulation as this, the covenanters, as they are covenanters (whatſoever other diſparities are betwixt them) are equal. Or Abraham might by ſuch a teſtimony of tranſaction betwixt them, the better preſerve the memory of his intereſt to the Well he had digged, and which by the violence of Abimelechs ſervants, was taken from him; but for the formal ratification of his right, the ſeven ewe lambs were tendered, whereof in the next verſe.

V. 30. that they may be witneſſe] That is, that they may be memorandums ſerving for tokens of atteſtation to the truth; ſo an heap of ſtones is made a witneſſe betwixt Jacob and Laban, Gen. 31. 46, 48.

V. 31. Beerſheba] There were two places of that name, the one in the Tribe of Zabulon, ſituate betwixt upper and neather Galilee, Adrichom. Delph. p. 137. which Joſephus, with other places fortified for repulſe of the Romanes, Joſeph. of the wars of the Jews, lib. 2. cap. 25. The other place called Beerſheba was in the Southern part of the lot of the Tribe of Judah, Joſh. 15. 21, 28. 1 King. 19. 3. though afterwards it was allowed to be a part of the Inheritance of the Tribe of Simeon, Joſh. 19. 2. and there was a Well called Beerſheba, and a City of the ſame name. The name is compounded of Beer a well, and Shebang, which with a point on the left hand of the letter Sin, ſignifieth ſatiety and abundance; and ſo the meaning may be, that this Well was a fountain yeelding water in abundance; but with a point on the right hand of the letter Schin, it ſignifieth an oath, and the number of ſeven, which in this ſtory do well agree together, for at the covenant making for the Well, Abraham gave to Abimelech ſeven Ewe lambs, ver. 30. and ſome Jewiſh Cabaliſts ſay, that an oath is called Shebang, ſeven, becauſe they that ſwear, did bind themſelves by the oath to refuſe ſeven things if they brake it; The ſame name was renewed, (which haply had been buried when the Wells were ſtopped up, until Iſaac opened them again. Chap. 26. 18.) upon his renewing of the Covenant with Abimelech, according to that which was made here by Abraham his father; though Iſaac's oath was not confirmed with ſeven lambs as his fathers was, yet ſome will have it to have ſome reference to the number of ſeven, either becauſe that number is a number of perfection, or, becauſe it was the ſeventh Well that Iſaac had digged: neither of which reaſons have any ground in the Scripture, therefore in that place, as in this, it was called the well, rather of the oath or ſwearing, then of ſeven: yet in both reſpects it is a fit memorial of the Covenant betwixt them. See Annot. on Chap. 26. 33.

V. 32. Covenant] This ſerves for that the godly, as touching outward things, may make peace with the wicked that know not God.

V. 33. Grove] Abraham did dwell before in the plain of Mamre, under the ſhadow of trees, Gen. 18. 4, 8. and it may be he took an eſpecial pleaſure to be in the open air, and under the ſhade; but he uſed it to a religious purpoſe, for there he called upon the name of the Lord the everlaſting God; which is thought to be a place by him ſet apart for performance of the exerciſes of piety, prayer, and ſacrifices, and from thence he might have wood for ſacrifices; and it ſeems there was ſome ſpecial choyce to be made of that, (as there was a ſpecial fire for kindling of the ſacrifices afterwards, ſee Annot. on Lev. 9. 24.) for when he was to ſacrifice his ſon Iſaac, he carried wood with him three dayes journey, Gen. 22. 3, 4. though it is not like but in or neer the place where the ſacrifice was to be made there was wood enough for that purpoſe; From his example it is like men took up the manner to exerciſe their Religion in Groves; and from thence the Devils took occaſion to abuſe it to ſerve Idols there, Deut. 12. 2. Judg. 3. 7. 2 King. 17. 10. Iſa. 1. 29. & 57. 5. Jer. 17. 2. Amos 8. 14. which were therefore peremptorily prohibited as hateful unto God, Deut. 16. 21.

CHAP. XXII.

Verſ. 1. AFter theſe things] How long after, it appears not by the Text, ſave only that Iſaac was then of ſufficient age and ſtrength to carry a burden of wood for ſacrifice, ver. 6. which is probably conceived to be about the 25. year of his age, Joſeph. Antiq. l. 1. c. 14.

tempt Abraham] The word Naſah, neceſſarily ſignifieth no more then to try, or to prove, but becauſe that is uſually done by the devil, and the wicked, to ſeduce unto ſin, and that mans corruption works that way of it ſelf, Jam. 1. 14. and is further wrought upon by the devil, and the world, to that evil, in the ſame way, the word Tempt, is moſt commonly taken in an ill ſenſe, for ſolicitation to ſin, as Mat. 4. 1. and elſewhere; but ſo God tempteth no man, Jam. 1. 13. But his tempting is a proof, or tryal of a man for his diſcovery (not to God, who by his omniſcience knows him ſo perfectly, that he needs none experience of him) but to himſelf, or others; and this as it is alwayes good in him, ſo is it alwayes done to a good end, as Deut. 8. 16. Chap. 13. 3. Jam. 1. 12. 1 Cor. 10. 13. The temptations of Abraham were many, ſome reckon them to ten, which are various in their kinds; as firſt concerning his habitations; ſecondly concerning the perſons that were dear unto him; and thirdly, concerning himſelf. Firſt, for his habitations he was thrice to change them, twice upon command. See Act. 7. 3. Gen. 12. 1. and once upon neceſſity, Gen. 12. 10. Secondly, concerning the perſons that were dear unto him, and that either within his family, or without; within his family, and ſo he was tempted four times; twice by occaſion of Sarah her taking away, Gen. 12. 15. & Chap. 20. once by reaſon of the diſcord betwixt Sarah and Hagar when ſhe was with child, Gen. 16. 5. laſtly, at the ejection of Iſhmael and his mother, Gen. 21. 11. and without his family, when he was to betake himſelf to war for the reſcue of his kinſman Lot taken captive, Gen. 14. 14. Thirdly, concerning himſelf, firſt, when he apprehended an horrour of great darkneſſe, Gen. 15. 12. and ſecondly, when he received the Covenant of circumciſion.

V. 2. take thy ſon] This is (as ſome reckon) the tenth time, that Abraham was tryed, and proved by occaſions of diſcovery of what goodneſſe, weakneſſe, or wickedneſſe was in him; when he was called to come forth of his countrey he knew not whither; his faith, and obedience were both tryed, and ſhewed; when he was driven by famine to flee for ſuccour to Egypt; his faith, and patience were proved in the ſtrife betwixt Lots herdſmen, and his; and in the houſhold jarres betwixt Sarah and Hagar, his humility, patience, and [illegible] were tryed, and made known divers times; by the [illegible] of his wife twice, his cowardiſe and weak faith were tryed and diſcovered; and by the captivity of Lot, and his reſcue of him, his wiſedome, his prudence, and courage were tryed; when at ninety nine years old the Sacrament of circumciſion was impoſed upon him, and after that his ſon Iſhmael ſent away from him; and now laſt, and moſt of all, his better ſon, Iſaac to be offered up by him, his Faith and obedience even to ſelf denyal in the higheſt degree were tryed as gold in the fire, and gloriouſly manifeſted.

onely ſon] Thy onely ſon that is remaining in thy family; for Iſhmael was gone; or thy legitimate ſon, as oppoſed to a baſtard, ſtard, Heb. 12. 8. as was Iſhmael begotten of the bond-woman.

whom thou loveſt] With an eſpecial dearneſſe, as being the ſon of thine old age, and of thy wives miraculous conception, above the courſe, and force of nature, and a ſon worthy to be beloved, for his piety and obedience.

Moriah] In this Land there were two eminent Mountains, Sion, and Moriah, upon which the Temple was built by Solomon, 2 Chron. 3. 1. this is here meant from which the whole Countrey had its name, though it had not that name untill afterwards. See verſ. 14.

burnt-offering] In this Command, all that was in Abraham, as a man, a father, an husband, a believer, a profeſſour of Religion, were put to tryal. As a man, it was againſt humanity, to ſlay the Innocent, though but a ſervant, or a ſtranger: As a father, it was unnatural to kill his own child, though he had never ſo many; but having but one, and that one ſo worthy of all fatherly affection, it was much more like to be abhorred: As an husband, how could he ever expect any peace, or comfort in his wife, if he ſhould ſhed his bloud, againſt whom ſhe could not endure either a ſcoffe, or a flout? As a Believer, or profeſſour of Religion, he might be diſpoſed to diſobey, becauſe Iſaac was the ſon of promiſe, Gen. 21. 12. and to kill ſuch a ſon, would make Infidels blaſpheme his God, and Religion, for ſuch a fact. There was yet more tryal in this Command, for if it might have been done ſuddenly, or ſecretly, or by ſome more eaſie kind of death, it would have ſtirred up the leſſe reluctancy; but it muſt be adviſedly done, upon three dayes deliberation, openly upon an high hill, cruelly by cutting his throat, ripping up his bowels, and burning his quarters in the fire upon the Altar; and what if Iſaac, being a luſty young man, upon his offer ſhould reſiſt, and by his example be tempted to return upon him with the like bloudy violence? Againſt all theſe mighty objections his faith ſtandeth up, and his piety to God prevaileth ſo, that he readily ſetteth upon the ſervice.

V. 3. roſe up early] (Gen. 21. 14.) It ſeems he had the command given by Divine revelation that night; and though it were ſo, yet he was well aſſured it came from God; for though ſometimes men may think they have a Divine revelation, when it is but an illuſion, (as one may think he heares a Drum, or a Bell, when it is ſome humming of wind in his head, or ſome other ſound without) yet when there is a Divine revelation indeed, it uſually brings with it not only the matter revealed, but certain evidence, and aſſurance, that it is a Divine revelation, as a Bell rung, or Drum beaten cloſe by the ear, whereof there can be no doubt at all; and as he knew the command was from God, ſo his faith told him that God was al-ſufficient, Gen. 17. 1. and able to ſecure him from all evil conſequences of his command, and to reſtore Iſaac to life again, though he were dead, Heb. 11. 9. his faith and obedience, both for the ſacrifice it ſelf, and for the expedition to perform it, are to be remembred for a ſingular example of ſelf denyal.

V. 4. the third day] From Gerar, not from the city Gerar, but from the Countrey, for he dwelt in Beerſheba, as may be collected out of Chap 21. 31. and after the ſacrifice he returned to Beerſheba, verſ. 19. of this Chap. Now Mount Moriah from that place was but one dayes journey with ordinary expedition; but he proceeded very leiſurely, and with much deliberation, having a matter of the greateſt moment in hand that ever was impoſed on him, or any one elſe: yet Adricom. Delph. ſaith, the diſtance was twenty leagues, each of them of an hours journey.

ſaw the place] God having given him ſome ſign whereby he might know it.

V. 5. the lad] The Original word Naghnar, (properly ſignifying one in his minority for age and growth, and therefore uſually rendred lad, or boy,) is many times taken for one of maturity both for time and ſtature, as ver. 6. Chap. 34. 19. & 41. 12. Exod. 33. 11. 2 Sam. 18. 29.

and come again] That Abraham might not be thought to lye, it is conceived, that for Iſaacs return, he meant it by a Divine reſurrection after ſacrifice, as Heb. 11. 19. Or, that by the Spirit of Prophecy (though he knew it not) he foretold his preſervation from ſacrifice.

V. 8. God will provide] The onely way to overcome all temptations, is to reſt upon Gods providence.

V. 9. bound Iſaac] It is like his father had declared to him Gods commandement, whereunto he ſhewed himſelf obedient; and this obedience is as rare an example for a ſon, as that of Abraham for a father: and in this reſpect the more admirable, becauſe Abraham had Gods word for his act, but Iſaac onely his fathers word for his obedience: and herein, as he was the onely ſon of his father, a good ſon, obedient to bear the wood, and to ſubmit unto death; he was a type of Chriſt, who was the onely Son of God his Father, and was bound, Mar. 15. 1. and made to bear his croſſe, Joh. 19. 17. and was obedient unto death, Phil. 2. 8.

V. 11. the Angel] The Angel of the Covenant, that is, Chriſt, as his own words ſhew, verſ. 12, 16.

out of heaven] Gen. 21. 17.

Abraham, Abraham] The word is doubled, and the doubling of it imports the greatneſſe of the peril, and the urgent neceſſity of preſent prohibition.

V. 12. Lay not thine hand] God, though he love obedience even unto death, delights not in ſacrifices of mans bloud; that is of too great a price to be offered as a type, becauſe he is the Image of God; too cheap, being but the Image, and now corrupted, to ſerve for a propitiatory ſacrifice; therefore the Devil abuſed the Jews, and Gentiles to make ſacrifices by this example; wherein they ſhould obſerve as well Gods prohibition of the thing, accepting the will for the deed. See 2 Cor. 8. 12. as the promptneſſe of Abraham to do it, Thus again was Iſaac a type of Chriſt, viz. of his reſurrection, riſing up from the Altar, on which he was bound for a ſacrifice.

now I know] This is ſpoken after the manner of men; for God knowes all things by one act of Intelligence, without experience. Or, the meaning may be, that God now made his faith and forwardneſs known by this extraordinary act of ſelf-denyall and obedience; ſo what God already knew, Pſal. 139. 1, 2. David deſireth him to know, to ſearch, and to try, verſ. 23. it may be to draw it out into ſome open evidence diſcernable by others.

thou feareſt God] His fear is mentioned rather then his love, though both concurred in his obedience, becauſe in his ſervice he eſpecially requireth a filial fear, Pſal. 2. 11.

behind] That way it is like the voyce of the Angel ſounded, and by the voyce behind him, Iſa. 30. 21. he was called to look back, and looking back he ſaw the Ram.

V. 13. a ram] Verſ. 7. Iſaac asketh, where is the lambe, and verſ. 8. Abraham anſwered, God will provide a lambe; and here it is ſaid, that Abraham ſaw a Ram, and did offer him up in ſacrifice; yet no contradiction, for a young he-lamb of a quarter old may have horns which may be entangled in a buſh, and may be called a Ram.

caught in a thicket] The Ram was a Type of Chriſt, as in the thicket held by the head, for Chriſt was crowned with a crown of thorns; but eſpecially as ſacrificed on the Altar. Some obſerve, that as the Ram was equivalently Iſaac, though he was not offered, becauſe he was offered in his ſtead; ſo the offering of Chriſts humanity had the value and virtue his Divinity in it, (though that could not be ſacrificed) becauſe of the neer relation of the one to the other.

V. 14. called the name Jehovah-Jireh] The ſame letters with variation of the pricks, will make either an active ſenſe, The Lord will ſee: or a paſſive ſenſe, The Lord will be ſeen. The name is added, to note that God doth both ſee, and provide ſecretly for his, and alſo evidently is ſeen coming to their ſuccour in their greateſt neceſſities: and this phraſe became a proverbial ſaying among the Jewes to that purpoſe.

V. 16. by my ſelf] Man when he ſweareth, muſt ſwear by a greater then himſelf, and God becauſe there is no greater then himſelf, ſweareth by himſelf, Heb. 6. 13. and therefore himſelf is meant, when ſwearing by his Name, Jer. 44. 26. by his Soul, Jer. 51. 14. Text and Marg. or, by his holineſſe, Amos 4. 2. is mentioned.

becauſe] Abraham did not hereby merit the promiſe of a multiplyed poſterity, for God promiſed this before, Gen. 12. 2. & Chap. 13. 16. but it is again repeated, to encourage him, and others by his example to prompt obedience of the moſt difficult commands. See Rom, 4. 13, 14.

V. 17. thy ſeed] The Apoſtle, Gal. 3. 16. applieth this to Chriſt in the ſingular number, in whom they who believe, of what nation ſoever they be, ſhall be bleſſed as children raiſed up unto Abraham: for true believers be reckoned for his children, Gal. 3. 7.

ſhall poſſeſſe the gate] The gates of cities were the places where the Wiſe men aſſembled for conſultation, and the Magiſtrates for doing of juſtice, Deut. 21. 19. & 22. 15. Amos 5. 12, 15. Zach. 8. 16. Prov. 31. 23. and withal there were the ſtrongeſt fortifications for defence, and the ſtore of artillery for repulſe of an enemy, Judg. 5. 8. Pſal. 147. 13. Eſay 22. 7. Ezek. 21. 22. So that the poſſeſſion of the gate is the prevailing for the whole, for the gate is ſometimes put for the whole city, Deut. 12. 15. and for all the Cities of a Nation, Jer. 14. 2.

V. 21. Huz and Buz] Of the former name there were two others of different parentage, whereof the one is mentioned, Chap. 10. 23. the other, Chap. 36. 28. For the other he is ſuppoſed to be the progenitor of Elihu the Buzite, Job 32. 2.

V. 24. his concubine] A concubine differed from a wife, in that ſhe was not ſolemnly betrothed, nor was partner with the husband in the government of the family, as the wife was, to whom the concubine was ſubject, Gen. 16. 6, 9. nor were her children to inherit, but to be put off with the portions, Gen. 25. 5, 6. And from an whore ſhe differed, in that ſhe was confined to one man, and being in that reſpect like unto a wife, the name is oftentimes taken in good part, and the concubine ſometimes called by the name of a wife, Gen. 37. 2. yet according to her Hebrew title Philegeſh, compounded of Palag, which ſignifieth to divide, and Iſhah, Manneſſe, or woman, that is, a divided wife, or half a wife, and half a ſervant, or a dividing woman, making diviſion betwixt the husband and wife (properly ſo called) as Hagar did betwixt Abraham and Sarah, Gen. 16. 5.

Maachah] Here is the name of a man, but 1 King. 15. 12. it is the name of a woman, ſo are divers other names of the common of two genders, as Philip, Frances, Timothy, &c.

CHAP. XXIII.

Verſ. 1. T*Heſe were the yeares*] Or ſo long lived ſhe; it is noted as a ſpecial honour to Sarah, that her age is ſo exactly ſet down in the Scripture, as is not obſerved of any other woman.

V. 2. Kiriath-arba] This City had three names, the ancienteſt was Mamre, Gen. 13. 18. & ver. 19. of this Chapter, after that Kiriath-arba in this place, ſo called from Arba, a great man among the Anakims, Joſh. 14. 15. and laſt of all Hebron, which name Moſes might give it by the Spirit of Prophecy, for it was given after his time; or it might be added by him who penned a great part of, if not all, the laſt Chapter of Deuteronomy.

came to mourn] That may be began or addreſſed himſelf to mourning for the death of Sarah; or the phraſe may ſignifie that he came from his own Tent into Sarahs, for they had their Tents apart, Gen. 24. 67. Beſides, it may note great or ſolemn mourning as for a perſon much eſteemed, 2 Sam. 1. 17. 2 Chr. 35. 24. Act. 8. 2. and this was lawful, if done without diſtruſt in God, or too much affection or confidence in man. See Joh. 11. 35, 36. Some by Abraham his coming to mourn, underſtand that Sarah dyed from home (to wit, in Hebron) whither from Beerſheba he went to bewail her death, and to take order for her burial, and therefore he contracts for a burial place, which, in the place of his accuſtomed abode, he needed not to bargain for with any man.

V. 3. ſtood up] After his mourning, which was uſually done by the corps, or at the grave of the dead, Joh. 11. 31. and that in ſome lower poſture then ſtanding is: but the exceſſe of mourning is to be reproved as hurtful to the living, or diſhonourable to the dead; as if they were hopeleſſe, 1 Theſſ. 4. 13. nor doth it argue more love, but leſſe wit, or grace to be immoderate in mourning: for the Egyptians mourned for Jacob ſeventy dayes, but Joſeph, who in wiſdome, religion, and true love, far exceeded them, mourned but twenty ſeven dayes, Gen. 50. 3. 10.

V. 4. burying place] (Gen. 47. 30.) Separate from other Inhabitants of the Land, becauſe they were Infidels without belief, or hope of the reſurrection of the dead.

V. 6. a mighty Prince] Heb. Prince of God. The Hebrewes ſpeak ſo of all things that are notable, Exod. 3. 1. & 4. 27. Pſal. 46. 4. becauſe all excellency cometh of God: but the ſons of Heth were Heathens, and they called him a Prince, not by an Hebraiſme, but becauſe of the greatneſſe of his family, and eſtate; and if they called him a Prince of God, it was becauſe they might obſerve that God was with him in all that he did, as Abimelech ſaid, Gen. 21. 22.

V. 7. ſtood up] That is, addreſſed himſelf, for the phraſe (as the word, came, ver. 2.) may be ſo taken; and it is ſaid before, ver. 3. that he ſtood up, or having ſate and treated with them before, now he ſtood up, that he might bow down unto them who ſo kindly condeſcended unto him.

V. 9. cave of Macpelah] That is, a double cave, either one for men, another for women, or one within another.

for a poſſeſſion] They offered him the free uſe of their buriall places, verſ. 6. ſaying, none of us ſhall withhold from thee his ſepulchre, but that thou maieſt bury thy dead; but he had rather pay for a propriety, then hold ſuch a community with them; for he was deſirous in buriall to be ſeparated from them, who did not believe the reſurrection with him.

V. 13. I will give] Ephron and Abraham ſtrive to gratify one another; A good example of kindneſſe, among friends, and of juſtice among bargainers; The like kind of conteſtation is betwixt David and Araunah, 2 Sam. 23. 22, 23, 24.

V. 15. ſhekels of ſilver] There are very different opinions concerning the ſhekel, ſome make three ſorts; the royall ſhekel valued to fifteen pence, the ſhekel of the Sanctuary twice as much, and the common ſhekel betwixt them both, valued at five groats; yet the learned more generally reſolve, that the ſhekel of the Sanctuary was the common ſhekel valued at two ſhillings ſix pence, Joſephus Antiq. lib. 3. cap. 9. but called the ſhekel of the Sanctuary, becauſe the exact meaſure by which other ſhekels were to be examined, and to which as the ſtandard they were to be reduced, was kept in the Sanctuary.

V. 16. Abraham weighed] Money was paid in thoſe times not by tale, but by weight. See Gen. 43. 21. & Jer. 32. 10. thence is this coyn called ſhekel of Schakal, to weigh.

current money] Not only juſt in quantity, but in quality, pure and not adulterate, ſuch as Merchants, who are cunning in Coynes, will receive and return in any Countrey. In this bargain the ſeller doth not ask too much, nor the buyer bid too little, onely one price is pitched, and paid; and ſo Abraham as a purchaſer had ſome Land in Canaan, but not as poſſeſſed of it by Gods gift, and ſo Saint Stephen is to be underſtood, Act. 7. 5.

V. 17. Macpelah] See the Annot. on Gen. 49. 30. and on ver. 9. of this Chapter.

V. 20. made ſure] By witneſſes without any interchangeable Indentures, or Writings betwixt them, for ought we read of, ſuch was the ſimplicity and ſincerity of thoſe times; afterwards men became more cunning to deceive, and more bold to deny the bargains they had made, and then there was need of writing. See Jer. 32. 12. Now in our age, craft and falſhood is ſo increaſed, that it requireth great skill and caution to make a ſure bargain, though with writings; A great ſin and ſhame that in ſuch light of the Goſpel, men ſhould ſo addict themſelves to deeds of darkneſs.

for a poſſeſſion] This Cave was the repoſitory or reſting place of the bodies of Sarah, ver. 19. and of Abraham afterwards, Gen. 25. 9. after them of Iſaac, and Rebekah, Jacob, and Leah, Gen. 49. 31. and though Jacob dyed in Egypt, he gave order, and took an oath of his ſon Joſeph for his burial in that place, Gen. 49. 29, 30. & 50. 5. as profeſſing their faith for the performance of Gods promiſe of Canaan to their poſterity; and withall, as deſirous to ſleep with thoſe in the bed of duſt, with whom they hope to awake to eternal reſt.

CHAP. XXIV.

Verſ. 1. VV*Ell ſtricken in age*] Heb. gone into dayes. When a man is in his declining age, he muſt meaſure his life rather by the inch of dayes, then by the ell of years: about this time he was 140. years old, compare Chap. 21. 5. with Chap. 25. 20. which in compariſon of the livers before the floud, was but young; for Sem the ſon of Noah lived 600. years, but of thoſe that lived after the time of Abraham very few were ſo aged, and moſt ever ſince dyed younger; his ſon Iſaac indeed lived five years longer, but his old age was not ſo vigorous as Abrahams was.

in all things] For beſides his ſpiritual welfare by his holy wiſdome, and gracious acceptation with God, his length of dayes, and health of body, the long enjoyment of a good, and godly wife, and by her a towardly ſon, conceived by the peculiar, and miraculous bleſſing of Almighty God, (where there was no hope of iſſue by the courſe of nature) and beſides his great eſtate, and happy victory in war, and his great reputation with thoſe that knew him; his croſſes were ſanctified unto him, and converted unto bleſſings: A good encouragement to follow his ſteps in faithfulneſſe, and obedience, whereby a man may be bleſſed in both worlds, as he was.

V. 2. his eldeſt ſervant] It is like it was that Eliezer of Damaſcus, mentioned Chap. 15. 2. who by this hiſtory is ſhewed to be both wiſe, and religious, as well as grave, and ancient; he ſends not Iſaac, though at this time, fourty years of age, that the choyce of his wife might be made rather by religious diſcretion, then ſenſual affection; yet Iſaac no doubt was acquainted with the buſineſſe, and as a dutiful ſon gave conſent to that his father had ſaid; without whoſe liking the marriage could not be conſummate by a proxie, or deputy, (as ſome hence collect) for the ſervant could but make the eſpouſals, and ſhe became not a wife until Iſaac accepted of her, verſ. 67.

under my thigh] Which Ceremony declareth the ſervants obedience to his Maſter, and the Maſters power over the ſervant; and ſo the ſubjection, and obedience of the ſon to the father, may be ſignified; for Jacob required his ſon Joſeph to take an oath with the ſame Ceremony, Gen. 47. 29. See 1 Chr. 29. 24. Text & Margine; with the Jews to this day (from that cuſtome) he that requires an oath of another, ſits upon his hand. The ancients make a myſtery of it, looking ſome of them backward to the precedent Covenant of Circumciſion, and ſome forward to the faithful expectation of the promiſed Seed, Chriſt Jeſus, to come by lineal deſcent from Abrahams loynes, or thigh, (for ſo it is in the Heb. Gen. 46. 26. the ſouls, that is, the perſons, which came out of Jacobs thigh) Which is the more probable, becauſe the Patriarchs uſed this Ceremony but to Believers; nor did they uſe this onely (and it may be not frequently) for Abraham makes mention of lifting up of his hand in taking an oath, againſt taking any thing of the King of Sodome, Gen. 14. 22. and the Angel ſwearing, is ſaid to lift up his hand toward heaven, Revel. 10. 5, 6. The cuſtome of ſeveral Countries, and Religions, is very various in this point; yet moſt agree in the adding of ſome outward atteſtation of action, or geſture to words in taking of an oath, to make it better remembred and more regarded, then bare words of aſſeveration, promiſe, or imprecation.

V. 3. ſwear]

V. 3. ſwear] It ſeemeth that there was ſome precedent diſcourſe before the propoſal of this oath, as that having made him Ruler over all he had, ver.2. he would have him to be an Overſeer to his ſon, with an eſpecial care over him for the choice of a wife, he being now mature for the ſtate of marriage; this was a matter of great weight, and in weighty matters onely is an oath to be taken; as for ratification of covenants and promiſes of importance, as here, and Gen.32.53. for removal of ſuſpition, Num.5.21. Exod.22.11. for ſtinting of ſtrife, Heb.6.16. ſecurity of life, 1 Sam.30.15.

by the LORD,] Fear, and ſervice, and ſwearing by the Name of God are ſet down, as ſociable duties, Deut.6.13. and to ſwear by them that are no Gods is condemned as a deteſtable, and almoſt impardonable ſinne, Jer. 5. 7. And ſo it is in ſerious ſwearing, but in vain, and inconſiderate ſwearing it may be a leſſe fault to abuſe the name of the Creature, then of God.

* daughters of the Canaanites] (* Gen.6.2.& 27.46.& 28.2.) He would not communicate in burial with them, much leſſe in marriages, becauſe they deſcended from curſed Cham, whoſe poſterity was extremely corrupted with Idolatry and other vices, and deſigned to deſtruction for their abominable wickedneſſe; therefore were Gods people forbidden to make any Covenant with them, or to ſhew mercy unto them, Deut. 7.2. It was not meet for Abraham's poſterity to be mingled in bloud with them, whoſe bloud they muſt ſhed without pity in perſecuting of them; and this was eſpecially forbidden, ver. 3. for fear of corruption, and Gods wrath and their ruine to follow upon it, ver.4. See Gen.28.1.& Neh.13. from ver.23. to 27. See Annot. on Chap.41.45.

V.4. to my country] which his ſervant it ſeems was acquainted with in particular; & is named the city Nahor in Meſopotamia, v. 10. Meſopotamia is ſometimes taken largly for the Region beyond Euphrates (in reſpect of Canaan which was on the other ſide of it) and ſo it comprehendeth Chaldea, where is Ur in which Abraham was born, Gen.11.28. And the City of Nahor, that is Charran, (as it is called, Act.7.2.) or, Haran, Gen.28. 10. and Chap.29. ver.45. where Nachor, though now dead, had a long time lived: it was ſituate in the confines of Chaldea; here was the abode of Abraham's kindred, and the trueſt worſhip of the true God (though much corrupted) except in Abraham's Family.

and to my kindred] To Haran where Nahor dwelt, which was about ſeven or eight dayes journey diſtant from the dwelling of Abraham. Marriage within neerer degrees of kindred was allowed at this time, then afterwards by the Law given in Moſes time; for Abraham married his Neece; and Jacob two ſiſters; which after the law might not be done: but if they were not too neer of kin to marry, were they not too far off in Religion? For did not Terah Abraham's and Nahors father ſerve other gods? Joſh. 24. 2. and though Abraham renounced his place, and the Religion of his Father, Nachor did not ſo. Laban alſo Rebekahs brother was an Idolater, Gen.31.30. and after Jacob's marriage, and departure from his Father in laws houſe, there were Idolaters, and Idols of that race in his Family, Gen. 35. 23. yet was not their progeny ſo impious, nor their Idolatry ſo groſſe, nor their deſtruction ſo decreed, as the Canaanites was; and it appeares in this Chapter, there was ſome piety among them, ver.31,50,51. and much humanity, ver.18,19,20,31. and from 53. to the 60. Beſides, it is not unlike, that Abraham, ſo dear a favourite of God, conſulted with him about it, and had his warrant for it, yea and his promiſe for his guidance in it, ver.7,40. and ſo much was conceived by Laban and Bethuel, verſ.50.

Beware] For fear of Idolatry, and becauſe Abraham took poſſeſſion of the Land not for himſelf alone, but for his off-ſpring alſo, Chap.12.1. who were by faith and patience to poſſeſs it, and not by living out of it, to ſeem either not to believe the promiſe, or to ſlight it.

V. 6. bring not my ſon] Iſaac was now fourty years old, and therefore though under the obedience of his father, not at the command of a ſervant to diſpoſe of him at his pleaſure; this is meant then in reſpect of perſwaſion, for an old, wiſe, and godly ſervant of ſo great credit with his Maſter, might by advice, and counſel, prevail much with him in what he thought fit to propoſe unto him.

thither again] The ſervant, ver.5. forecaſting a doubt of preſent conſent, concerning the motion of marrying, if Iſaac were not with him, demandeth of his maſter, What if the woman will not come with me, muſt I needs bring him thither again? Abraham in anſwer to that, forbiddeth this bringing thither again, in ver.8. yet Iſaac was never there before. Anſw. That again, may refer to the return of the ſervant, as that in his return again, he ſhould not bring Iſaac thither with him; or if it be applyed to Iſaac, it is to be underſtood of his being there before in the loynes of Abraham his father, as the Iſraelites in the fourth generation, are ſaid to return to Canaan again, Gen.15.16. who had never been there before, (being born and kept in Egypt) but as virtually included in [illegible] progenitors; and Abraham is againſt Iſaac's going thither, both bec[illegible] of the Land of Canaan intailed up[illegible] and [illegible] fear leſt his Idolatrous kindred [illegible] corrupt him, those ſtrangers (thoug[illegible] had eſpecial direction to be eſtranged. bad or good] (Chap. 24. 29.) That is, we can say nothing against the motion, no good unto it, since it is of God; or we can use neither nor foul, to hinder the motion.

V. 51. as the Lord hath spoken] That is, as he hath expressed his pleasure, by giving a signe according to the prayer of his servant.

V. 52. bowing himself] (Verſ. 26, 48.) And in this his gesture of humility his devotion is noted, wherein it ſeemes he had learned of his holy and humble Maſter, who though he were accepted by God as a friend, familiarity bred in him no contempt, Gen.17.3. but rather a deeper degree both of devotion and dejection; a fit example, to upbraid and correct the ſurly or ſtately religion of ſome, who will not bow when they beg for his beneficence, but ſit at prayer, as if they came to parley with God, as their fellow, upon eaven terms.

V. 55. a few dayes] Heb. dayes, or a decad. That is, ten dayes, ſome ſay, ten moneths; a proportion of time fit to furniſh the Bride for another Family, and to take a ſolemn farewel of her Fathers houſe.

V. 57. at her mouth] That is, for her conſent; this ſheweth that parents have not authority to marry their children without the conſent of the parties; as the children have no power, to diſpoſe of themſelves in marriage, without the conſent of their parents. See Annot. on Gen.21.21.

V. 59. her nurſe] Her name, Deborah, and burial is noted, Gen.35. 8. her ſhe took with her as a ſecond mother both in office and affection, as her condition was capable of them; for when mothers forſake the duty of mothers, and turn their children over to be nouriſhed by other breaſts then their own, they turn over the affection of their children to them alſo: which breedeth a natural dearneſſe, and tenderneſſe, betwixt them; the tenderneſſe of a nurſing Father is noted, Num. 11. 12. and of a nurſing mother. 1 Theſſ. 2.7. and the reciprocal reſpect of their nurſe-children, is experimentally manifeſt very often; but though in Bethuels Family a mother, and a nurſe were two perſons; in Abraham's it was not ſo; there Sarah's example would be a better pattern for Rebekah, then her own mothers.

V. 68. poſſeſſe the gate] That is, let it be victorious over its enemies; which bleſſing is fully accompliſhed in Jeſus Chriſt. See Annot. on Chap. 22.17.

V. 62. the well Lahai-roi] The name of the Well that refreſhed fainting Iſhmael, ſee Gen.16.14. the word ſignifieth, the well of him that liveth, that ſeeth me.

he dwelt] Not apart from his Father, but with him, and it is, like it was now at Beerſheba, whither Abraham's ſervant returned with the Bride, whence there might be ſome convenient walk towards the Well fore-mentioned.

V. 63. to meditate] Or, to pray. The word in the Original ſignifieth both; and they ſort well together, for meditation is a meet preparative to prayer, and prayer a good concluſion, or ſhutting up of meditation.

at even-tide] The latter part of the day is as fit for exerciſes of holineſſe, as the former: why then ſhould not the afternoon of the Sabbath be ſpent in religious duties, as well as the forenoon?

V. 65. a vail] The cuſtome was for the Spouſe to be brought to her husband, her head being covered, in token of her ſhamefaſtneſſe and chaſtity. Some note a fourfold uſe of covering the head and face. Firſt, of grief, as in David's mourning for Abſolom. Secondly, of indignation, as Haman's head was covered, when the Kings anger was kindled againſt him, Eſth.7. 8. Thirdly, of reverence; as Elias covered his face, when he talked with God in Horeb, 1 King.19.13. Fourthly, of ſhamefaſtneſſe and modeſty, as this of Rebekah, wherein ſome have been ſo ſtrict, as to allow but liberty for one eye to ſee withall, and ſo rigorous as to reject a wife for being ſeen abroad without a vail; to which we may add a fifth, the covering of ſubjection, 1 Cor.11.10. Theſe two laſt are moſt obſervable by the female ſexe; which with ſome of late hath been ſo far out of uſe, as if they meant a great part to become Adamites, baring their breaſts, backs, and arms, further then modeſty will admit of.

V. 67. Sarah's tent] It was the manner for women to have their tents apart from the men, eſpecially in great families. See Annot. on Gen.23.2. & 31.33. and this was a means to prevent trouble to the men, and to preſerve modeſty in the women; for cohabitation of different ſexes (except they be ſuch as are married together) may be dangerous on both ſides. As we ſee in the example of Lot, and his two daughters, living in the Cave. It ſeemeth Sarahs tent and furniture was reſerved for Iſaacs wife; for though Abraham meant to marry again, his mind was not that his ſecond wife, but his ſons wife (ſince he was his ſon by miracle, and his heir by promiſe) ſhould ſucceed his holy and worthy mother in her propriety and privilledges.

loved her] The buſineſſe of marriage beginneth with Iſaac in filial obedience, but it goeth on with a conjugal or husbandly benevolence. See Eph.5.25.

deliverance, to come ſeventy years after, from a very calamitous captivity, that they were then ſuddenly to enter into. The word is rather taken collectively, and indefinitely, not aiming at, or pointing to, any one in particular; but intending any whatſoever, one, or more, that ſhould come with ſuch tidings. See Chap.40.9.& 41.27. as in ſuch caſes men are wont to contend, to go one before another, and to ſtrive who ſhall bring the good news firſt, 2 Sam. 18.19-23. See Jer.50.8.

that publiſheth peace] Heb. maketh to hear; as Neh. 8.15. peace, that is, proſperity and welfare; as Chap.48.18.

that bringeth good tidings of good,] A ſuperfluous repetition; it would be ſimply rendred; of him that bringeth good, or glad tidings: for the word here uſed ſignifieth either, 1 King.22.8. Prov.15.15.Zach.9.17.

that publiſheth ſalvation,] Deliverance, corporal, by Cyrus; ſpiritual, by Chriſt, Chap.51.5. Heb. that maketh to hear; as before.

that ſaith to Zion, Thy God reigneth] Thy God hath manifeſted, and magnified his royal power, by the deſtruction [illegible] his enemies, and the deliverance of his people; but chi[illegible] and principally, in his ſpiritual Kingdom erected, and exe[illegible]ſed by his Chriſt, Pſal.93.1.& 97.1.& 99.1. & 110.1-7.& 1[illegible] 10.Rev.6.2.& 11.15.& 19.6.

V. 8. Thy watch men ſhall lift up their voice] Heb. the voi[illegible] the pronoun wanting, as Chap.49.22,23. Of another ſynta[illegible] ſee anon. Thy Prophets and Teachers, (Chap.60.10.Ezek. 3.17.& 33.7. Heb.13.17.) ſhall with much joy, and loud voice, publiſh thy deliverance. See Chap.40.9. an alluſion, as there, and ver.7. ſo here, as ſome think, to the manner of thoſe that bring tidings, and tell them aloud, in high places, that as many as may be, may hear them; but the term of watch-men, ſuits not ſo well to ſuch. I rather take it, to have an eye to thoſe, that are placed upon watch-towers, to eſpy, and give notice of the approach, or coming afar off, of any that may be deemed to come for relief, in ſtraits, or with good tidings, after ſome great battel fought, conqueſt atchieved, or the like. See 2 Sam. 18. 24-27. as the former ſort, the tiding-bringers are ſaid to appear on the hils, not far diſtant from the city, v. 7. ſo the watchmen from the wals, and turrets, about the city, who either deſcrying them afar off, and by their geſture, or other ſigns, diſcerning that they come with good tidings, or receiving, as the uſual manner is, the report of things firſt from them, ſhall, in the manner here mentioned, publiſh it to others. See 2 King.7. 10,11.

with the voice together ſhall they ſing:] So Chap. 51. 11. they ſhall come with ſong, or ſinging to Sion: But the particle expreſſed there, is wanting here; as Chap.33.5. and oft elſewhere. But ſome therefore thus render the context; As for the voice of thy watchmen; or, as others, The voice of thy watchmen, without ought elſe prefixed (which I take to be the better, as Cant.2.8. as if he heard the one now; ſaw the other before, ver.7. and were raviſhed at the hearing of the one, at the ſight of the other,) they lift up the voice, they ſing together; and this reading the points, and pauſes, in the Hebrew, encline to. Some think it hath ſome reference, either to the ſinging and ſhouting of the Prieſts and Levites, and others, at the founding of the Temple, Ezr.3. 10,11. or to their ſinging together afterward in the Temple, at the dedication of it after it was built, Ezr.6.16. but they were works of a later date, then this here reſpected.

when the Lord ſhall bring again Zion.] So is the word generally rendred, both here, and Pſal.14.7,& 53.6.& 126. 1. in all which places, yet it ſeemeth to be word for word in the text, when the Lord ſhall return to Sion, with a want of the particle to, as Ch.35.10.& 51.11. and it may well be ſo rendred alſo in thoſe places of the Pſalms; when the Lord ſhall turn to the captivity of his people; and, when the Lord turned unto the captivity of Sion: when, in mercy and favour, he turned again to them; as Num.10.36. Pſal.90.13. ch.63.17. ſo the ſenſe will be, when the Lord ſhall return unto Sion again; either to his people that had ſometime held it, but had been diſpoſſeſſed of it, & detained long from it; or, to the place it ſelf, to take up his abode, and make his reſidence again there, as in former time he did, Pſal.132.13,14. ch.31.9. for God is ſaid to come along with his people, in the front of them, at their return, ver.12. they ſhall clearly ſee God himſelf returning, in conſpicuous manner, together with his redeemed ones unto Sion. And this way the moſt of the Jewiſh Commenters go: Nor can it be denied, but that the word, in the form here uſed, is commonly, almoſt generally, intranſitive; and ſignifieth, not to reduce, as in another form, but to return. Howbeit, ſome places there a[illegible] wher[illegible] ſeemeth to require a tranſitive notion, as Job 42. 18. The Lo[illegible]ned the capt[illegible]ty of Job and, Nahum 2. 2. The Lord [illegible]ned [illegible] pride of [illegible] he e[illegible]len[illegible]y of Jacob; and ſo witho[illegible] an[illegible] ſuppl[illegible] it [illegible]e, well be[illegible]e as our verſion hath it. V. 14. As many were aſtonied at thee] The ſpeech [illegible] Father, not of Chriſt, as before; but unto [illegible] here directeth his ſpeech unto. The wo[illegible] an aſtoniſhment at Chriſt, in way of adm[illegible] gard of the power of his Deity, and his c[illegible] ing, and manifeſting themſelves, partly, [illegible] teaching, and partly, in the miracles, an[illegible] wrought by him, Mat.7.28,29. & 8[illegible] Mar.1.22,27. & 6.2. & 7.37. & 11[illegible] ſenſe ſuits not well with the courſe o[illegible] rather, according, both to the origin[illegible] of it, is here to be underſtood of ſuch [illegible] ſeth from the contemplation of ſom[illegible] ruful ſpectacle of deſolation, deformity, [illegible] So is it uſed, Levit.26.32. where the notatio[illegible] preſſed. So alſo, 1 King.9.8. 2 Chr.7.21. Jer.1[illegible] 8. & 49.17. & 50.13. Ezek.26.16. & 27.35. & 2[illegible] marvel, if many were aſtoniſhed at the ſight [illegible] condition, in regard of thoſe baſe, diſg[illegible] uſages that were offered, and done, to him, in [illegible] humiliation here on earth, when his followers w[illegible] at the relation of them, when they were ſon[illegible] them, Mar.10.32-34.

(His viſage was ſo marred more then any man, and more then the ſons of men.)] Thoſe that expound [illegible] branch, of mens wondring at Chriſts excellencies, make theſe words the ſecond member of the collation, which the note of ſimilitude, prefixed to the former, ſheweth, here to be intended: as if the text ran thus; As he was ſometime highly admired for his powerful words and works; ſo he ſhall afterward be as much abuſed and diſgraced again. But the reddition of the ſimilitude, cometh afterward in the next verſe: this being inſerted between both, by way of parentheſis, with a tranſition from perſon to perſon, in this Prophet not unuſual; (ſee Chap.1.29,30. & 2.9. & 3.25,26. and we need not therefore, with ſome of ours, either offer to alter the text, or underſtand the former, of one perſon; and the latter, of another; that, of Iſrael; this, of Chriſt,) as rendring a reaſon, why at ſight of our Saviour, in time of his depreſſion, many ſhould be ſo aſtoniſhed. Howbeit, the words are not ſo to be underſtood, as if our bleſſed Saviour had, in regard of his bodily perſon, or preſence, been ſome ſtrange, deformed, or miſhapen creature; but in regard of his outward eſtate, coming of mean, and obſcure Parentage, Chap.53.2. living in a low deſpicable condition, Chap.53.3. expoſed to ſcorn, and contempt, and to much affliction, thorow the whole courſe of his life, ch.53. 2. and more eſpecially, yet, in regard of what he was alſo in his Perſonal appearance; through the baſe and deſpitefull uſages, that he ſuſtained at the hands of his malicious and miſchievous adverſaries, when they had gotten him into their power, Pſal.22.12-18. & 69.19-21. & 71.7. Chap.50.6. & 52. 7,10. Mat.26.67,68. & 27.16-44. Mar.14.65. & 15.15-32. Luk.22.44,63. & 23.26,33,35-39. Joh.19.1-5,16-18,23,29. A learned late Writer would have this paſſage read by way of interrogation, as the words of thoſe that wonder at the ſight of Chriſt, thus rendring the text, ſaying, (as Pſal. 105. 5.) is his viſage in ſuch manner corrupted, or, marred? &c. but the former verſion ſeemeth the more familiar, and to come off more freely.

his viſage was ſo marred] His watching, dragging to and fro, from place to place, buffeting, ſcourging, carrying his [illegible], and other miſ-uſage, could not, but much alter the ſtate [illegible] is body, and impair, yea, deface all the ſightlineſs of it. Howbeit, the word viſage, here, and form in the next branch, ſeem to be taken more largely, for all outward appearance, both of bodily ſhape, and of ſtate, or condition in general; as ſight, or appearance, Chap.11.3. Joh.7.24. and form, 1 Sam. 28.14. 2 Tim.3.5. and face, or perſon, Deut.16.19. Rom.2. 11. So Chap.53.2. Heb. ſuch the corruption of his viſage more then, or, above a man: for they ſeem wide here, who drawing the word from another root, would have it rendred, the unction of his perſon above any man, Pſal.45.2,7.

more then any man] Heb. then a man: a man, for, any man, or, any one; as Chap.4.11. & 40.26. & 50.2. ſo that he ſeemed rather as a worm, then a man, Pſal.22.6.

and his form more then the ſons of men] As if no form, or ſhape of a man, were left to be ſeen in him; as ſome render thoſe words, Pſal.38.3. Chap.1.6. the ſame notion in other terms; as Job 25.6.

V. 15. So ſhall he ſprinkle many nations] The reddition, or latter part of the collation, concerning Chriſts exaltation, oppoſed to the former, concerning his humiliation, ver.14. and [illegible]ther confirming and illuſtrating what concerning Chriſts ſucceſs, and advancement, was before delivered, ver.13.

ſprinkle] The Jewiſh Commenters expound theſe words, ſome of them, of the ſlaughter that he ſhould make of his enemies; he ſhall ſprinkle them, that is, ſhed their blood; as chap. 63.3. their blood was ſprinkled upon my garments; ſome of them, of the reports that ſhall go abroad of his honour, and [illegible] alout: for the term of ſprinkling, or dropping rather, is, ſay they [illegible] uſed of ſpeech, Deut.32.2. Ezek.20.46. & 41.2. Amos 7. [illegible] Mic.2.6,11. ſo the meaning ſhould be, he ſhall make them ſprinkle, or drop; that is, give them occaſion to talk of him: but the word of ſprinkling, is one; thoſe of dropping, other: and this never found ſo uſed; though thoſe are. Others of them [illegible] an[illegible] but without example, likewiſe, would have the word [illegible] a notion of diſperſion; he ſhall, ſay they, grow ſtrong, [illegible] away the horns of the Heathen, that had formerly diſperſed Gods people, Zach.1.21. But theſe Interpretati[illegible] groundleſs, and forced. Ours expound the words [illegible] one effect; to wit, that Chriſt ſhould bedew many [illegible] with the doctrine of the Goſpel, by the miniſtery of his Apoſtles, and thereby convert them to the Faith, through the efficacy of the Spirit, accompanying the ſame, and work[illegible] faith in them, Chap.59.20,21. Mat.28.18. Act.2.33,38,41. [illegible] 10.17. 2 Cor.3.6. or, which comes all to one, that he [illegible]uld ſanctifie, and cleanſe them with his Spirit, imparted to [illegible]m, by the Word, and with his blood, by faith applyed un[illegible] [illegible]eir ſouls, Ezek.36.25,27. Joh.15.3. & 17.17. Act.15.9. [illegible].2. Eph.5.26. 1 Pet.1.2. 1 Joh.1.7. Rev.1.5. & 7.14. [illegible] alluſion, as ſome think, to the water, and waſhing with it, [illegible]d in the Evangelical Baptiſme, Mat.3.11. Joh.3.5. Act.2. [illegible] & 22.16. 1 Pet.3.21. as others, to the legal baptiſings, ſprinklings with water, or blood, or both mixt together; for the ſanctifying of ſome, and cleanſing of others, that were legally unclean, Exod.24.6,8. & 29.4,20,21. Levit. 13.6,7,8. Num.19.12-21. Pſal.51.7. Heb.9.10,13,14,18-22. & 10.8, 10, 22.

many nations] As many perſons aſtoniſhed at him before; ver.14. ſo many people now taken with him, and converted to him, Chap.2.3. yet many, not all; Mat. 28.18. becauſe not accepted by ſome, though offered to all, Act.2.41. & 17. 11,18,32-34.

the Kings ſhall ſhut their mouthes at him] Kings, ſimply; (for there is no article in the original) or, even Kings (as Chap. 51.12,22. & 60.10. & 62.2.) ſhall ſhut their mouthes (Heb. mouth; as, tongue, alſo, Job 29.10.) out of reverence, and reſpect, out of another manner of aſtoniſhment at him now, then before, ver.14. to wit, out of admiration of his incomparable excellency. See Job 29.9,10. or, being ſo convinced of the truth of his teaching, that they ſhall not be able, or dare, once to contradict it, Luk.21.12,15. See Job 40.4, 5. Pſal.107.42. Mic.7.17. But the former ſeems rather here chiefly intended. For the Jewiſh Critick doth but dally here, who, to make this ſuit with his forced fancy concerning the foregoing branch, would faſten upon this a double ſenſe: the word here uſed, ſaith he, hath a two-fold notion; of opening, and of ſhutting: of opening, as it ſignifies to skip; for in skipping, or leaping, the feet are opened, Cant.2.8. of ſhutting, or cloſing, Deut.15.7. Job 5.16. here it may import both: they ſhall open their mouthes to talk of him; and they ſhall ſhut their mouthes, in way of wonderment at him. But this is to make a Delphick ſword of Gods Word. And yet ſuch quirks are too many much taken with.

for that which had not been told them, ſhall they ſee; and that which they had not heard, ſhall they conſider.] For; Heb. And; as chap. 40.26. They ſhall ſee thoſe things fulfilled, which their Wizzards could never foretel; nor had been told by any other: and they ſhall hear ſuch myſteries, yea, not hear them only, but conſider ſeriouſly of them, and underſtand them aright. (See Chap.1.3.) as they never had been made acquainted with, or had once thought on before, Chap.41.26. & 45.21. & 64.4. Rom.16.25,26. 1 Cor.2.8,9. or, as others reade, and render the words; they to whom it had not been related, or, to whom nothing had been related of him, ſhall ſee; and thoſe that had not heard, ſhall conſider, or, underſtand. So the ancient, both Greek and Latine, and of ours not a few. See chap. 65.1. Rom.15.20,21. I go rather with the former; the ſyntax ſeeming to me, the more familiar, and the fuller. The ſame way go the Jewiſh Commenters, ſave that ſome of them conceive it ſpoken, not ſimply, and abſolutely, but comparatively; they ſhall ſee greater glory, and excellency in him, then ever they heard, or dreamed of; they ſhall find, and know his magnificence to go far beyond whatſoever they had been told, or could conceive of him before. See of Solomon, 1 King.10.6,7.

CHAP. LIII.

Verſ. 1. WHo hath believed our report?] Or, Who believeth our report? or, doctrine; as Chap. 28.19. or, preaching; as ſome render it, Hoſh.7.12. Heb. hearing, Chap.28.19. that which they hear from us; thoſe glad tydings before-mentioned, Chap. 52.7. Some, for the better connexion of the enſuing diſcourſe, with the former, prefix the adverſative particle, But; rendring the words; But who believeth our report? that is, who, ſay they, of the Jewiſh people: the fewneſs of thoſe that received the Goſpel among that people, being oppoſed to the multitudes of other nations, that ſhould embrace it, and believe in Chriſt, Chap.52.15. So the words contain a complaint of the paucity, and ſmall number of thoſe, among the Jews, that gave any credit to the propheſies foregoing, concerning Chriſt, and the doctrine of his Kingdom, and his glorious advancement, either in the times of this our Prophet, and other his fellow-meſſengers; or, in the time, that being exhibited in the fleſh, he lived here upon earth: unto which times, we find theſe words applyed in the Goſpel, Joh.12.37,38. Rom.10.16. See Chap.49.4. Joh.3.32. & 5.43,44. & 7.5,48. Act.28.22. See for the form of ſpeech, Pſal.90.11. Chap.50.10.

and] Or, or; as Chap.40.13,18.

to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed?] His mighty power working by, and manifeſting it ſelf in Chriſt, and in the miniſtery of his Word, Chap.40.10. & 51.5. & 52.10. Rom.1. 16. 1 Cor.1.18,24. which muſt from God be revealed, before it can be believed, Chap.54.23. Mat.11.25. & 16.17. Joh.6.44, 45. 1 Cor.2.9,12. Gal.1.12. Heb. upon whom; which ſome taking hold of, thus render the text; upon whom is the arm of the Lord ſtript up, or, made bare? that is, on whom hath the miniſtery of his ſervants an efficacious work, for the converting of them unto God? a metaphor, ſay they, taken from Workmen, who are wont, for the better expedition, to ſtrip the arm up to the elbow, when they go about their work. See Ch. 52.10. But this ſeems over-curious; nor will the Greek, in the Goſpel, bear it: and the particle, though it uſually ſignifie upon; yet is it alſo frequently uſed for unto; as Exod,20.3. to my face: ſo the words there are, 2 King.18.27. compared with Eſay 36.12. Pſal.13.6. & 18.41. Chap.29.12. with verſe 11.

V. 2. For he ſhall grow up before him, as a tender plant,] Heb. And; which both the old Greek, and Latine, and ſome other after them retain. Others, render it, Indeed; as Chap.30.20. Or, Yet; as ver.7. Ch.46.7. and others again, not a few, whom our verſion concurreth with, For; as ver.11. Chap.52.15. & 64.5. as uſhering in a paſſage, wherein the ground is diſcovered, and a reaſon rendred, how it came, or ſhould come to paſs, that ſo few of the Jewiſh nation ſhould entertain Chriſt, as the Meſſias, and their Saviour, and give belief to the doctrine of the Prophets and Apoſtles, concerning him. They looked for a Meſſias to come in princely ſtate, with royall attendance, and ſecular power, that ſhould reign and rule, as ſome mighty Monarch, and ſet them free from the bondage of the Romane Empire: and when they ſaw nothing leſs; but all clean contrary in Chriſt, hence came it to paſs, that they were offended in him, and could by no means be induced to believe that ſuch an one ſhould be their Meſſias, Mat.13.55, 57. Luk.24.21. Joh.7.27,41,53. 1 Cor.1.23.

grow up] Heb. aſcend; which ſome underſtand, of Chriſts exaltation; as if it were ſaid, that he ſhould riſe and grow great, for all this, that ſo few entertain him, and believe in him. And ſome of note, to this purpoſe, would thus joyn this verſe with the latter part of the former; And he, on whom the arm of the Lord ſhall be revealed (to wit, Chriſt) ſhall grow up: but this offereth too much violence to the context. And albeit, the word here uſed, doth ſometime import a riſing, by advancement, and improvement of height, ſtrength, ſtature, or ſtate, Chap.40.31. Jer.51.53. yet it is uſed commonly of plants, ſimply ſpringing up, without any ſuch ſpecial connotation, Chap.32.3. and all the circumſtances of the text do carry it another way, as in the opening of the words will appear.

before him] This ſmall particle is very variouſly expounded. Some underſtand it, of God; that in the ſight of God, he ſhould be great, and highly eſteemed, though mean, and of no account in mans eyes; as the like is ſaid, in expreſs terms, of John his Herbinger, Luk.1.15. and, in effect, of Chriſt alſo, Luk.1.32. or, that by his moſt wiſe, and powerful providence, he ſhould be produced, and under his protection, having his eye perpetually upon him, grow up to a great height, Chap. 52.13. Others, of the people, in whoſe eyes he ſhould appear, and ſeem to be ſuch, as is hereafter intimated. Others, of Chriſt himſelf, that he ſhould be lowly, and of ſmall eſteem in his own ſight; as it is ſaid of Saul, 1 Sam.15.17. and in the perſon of Chriſt, Pſal.22.6. Others, laſtly, of none of all theſe; becauſe no expreſs mention of any of theſe, unto whom it may fitly be referred, but of the outward ſhew that Chriſt ſhould make, rendring the text; for his appearance, or, outward ſhew, or ſtate: for the word face, in Hebrew, is very frequently ſo uſed; as was before ſhewed, on chap.52.14. and anſwereth to the word, ſight, or, appearance; uſed afterward, in the laſt clauſe of this verſe, for ſight, as, for height, Prov.25.3. where the ſame particle is ſo uſed; and this beſt ſuits with the ſcope, and current of the context.

as a tender plant] The word tender is not in the text; and true it is, that the term here uſed, is of a large extent in the ordinary uſe of it, comprehending branchs of all ſorts, without diſtinction of ſtrength, or ſize. See Pſal.80.11. Hoſ.14. 6. Job 8.15,16,30. & Ezek.17.4. where, though our verſion renders it, a young twig, would do very well here; yet the words, next before going, controll it there. The word properly ſignifieth, a ſuckling, or, ſucking-child, Num.11.12. Pſal.8. 2. 1 Sam.15.3. & 22.19. Jer.44.7. Lam.2.11. & 4.4. and ſo the ancient Greek, and ſome after them, here take it; but the reſemblance, here uſed, admitteth not that. In the next place, therefore, the word doth ſignifie, ſometime, a branch, or bough, in general; becauſe it ſucketh, and draws the ſap and moyſture, as milk, from the root, or ſtock, from whence it ſhoots up, or ſpreads out, Rom.11.17. ſometime, more ſpecially, ſuch a plant, or twig, as reſembleth for its tenderneſs, and ſmalneſs of growth, ſome ſuckling, or ſucking-child: ſo is it uſed, Job 14. 7. where it is not amiſs rendred, a tender branch; and may well here, (the circumſtances of the place, not well admitting only, but requiring it) a tender plant, or young twig; as we uſe to ſay, a ſucker: for ſo uſe we to term ſuch young plants, as ſhoot up from the root of ſome Elder-tree, or Stander. See chap.11.1. This ſome underſtand, of the mean beginnings of Chriſts Kingdom; though afterward, wonderfully thriving, and proſpering, Mat.13.31,32. Mar.4.27-32. Others, rather of Chriſt himſelf. See chap.11.1.

—— and as a root out of a dry ground.] By root, ſome underſtand here, a ſprig, ſprouting out, or ſpringing up fr[illegible] as chap.11.10. Rev.5.5. but it may be here t[illegible] nary notion; the word, ſprig, or twig, or plant, [illegible] from the former branch, as is not unuſual. See [illegible] 8. and ſo the words may be rendred; and as, or, even as (as ch. 1.6.& 40. 30.) the twig, or plant of a root, that riſeth out of a dry ground. Heb. a ground of drought, or drineſs, as Pſal.63.1. & 68.6. where it is ſtrange (ſaith the Jewiſh Commenter) that tree, or herb, ſhould take root; and much more unlikely, that it ſhould thrive, and bear fruit, as this plant was to do, Chap.52.13. ver.10. By this dry ground, ſome underſtand the Virgin Mary, Chriſts Mother, in regard of hope of iſſue, while ſhe ſhould ſo continue, as ſuch. See chap.56.3. Luk.1. 34. Others, of the decayed ſtock of David, and mean Family of Jeſſe, that then ſeemed to be as a dry tree, or dead trunk of a tree rather; as being reduced to a far lower eſtate, then it was in at firſt. See chap. 11. 1. But I ſuppoſe we need not appropriate this limb of the collation, unto either of theſe, albeit, the conſideration of the mean, and low ſtate and condition of both thoſe, (Joſeph the Virgins husband being alſo taken in to them) come within compaſs of that, which is here aimed at; to wit, the mean condition of our Saviour, which made him ſo deſpicable in the eyes of his own people, Luk. 1. 48.& 2.4. & 3.23. Mat.13.55. Mar.6.3. It is ſufficient, that by this reſemblance is intimated, ſuch a poor, and bare condition, without ſightly ſhew or ſtate, as might well be compared to ſome ſorry plant, that had, with much ado, ſhot up, and got above ground, from ſome, almoſt, ſapleſs root, in ſome ſuch waſte and waterleſs place. See Jer. 17. 6.

he hath no form, nor comelineſs.] The former word applied to a plant, ſeems to import the ſightlineſs, or comelineſs of a plant, or tree, in regard of the trunk, and body of it, its ſhape, proportion, ſtraightneſs, ſmoothneſs, well colouredneſs, and the like: for it comes of a word, that ſignifies, to delineate, draw out, or portray ought, in its due ſhape and lineaments, Joſh.15. 9,11, & 19.13. chap.44.23. and applied to mankind, or woman-kind, ſignifies a perſon, well compoſed, and complexioned, well faced and featured, or well proportioned and ſhaped, Gen.29.17.& 36.6. ſo it is uſed alſo of beaſts, Gen.41.2. where, with its epithet, it is rendred, well-favoured; and might as well be, well featured, and fat: fatneſs bettering the feature of a beaſt, as leanneſs defaceth it: the latter ſeems to have reference, in plants, to that ſightlineſs of them, that proceedeth from the leaves, and bloſſoms, and kays, and fruits, or other like verdure, wherewith ſuch are wont to be arrayed and adorned. So it is uſed, Lev.23.40. where they are enjoyned at the feaſt of Tabernacles to take the fruit, (that is, boughs, or branches, as it is explained, Neh.8.15. or, more ſpecially, leafie boughs, and branches, (for ſo the word there uſed, properly ſignifies. See Prov.11. 28.) of trees of ſightlineſſe, or goodlineſſe; that is, of ſightly, or goodly trees, (as it is there rendred, of ſuch trees, as were thick with leaves, and twigs, as in both places it is afterward expounded) to make them booths of. And hence applyed to beaſts, it is attributed to ſuch, as are furniſhed, and garniſhed with goodly and ſtately heads or horns, Deut. 33. 17. given to men, or women, it is uſed of ſuch, as are attired & decked with goodly and gorgeous apparel, Chap.63.1. Ezek. 16.10-14. where the word is alſo uſed. Hence thoſe ſpeeches in the Proverbs; In the multitude of people, is the ſightlineſs of a King, Prov.14.28. as if he had ſaid, not ſo much, in his rich and royal robes, as in the numerouſneſs of his ſubjects; and Prov. 20. 29. the bravery of young men is their ſtrength; and the ſightlineſs of old men is the gray-head; that is, vigour and valour, ſetteth out, and adorneth the one; and his gray-hairs, the other; more then fine, and gay apparel doth either. Now leaves and verdure, are to plants, as veſtments and attire, unto man, or woman. Howbeit, ſome of the Rabbines, on Gen.29.17. where beauty, in two diſtinct reſpects, is given unto Rachel, and uſe made of theſe two words, by the former, underſtand the feature, or compoſure of the face, by the other, the cleerneſs of the complexion or countenance. But I ſuppoſe them not to be ſo ſtrictly here taken. Howſoever, the mean eſtate of the Meſſias, void of all ſhew and luſtre, that is wont to draw mens eyes after it, is here very pithily and pregnantly, ſet forth, and deciphered, by the reſemblance of ſuch a plant, as hath neither height, nor ſtrength, nor comely ſhape, nor leaves, or verdure, to make it any way ſightly, or deſireable. Or, if it ſhall be deemed, that in the former branch onely, ſome plant is alluded unto the perſon of man rather in this latter; ſuch a party is here intimated, as for perſonage and ſtate, may be compared unto ſuch a plant, as by ſuch notions hath been deſcribed. See chap.1.30.

and when we ſhall ſee him, there is no beauty that we ſhould deſire him] Heb. and we ſhall ſee him, and no ſight (or, ſightlineſſe; for ſo the word ſoundeth, having an elegant conſonance, with the term of ſeeing, whence it is derived, Chap.52.14. and comprehendeth both the former) is, (to wit, in him; a defect of the pronoun, as Deut.8.12. Chap 35.9. the like ſyntax, ſee Prov.4.23. Chap.37.9,36.) or, (as it may be rendred, by ſupply from the former member, as Gen.1.16. Chap.52.6.) we ſhall not ſee any ſightlineſſe in him; and we ſhall deſire him, for, that we ſhould deſire him: as Chap.40.25. Mal. 1. 9. that is, for which; or in regard whereof, we ſhould have any deſire, or affection unto him: neither is there any need, as ſome would, to ſupply the negative from the former branch; as Pſal.9.18. Prov.30.3. rendring the words, and we ſhall not deſire him, there being as much implyed without it. He that is ſtyled, the deſire of all nations, Hagg.1.7. (whence ſome are of opinion, that Machmed, or Mahommed, borrowed his name, that he might be deemed as another Meſſias) and who much better then Daniel, might be termed, a man of deſires, Dan. 10. 11, 19. having all deſireable things that can be; yea, all deſireableneſs, treaſured up in him, Col.2.3,9. in true beauty, and excellency, far exceeding and ſurpaſſing, not the ſons of men only, Pſal.45.2,7. but the Angels themſelves, Heb.1.4. yet appears ſo ſtript, and deveſted of all ſhew of any ſuch matter, Phil.2.6,7,8. that his own people, when they ſee him, can diſcern nothing at all ſightly, or deſireable in him. See Chap. 52. 14.

V. 3. He is deſpiſed, and rejected of men] It was not enough to ſay of him, that he was not deſired, ver.2. but he addeth further now, that he was, as ſome, not baſe only and deſpicable, but even vile, and abominable creature, both deſpiſed, and rejected. See Chap.49.7. deſpiſed; as of Jeconiah, Jer. 22.28. rejected of men: or, as ſome, taking the word for a noun, a rejection of men; the abſtract for the concrete; as 1 Cor.4.13. But I conceive it rather to be a participle, found entire, Ezek.3.27. but here contracted; becauſe it reſteth on the word adjoyned to it: and it is not amiſs rendred by our Tranſlators, rejected of men; that is, as one of the Jewiſh Commenters; either more abject then any man, as Chap.52.14. (and ſo there ſhould be a want of the prepoſition there uſed, as there is alſo, Chap.20.7. & 32.2. and that in this very notion alſo, Chap.65.5.) or, one ſevered, and caſt out from the company and ſociety of men; as ſcarce deemed worthy the name of a man, Pſal.22.6. and unworthy, therefore, to converſe with men, or to have any communion with them. See of Paul, Act.22.22. and this latter fitteth well with the Hebrew; for it is word for word, leaving of men, or, ceaſing from men: as one that cannot be admitted to any ſociety with them: the condition of the leper, Levit.13.46. 2 Chr.26.21. deemed in that regard, as dead, Num.12.10,12,14. See Pſal. 31.11,12. & 88.4,5-8. So rather, then as one, the laſt, or, loweſt of men; as Paul of himſelf, the laſt, and leaſt of the Apoſtles; yea the leaſt; or, (as the word imports, compoſed of a two-fold degree of compariſon) leſſe then the leaſt of the Saints; not worthy to be called an Apoſtle, 1 Cor.15.8,9. Eph.5.8. ſo here, as we would ſay the very liſt, or fag-end of mankind, one, at whom the nature, and name of man ends; ſo mean, and ſo low, that the nature of man can hardly deſcend lower, and may therefore ſeem ſcarce worthy the name of a man. See Pſal.22.6. and what Agur of himſelf, Prov. 30. 2. But this ſeems to ſtrain ſomewhat too far. Howbeit, Chriſt of himſelf ſaith, that he was to be made nought-worth, or, nothing, Mark 9.12.

a man of ſorrows,] Not of ſorrow barely; but of ſorrows: not a man full of ſorrow, or, filled with ſorrow only; as the Pſalmiſt ſpeaks, Our ſoul is exceedingly filled with ſcorn, and contempt, Pſal.123.3,4. but, a man of ſorrows, as the Pſalmiſt elſewhere; My ſoul is full of evils; with evil of all ſorts, or all ſorts of evil, Pſal.88.3. and as Solomon, a man of wicked devices, Prov.12.2. a man, not wholly ſet upon, and addicted unto evil, only; ſuch an one as Moſes deſcribeth, Gen. 6.5. all the device of whoſe heart, (or whatſoever he deviſeth) is all day long only, (that is, continually nothing but) evil: but a man made up of evil, or wicked devices of all ſorts; that deviſeth nothing but evil, and refraineth no device that is evil, Pſal.36.4. as if he conſiſted of nothing but ſuch: ſo a man of ſorrowes; of ſorrows of all ſorts: ſo full of them, that he may ſeem to conſiſt wholly of them; to be made of no other mould: nothing but ſorrow to be ſeen in him, (ſee Chap. 1.6.) and variety of ſorrows, ſorrows of all ſorts; ſuch ſorrows, as for our ſake he ſuſtained, and for our ſins, ver.4,5.

and acquainted with grief] The participle here uſed, is by the Jewiſh Criticks diverſly expounded. Some of them would have it ſignifie cut off, or deſtroyed with infirmity, or grief. So they ſuppoſe the word whereof it cometh, to be taken, Judg. 8.16. Prov.10.9. & 14.33. Jer.31.19. Ezek. 19.7. but theſe places are not ſo pregnant; and others of them, underſtand them all in another notion: the moſt of them therefore herein depart from them; and expound it according to the ordinary uſe, and ſenſe of the verb: ſome, known by infirmity; well known, or commonly known; to be much ſubject thereunto, and exerciſed therewith; one ſo encompaſſed with infirmities, as, Heb.5.1. that they cannot but appear, and be ſeen in him, by all that behold him; thus they take it, becauſe the word is in a paſſive form; and is by moſt ſo taken, Deut. 1. 13,15. but thoſe paſſive forms have ſometime an active, or a a neutral notion; as in other languages, alſo, ſometime the like: and ſo others of them, and moſt of ours, take this here; rendring it, one knowing of infirmity; as it ſoundeth word for word; that is, knowing it experimentally: as it is ſaid, he that knew not ſin, 2 Cor.5.21. that neither had drawn ought of it from any other, nor done any himſelf: and as the tree inhibited, was called the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, Gen. 2.9,17. not, as the devil ſuggeſted, becauſe the fruit thereof eaten, had a ſingular power to give man a notional knowledge of good and evil, which before he had not; but becauſe, upon the eating of it, contrary to Gods command, man ſhould come to have an experimental knowledge of evil, as well as of good, which before he had not: yea, and in ſome ſort, of the benefit and excellency of good alſo, being by the want, better; by the loſs of it (which is yet more) beſt known, ſo we uſe to ſay, ſuch an one never knew what miſery meant; having lived free from it; and, a man never knoweth what health is, until he have had a fit of ſickneſs: thus it might be rendred, knowing of infirmity; as, men knowing of the ſea, 1 King. 9.27. and, knowing of the times, Eſt.1.13. and, knowing of good and evil, Gen.3.5. (for ſo the words are in thoſe places) that is, skilful in thoſe things; and as we uſe to ſay, a knowing man, for one skilful in ought: or, to fit it better to the Hebrew form, a man skilled in infirmity; as both the ancient Greek, and ſome of ours, alſo, take the word for skilfull, or skilled, in the place of Deuteronomy before pointed to: or, as the word taught, c.54.13. doth ſomtime imply, not only learned, & ſo skilled in ought; but one alſo expert, or experienced in, & accuſtomed, or enured unto ought, Jer,2.24. & 13.23. and the word of learning is uſed by the Apoſtle, both of himſelf, Phil. 4.11,12. and of Chriſt, Heb.5.8. ſo the word here may be taken, one enured to infirmity, or grief, and accuſtomed thereunto; which by ours is very fitly rendred, acquainted therewith; as we uſe to ſay of thoſe, who not only know one another by hear-ſay, or by ſight; but that have familiarly converſed together. Or, laſtly, as ſome render the word, both in Moſes, and here, known of it: as thoſe are ſaid to be well known of us, that we have been frequently converſant, and familiarly acquainted with, Hoſ.5.5. Amos 3.2. which, as it comes neereſt to the ordinary acception, and conſtruction of the terms in the original, ſo is it the ſame, in effect, with the laſt before propoſed. Howſoever, the notice, or acquaintance, is attributed to the perſon, in the one; to the affection, in the other: both which, in ſubſtance, come all to one, and import thus much; That Chriſt, and humane griefs, and infirmities, were to have great, and much acquaintance, the one with the other; he having had in his perſon, much experience of them; and they conſtantly keeping together with him: a great comfort to all thoſe that have intereſt in him, Heb.4.15.

grief] The word here uſed, (as the root alſo from whence it ſprings) hath, in the firſt place, a notion of diſeaſe, or ſickneſs, Chap.38.1,9. in the next place, (becauſe ſickneſs uſually bringeth pain, and weakneſs with it,) they are either of them uſed, ſometime, in a notion of vexation, and grief; as Eccl.5.17. & 6.2. Jer.5.3. Hoſ.5.13. ſometime, in a notion of infirmity, and weakneſs; as Judg.16.7,11,17. Chap. 14.10. and of either of theſe, proceeding as well from any affliction of body, or mind, as from any natural diſeaſe: in either of which latter notions, it may well be here taken: not ſo fitly in the firſt; becauſe we read not of any peculiar diſeaſe, ſuch as we uſually appropriate that term unto, that our Saviour was troubled with, all his life: and by ſome of the ancients, it is not improbably deemed, that he was not exerciſed with any ſuch; it being not ſo ſutable for him, to have any diſeaſe hanging on him, that ſhewed his power conſtantly, in the healing of others; that it might not be objected to him, as in another kind, and upon another occaſion, it was; Phyſitian heal thy ſelf, Luk.4.23. infirmity, for, infirmities, collectively; as Heb.5.2.

and we hid as it were our faces from him:] The words in Hebrew are both diverſly read, and diverſly reſolved. For ſome make the firſt word a participle; as one hiding, or, one that hideth: and the participle, in that flexion, is very commonly ſo framed. Others make it a noun verbal, as an hiding; and ſome verbals of that form are found. Again, ſome render the laſt, the particle with the pronoun, from us; and that, not a few embrace. Others, from him; and ſo the pronoun in that form, is moſt frequently uſed; yet in the other notion, alſo, not unuſual, Gen.3.22. Pſal.2.3. Hence ariſe variety of verſions; Some render the words, and he hid, as it were the face (that is, his face, the pronoun ſupplyed, as Chap.59.2.) from us; or, he is as one, that hideth his face. Heb. the face from him, or of him: but of this latter conſtruction, I find no ſuitable example. But whether of theſe two wayes we read, or render the words, they import ſuch a condition of dejection, and confuſion, and of affection thence ariſing, as makes a man, like one aſhamed of himſelf, to cover his face, as not enduring to look up, or to be ſeen, and to ſhun the ſight of others: and ſo the meaning ſhould be, he is one, who, as conſcious to himſelf, either of the deformity, and loathſomeneſs of his perſon, or of his deſpicable and dejected eſtate, hideth his face from humane ſight: the one was the lepers caſe, Levit.13.45. the other, Babylons, Chap.47.3,5. and hence, together with the help of another word in the next verſe, have the Talmudiſts coined us a tale, how that one of their great Maſters met with their Meſſias, at Rome, where he found him, lying among the lepers. But others render the words, and as an hiding of faces, or, of the face, (for the word, though of a plural form, yet is ordinarily of a ſingular notion; as Prov.25.23. Chap. 59.2.) from him; or, as he, from whom one would hide the face, or, his face; as before: that is, as one, whom men hide their faces from: this ſenſe our verſion follows: and following it, it may ſeem that it ſhould rather be rendred; and as one, from whom the face is hid, or, mens faces are hid: for according to this reading, the words are more general, and indefinite; there being no our, in the text. Now hiding the face, proceedeth, ſometime, from a reverent reſpect, and awful dread, Exod. 3.6. 1 King. 19.13. ſometime, from ſome glorious ſplendor, that dazeleth the eye-ſight, Chap.6.2. Exod.34.30,33. 2 Cor.3.13. ſometime, from ſome ſtrange paſſion of love, that with a kind of raviſhment, affecteth the lover, upon the ſight of his beloved, and caſteth him into fainting fits, Cant. 6.5. compared with Chap.4.9. (for they palpably abuſe, both that Scripture, and the Churches eyes, that is, her teachers, who thence would force a malignity intimated in them,) ſometime from pitty, and compaſſion; when men cannot endure to ſee ſome perſon dear unto them, or any of the ſame nature with them, cruelly dealt with, or otherwiſe, in ſome lamentable condition, Eſt.8.6. ſometime, out of extream hatred, or at leaſt, out of diſpleaſure, indignation, or wrath, 2 Sam. 14.8. Pſal. 10.1. & 27.9. Chap.54.8. & 59.2. ſometime, out of neglect, and diſregard; as from one, whom we liſt not to look after, Chap.58.7. ſometime, out of deteſtation, as from ſome vile, loathſome, abhorred, and abominable creature, whom we cannot brook, or abide to behold, Chap.1.13,14,15. and to this purpoſe, one of the Jewiſh Commenters telleth us, that there is a certain people, that cannot endure the ſight of a Jew, but turn the face from him, whereſoever they meet with any of them. But whether that be, or ever were ſo, or no, is not much material; not at all, to this text. Howbeit, in this laſt notion, wherewith ſome alſo take in two of the next before it, I conceive the words may well be here underſtood. See Chap.49.7. yet not concurring with thoſe that attribute this, hiding of the face, unto pitty and compaſſion; becauſe it croſſeth the main drift of the whole context: nor conſenting with them, that ſuppoſe the covering of mens faces condemned to dye, to be here pointed at; as Chap.25.7. Eſt.7. 8. To which purpoſe, they draw in alſo the blind-folding of Chriſt, Luk.22.64. but that is the covering of the parties own face by others, not the hiding of others from him. Howbeit, all things well weighed, I encline rather to the firſt, both reading, and rendring; becauſe it both fitteth well the ſcope of the place, as importing a deſpicable and ſhamefull condition, and that of one, who ſeemed to be deveſted of that magnificence, which formerly he had been poſſeſſed of. See Joh.17.5. Phil.2.6,7,8. Heb. 12.2. and floweth moſt freely, without any force at all, from the terms uſed in the text.

he was deſpiſed,] Or, he is deſpiſed, as in the beginning of the verſe, Pſal.22.6. repeated again for the more emphaſis. So chap.14.26,27. Pſal.68.22.

and we eſteemed him not.] Or, eſteem him not; (Phil.2.7. he made himſelf of no eſteem.) or, regard him not; as the word is rendred. ch.33.8. he regards no man, Pſal.144.3. the great contempt that ſhould be offered unto Chriſt, by the Jewiſh Nation, being expreſſed here in a form of extenuation, but to be conceived in a notion of exaggeration; as if it had been ſaid more fully, We ſhal not only, when he cometh amongſt us, afford him no reſpect, or regard; but ſhall very reproachfully, and diſgracefully abuſe him. See the like manner of ſpeech, Prov.10.2. Treaſure wickedly gotten ſhall not profit; that is, ſhall do a man much miſchief: and, the father of a fool ſhall not rejoyce; he ſhall have no joy, but much grief, of him, Prov. 17.21. and, It is not good to have reſpect of perſons in judgment; that is, indeed, it is ſtark naught, Prov.24.23. and, If any man love not the Lord Jeſus, let him be anathema, maranatha; that is, accurſed, without revocation, irrevocably, and irrecoverably accurſt, 1 Cor.16.22. a text, by ſome, extreamly tentred; meant of ſuch, as out of meer malice alone, againſt knowledge, oppoſe Chriſt, and Chriſtianity; ſuch as our Saviour ſpeaks of, Matth. 12.32. and the Apoſtle, Heb. 6.6. and 10. 26,27,29.

V. 4. Surely, he hath born our griefs, and carryed our ſorrows;] He took upon him, not our nature alone, but the infirmities alſo of it; and became liable to ſuch ſorrows of affliction, and pains, as mans ſinful nature is expoſed, and ſubject unto, Rom. 8.3. Heb. 4.15. ver.3. Or, the griefs and ſorrows, that he is ſaid to have been ſo abundantly exerciſed with, ver. 3. (for theſe words have apparent reference to the very ſame there uſed) he ſuſtained for us: and are therefore called ours; becauſe procured to him, by our ſins; and ſuſtained by him, for the diſcharge of our ſins, unto the guilt whereof, out of love to us, undertaken by him, they were deſervedly due, Heb.9.29. 1 Pet.2.24. & 3.8. Some would have the former word rendred, he took away, or, hath taken away, our griefs; that is, our ſins, the procuring cauſe of them, together with the griefs themſelves, the effect of them: And it it true, that the word ſignifies, ſometime, to take away, as Job 7.21. and that our Saviour is ſaid to take away the ſins of the world, Joh.1.29. but the ſequel of the context carryeth it another way; tending to ſhew here, rather the ground, and cauſe of his ſufferings, then the end, or iſſue of them. This paſſage the Evangeliſt makes uſe of, in relating Chriſts practice, in the healing of corporal infirmities, not ſo much, as I conceive, thereby intimating, that thoſe bodily maladies, and the cure thereof, was, (as ſome would have it) a type of thoſe diſeaſes of the ſoul, that Chriſt came principally to free men from, and his deliverance of them from the ſame: but that by his tender pitty, and compaſſionate affection towards perſons ſo affected, and afflicted, he ſhewed that he had aſſumed, together with our nature, the infirmities of the ſame; and had therefore a lively fellow-feeling of thoſe pains and griefs, that did from the ſame proceed, in others.

yet we did eſteem him ſtricken, ſmitten of God, and afflicted.] The reaſon why they ſo much diſ-eſteemed Chriſt; to wit, becauſe they made no other account, but that all thoſe afflictions that befell him, were, by God, for his own evil deſerts, inflicted upon him, out of a diſaffection to him, Pſal. 22.7,8. & 71.11. Mat.27. 39-43.

yet] Heb. and; as chap.50.7.

we eſteemed] The ſame word, by an elegant antanaclaſis, is here repeated, that the Prophet had made uſe of in the verſe before-going; but in a different notion here, from that there: they did not eſteem him, that is, made any account of him; becauſe they eſteemed, that is, accounted him to be one out of grace and favour with God; yea, to be one purſued by him, with thoſe evils, for his ſins. The very like conceit, that Jobs friends had of him, for his ſufferings, Job 4.7,8. & 8.4. & 22. 5-11.

ſtricken, ſmitten, and afflicted] Three ſeveral terms uſed, to expreſs the greatneſs, and grievouſneſſe of his ſufferings; as three other of neer nature, before joyned together, to intimate the eminent, and incomparable height of his enſuing honour, chap.52.13.

ſtricken] Or, plagued: ſo it is rendred, Pſal.73. 14. now becauſe the noun hence deduced, is uſed of the ſtroke, or, plague of leproſie, Lev.13.3,9,20. and very oft in that chapter; hence the Rabbines, ſome of them, abuſe this place, to prove that their dotage before touched; that the Meſſias ſhould ſometime be a Leper: and the old Latine rendreth it, as a Leper: which yet may bear a warrantable ſenſe. See ver. 3. But that of the Talmudiſts, is a moſt ridiculous fancy, ſuch as their rapſodies are fraught with, not a few: the word is general, comprehending any ſtroke, plague, or affliction whatſoever: and they may as well prove, that Aſaph, the Author of that 73. Pſalm, was for a long time a Leper, from the paſſage therein pointed to, as from this, that the Meſſias was ſo, or ever ſhould ſo be. See ver.8.

ſmitten of God] That is, as ſome would have it, moſt grievouſly ſmitten; it being the manner of Scripture, by ſuch forms, to expreſſe the eminent greatneſſe of any thing; as, Sinners of God, for grievous ſinners, Gen.13.13. and, a ſleep of God, for a deep ſleep, 1 Sam.26.12. See Jer.2.31. But that he was grievouſly ſmitten, was conſpicuous enough; nor did they deem amiſſe therein: their miſtake was, that they thought him thus handled by God, in way of vengeance for his ſins. So they wickedly and impiouſly deemed of Chriſt, when they ſaw what grievous things he ſuffered. And it is but an idle foppery of ſome popiſh Writers, to require the words to be read, God ſmitten; as intimating the deity of Chriſt: becauſe the word, of, is not expreſly in the text: when as they cannot be ignorant, who know any thing in the Hebrew, that the courſe of the conſtruction, of noun with noun, doth neceſſarily imply it. Beſide, that this reading directly croſſeth the Prophets intention; as intimating, that the Jewiſh people ſhould acknowledge Chriſt, notwithſtanding his ſufferings, to be God; who, on the contrary, therefore condemned him, as guilty of impiety and blaſphemy, and were enraged againſt him for it, becauſe he profeſſed himſelf to be the Son of God, one with the Father, and equal to God, Mat.26.53-56. Joh. 5. 18. & 10.31-33. & 19.7. and afflicted] To wit, by God, as before; for that have all the three words reference unto: as if all that befell him, came not from mans malice againſt him, but Gods juſt wrath and diſpleaſure.

V. 5. But he was wounded for our tranſgreſſions,] Heb. And; the copulative, in an adverſative notion, as Chap. 36. 12. & 40.31. The right ground, and true cauſe of Chriſts ſufferings, is, in this verſ, and thoſe following, related, in way of oppoſition, to that vain and fond conceit, that his own people had of him, and them.

wounded] So both the ancient Greek, and old Latine, render the word here uſed; and ſome, ſmittten, to have it anſwer to the latter end of verſe 4. which comes, much in effect, to the ſame; as deſcending from a word, that ſignifies, to ſmite, to wound, to thruſt thorow, to ſlay. Others, render it, polluted, or, profaned; uſed, and dealt with, as ſome common, vile, or profane thing; as deſcending from the ſame root, but in another notion: whereof ſee Pſal.89.39,44,45. chap.43.28. & 47. 6. but the word deduced from that root, in whether notion of the twain, is ſomewhat different from that, that is here uſed, as may be ſeen, Ezek.32.26. I ſuppoſe, therefore, that the better reading is that in the margent of our Bibles; He was tormented, or pained: for the word comes regularly from a root, that ſignifies properly, to be in pain; as women, or other creatures, that bring forth, with pain, are wont to be, at the time of their travel: ſo Pſal.51.5. where, as the one word, there uſed, hath in it a notion of the heat of delight, in conception, as Gen.29.39,41. ſo the other, of ſharpneſſe of pain, in production; as Job 39.1,2,3, & 29.9. and it is uſed, commonly, of any grievous torment, or pain, proceeding from vexation, affliction, or fear, Job 19,20. Prov.26.10. chap.13.8. & 26.18. & 51.9. Jer.5.3. and this word, the Prophet, delighting much in conſonancies, may ſeem the rather to have made choice of here; becauſe it comes very neer, in ſound, to the word rendred grief, ver.3,4.

for] Heb. from, that is, becauſe of; as Pſal.12.5. chap.48.4. Obad. 10. as importing the principal cauſe of Chriſts ſufferings, mans ſins, Rom. 4. 25. 1 Cor. 15. 3. ſo in the next branch.

our tranſgreſſions] Or, defections, revolts, (as ſome not amiſſe render it, both here, and chap.59.12,13.) or, rebellions; for ſo the word it comes of, is commonly rendred, 2 King.1.1. & 3.5, 7. & 8.20,22.

he was bruiſed for our iniquities:] The word uſed again, ver.10. ſignifies properly, to beat, or break, or cruſh to pieces, or grind to powder. See chap.3.15. uſed ordinarily, of grievous oppreſſion and affliction; yea, ſuch as tends to, and ends, if not ſtaid, in deſtruction, Job 4.19. & 6.9. & 19.2. & 22.9. Pſal.72.4. & 90.3. & 94.5. Lam.3.34.

the chaſtiſement of our peace was upon him] He was chaſtiſed to procure our peace, by removal of our ſins, that ſet God and us aſunder, chap.59.2. the guilt thereof, being diſcharged with the price of his bloud, 1 Pet.1.18,19. and to reconcile us unto him, Rom.3.25. & 5.1,10. 2 Cor.5.19,21. and with his ſtripes are we healed.] Heb. by his ſtripe, or bruiſe: for the word properly ſignifies, the mark, or print of a ſtripe, or ſtroke, remaining upon ſome part of the body, black and blue, by gathering, and ſetling together of the bloud there; from whence it hath this name, Exod.21. 25. Prov.20. 30. and the ſame ſignifies the Greek word, whereby it is expreſſed, 1 Pet.2.24. But it is uſed alſo for any ſore, and grievous ſtroke, or hurt; ſuch as thoſe, by which the ſame is wont to be produced, Gen.4.23. See chap.1.6. Jer.30.12. and ſuch, no doubt, our Saviour, as well, in the propriety of the term, as otherwiſe alſo, bare in his body, being not buffeted only, but ſcourged, as he was, Mat.26.67. & 27.16.

V. 6. All we, like ſheep, have gone aſtray;] In theſe words is ſhewed wherein thoſe iniquities, and ſins of ours, for which our Saviour ſuffered, do conſiſt.

All we,] By nature, none of us excepted, Pſal.14.3. Rom.3. 12,23. Eph.2.2,3.

like ſheep,] Or, like loſt ſheep; as more expreſly, Pſal. 119. 176. So cluſters, for cluſters leaft, chap.24.13.

have gone aſtray] As ſheep ſtray, ſometime ſcared and ſcattered, by dogs, or wolves, or thieves, or the like, Joh.10.12. or forced to ſeek abroad, for want of paſture, Gen.47.4. Jer.14.5. ſometime, again of themſelves, out of a ſilly diſpoſition, Luk. 15.4. ſo it is with men alſo, in either reſpect, reſembled by ſheep. There is a ſtraying, or wandring, enforced, when they are driven, by violence, from their wonted places of abode. Of which, ſee Pſal. 119.176. Jer.50.17. Ezek.34.4--6. Zach.13. 7. Mat.26.31. Mar. 14. 27. But this is not the ſtraying here ſpoken of; and there is a voluntarie ſtraying (they are not willing onely, but love to wander, Jer.14.10.) a wandring out of ſelf-will; not a corporal,but a ſpiritual ſtraying; by which, men,of themſelves,wander from God, and go aſtray from the way of truth,and life; from thoſe ways and courſes, that God hath preſcribed them in his Word; and directeth them unto, by his Spirit. Of which, ſee Pſal. 14.3. & 53. 2. & 58.3. & 119.67.Rom.3.12.1 Pet.2 25. Jam.5.20. and this is the ſtraying here ſpoken of.

we have turned every one to his own way.] We have turned the face (to wit, away from God, and his ways, and) looked after every one his own way. So the Hebrew word uſed,both here, and chap.56.11. (a parallel place) as alſo, Jer.2.20. (where the notation of it is) properly ſignifieth: and becauſe in ſo doing,the face,and whole body with it,are turned about;hence it cometh to paſs,that the word is alſo uſed, for to turn, or to return,as Num.14 25.Deut.1.7,40. & 2.3.& 16.7. See Deut. 31.18,20.Jer.7.24.

every one to his own way] So Chap.56.11.All agree in turning aſide from the right way; but they herein diſagree, in that each one hath a by-way of his own, which they turn unto; ſome running after one luſt, or vice, or evil courſe, or idol,ſome after another, Chap. 55.7. & 57.17. Eccleſ. 11.9. 2 King.17.30,31.Jer.2.28.& 11.13.

and the Lord hath laid on him the iniquity of us all. Heb. hath made the iniquity of us all to meet on him; or,to light, or,fall on him,rather. Some of the Jewiſh Doctors,to divert this place from being underſtood of Chriſts ſatisfaction, by his ſufferings,made for ſinners; becauſe the word here found,is ſometime uſed of interceſſion by prayer, as Jer.7.16. and here alſo, ver. 12. would fain turn the word that way; as if the party here ſpoken of, were, by prayer,only to have mediated, and pacified Gods wrath, for the ſins of ſome other, as Moſes did ſometime for his people, Exod. 32. 12, 14. Num.14.19,20. Pſal.106.23.and becauſe the word would not ſound handſomly,if it ſhould be ſaid here, the Lord interceded, or prayed; as it is afterward; he interceded,or prayed; they would have it rendred; the Lord made him to intercede,or, to pray: But neither produce they any inſtance of the word ſo uſed; nor will the ſyntax admit, or endure ſuch a ſenſe: For what a ſtrange piece of non-ſenſe were this; the Lord made him to intercede the iniquity of us all upon him? and both the words before,ver. 4,5.and thoſe alſo following, ver. 7,10,12. do evidently hold out to any eye,not wilfully winking, that ſatisfaction was made to Gods juſtice, and his wrath pacified, towards thoſe, that had intereſt therein; not by interceſſion, and prayer only; but by penalties, and ſufferings. The word, therefore, is not amiſs rendred by our Interpreters, where they give it,word for word in the margent; the Lord made to meet on him,and it may well be,to meet with him; as our Engliſh phraſe is wont to expreſs the like. So Chap. 47. 3. I will not meet thee,as a man; and,the revenger of bloud, ſhall ſlay the murtherer, where he meeteth with him, Num.39.19,21. (as Exod. 23. 4. if thou meet with thine enemies ox,or aſſe.) Or, where he lighteth on him; as,he lighted on a place, Gen.28. 11. which place,ſome of the Jewiſh Maſters themſelves, alſo,refer us to,for the notion of the word, in this place: and ſo, here, it may more fitly be rendred; he made the iniquity of us all to light upon him: as, the arm of God is ſaid (though another word be there) to light upon Aſſur, Chap.30.30. or, which I conceive to be the fitteſt expreſſion; he made it all to fall on him: for ſo the word is, in the firſt form, very frequently rendred.fall upon him,2 Sam.1.15. 1 King.2.29,31. and,fall upon the Prieſts,1 Sam.22.18.and,he fell upon the Prieſts,ver.20. and,he fell upon him, 1 King.2.25,34,46. and, he fell upon two men better then himſelf,1 King.2.32. God made it to fall on him,as man is wont to fall in hoſtile manner, with a weapon, on his fo. God inflicted on him, whatſoever was requiſite, to the ſatisfying of his juſtice, for all the ſins of all his Elect ones, even of all that truſt in him,Joh.3.14,15,16.& 11.50-52. 2 Cor.5.14,15. Heb.2.9,14,15.

the iniquity] Not the ſtain, or taint it ſelf of ſin; but, as the Jewiſh Doctors themſelves, well expound it, the guilt and penalty of it; a portion of puniſhment, in ſome regard,proportionable, to whatſoever was due unto their ſins, and to themſelves for the ſame. So is the word taken, Gen. 4. 13. Lev.20.17,19,20. 1 Sam. 28.10. Lam.4.6. which two latter places,the Jewiſh Commenters here point us to. The Greek Interpreters render this paſſage much in the ſame words, that the Apoſtle uſeth,Rom.4.25.

V. 7. He was oppreſſed; and he was afflicted:] A very pregnant place, for the ſatisfaction made by Chriſts ſufferings for our ſins,were it fitly rendred,and rightly underſtood. The words are,word for word; It was exacted, and he anſwered. It was exacted; or, It is exacted; as ſome alſo well render it: that the former word doth properly, and commonly, ſignifie,to exact,cannot be denied. The Jewiſh Commenters, themſelves, obſerve on the place, that it is uſually meant of moneyes; directing us to that place, 2 King. 23.35. he exacted the money. So Chap.58.3. ye exact all your labours; or, as ſome,all your debts: and, of a ſtranger thou mayſt exact it; but not of thy brother,Deut.15.2,3. hence, the name of an exacter, ſo frequent in Scripture,Job 3.17.& 39.7.Chap.3.12.& 9.4.& 14.2.& 60.17.Zach.9.8. & 10. 4. and that it is here a paſſive, the ſame Writers here obſerve. The old Latine rendreth it, He was offered; as if the word were parallel to that other, from whence the Corban cometh,mentioned,Mat.15.5.and ſo the meaning ſhould be,he was made to approach,or offered as a ſacrifice,ver. 10. But this verſion ariſeth from a two-fold miſtake: For, firſt, the word here uſed, and that other, of approaching, differ, as our Jewiſh Criticks tell us; as Sibboleth, and Shibboleth,Judg.12.6. And ſecondly, this latter, in the paſſive form, carryeth always a neutrall; neither an active, nor paſſive ſenſe: it ſignifies, to approach; not to offer, or make to approach; not yet to be made to approach, or to be offered. So Gen.33.7. Exod.20.21. Chap. 29. 13. The word, therefore,is the ſame rather,with that,1 Sam.13.6. where it is ſaid,the people,being in a ſtrait, were preſſed, or diſtreſſed: and ſo alſo, Chap.14.24 ſave that there it is uſed,more metaphorically,here properly: there, perſonally; here,imperſonally; as the words of the text evidently ſhew: For there is neither noun, nor pronoun, before the firſt word of the verſe; but a pronoun expreſly before the next: which evidently controleth their conceit,who expound it of the perſon, from whom it was exacted,and render the words,He was exacted; which yet they expound, it was demanded,or required of no other, but of him: the ſenſe is ſound, but the conſtruction harſh, and not ſorting well with the frame of the context. This the Rabbine himſelf ſaw,and thereupon expounds it; It was exacted,to wit, money, ſaith he,by way of tax,or aſſeſment, as 2 King.23.34,35. and he was afflicted, namely, the people, of whom it was required, by ſtripes,or ſtrokes,being beaten,becauſe they paid not the ſums required of them; as the people in Egypt were beaten, when they could not make up the full tale of brick, Exod.5.14. But the great Doctor had no regard to the current of the context: for that runneth in a conſtant, and continued courſe and tenour, not as ſpeaking of one, and the ſame party or parties,both ſinning and ſuffering, or ſuſtaining penalties, for their own defaults: but as one, ſuffering for the ſins of another, and ſuſtaining grievous penalties,for defaults made,and faults committed,by other perſons. Some of ours therefore reade it; It is exacted,and he is afflicted. Others,It was exacted,and he was afflicted. Or, When it was exacted,he was afflicted. Of which manner of ſyntax, ſee on ver. 2. that is, the penalty due to Gods juſtice, for our ſins, ver.6. was exacted,and he ſuſtained the ſame for us. For that which a learned late Annotator ſuggeſteth,who would have it rendred,he was humble,or humbly ſubmitted himſelf,not opening his mouth; becauſe of Pharao it is ſaid, Exod.10.3. thou refuſeſt to be humbled: Neither doth that place and this, ſuit well the one with the other: (It is one thing to be humbled; another to be humble,) and this Interpretation ſeemeth to decline from the drift of the precedent diſcourſe, whereupon this hath dependance. The words,as formerly read,do ſufficiently confirm the doctrine of ſatisfaction made to Gods juſtice,by Chriſts ſufferings for our ſins. But yet ſome further ſtrength may be,from hence,added thereunto, if we conſider the latter term a little more exactly: For howſoever it be true,that the word,here uſed, do in the paſſive form ſignifie,to be afflicted,or humbled,as Exod.10.3. Pſal.119.107.and ſo in a grave, or weighty form, it is uſed, ver. 4. which this may here ſeem to have reference unto: and that the word uſed in a notion of anſwering, be ſeldome found, but in an active form: yet, as in the notion of affliction, the word is uſed,ſometime, in an active form paſſively, for, to be afflicted; Pſal.116.10.ſo in the notion of anſwering, it is ſometime uſed actively, in the paſſive form; not to be anſwered, either verbally,as Job 11.2. or,really; as Job 19.7. Prov.21.13. but, to anſwer; and that either verbally,or really,alſo. In the former ſenſe,ſome underſtand that place, Pſal.119.167.before I anſwered,(that is,ſay they, before ever I was able to ſpeak, as ver.172.my tongue ſhall anſwer; that is, ſpeak of, thy word;) I went aſtray; as parallel to that,Pſal.58.3. and having reſpect to inbred pravity: but the word ſeemeth to be there, as in an active form,ſo in a paſſive ſenſe; and in a ſignification of affliction,and humiliation,as it is commonly expounded. Howbeit,the word is found elſe-where,in a paſſive form, with an active ſenſe, and that without any queſtion, in the notion of anſwering, Ezek. 14. 4,7. as alſo the word of ſpeaking, is Pſal. 119.13. Ezek.[illegible] 20. Mal.3.13,16. And ſomewhat to this purpoſe, an Author of good note expoundeth this text, thus rendring the words; It is exacted, and he undertaketh, (a term that ſome of the Ancients alſo uſe,in the opening of this text) that is,ſaith he, the penalty due to us,was in rigour of juſtice exacted; and he became a ſponſor,or ſurety for us, by undertaking, in our behalf, the diſcharge of it. And though the word, ſaith he, in Hebrew, be not found ſo uſed; yet in Latine,the word reſpondere, that is, to anſwer, comes from ſpondere, dere, that ſignifies to undertake; and the word, to anſwer, in the French tongue, is ſo commonly uſed. Hereunto may be added, that the old Latine ſeems to look this way, that renders the text, He was offered of his own accord; or, becauſe he himſelf would: which verſion, howſoever it fail much, in the former term, as hath already been ſhewed; yet it comes home to us, in the latter word; implying a voluntary undertaking, or engaging of himſelf (ſee Jer.31.20.) unto God his Father, in our behalf, as a Surety, (ſo is he termed, Heb. 7. 22.) for the payment of our debt. And, which is yet more then ſo, that albeit, the Hebrew be not found expreſly, and directly uſed for ſuch a ſponſion, or engagement; yet that in this very form, that here it hath, it is twice uſed in the place of Ezekiel, before pointed to; I the Lord will anſwer him (to wit, the man that repairs to me for advice, with an idol in his heart) and again, I will anſwer him by my ſelf; and that in a notion, not of a verbal, but of a real anſwering: and ſo I conceive it is to be taken here, It was exacted, and he anſwered it, (the particle being neceſſarily, at oft elſe-where, ſupplyed; See Chap. 48. 5,6.) that is, he not only undertook it, but diſcharged it. So we uſe the word commonly in our Engliſh tongue, to anſwer a debt, for, to diſcharge it. And ſo of our Saviour it is moſt true, that he anſwered our debt, and cauſed our bond to be cancelled, that it might not come to be put in ſuit, againſt us, any more again. See Joh.19.30. Rom.4.25. Col. 2. 14. A ſingular comfort to every ſincere Chriſtian ſoul.

yet he opened not his mouth] Heb. And; But ſo we had it before, ver.4. and it may well be here retained, if we keep to the received reading of being oppreſſed, and afflicted; as if it were ſaid, having reſpect to his patience, for all the oppreſſions and afflictions, that he ſuſtained for others; and that, in regard of thoſe, by whom he ſuffered them unjuſtly: yet was he ſilent; he neither murmured, or repined, at Gods diſpoſal of things in that manner; nor uſed any railing, or reviling ſpeeches, againſt thoſe that dealt ſo ſpitefully with him, but carryed himſelf calmly, and quietly, under them, Mat. 26.39, 42. Mar.14.36. Joh.18.23. 1 Pet.2.23. Howbeit, if we admit the ſenſe in the ſecond place propounded, and preſſed, of exacting, and anſwering, that is, undertaking, or diſcharging; the copulative ſhall not need at all to be altered: for the words will well go on in way of connexion to the former; as if it were ſaid, Having an eye to his voluntary obedience, and ſubmiſſion to the Will of his Father, and agreement thereunto; he undertook willingly what his Father required of him, and as willingly, when the time came, underwent it; neither hanging back, or oppoſing ought, in way of contradiction thereunto, when it was by his Father propounded to him, at firſt; nor afterward ſeeking to ſhift it off, when he was to perform what he had engaged himſelf unto, by pleading ought for himſelf, and the releaſment of him, from their moſt unjuſt proceedings, in whoſe hands he then was. See Ch. 50.5,6. Matth. 26.62,63. & 27.12,14. Mar. 14.60, 61, & 15.3,5. Luk.23.9. Joh.10.18. & 14.31. & 19.11. to open the mouth, an uſual form, (the antecedent, put for the conſequent) for, to ſpeak. So Job 3.1. & 33.2. Pſal.78.2. Prov. 31. 8, 26. ſo to open the lips, Job 32.20. and on the contrary, not to open the mouth, for, to be ſilent; not to ſay ought, Pſal.39.9. Prov.24.7.

he is brought as a lamb to the ſlaughter;] The Hebrew word is more general, and ſignifies a ſheep; which word of ours, it comes neer to in ſound: and it is ſo rendred alſo, Act.8.32. where this paſſage is related, Pſal.119.176. Jer.50.17. and yet more largely, leſſer cattell, Chap.7.25. as parallel to another word uſed, v.6. but, as more ſpecially intending, ſheep there, in regard of the ſillineſs thereof; ſo here, in regard of the ordinary number of them, above any ſuch other cattel, brought to the butchery, Pſal. 44. 22. Jer. 12.3. Zach.11.4. Rom. 8.36. and their quiet carriage, in driving thither: the text may well be rendred, as a ſheep that is led to the ſlaughter, as Jer. 11. 19. As a ſheep, that goeth as quietly to the ſhambles, or the ſlaughter-houſe, as if it were going to the fold, wherein it is uſually lodged; or the field, where it is wont to feed. See Jer. 11.19.

and as a ſheep before her ſhearers is dumb,] This latter word, whereof Rachel had her name, Gen.29. 6. is, by the ancient Greek Interpreter, rendred, a lamb; and ſo Act.8.32. Luke, retaining that tranſlation, giveth it. Howbeit, it ſignifieth an Ew, as appeareth plainly, Gen.31. 38. & 32. 14. where theſe rachels are diſtinguiſhed from rams; as alſo, Cant.6.6. where they are deſcribed with twins by their ſides: and the word, though of a maſculine form, yet is of a feminine gender, as is manifeſt, by the verb, or participle, joyned with it: and he ſeems to mention the Ew, as the quieter of that kind; becauſe the rams are ſometime more unruly.

is dumb] So Pſal.39 2,9. or tongue-tied: for that ſeemes to be the firſt notion of the root it cometh of, to bind, or ty up, Gen.37.7.

ſo he openeth not his mouth.] Heb. and; uſed here, for the note of ſimilitude; as alſo, Pſal.1.3. & 109.17. Prov.10.25. & 17.3. Chap. 10.26. and ſo it is rendred, Act. 8. 37. Of the phraſe, ſee before.

V. 8. He was taken from priſon, and from judgment:] In the expoſition of this paſſage, Interpreters do exceedingly diſſent, and that about every word, and particle, in it. Howbeit, they may in general be referred all to two heads; either of thoſe, that underſtand them of Chriſts humiliation, and oppreſſion only, and the harſh, cruel, and unjuſt courſes, whereby his life was taken from him, Mat.27. 18-24. Act.2.23. & 3. 14,15. & 13.28. Or, of thoſe, that conceive them to be ſpoken of his deliverance out of thoſe afflictions, and diſtreſſes, injuriouſly inflicted; and his advancement from them, to a glorious condition, Luk.24.26. Act.2.24,33,36. & 3.15,21. Phil.2. 8,9. 1 Tim.3.16. Heb.2.9. 1 Pet.1.11.

taken] That is, as ſome, taken away; put to death: as Pſal. 31.13. Prov.1.19. as others, drawn away; to wit, unto judgment, and to puniſhment, by death; as Prov.24.11. but the ſtructure is not here, and there alike: yea, as ſome, ſuppoſing the particular manner of his death here deſigned, taken up to the croſſe, Joh.3.14,15. & 12.32,33. but of ſuch uſe of the word, no inſtance is brought. Others, he is taken up, from hence, and received by God, into glory; as Gen.5.24. Mar. 16.19. Luk.24.51. Act.1.9,11. 1 Tim. 3.16.

from] So the word moſt uſually ſignifieth; and ſo many here take it, as meant of being delivered, and ſet free from the matters here mentioned: as, from work, Gen. 2. 2. from enemies, Pſal.44.4. from bands, Jer.40.4. others take it, for, by, or thorow; as noting the means whereby, or, the manner how, he was brought to his end. So Job 7.14. & 37.10. Jer. 10.14. or, for; as implying the cauſe producing, procuring, or impellent. So Pſal.12.5. ver. 5. Chap. 65. 14. others, for, without; without being impriſoned, or having any due courſe of judicature, taken with him: as the particle ſeemeth to be uſed, Pſal.109.24. Lam.4.9. but neither are thoſe places parallel; and one produced to that purpoſe, hath a negative joyned with it, Job 31.19. Others, laſtly, for, after: after that he had paſt thoſe harſh, and unjuſt courſes taken with him. So is the particle uſed Dan.11.23. Hoſ.6.3.

priſon] Suppoſed to be ſo called, as a place of coertion, or reſtraint: (ſee on Chap.44.7.) for the verb, whence it comes, ſignifies to ſhut up, or reſtrain, Gen.20.18. Deut. 11.17. yet, for a priſon, the word is no where found to be uſed: nor was our Saviour ever impriſoned; though that would ſtand well enough with their expoſition, that render the particle without. Others, therefore, underſtand by it, reſtraint, or diſtreſs: and this not unfitly agreeth with the native ſignification of the word; uſed for the ſhutting up, or reſtraint, of the womb, (ſo the words are) Prov.30.16. that is, the womb ſhut up, or, reſtrained; as Jacob ſpeaks to Rachel, Gen.30.2. nor can it be denyed, or doubt made, but that Chriſt was under reſtraint; and in diſtreſſe, proceeding from ſuch ſtrict reſtraint. Others, of ſuch anguiſh, and anxiety of mind, and ſpirit, as Chriſts ſoul was poſſeſſed of, ariſing from the apprehenſion of Gods wrath; both in his agony, Luk.22.44. and upon the croſſe, Mat.27.46. Others render it, dominion, power, tyranny, oppreſſion: and a term of the ſame ſtock, differing but in a vowel only, from it, is uſed ſometime for power, authority, or magiſtracy, Judg.18.7. and the root they both ſpring from, for, to have power, or, to prevail, 2 Chr.14.11. and this very word ſometime for ſuch power abuſed; for oppreſſion, or tyranny. So Pſal.107.39. where it is alſo joyned with the particle here uſed: and it ſuiteth well with the power, both of Jews, and Gentiles, unjuſtly exerciſed againſt Chriſt, Pſal.2.1,2. Act.4. 25-27. Othe[illegible]ld have it to ſignifie, here, a congregation, or, a multitu[illegible]cauſe another word of kin to this, is uſed for a ſolemn aſſembly. See on Chap.1.13. and this ſome refer to the Aſſembly of the Jewiſh Rulers, wherein Chriſt was condemned, M[illegible]7-66. Others, to the popular multitude, that wer[illegible]nt to have him crucified, Mat.27.15-26. Mar.15.8-15. Luk.23 18-25. and to theſe therefore, as well as thoſe, by whom they were incited, is the murther of Chriſt aſcribed, Luk.24.20. Act.3.23,26. & 3. 13,14,15. & 7. 52. & 13.27. but neither is the word it ſelf any where, as I conceive, ſo uſed; nor its kin, of other, then a ſolemn aſſembly, called together by authority; not of a confuſed, or diſorderly multitude on their own heads gathered together.

and from judgment:] This ſome underſtand of judgment, in general, either, without which, or, by which, or, after which, exerciſed, and executed upon our Saviour, he was, either taken away, or taken up. Some more particularly reſtrain it, either to the Jewiſh Aſſemblies cenſure of him, Mat. 26.66. Joh.19.7. or, to Pilates ſentence paſſed upon him, Luk. 23. 24. diſtinguiſhed from the act of the rude multitude, which they conceive implied in the word before-going. Nor want they, that expound it of the judgement of God, and the torments by him inflicted [illegible]pon him, implyed in the word curſe, Gal.3.13. I concur [illegible] thoſe, who by theſe two terms, underſtand oppreſſion, and judgment; as comprehending all thoſe harſh, and cruel courſes, as under pretence of judgment, were exerciſed upon our Saviour, whereby his life was taken from him, and himſelf taken away, for the time; or, from which, he was after a while freed, being, after the ſuſtaining of them, taken hence, and taken up unto God, as Enoch, and Elias before him; of both whoſe aſſumption, the ſame term is uſed, Gen.5.24. 2 King.2.9,10. But I encline rather to the former, becauſe the courſe of the context, both before, and after, as well in this verſe, as in the next, runs ſtill upon his ſufferings.

and who ſhall declare his generation?] Or, who can declare? for the indicative future, is oft potentially uſed. See Chap. 26.18. & 49.15. This paſſage, ſome underſtand of the generation of Chriſt, from eternity, in regard of his God-head, Prov.8.24,25. Others, of the production of him, and that of a virgin, without knowledg of man, in regard of his manhood, Luk.1.34,35. and ſome, of both joyntly; as alſo that, Pſal.2.7. Act.13.33. Some by generation, here, underſtand neither of theſe; but either, his continuance, reading the words, but who can reckon his age? living now to eternity, beyond all number of dayes, or years, Rom.6.9. Heb. 7.3,8,15. Rev.1.18. agreeable to that, he ſhall prolong his dayes, ver.10. that, which they extend alſo to his body, the Church, Pſal. 125.1. Jer.31.36,37. & 33.25,26. Mat.16.18. Heb.7.25. and for continuance of time, the word is commonly uſed; as ch.13. 20. & 60.15. or, of his iſſue, rendring the text; who can count, or reckon, his race? his ſpiritual ſeed and iſſue, being a numberleſſe multitude, Gen. 15.5. & 22.17,18. Jer. 33.22. Heb.2.10,13. Rev.7.9. as agreeable to that, he ſhall ſee a ſeed, ver.10. ſo is the word taken, Pſal.22.30. & 24.6. & 49.19. & 73.15. & 112.2. In the firſt ſenſe, moſt of the ancient Writers take it: and in the two latter, moſt of the later. What the firſt ſhould do here, cannot eaſily be made to appear; the latter, if we admit, according to the former Interpretation, at leaſt, of the foregoing branch, the copulative would be turned into an adverſative; as ver.10 yet, who can reckon his age, or, count his race? But there want not thoſe, that turn the words another way; and they conceive them to run in an abrupt, and paſſionate form of ſpeech, as complaining either of the ſtrangeneſs of the things that befel him; and they then read the words, Who would have ſaid of his generation? to wit, that ſuch things ſhould have, in his age, or time, befaln him? as, Who would have ſaid to Abraham, that Sarah ſhould give ſuck? Gen.21.7. or, of the monſtrous impiety, and wickedneſſe of them, that dealt in this manner with him, that came to ſave them: and then they render the words, Who can utter, or deſcribe, his generation? or, his age? that is, the wickedneſſe of the men of his time, or, of the age he lived in: the verb ſignifies to ſpeak, or utter, Job 12.8. Pſal.69.12. & 143.5. his generation, or age, for, the men of his time: as, his generations, or, ages; for, thoſe of the times wherein he lived, Gen. 6.9. So is the word very frequently uſed, Gen.7.1. Deut.32.5,20. Pſal.78.8. Mat.11.16. & 12.39. & 16.4. & 17.17. And this ſenſe ſeems not improbable; as well ſuiting, both with what uſhiered it in, and what attends on it. As for that of another, Who could declare his ſtock? that is who would ſay, that he was begotten of God, or the Son of God, ſeeing him depreſſed, and abaſed ſo beneath the meaneſt of men? Chap. 52.14. it gaineth with me no acceptance; becauſe I find not where the word is in that notion uſed. Beſides, that the Centurion, unto whom the execution was committed, ſeeing the manner of his death, and, in likelihood, obſerving his laſt words, recorded, Luk.23.46. is, both by Matthew and Mark, reported to have broken out into thoſe words, of a truth, this man was a Son of God, Mat.27.54. Mar.15.39.

for he was cut off out of the land of the living] Or, as ſome read the words, (thoſe eſpecially, that expound the two foregoing branches, of his deliverance, and exaltation) though he were cut off: as the particle is uſed, Gen. 8.21. Joſh. 17.18. Chap.12.1. But what if we read it according to the expoſition of the branch, next before, deemed not improbable; as continuing the ſentence in a notion of wonderment, that he ſhould be cut off, (ſo the particle was uſed before, ver. 5,6.) as a tree that is hewen down, 2 King.6.4. that he ſhould be thus taken away, by a violent death, from abiding, and converſing on earth, among men, that there live, Pſal.27.13. & 52.5. & 116.9. Chap.38.11.

for the tranſgreſſion of my people was he ſtricken] The words thus read, are the ſame in ſubſtance, with what was before ſaid, ver.5. See there. But ſome read them thus rather; by the tranſgreſſion of my people was he ſtricken. Heb. from; but of the various uſe of that particle, ſee on the firſt branch of this verſe: in this ſenſe, the words conceived, the ſentence may ſtill be continued, and carried on thus, that (the particle ſupplyed from the former; as 1 Sam.24.30.) by the tranſgreſſion of mine own people he ſhould thus be ſtricken, Act.2.23. & 3.13-15. & 13.28.

my people] Either mine Elect, for whom he dyed: as Col.1. 24. 2 Tim.2.10. or, thoſe obſtinate wicked, that purſued him to death, 1 Theſſ.2.15.

was he ſtricken] As ver.4. Heb. the ſtroke was upon him: ſo the pronoun is found uſed in a ſingular notion, Gen.9.26,27. Job 20.23. & 22.2. Pſal.11.7. & 28.8. Chap. 44.15. or, they were ſtricken; as ſome render it: the ſtroke was upon them; taking the pronoun in a plural notion: as it is commonly uſed, Exod.15.15. Deut.33.29. Pſal.2.5. & 17.10. & 21.11. & 49. 11. & 140.9. and ſo ſome underſtand it, of the Jewiſh people, upon whom, according to their own imprecation, Mat.26. 25. the ſtroke of Gods wrath, ſhortly after, lighted, and lyeth heavy, to this very day, for their crucifying of Chriſt, Mat.21. 39,41. & 23.37,38. & 24.22,23. Luk.13.34,35. & 21.20-24. 1 Theſſ.2.15,16. Some of thoſe that go this way, knit this member thus to the former; becauſe he was cut off through the tranſgreſſion, or, wickedneſſe of my people: therefore, ſhall they be ſmitten, or, they are ſmitten, (for the Prophet ſpeaks of theſe things, as already in execution, and act) the ſtroke, ſhall be, or is, upon them. But the courſe of the context carries it on, rather, the former way, and makes the paſſage cleerer to what followeth. For they ſeem to go further out of the way, who taking the affix in a plural notion, would have it underſtood, either of Chriſt, conſidered joyntly with thoſe, as one with him, for whom he ſuffered, 2 Cor.5.21. or of thoſe alone, whom the ſtroke was due to, rendring the text, he was cut off from the land of the living, for the iniquity of my people, unto whom the ſtroke belonged, was due, or was intended; for this, the words will hardly bear.

V. 9. And he made his grave with the wicked, and with the rich in his death:] Some Writers of note, ſuſpect theſe words to have been by ſome means tranſpoſed, and ſuppoſe, for the fitting of them, to the ſtory of the Goſpel, concerning his death with malefactors, on mount Calvary, Mat. 27.33,38. Mar.15.28. Luk.22.37. and his burial, in Joſephs Sepulchre, Mat.27.57,60. that the text ought thus to be read; And his death ſhall be diſpoſed of, with the wicked, and his grave with the rich. The like thoughts have ſome other had of Pſal.35. 7. and of Act.7.16. but to give way to ſuch conjectures, ſeemeth unſafe. To let that therefore paſs, and take the words as we find them, at preſent, in the text; the expoſitions of them in the lump, may be referred to two heads: the one of thoſe, which ſeems the more improbable, who underſtand the words, as concerning either the effect, or the efficacy of Chriſts ſufferings; to wit, either, that thoſe wicked ones, and rich ones, that had had an hand in the procuring of his death, ſhould pay full dear for it; being given up to endure the like harſh and cruel uſage, at the hands of others, as Chriſt, at their hands had ſuſtained: as Chap.43.3,4. or, that even wicked men, and thoſe great ones too, who are wont to be moſt obſtinate, ſhould be ſubdued, and made ſubject to the Scepter of Chriſt, by the power and efficacy of his paſſion, Pſal.110.2. The other is, of thoſe, who conceive them to be meant, wholly of his ſufferings themſelves; either, that the Jewiſh people ſhould put him into the hands of Heathen people, the Romans, and their Ruler Pilate, Mat.20.19,20. Joh.18. 35. who by that means, having condemned him, and dealt with him, as with a malefactor, ſhould diſpoſe of his death, and burial, at his pleaſure, Mat.27.2,57,58. Luk. 23.1,2,50, 52. Joh.18.28-32. & 19.6,11,12,38. or, that God ſhould deliver him into the hands of wicked men, and Rulers, ſo to be diſpoſed of by them, for either, as themſelves pleaſed, Luk. 22.53. Act.2.23. & 4.27,28. Howbeit, among the latter there are, who, together with his ſufferings, conceive an intimation of ſome honour done him, concerning his burial; as if it were ſaid, that though his grave, were, in ordinary courſe to have been among malefactors; yet it was with the rich; being buried in honourable manner, by Joſeph, in his own tomb, Mat.27.57-60. and that to ſhew, that all penalty and ſhame for ſin, were fully ſatisfied for, and had an end at his death; according to that, Joh.19.40. Howbeit, that ſeems rather to have been manifeſted, at, and by, his reſurrection, Rom.4.25. and the reception of him, in ſoul firſt (though that not ſo conſpicuous) Luk.23.43,46. and in the whole man, not long afterward, into heaven, Joh. 13.1. & 16.10. 1 Tim.3.16. otherwiſe his abode in the grave, though a rich, and honourable mans grave, under the power of death, for a time, was a branch of his humiliation, and is reckoned, as a part of his paſſion, Act.2.24,27. Nor want there here again ſome others, who would have hereby intimated, Chriſts carrying of our ſins, which in his body he bare on the croſſe, 1 Pet.2.24. with him into the grave, and there burying them, that they may not appear any more in Gods ſight, as Gen.23. 4. Pſal 88.5. to which purpoſe, alſo, they hook in hither that of the Apoſtle, Rom.6.4. Col.2.12. as alſo that of Dan. 9.24. to ſhut up and ſeal up ſin, as they would have the words there read, with ſome reference to the ſhutting up of Chriſt in the Sepulchre, and the ſealing up of it, Matth. 27.66. And as this in the former branch, ſo the precious riches of his bloud and death in the latter, 1 Pet.1.19. Eph.1.7,8,18. & 2.7.& 3.8. Col.1.27. All which to make out, the two concretes in the text are preſumed to be put for the abſtracts, wicked ones, for wickedneſſes; and rich, for riches: and the text is rendred, He put wickedneſſes in his grave, and riches in his death. But theſe things ſeem overmuch forced, and far fetcht. Nor ſeems it ſafe, or fit, to ſtrain Scriptures thus, to wring points of faith from them: nor ſhould I have mentioned them, but for the great note of their Author.

And he made his grave with the wicked] Heb. And he gave, or, ſhall give the wicked; or, with the wicked, his grave: which the old Latine ſwarveth too far from, rendring it, He gave the wicked for his grave. Now ſome here, by he, underſtand God, by whoſe hidden counſel, and predetermination, theſe things were done; & without whom, men could not have had any ſuch power over him, Mat.26.53,54. Joh. 19. 9,10. Others, the Jewiſh People, by whoſe hands they were acted and executed. See Act.2.23.& 4.27,28. But others conceive, not amiſs, that the words may well be taken indefinitely, and ſo rendred, by a paſſive form, (of which manner of conſtruction, ſee on Chap.34.11. and the like to this, Gen.40.15.) his grave was given to the wicked, (as Levit.13.49.) or, was diſpoſed of (for ſo the word of giving, oft ſignifies. See Chap. 41. 2.) by the wicked, (as Chap.7.17.) or, with the wicked; (as Chap.28.15.) that is, as if he had been one of that rank, ver. 12. ſay ſome; or becauſe in mount Calvary he was buried, ſay others, Joh.19.41,42. where malefactors corpſes uſed to be laid. But this latter ſeems not ſo ſuitable to the tenour of the ſtory. For albeit, the place of his burial was not far diſtant from the place of his execution; yet was it in a private garden, belonging to a man of eminent place, wherein he had cut a Sepulchre out for himſelf, Mat. 27.57,60. Mar. 15. 43,46.

and with the rich in his death] Or, and to the rich; as before; for the particle is the ſame: by the rich, ſome underſtand Joſeph, that begged, and buried Chriſts body, called a rich man, Mat.27.57. Others, Pilate, that had the power to diſpoſe of Chriſts corpſe, and of whom Joſeph begged it, Mat.27.58. conceiving a rich man, to be put here for a Ruler; as Eccl.10.6,7,20. becauſe thoſe uſually are ſuch: thus they that expound it of ſome particular perſon, which may carry the better ſhew with it; becauſe the former word, wicked, was plural; this, ſingular. But many other conceive the word rich, here, to be taken collectively, and the ſame perſons to be meant by both; thoſe that had an hand in the death of Chriſt, as well the baſer ſort of people, as the rich, and wealthy Rulers, whether of the Jewiſh Nation, or the Roman State, whom (ſay thoſe, that underſtand the place of the vengeance, by God executed, on either, for the death of Chriſt,) their riches ſhould not ranſome, nor relieve, in the day of wrath, Prov.11.4. Ezek.7.19. as yet they are uſually wont to do, Prov.13.8.

in his death] Or, at his death; as Job 27.19. at their death; though in another notion there, then here: for there 'tis ſaid of ſome, that they ſhall be buried at their death; that is, in mean and baſe manner; their corpſes being committed to the ground, aſſoon as their breath is out of their bodies, without further care, or coſt; whereas, though our Saviours body was, ſhortly after his deceaſe, diſpoſed of, for burial, yet was it curiouſly ſhrowded, and richly embalmed, before it was laid up in the grave, Mar [illegible] .19.39,40. ſo the particle is uſed alſo, Ezr.9.4. E [illegible] deaths; as Jer.16.4. hence the Jewiſh Doctors([illegible] expoſitions I meddle the leſs with, in this preſent Prophe [illegible] ecauſe they run moſt upon another ground,) ſtrive o [illegible] ng this prediction awry, and to turn it, from the Meſſias, or any other particular perſon, to the main body of the [illegible] o [illegible] who, though innocent, ſay they, yet wer [illegible] put to d [illegible] malefactors, becauſe they would not change th [illegible] r religio [illegible] re made away, if rich, n [illegible] for the wea [illegible] b [illegible] ealth; and that ſome by on [illegible] k nd o [illegible] h, ſ [illegible] ther: ſome burnt, ſome ſlain, ſome ſtoned, a [illegible] but the word, though plural, is found elſewhe [illegible] o, applyed to one particular perſon; as to the King of T [illegible] zek.28.8,10. where it is ſaid of him, that he ſhall dye the deaths [illegible] the ſlain; and, the deaths of the uncircumciſed: and ſo the A [illegible] oſtle of himſelf, alſo, in deaths oft, 2 Cor.11.23. tha [illegible] s, not in hazards, and dangers of death only; but [illegible] a [illegible] ons, and vexations, as ſore and painful, as dea [illegible] h it ſelf; a [illegible] d [illegible] h as might well go, for as many deaths, 1 Cor.4.9. & 15.31. Luk [illegible] 23. 2 Cor. 1. 9. & 4.8-11. & 6.4,5,9. & 11.23-27. and h [illegible] e might by the Prophet, as well, yea, far better be [illegible] d of the Meſſias, as of the Tyrian Prince, by the Prophet, i [illegible] he one [illegible] lace; or, of himſelf, by the Apoſtle in the other. Beſides, that the Chaldee Paraphraſt rendreth it in the ſingular [illegible] be [illegible] ot can I condeſcend unto thoſe, though of prim [illegible] note [illegible] ing put the word people, into the text, and [illegible] et it [illegible] the ro [illegible] the verſe, render the words, unto their own death; as importing, that the Jews, by delivering up of Chriſt, brought deſtruction upon themſelves; as having reference to the imprecation by themſelves paſt upon them, at the delivering up of him, Mat.27.25. See before, ver.8. There is another reading, that the Rabbines, ſome of them, here exhibit; as if it were not made up of a ſervile particle, and a noun, with his affix; as both we, and themſelves, alſo, commonly take it; but a noun only, with a pronoun affixed unto it, and ſo ſhould ſignifie his high places. Which I ſhould not mention, ſave that ſome, not Popiſh Writers only, but ours alſo, and thoſe of note, do not only take notice of it, but admit it, and preſſe it, as intimating the ſtatelineſſe of the Sepulchre, wherein Chriſts body was laid; as if Joſephs monument were, as ſtately an one, as Shebna had built for himſelf, Chap.22.16. But this reading, the points, or vowels, in the original, refuſe, and refute: nor do the Doctors, that cite it, give any approbation of it; nor will this reading cohere handſomly with the reſt of the context. I ſuppoſe, that as the latter part of the foregoing verſe, ſo the forepart of this, run on in a continued ſeries, containing matter of admiration, in this manner; And that his burial ſhould be, at the diſpoſal of wicked ones, and of rich ones, or, rulers, at his death; that is, that wicked great ones ſhould have ſuch power given them over him, as not onely to take his life away from him, by a violent, and moſt cruel death; but after that perpetrated, to diſpoſe of his dead corpſe alſo for burial, at their pleaſure.

becauſe he had done no violence, neither was any deceit in his mouth] This reading may ſtand, not amiſs, with the expoſitions of thoſe, that conceive the foregoing words to be underſtood, either of the revenging hand of God, upon the Jews, for the death of Chriſt, or of ſome honour done him, in, or at, his interrement; or of the benefits, that from his death and burial, accrew to the faithful: not ſo well with theirs, that go the other way before mentioned; for the conſtruction ſeemeth over-much ſtrained, when the meaning is made to be; becauſe they envied him for his integrity, both in life and doctrine, Mat.27.18. yea, though not only no man could convince him of ſin, Mat.27.19,23,24. Luk.23.14,15. Joh.8. 46. but even the devil himſelf could find nothing amiſſe in him, Joh.14.30. But the words would rather be read, as they ſound, not for any iniquity, that he had done, nor guile that was in his mouth. So Job 16. 17. where the very ſame form of ſpeech, and words alſo, are found, Not for any injuſtice (ſo the word is there rendred) that is in my hands; that is, albeit, he had done nothing amiſſe, Mar. 7. 37. Luk.23.41. for the word rendred violence, is more general; and is uſed for any wrong, Gen.16.5. Pſal.7.16. Jer.51.35. and the Greek therefore gives it ſin, 1 Pet.2.22. according to that, 1 Joh.3.5. in him, was no ſin: ſo alſo, but there the negative only tranſpoſed; 1 Chr.12.17. without any wrong, that is in my hands: for ſo it would be rendred, both in Job, and there; there being in either place, a defect of the relative, as alſo here; and the like, Chap.50.9. & 51.12. Nor doth that at all croſs this expoſition, which a learned Writer objecteth, who having himſelf ſometime rendred the text here, although, or, when as yet, he had done no wrong, doth afterward revoke it, becauſe he never findeth the particle here uſed, in ſuch an adverſative, but frequently in a cauſal notion; for it is plainly in a cauſal notion, when it is ſaid, not for, or becauſe of, any wrong he had done: which is the very ſame, in effect, with what himſelf had before given, albeit he had done no wrong, and he had no cauſe therefore, to revers; his grammatical conſtruction only, was not ſo exact.

neither was any deceit in his mouth] Or, nor for any guile, that was in his mouth: a defect of the particle; as Pſal.59.3. but ſupplyed here from the former member of the diſtribution; and of the relative, alſo, as before: it is rendred, 1 Pet.2. 22. neither was guile found in his mouth: to be found, for, to be; as Luk.17.18. So Chap.30.14.& 51.3. There was nothing amiſſe with him, either in word, or deed.

V. 10. Yet it pleaſed the Lord to bruiſe him, he hath put him to grief] Or, Yet the Lord being willing, (as 1 King.13.33.) or, deſiring (as Pſal.34.12. for the word ſeems to be here, as in thoſe places, a participle,) to break him, did put him to pain, or torment.

Yet] Heb. And; as ver.4,7.

bruiſe] Or, break. See on ver.5. not, that his body was battered to pieces; or, that any bone of him was broken, Exod.12.46. Pſal.34.20. Joh.19.33,36. but as the Pſalmiſt of himſelf, I am ſore broken, Pſal.38.8. and as we uſe to ſay, that a man is much broken, with age, ſickneſs, grief of mind, evil-uſage, and the like: all which, and much more, were together in Chriſts ſufferings.

put him to grief] Or, as ſome, ſuffer him to be put to pain, or torment; becauſe this form, hath oft in it, a notion of permiſſion: as Pſal.37.33. & 119.10,116. Chap.63 17. and true it is, that God did not incite, or inſtigate, thoſe wicked wretches, unto thoſe vile, and cruel courſes and carriages, that they offered unto Chriſt, Jam. 1.15. but yet that his ſufferings were by God predetermined for the ſalvation of mankind, is expreſly ſaid, Act.2.23. & 4.28. and of Abſoloms wicked Act, we know what is ſaid, 2 Sam.12.11,12. of the word, ſee on ver.3,4. the pronoun, him, is wanting in the text: as Chap. 12.2. ſupplyed here from the words before.

when thou ſhalt make his ſoul an offering for ſin] So if it be read, it may well cloſe with the foregoing branch, as implying ſuch harſh, and hard uſage of him, then put in execution, and exerciſed, what time he was made ſuch a ſacrifice. Otherwiſe, if as moſt ſeem to take them, they relate to the after-fruits and benefits, mentioned in the words enſuing, it would rather be rendred, when thou ſhalt have made his ſoul an offering for ſin: as Chap.4.4.

when] Heb. if. So Num.36.4. Job 21.6. Chap.28.25.

thou ſhalt make his ſoul] As 2 Cor.5.21. a change of the perſon; the ſpeech being turned to God; as Chap.2.9. or, his ſoul ſhall have made it ſelf an offering; for the ſecond perſon maſculine, and the third feminine, are in letters, and ſound, the ſame: his ſoul; that is, himſelf: or, he himſelf as Pſal.3.2. and as God made a ſacrifice of him; ſo he made a ſacrifice of himſelf, Eph.5.2. Heb.9.14,25,26. But the former ſeemeth the better.

an offering for ſin] Heb. treſpaſſe, or ſin. So Levit.5.19. & 7.5. Zach.14.19. and ſo of our Saviour, 2 Cor.5.21. God made him ſin; that is, a ſin ſacrifice: a ſacrifice for ſin, Rom.8.2. for the word ſacrifice, is there alſo wanting; as Heb.10.8. becauſe he had undertaken the guilt of our ſins, ver.7. and ſuſtained for us, the penalty due thereunto, ver.5,6. 1 Cor.5.7

he ſhall ſee his ſeed] Heb. a ſeed; that is, iſſue, poſterity as Gen.15.3. thou haſt not given me a ſeed: and Gen.4.25 God hath ſet me a ſeed: and, ſo ſhall thy ſeed be, Gen.15.5. his is not in the Hebrew; but may be ſupplyed: as oft elſewhere, ver.3. Chap.27.9. & 40.12. yet not greatly needful here: a ſeed, indefinitely, is ſufficient. It is that which our Saviour of himſelf, applying it to himſelf, and the fruit of his ſufferings; If the grain fall into the ground, and dye there, it fructifies, and multiplies; it brings forth much fruit, Joh.12.24,32,34. and ſo Chriſt by his death, brought many ſons to God, Heb.2.10,13. even a numberleſs progeny. See on ver.8. who can reckon up his race? as from Abraham, and Sarah, that were eſteemed, as a dead ſtock, the one; and no better then dead, the other, Gen.18.11,12. Rom.4.19. Heb.11.12. and from Iſaac, deſtinated unto death, and received again, in a manner, from the dead, ſprung a numberleſſe iſſue, Gen.22.2,10.& 26.24. Heb.11.17-19.

ſee ſeed] Live, and ſurvive to ſee them; as Job lived to ſee his ſons, and ſons ſons, Job 42.16. and, thou ſhalt ſee thy childrens children, Pſal.128.6.

he ſhall prolong his dayes;] The pronoun is wanting; as before: in regard whereof, the words have a two-fold ſenſe given them. Some expounding them, of Chriſt himſelf, who, after his reſurrection, ſhould dye no more; not live a while here, and then dye again; as ſome other, raiſed to life, for a time, 1 King.17.22. 2 King.4.35. & 8.5. & 13.21. Luk.7.15. & 8.55. Joh.11.44. but live, and reign, for ever, Act.13,34. Rom.6.9,10. Heb.7.25. & 9.27,28. Rev.1.18. Others, of his iſſue, the race of Saints; (and the ancient Greek, and old Latine, go both that way) being to continue ſucceſſively here on earth, to the worlds end, and from thenceforth to live with him in glory for ever, Mat.16.18. & 28.20. & 25.46. Joh.5.25,29. & 11.25,26. & 14.19. 1 Theſſ.4.17. and then it ſhould be read, he ſhall ſee a ſeed, that ſhall prolong its dayes; with a ſupply of the relative; as Chap.51.12. but the former ſeems more probable. Of the phraſe, ſee Deut.17.20. Prov.28.16.

and the pleaſure of the Lord ſhall proſper in his hand.] Or, the the will; as the old Latine giveth it, according to that, Joh.4.34.& 6.38. or, the deſire, as the word is rendred, 1 Sam.18.25. or, the purpoſe of the Lord, as Eccl.3.1,17. & 8.6. it hath reference to the verb, from whence it comes, uſed in the firſt branch. That which God intended to effect, by giving him up, Rom.8.32. ver.9. and for which he was well content, and pleaſed ſo to do, ſhall, by his means, and miniſtery (ſo the word, hand, is ordinarily uſed, Chap.20.1. & 37.24.& 6.4--7.) accordingly take effect. See ver.11. Chap.52.13.

V.11. He ſhall ſee of the travel of his ſoul, and ſhall be ſatisfied:] Or, as ſome render it, He ſhall ſee the fruit of the travel of his ſoul, and ſhall be ſatisfied. That is, he ſhall receive, and enjoy that, as the effect, and iſſue, of all the pains that he hath taken, and pain that he hath endured; that ſhall give him full content.

ſhall ſee] To ſee, is commonly uſed, for to perceive, or enjoy; as, to ſee good, for, to receive, or enjoy good, Pſal.34.12. Job 9.25. Jer.17.6. to ſee life, for, to enjoy life; to live, Eccl.9.9. Job 3.36. and it is uſed frequently, without any further addition, to behold, what one much deſires, with great delight, Pſal.35.21. & 54.7. Chap.60.5.& 66.14. and ſo here.

of the travel] Heb. from the travel; as, to eat of ones bread, Lev.22.13. Num.15.19. and, to drink of ones wine, Dan.1.5. Jer.51.7. travel, for the fruit of his travel; as, labour, for the fruit of ones labour, Pſal.128.2. thou ſhalt eat the labour of thine hands; eat, and enjoy that, for which thine hands have laboured; or, from the travel, that which proceedeth, and cometh from it; as, from the eater came meat, and from the ſtrong, ſweet, Judg.14.14. and the word rendred travel, ſignifies properly, toilſome, troubleſome, weariſome labour, Deut.26.7. Job 5.7. Pſal.107.12.

the travel of his ſoul] For, his travel, or, his own travel; as, his ſoul, for himſelf, ver.9.

ſhall be ſatisfied] A metaphor taken, either from perſons, that, having been much pinched, and pained, with hunger and thirſt, have food, or drink, afforded them now to their fill, which they ſo much wiſhed for, and earneſtly deſired before, Pſal.107.5,9. Mat.5.6. or, from the husbandman, that hath his fill of thoſe fruits of the earth, that he hath taken much pains for; or, of trees, and plants, that he hath taken much pains about, 2 Chr.31.10. Joel 2.26. contrary to that, Hoſ.4.10. Mic.6.14. Hag.1.6. See Prov.12.11. & 28.19. 2 Tim.2.6. But there are two other expoſitions, (to paſs by the reſt,) that carry ſome good ſhew of probability with them, and have Authors of good note for them. The former render the words thus, When he ſhall ſee his ſoul, (that is, himſelf, as before,) freed from trouble (having an end put unto all thoſe troubles, that he was here expoſed unto, and exerciſed with) he ſhall be ſatisfied; that is, moſt abundantly filled with glory, being taken up into heaven, and ſet there at Gods right hand, Pſal.16.11. & 17.15. The latter (that which to me ſeemeth the more probable of the twain) read the words, thus; For the travell of his ſoul, he ſhall ſee ſeed, and be ſatisfied: for the travell of his ſoul; that is, becauſe he hath travelled: as, for my knowledge, that is, becauſe I knew, Chap.48.4. he ſhall ſee a ſeed: ſupplyed from the verſe before-going, as Job 3.17,18,20,23. & 22.24. Chap.52.26. and he ſhall be ſatisfied; that is, much refreſhed, and gladded therewith: and the metaphor they ſuppoſe taken from women delivered of child, after hard, and long labour: which ſenſe, and notion admitted, I ſhould rather render the text; after the travell of his ſoul; that is, after his travell: yet the word, ſoul, may be the rather retained; becauſe a feminine term, and that ſex here alluded to; by whoſe pangs, in travel alſo, are Chriſts ſufferings deciphered, Act.2.27. for ſo the word, there uſed, properly ſignifies. After theſe therefore (for ſo the particle is oft uſed, as was before ſhewed, on ver.8.) paſt, and gone, he ſhall ſee ſeed: He ſhall not travell in vain, as thoſe complain, that they did, as if they went but with wind, Chap.26.18. and that the babe was come neer to the breaking place, but no power to bring forth, Chap.37.3. God would not cauſe to travell, and deny delivery, Chap.66.9. but the fruit of his travel, ſo much deſired, he ſhould obtain, to wit, a numerous iſſue of faithfull ſouls begotten to God, which he himſelf alſo ſhould ſurvive to ſee with much joy, (that which women oft in that caſe fail of, Gen.35.17,18. 1 Sam.3.19-21.) being ſo taken therewith, as a woman, that being ſafely delivered, after ſore and ſharp labour, forgetteth now all her fore-paſſed ſorrow, for joy of her much deſired birth, Joh.16.21. And this expoſition, the words of the text do very well bear; though I adhere rather to the firſt.

by his knowledge ſhall my righteous Servant juſtifie many;] Theſe words are delivered, as in the perſon of God the Father, with whoſe words he began, Chap.52.13. and the like paſſages from perſon to perſon, we oft meet with in this Prophet; as Chap.13.11.& 17.10.& 22.19.& 26.19. and they hold out unto us, the main fruit, and effect, of Chriſts paſſion, before-mentioned; mans juſtification, and reconciliation, to God, Rom.3.24,25.& 5.1,8,10. and the ſeed, or iſſue, that he ſhould ſee, and reſt ſatisfied in, for all the pains that he had undertaken, and, for their ſakes, undergone; the perſons thus juſtified, and ſaved, by thoſe ſufferings, whereby ſatisfaction was fully made to God, for their ſins, Heb.2.10,13. The greateſt ſatisfaction to his ſoul, is, to ſee ſouls juſtified, by faith, in him; as the greateſt joy, and contentment of mind, to his faithful miniſters, to ſee ſouls won, and begotten, by their miniſtery, to him, 1 Cor.4.15. Gal.4.19. 1 Theſſ.2.19,20. 2 Joh.4.3 Joh.3,14.

by his knowledge] Or, to make it more plain, and take away all ambiguity, the knowledge of him: not his knowledge, taken ſubjectively; his own knowledge, as ſome would here expound it; the knowledge, that he hath himſelf, either of God, Mat.11.27. Joh.8.55.& 10.15. or, of them, Joh.10.14,27. but, his knowledge, taken objectively, that is, the knowledge, whereby they know him, Phil.3.8. 2 Pet.1.3. & 2.20. So Pſal.5.7. thy fear, for the fear of thee; and, my fear, for the fear of me, Jer.32.40.& Pſal.139.17. thy thoughts, for my thoughts of thee; and, my wrong, for, the wrong, by others, done to me, Gen.16.5.

Jer.51.37. Yet not, that the bare knowledge of him, is that, whereby we are juſtified: for the Devils both know, and acknowledge him too, Mar.1.2
but by knowledge of him, is meant, faith on, 26.18. the antecedent, for the conſequent, cauſe the knowledge of him, is the ground of dence, in him, Rom.10.14,17. 1 Ioh.5.20. as though not the juſtifying act of faith (for th believe and tremble, Jam.2.19.) yet is put for truſt, confidence, in him, Act.13.39. Rom.10.9. 1 Ioh.5.1. that act, whereby we are ſaid to be juſtified, where the Apoſtle ſtateth the controverſie concerning juſtification, Rom. 25,26. and whereby the ſame is more fully expreſſed, and ciſely defined, Ioh.3.15,16,18,36. Act. 16.31. & 5.
Rom.10.14. Gal.2.16.

my righteous Servant] My Servant; becauſe God his Father; yea, unto the Elect of God alſo, in of mans redemption. See Chap. 42.1. & 52.13 Mar.10.45. Luk.22.27. Rom.15.8. Phil.2.7. righteous S as, righteous Lord, Pſal.11.7. (the adjective, before tive, not ſo uſual in that language) called therefore teous one, Act.3.14. & 7.52. & 22.14. becauſe whol all act, or taint, of ſin, ver.10. 2 Cor.5.21. 1 Ioh.3. 5. leſs he had been, he could not have been, either Heb.7.26. or, a fit ſacrifice, 1 Pet.1.18,19. to make to God, for the ſins of others, having need to ſa own ſins, and for himſelf, Heb.7.27. 1 Pet.2.18.

ſhall juſtifie] Some would have the word, here uſed, ſignifie no other, then a converting of men to godlin righteouſneſs, by wholeſome inſtruction, and religi tution; as the Miniſters of God, or Teachers, are ſai many wiſe, and righteous, Dan.12.3. for ſo, queſtion word is there taken; and in a notion, alſo, neer Rev. 22.11. the term being uſed of inherent righteo we uſually ſpeak, and as the Scripture, alſo, uſe righteous, and righteouſneſs, Mat.5.20. & 6.31. Luk.
Eph.4.24. or, ſanctification, as it is more diſtinctly, and ſpecially termed in Scripture, Rom.6.22. 2 Cor.7.1. 1 Theſſ. 4.3.4. 2 Theſſ.2.13. and true it is, that none are juſtified, but ſuch as are withall ſanctified, 1 Cor.6.11. as alſo, that we have as well the one, as the other, from Chriſt, 1 Cor.1.30. & 6.11. Heb.9. 14. & 10.10. 1 Pet.1.2. Rev.1.5,6. but yet that is not the notion of the word, in this place; but by juſtifying, is here meant, as alſo, thorow the whole diſcourſe of juſtification, in Pauls Epiſtles, Rom.3.24,25,26,28,30. & 4.2,5,25. & 5.1,9,16,18. Gal.2.16. 1 Cor.6.11. (in which laſt place, alſo, juſtification, and ſanctification, are expreſly diſtinguiſhed, the one from the other) to wit, of the diſcharge of men, from the guilt of ſin, by making ſatisfaction unto God for the ſame; as evidently appeareth, by the whole courſe of the context, and the main matter of the Prophets diſcourſe in this place; as well by thoſe paſſages before, that cleer the way to this, ver.5,6,7,10. as alſo, by the reaſon of it rendred, in the very words next enſuing: For being wholly diſcharged of all ſin, and all iniquity; that is, of all guilt of ſin, either for the omitting of ought, that they were bound to do (for that alſo makes guilty, and liable to the curſe, Deut.27.26. Gal.3.10,13.) or, for the committing of ought, that they ought not to have done; yea, or in regard of any the leaſt warping, as well as ſwarving, by any obliquity of heart, or Spirit from the Law of God, the onely ſtrict, and ſtreight rule of all righteouſneſs; (for that alſo cometh within the compaſs of ſin, and iniquity, 1 Joh.3. 4. & 5.17.) being thus (I ſay) diſcharged of all guilt of ſin whatſoever, and of what kind, or nature ſoever; they muſt of neceſſity become, and juſtly be deemed (ſo far, as concerns any guilt of ſin) perfectly righteous, Rom.5.19. Phil. 3.9. and be conſequently juſtified, that is, even in juſtice acquitted, and aſſoiled, whenſoever they ſhall be cited to appear at Gods tribunal, Rom.3.25,30. & 8.1,33,34. But of this notion, and uſe of the word, juſtifie, ſee more on Chap.5.23.

many,] So Mat.20.28. & 26.28. Rom.5.15,19. even, all that truſt in him, Pſal.2.12. & 37.40. Joh.3.15,16,18,36. & 6.29,35, 40. & 11.25,26. Act.10.43. & 13.38,39. 1 Joh.2.2. therefore many, becauſe ſatisfaction made by him, for many, ver.12.

for he ſhall bear their iniquities.] Heb. and he ſhall bear their iniquities: but the copulative is oft uſed, in a cauſal notion; as implying the cauſe, or reaſon, rendred, of what was before ſaid. So ver.2. Pſal.75.1. & 95.9. & 108.12. Chap.38.21. & 40.26. & 52.15. yet it may alſo be rendred; whoſe iniquities he ſhall bear: for the copulative oft ſupplies, alſo, the place of the relative; as Job 20.11. & 37.5. Chap.4.6. & 17.2. & 28.1. whether way we here take it, either as rendring the reaſon, why he ſhould juſtifie ſo many; becauſe he ſhould bear the guilt of their ſins, and thereby make full ſatisfaction unto God for them; (for, by ſuch bearing of them, 1 Pet.2.24. he ſhould take them away from them, Joh. 1. 29.) or, as deſcribing the perſons, whom he ſhould juſtifie; not all promiſcuouſly, but thoſe only, whoſe ſins he undertook to diſcharge, and for whom he laid down his life; that is, the faithfull, and penitent alone, unto whom, only, he promiſeth to make good this favour, and aſſigneth a ſhare in the fruit of his interceſſion, nd ſufferings, Mat.9.13. & 11.28. Mark 1.15. Joh.3.18. & 17.
,20. it will come, in effect and ſubſtance, all to one, and the eſult of all will be, that Chriſt juſtifies thoſe, and thoſe alone; hat rely on him, and belong to him, by his ſufferings for their ſins, Rom.5.8,9. See ver.10.

V. 12. Therefore I will divide him a portion with the great; and he ſhall divide the ſpoil with the ſtrong:] In this paſſage is related another fruit, and effect of the ſufferings of Chriſt, and his ſervice, exhibited unto God his Father therein; to wit, the multitudes of thoſe, that God the Father would for the ſame beſtow upon him, to the advancement of his honour, being adorned, and enriched with them, as a victorious conquerour, and tryumpher, with rich ſpoils and booties, ta-en from thoſe, whom, by fight, he hath ſubdued.

Therefore] So the Apoſtle: Therefore alſo, Phil.2 9. becauſe he hath done me, and finiſhed, this faithful ſervice, refuſing no pains, hardſhip, or evil-uſage, attending upon it, Ch. 50.5,6. ver.10. and in the next branch again. See Joh. 17.4, 5. and the Apoſtle Paul of himſelf, 2 Tim.4.7,8. and of all the faithful, our Saviour himſelf, Rev.3.21.

I] God the Father, who ſpake before, ver.11. ſo Pſal.2.8. See Joh.6.37,39,44,65. Act.2.47. & 11.21.

will divide him a portion with the great] This ſome underſtand of a portion of honour and dignity, collated upon Chriſt, not as the firſt-born only, in one reſpect, Rom. 8. 29. Col.1.15. unto whom a double portion was due, Deut. 21. 7. but, as the onely-begotten alſo of the Father, in another reect, Joh.1.14. far above all creatures, either men, or angels, al.45.7. Eph.1.21. Phil.2.9. Col.1.18,19. Heb.1.3,4,6,9. and ey ſuppoſe it to be taken from the diviſion of inheritances, oſh.14.1. Prov.29.24. Luke 15.12. in regard whereof, they inſert the word, portion, which is not in the text; as ſome other alſo who expound it by that, Pſal.2.8. I will give the heathen for thine inheritance; and, thou inheriteſt all nations, Pſal. 82.8. underſtanding it, as ſpoken of the great Princes, and Potentates of this world, that ſhould be brought in, and made to ſubmit, and ſtoop to the ſcepter of Chriſt, Chap.49. 23. & 52. 13,15. & 60.3,10. Pſal.72.10,11. and to avoid ambiguity, leſt any ſhould ſeem to ſhare herein with Chriſt, (and yet in ſome kind and degree, ſome are ſaid ſo to do, Chap.49.23. & 60. 10. Mat. 19. 28. Joh. 17.22. Rev.2.26,27. & 3.21. & 21.7.) they would have the words rendred, I will divide him great ones for a portion. Others, again, inſert the word, ſpoil, ſupplyed from the next branch, thus rendring the words; I will divide great ones to him, for a ſpoyl; or, I will divide him a ſpoyl of great ones: whereby they underſtand thoſe principalities and powers, of the kingdom of darkneſs ſubdued, ſpoyled and tryumphed over, by Chriſt, Col.2.15. an alluſion to the diſtribution of ſpoyls, after ſome great victory obtained, or conqueſt atchieved, Judg.5.30. Pſal.68.12. 2 Chr.20.25. Chap.9.2. & 33. 23. Zach.14.7. Heb. I will divide to him, of, or, in great ones, or many: (for the word is ambiguous, and is uſed as ordinarily in the one notion, as in the other, of multitude, as of magnitude, whence the like ambiguity, Pſal.25. 11. & 119. 162.) Some therefore here render it, I will give many to him, or, beſtow many on him, and that with very good probability: For howſoever it be true, that the word, here uſed, doth ſignifie, in the firſt place, to diſtribute, or divide, Joſh.22.8. Neh.13.13. yet the word is uſed ſometime, at the ſecond hand, ſimply, for to impart, beſtow, give, aſſign, or attribute; even where no diſtribution is neceſſarily implyed, or, at leaſt, intended; becauſe of diviſion, and diſtribution, that is the ordinary end. So is the word deemed to be taken, Deut.4.19. of the Sun, Moon, and Stars, which the Lord hath imparted, and aſſigned, unto all Nations, beſtowed upon all alike, Deut. 29. 26. whom he had not given unto them, Job 21. 17. he gives ſorrows in his anger, Job 39.17. of the Eſtrich, he hath not imparted unto her underſtanding: where the ſame particle is found before underſtanding, that is here, before great, or many. And it ſeemeth to be no other here, then there; but a note only of the accuſative caſe, as it is commonly termed; as alſo, Exod.7.20. Lev.24.16. Job 21.12. Eccl 5.10. Lam.1.17. Jon.3.5. So the meaning ſhould be no more then this; that God would beſtow many upon him, or give many unto him, to be his ſubjects, whether with an alluſion to a portion of inheritance; as Pſal. 16. 5, 6. or, the diſtribution of ſpoyls; as Gen. 49. 27. it is indifferent.

he ſhall divide the ſpoyl with the ſtrong] It is by the beſt Interpreters acknowledged, that the ſame is in ſome other terms repeated here, that was intimated in the words fore-going: this difference only obſerved, that the Fathers donation and appointment, was pointed to there; Chriſts poſſeſſion, and enjoyment of what was by his Fathers donation aſſigned to him,here. Divers go the ſame way here,that our Engliſh doth; he ſhall divide the ſpoil with the ſtrong, (as Prov.16.17. to divide the ſpoil with the proud; and Prov. 29.24. to partake with a thief; but another particle there:) that is, ſay ſome,he ſhall ſettle his Kingdom, among the great and mighty Kingdoms of this world; as ſharing in ſome ſort with them, Rev. 11.15. the old Latine reads it, he ſhall divide the ſpoil of the mighty, that is, as ſome,the ſpoils,that Satan,the ſtrong man, had formerly been poſſeſſed of,Luke 11.21,22. but I finde not yet, where this particle is uſed, as a note of the genetive caſe. Some render it, that he may divide the ſpoil with the ſtrong: ſo the copulative was uſed before, ver.2. ſee there; as if it were ſaid,I will furniſh him with all endowments, whereby he may be enabled to grapple with, conquer, plunder,and tryumph over,all the enemies of mans ſalvation, Col. 2.15. to which purpoſe alſo, ſome other, he ſhall divide the mighty as a ſpoil. But in the laſt place ſome render it; (which to me ſeems moſt probable) he ſhall obtain,receive,perceive, or poſſeſs, very many, for a prey: for as the word, that primarily ſignifies, to divide,or diſtribute,either inheritance, or prey, doth ſignifie, in the next place,to impart,aſſign,or give,and beſtow,in generall, in relation to the giver; ſo it is uſed alſo, in general, for to inherit,receive,obtain,and poſſeſs,in relation to the receiver. So Joſh.18. 2. theſe remained that had not yet received their inheritance, Job 27.17.He (that is,the wicked man) ſhall prepare it, but the juſt ſhall wear it; and the guiltleſs ſhall inherit,obtain,poſſeſs,or enjoy his ſilver,Pſal.60.6. I will obtain Sechem,or poſſeſs it,make my ſelf Lord of it: and for the word commonly rendred ſtrong,it is very apparent,both that the verb,from whence it comes,hath very uſually a notion of multitude in it; (See on Chap.31.1.) and the word it ſelf is moſt frequently uſed, to ſignifie very many; as Chap.8.7. Gen.18.18. Num.14.12. Deut.4.38.& 9.1.& 11.23.& 26.5.Joſh.23.9.Joel 2.5. Mic.4. 7. and,for a prey; the word ſo joyned with, very many without any particle coming between, is alſo not unuſual: for ſo it is ſaid,Pſal.135.11.he gave their land an inheritance, that is,for an inheritance. So that the words, thus reſolved, intimate the numerous, or innumerable, rather, multitude of thoſe that ſhould be converted unto Chriſt, (of which,ſee Act.2.41, 47. & 4.4.& 6.7.& 8.6,11.& 11.21.& 13.44,48.& 21.20.)whom he is ſaid to obtain and poſſeſs,or enjoy,as a ſpoil,or a prey; in alluſion either to the choiceſt ſubſtance, jewels, or garments eſpecially,that were reſerved, and ſet apart,for the Generall, or Commander in chief,to wear, riding in tryumph, Iudg.5. 30. 2 Sam.12.30.or,to captives,great ones eſpecially,taken in fight,or conqueſt, and following the conquerour, as an addition to his magnificence and honour, Chap. 45. 14. and 49. 18.

becauſe he hath poured out his ſoul unto death;] Poured out, as water is poured out: ſo is the word uſed,Gen.20.24. and ſo the Pſalmiſt of himſelf,in the perſon of Chriſt, Pſal.22.14. I am poured out like water: and ſo ſome expound the phraſe here uſed; pour not out my ſoul,or life, Pſal.141.8. becauſe when the ſoul departs,the life goeth with it: he poured out his ſoul,or his life:(ſo the word is uſed,Pſal.26.9.& 31.13.& 35.4.and 56.6.) as if he had made no more reckoning of it, then of water; as it is ſaid of the Martyrs ſlain for him, that they loved not their ſouls,that is,their lives,unto death, Rev.12.11. they parted with their lives, for his ſake, as freely, and as willingly, as if they valued,or loved them not; (which helps to explain that, Luke 14.26.) they did that in Chriſts cauſe, that himſelf before,for them,to fulfill his Fathers Will,had done, Ioh.10.17, 18 & 14.30,31. So the Apoſtle of him; He became obedient unto death, Phil.2.8. See Luke 23. 46. of pouring out of the ſoul,in another ſenſe,to wit,by prayer, with tears. See 1 Sam. 1.15.compared with chap.7.6.Pſal.42.3,4. Lam.2.19. and of our Saviour ſomewhat neer it,in that notion,Heb.5.7.

and he was numbred with the tranſgreſſours;] Or, with tranſgreſſours: for there is no article in the text. He was reckoned,as ſuch an one, as one of that rank; being put to the ſame death that malefactors uſed to ſuffer; in the ſame place, where ſuch were ordinarily wont to be executed; and at the ſame time, when ſome other alſo in the ſame place were to ſuffer: two notorious thieves; the one, crucified on his right, and the other, on his left hand, he hanging in the midſt between them,as the principal of them, Matth. 27. 38. wherein the Evangeliſt tels us, that this Prophecy was fulfilled, Mark 15.27, 28. yea, he was not only reckoned among them,but caſt behind them; or, (if ye will) for height of evil deſert,preferred before them, when Barabbas,that notorious miſcreant,was required to be let looſe, rather then he ſhould be let live, Mat.27.16,17,20,21. Mark 15.7,11. Luk.23.18, 19,25.Act.3.14,15.

and he bare the ſin of many;] The penalty of the ſins of all that numerous, or numberleſs multitude, before-mentioned, that were, by the miniſtery of the Goſpel,ſo brought home to him,as ſincerely to truſt on him,ver.5,6. which, by bearing alſo for them, ver.4. 1 Pet. 2. 24. he took away from them, Ioh.1.29.and by diſcharging them of the guilt thereof, ver.7. brought them into a juſtifiable condition,even in Gods ſight, and at his Tribunal,ver.11.

and made interceſſion for the tranſgreſſors.] For thoſe very tranſgreſſors,or wicked ones,by whom he ſuffered, Luke 23. 34. wherein Steven alſo imitated him,Act.7.60. for the article,here emphatical,ſeems to point unto that ſpecial act, and thoſe particular perſons; but hath relation, alſo, to Chriſts interceſſion for ſinners,that belong to him, and have intereſt in him, Rom.4.5.& 5.6,8,10. which continueth ſtill,and ſhall do unto the worlds end,Rom.8.34.Heb.7.25.& 9.24. 1 Ioh.2. 1, 2.

CHAP. LIV.

Verſ. 1. S*Ing, O barren*,] This Chapter Some ſuppoſe to belong to the former Sermon, or Prophecy, beginning at Chap.52.1. and proceeding on from thence, in a continued diſcourſe, concerning the State of the Church reſtored,unto ver.12.which having been there interrupted,with a digreſſion, concerning, either the Meſſias, or ſome other, whom they ſuppoſe to be there meant,ſhould,in this Chapter, be returned unto again. But moſt take it to be a new Prophecy, diſtinct from the former, though much of the ſame ſubject,and argument, with it: Howſoever, it hath a good coherence with, and dependance upon, the latter end of the former: For that ended with mention,as hath been ſhewed, of thoſe multitudes that ſhould be converted to Chriſt: this beginneth with thoſe ſwarms of people, that ſhould be bred by, and brought into the Church; and is wholly ſpent in predictions, and promiſes, of the enlargement and advancement thereof, together with the continuance of it in that eſtate.

Sing,] Or,Shout, for joy; as Chap.12.6.Zeph.3.14. Zach. 2.10. for there is alſo a crying out for grief,Lam.2.19. where the ſame word is uſed.

O barren,thou that didſt not bear;] A want of the relative; as Chap. 51. 12. and ſo in the next branch. This ſome underſtand of the Jewiſh Church and State, returned from captivity,which, during the time of that Babyloniſh bondage, ſeemed to be as a widow,or a lone woman, barren, and without hope of iſſue,ver.4. See Chap.49.21. Others, of the Gentiles,to be called in,by the miniſtery of the Goſpel, who had been before barren,and brought none forth unto God, being without Chriſt,without God, in the world, Eph.2. 1-3,12. It may well be underſtood of the Church, under the New Teſtament, conſiſting joyntly of Jew and Gentile; though with reference unto that former,as a type of this latter. See Gal. 4.27.

break forth into ſinging, and cry aloud, thou that didſt not travel] The ſame thing repeated in other more emphaticall terms, implying abundant matter of exceeding great joy. Of the terms, ſee on Chap.12.6. & 14.7. & 55.12.

travel] For bear,or bring forth; the antecedent for the conſequent: as Chap.23.4.

for more are the children of the deſolate, then the children of the married wife, ſaith the Lord] Heb. many from, or, in compariſon of, them, for, more in number then they; as it is rendred, Gal.4.27. See the like uſe of this particle. Judg.5.34. Pſal.45.7. Prov.22.1. Eccl 7.1. That is, as not a few:the Jewiſh State, that had been a long time deſolate, ſhall abound in people,much more then either her ſelf formerly,in her flouring eſtate, as ſome; or,then other Kingdoms and Provinces, ſay others, that had enjoyed a continued ſucceſſion of Kings, (a King, ſay they, being as an husband to a State) which ſhe for a long time wanted; and cities inhabited, whereas their land had been depopulated,and their cities ruined: and they obſerve withal, that Jeruſalem, even in her latter times,is reported, by Pliny, l.5. c.14. to have been the famouſeſt, or faireſt city, not of Jewry alone, but of all the Eaſtern parts. But the moſt refer it to the ſpiritual ſtate of Sion, to the Jeruſalem, from above, unto which more children were to be begotten, and bred again,by the miniſtery of the Goſpel, 1 Cor. 4.15. 1 Pet.1.23. of the Gentiles, that were wholly barren before; then of the Jews, that were ſometime fruitful, Rom. 9.23,26,30. Rev.7.4,9. And there is thought to be in the words, ſome alluſion to Sarahs caſe, though a long time barren, yet in iſſue afterward going beyond Hagar, Gen.11.30. & 17.19. & 21.12. & 22.17. Gal.4.27,31. or to Hannah,in regard of Peninnah, at firſt, barren, and yet afterward more fruitful then the other, 1 Sam.1.5,6,20. & 2.5.

V. 2. Enlarge the place of thy tent] Heb. widen; as Chap. 5.14. Implying, that her iſſue, and Inhabitants, ſhould ſo encreaſe and multiply, that ſhe ſhould want room to receive them. See Chap.49.20,21 & 60.4,5. it hath reference to their ancient manner of dwelling in tents,Gen.12.8. & 18.1.& 26. 17. & 33.19. Heb.11.9.

and let them ſtretch out the curtains of thine habitations] That is, let the curtains (of which their tents conſiſted, Exod. 26. 1, 12.

12. Jer.4.20.) be ſtretched out; for the verb is uſed imperſonally. See the like, Chap.33.1. & 34.11.

ſpare not, lengthen thy coards] Or, ſpare not to lengthen (as, multiply, waſh me, for, multiply to waſh me; waſh me over and over, again and again, Pſal.51.2.) thy cords: wherewith thoſe curtains were faſtened, whereof their tents conſiſted, unto pins, or ſtakes, driven into the ground. See Chap.33.20.

and ſtrengthen thy ſtakes] Make them ſtrong, and ſure; drive them faſt into the ground, that they may be able to hold, and keep tight, ſuch a weight of curtains, of that length and bredth, that thine muſt be, being faſtened to them, by thoſe cords. See hereof alſo, Chap.33.20.

V. 3. For thou ſhalt break forth on the right hand, and on the left] The reaſon why the tent was to be enlarged; becauſe her iſſue, that muſt dwell in it, would be multiplyed, and room on every ſide, on either hand, was to be made for them. See Chap.49.20.

break forth] That is, bring forth, and propagate abundantly: ſo is the word uſed, both of mankind, and other creatures, Gen.30.30,43. Exod.1.12. 1 Chr.4.38. Job 1.10. and it is a metaphor, taken, either from the breaking forth of iſſue, at time of delivery, Gen.38.33. See Chap.37.3. or, from ſuch plenty of any material laid up in a ſtore-houſe, as being more in quantity, then the place is able well to contain, breaks through the walls that encloſe it, Prov.3.10.

on the right hand, and on the left] That is, ſay ſome, to the South, and to the North; or, South-ward, and North-ward; as intimating which way the Church ſhould moſt propagate: becauſe the face being turned Eaſtward; (which part of the world, as placed before man, ſo ſituate, hath its name. See on Chap.2.6.) the South is on the right hand, (thence in Hebrew denominated. See Chap.21.1. & 43.6.) and the North on the left. But this is too nice: the phraſe, on the right hand, and on the left, is uſed for, on either ſide, Exod.14.29. Numb. 22.26. 2 Sam.16.6. Chap.9.20. In the phraſe, there ſeems a defect, to be thus more fully made up; thou ſhalt bring forth, or, be delivered of thoſe, that ſhall break out, (thorow the curtains of thy tents, if it be not made the wider to hold them) both on the right hand, and on the left; as alluding to a ſtore-houſe, ſo unreaſonably ſtowed, that the walls are enforced to give way, on either ſide. See Zach.2.4.

and thy ſeed ſhall inherit the Gentiles] This, ſome underſtand of the Jewiſh people, who, after their return from the captivity, did, in proceſſe of time, enlarge their territories, and encroached upon ſome parts of Moab, Edom, and Syria; according to that promiſe made by God, to Abraham, Gen.22.17. Thy ſeed ſhall poſſeſſe their enemies gates. But whatſoever was therein then done, was but a dim ſhadow of that which is herein principally intended; to wit, that inheritance which God would give unto Chriſt, and to his Church together with him, by multitudes of faithful converts, in all parts of the world. See on Chap.49.12. & 53.12. A work begun by the Apoſtles, the children of the former Church, and carried on by thoſe, that ſucceeded them, in the ſpreading of the Goſpel, Mat.28.19,20. Mar.16.15. Luk.24.47. Act.1.8. Rom.10.18.

and make the deſolate places to be inhabited] They ſhall people the world, that lay as deſolate before, with a new race of faithful people, ver.1. as after their return from the captivity, they re-edified, and repleniſhed their cities, and country again. Pſal.69.35. Chap.44.26. & 49.8. & 51.3.

V. 4. Fear not] Do not, out of a diſtruſtful conceit, entertain groundleſs fears, as if the things, now foretold thee, were matters incredible, and impoſſible to be performed. See Chap.41.10,14. & 43.1. & 44.8.

For thou ſhalt not be aſhamed:] Or, bluſh, Chap. 50.7. as one fruſtrate of his expectation, and failing of his hopes, Rom. 5.5. or, thou ſhalt not continue ſtill in, or return again unto, that deſerted, dejected, and reproachful condition, wherein, at preſent, thou art, ver.6. See Chap.29.22.

neither be thou confounded; for thou ſhalt not be put to ſhame] The ſame thing repeated in other terms; to give the fuller aſſurance of the performance of the things promiſed, and add further ſtrength to the feeble faith of his poor people, Chap. 35.3,4. So likewiſe, Chap.29.22.

for thou ſhalt forget the ſhame of thy youth, and ſhalt not remember the reproach of thy widow-hood any more] Or, but thou ſhalt forget, &c. as the particle is expreſſed, Chap.30.16. & 49.25. ſo great, and glorious ſhall thy condition be, and thine iſſue ſo ample, that it ſhall drown the memory, both of thy mean, and reproachful eſtate, which in thine younger years, thou ſuſtainedſt, in the Egyptian ſervitude, Jer. 2.2. Ezek. 23.3. and the like alſo, which thou doſt now undergo, in thy preſent Babylonian bondage, Chap.49.21. Lam. 1.1. thou ſhalt no more regard them, (ſo great ſhall thy joy be) then as if they had never been, Chap.65.16. Joh.16.21. See the like expreſſions, Gen.41.30,31,51.

V. 5. For thy Maker is thine husband; (the Lord of hoſts is his name.)] Or, Thy Maker (whoſe name is the Lord of hoſts) (as Chap.51.15.) is thine husband. The Sovereign Lord of the whole world, who hath all the creatures at his command, and who, at firſt, founded thee, Deut.32.15,18. Pſal.149.2. Chap. 43.1. & 44.2. is joyned in marriage unto thee; and will again live and dwell, as an husband, with thee, to make thee fruitful in iſſue, and honourable in eſtate, as beſeemeth the wife of ſuch an one to be. See Chap.62.5. Hoſ.2.19,20. Eph. 5.25-27,32.

Maker] Heb. makers; for the word is in the plural number; as Job 35.10. See the note there.

and thy Redeemer, the holy One of Iſrael, the God of the whole earth ſhall he be called] Or, and he, that is, thy redeemer, the holy One of Iſrael; or, thy redeemer, who is the holy One of Iſrael, ſhall be called the God of the whole earth. He that founded thee, will now reſcue, and reſtore thee again, Chap. 49.7, 26. and will not be only (to be called, for, to be: as Chap.4.3. & 56.7.) the God of Iſrael, as formerly he hath been, Deut. 26.17,18. but the God of all nations, thorow out the whole world, Chap.56.3,7. Zach.14.9. Mat.28.19. Rom.3.29,30. & 10.12,13.

V. 6. For the Lord hath called thee, as a woman forſaken, and grieved in ſpirit, and a wife of youth, when thou waſt refuſed, ſaith thy God] Or, as ſome render the words, For the Lord will call, or revoke thee, as a woman that hath been forſaken, and grieved in ſpirit, and a wife of youth, though thou waſt rejected, will thy God call, or name, thee.

the Lord hath called thee] Or, will call; or, as ſome, will recal thee: as, out of Egypt I called back my ſon, Hoſ.11.1. God will re-unite thee again unto him, as a man his wife, that he had left for a time, Jer.3.1,12. & 4.1.

as a woman forſaken] By her husband, upon ſome diſlike, or difference, falling out between them; ſo ſeemed ſhe to be, during the time of her captivity, Chap.62.4. See ver.7.

grieved in ſpirit] In regard of her barrenneſs, ſay ſome, that was reproachful in thoſe times, 1 Sam. 1.6-8, 15. See on Chap.4.1. but rather in regard, that God her husband ſeemed to have forſaken her, Chap.49.14. the word uſed here, is that from whence Jabez his mother gave him, that name, 1 Chron.4.9. there is an elegant conſonancy between this term, and the former, in the Hebrew, which our Engliſh cannot expreſs.

and a wife of youth;] a young wife; or, a wife taken in youth, Prov.5.18. Mal.2.14. as an husband of youth, Joel 1.8. thou ſhalt be as dear to me, as a young wife to her husband, Chap. 62.5, or, as ever thou waſt to me, in thy younger dayes, at firſt, Jer.2.1,2. Ezek.16.8.

when thou waſt refuſed] Or, though thou haſt been, or waſt rejected, or caſt off; as it is rendred, Jer.31.37. for ſo ſhe ſeemed to be, during the time of her captivity, as a woman divorced, Chap.50.1. diſmiſſed, Jer.3.1. and caſt off: ſo ſhe complaineth of her ſelf, that God had utterly caſt her off, Lam. 5. 20. and further, that he had made her as refuſe, among forreign people, Lam.3.45. which word ſeemeth the rather here to be uſed, as implying the deſpicable eſtate, that ſhe had been in, while her abode was in Babylon. See Jer. 30.17. and for the uſe of the particle, ſee on Chap.12.1.

ſaith thy God] Saith he, who continueth ſtill to be thy God, and to mind thee, and thy good, Ch.49.15,16. or, as ſome, who joyn this clauſe to thoſe words, a wife of youth; incloſing, as in a parentheſis, thoſe that lye between them; a wife of youth will the Lord name thee, or call thee. So the verb of ſaying, is found uſed in the participle. O thou that are named, or, called, the houſe of Jacob, Mic.2.7. and the pronoun, oft omitted, may well be ſupplyed from the former branch. See Chap.51, 2,3. & 58.13.

V. 7. For a ſmall moment] For a very ſhort time. God as he is ſlow to wrath, Exod.34.6. Num.14.18. Chap. 48.9. ſo ſhort in wrath uſually, and in the expreſſions of it, towards his, Pſal.30.5. & 103.8,9. Chap.26.20. their ſeventy years captivity, is reckoned but as a moment; not only in regard of God, with whom, a thouſand years are but as one day, Pſal.90. 4. 2 Pet.3.8. and mans life reckoned, at that rate, Pſal. 90. 16. leſſe then a moment, as juſt nothing, Pſalm 30. 5. but in regard of that enſuing favour, and goodneſſe of God, that ſhall continue unto all eternity, and that exceeding maſs of glory and happineſſe iſſuing from it; able not to weigh down only, but to ſwallow up, whatſoever foregoing afflictions and grievances, though never ſo great, and of never ſo long continuance, 2 Cor. 4. 17,18. Rom.8.18. Hebr. 11.37.

have I forſaken thee] So God ſeemeth to do, both to the ſight of others, and to their own ſenſe alſo, when he withdraweth from his people, thoſe outward expreſſions of his favour and love towards them, which they had formerly enjoyed; and more eſpecially, when for ſome ſpace of time, he giveth them up into, and leaveth them in the hands of their enemies Pſal.22.1. & 27.9. & 71.11.

but with great mercies will I gather thee.] Heb. and (for, but; as Chap.53.5.) with great tender mercies (for ſo the word is not amiſs rendred, Pſal. 103.4. importing an inward earning, and working of the bowels, in a mother, towards the fruit of her womb, from whence the word comes, 1 King.3.16.) will I gather thee; or, take thee up; as it is well rendred, Pſal. 27.10 as ſome left, loſt, or forlorn creature. See Chap. 40.11. Yet there may be in the word, ſome hint had to their diſperſion, in the captivity, into ſundry parts, out of which they were to be recollected, before they could be reduced. See Chap. 11.11,12. Thus is God far more free, and full in mercies and goodneſs, then in wrath and anger, to his, Exod.20.6. Pſal.30.5.& 63.3 & 86.5.

V. 8. In a little wrath, I hid my face from thee, for a moment;] The ſame thing, in other terms, repeated again; as before the like was obſerved, ver.4.

a little wrath] Oppoſed to the great mercies, mentioned ver. 7. The word rendred little, is no where elſe found; but ſeems to have ſome affinity with a word uſed, Iob 4.12. & 26.14. that is deemed to ſignifie a ſnip: and there is an elegant Paronomaſie (which our Engliſh will not yeeld) between it, and the word tranſlated wrath; but ſignifying, properly, a bubble, Hoſ. 10.7. that is no ſooner up, but is ſuddenly down again; and may the rather be here uſed, to imply the ſhortneſs of Gods wrath. See Chap.34.2.

I hid my face from thee] So alſo is God ſaid to do, when he withdraws and with-holds the wonted expreſſions of his favour, from perſons, and people; eſpecially, when having ſo done, and they being now in ſtraits and diſtreſſes, he anſwereth not their ſuits, for relief and releaſe, according to their deſires, Deut.32.20. Pſal.27.9.& 30.7. See Chap.1.15. & 8.17. & 57.17. a ſpeech borrowed from thoſe, that refuſe to admit unto ſight, or to look upon one, whom they do really diſaffect, or would ſeem at leaſt to be diſpleaſed with, 2 Sam.14.24,28, 32. 2 King.13.14. See on Chap.53.3.

for a moment] As ver.7.

but with everlaſting kindneſs will I have mercy on thee;] Heb. and (as before, ver.7.) with kindneſs of perpetuity; oppoſed to that little, or ſhort moment of diſpleaſure, before-mentioned. See Pſal.103.17. Ier.31.3.

ſaith the Lord thy Redeemer.] As ver. 5.

V. 9. For this is as the waters of Noah unto me] This covenant of grace, that I will now enter into with thee, ſhall be as firm, and as ſure to continue, as that which I made at the general deluge, never to drown the whole World in that manner again, Gen.9.9-11.

the waters of Noah] As we uſe to ſay, Noahs floud, for the deluge in his days, concerning ſuch a general inundation as then was: the note of ſimilitude wanting; as Chap. 51. 12. Yet the Jewiſh Criticks, ſome of them, have another reading here, which the Chaldee alſo exhibiteth; and the old Latine retaineth, rendring the text, as the days of Noah; as Matth.24.37. but the former reading is the more received; nor do the Jews themſelves approve the other.

for as I have ſworn] Heb. which I have ſworn; or, as ſome render it, who have ſworn; as having relation unto the words next before, unto me. Others, concerning which I have ſworn. But it may well be rendred, As I have ſworn: for ſo is the relative uſed, Jer. 48.8. as the Lord hath ſpoken. Otherwiſe, if we retain our verſion here, the relative muſt ſtand for the conjunction cauſal; as 1 Sam.15.15. and the note of ſimilitude muſt be ſupplied, as before; which is oft alſo in the other particle included. See Chap.55.9.

I have ſworn] Or, did, ſometime, ſwear: where any formall oath, concerning this, was by God conceived, we find not. Howbeit, in regard that ſolemn covenants of great concernment, were wont to be confirmed by oath, Gen.26.28, 31. & 31.44, 53. 1 Sam.20.16,17,42. God therefore ſpeaks here of his ſolemn Covenant, made, with all mankind, to Noah, as if he had taken a formal oath, in preciſe terms, for the conſtant and inviolable performance of it; as to Abraham he did for the confirmation of his faith, Gen.12.2.& 17.3,4. & 22.17. Hebr. 6. 13, 14. and is ſaid to have done the like unto Iſaac, Pſal. 105. 9. though we read only of a promiſe made him without any new oath, to make good unto him the oath made formerly to Abraham, Gen.26.3,4. Yea, ſo is God ſaid to have ſworn, to make David King of Iſrael, 2 Sam.3.9. and to ſet of his iſſue on his throne for ever, Pſal.132. 11. though we finde not upon record any formal oath concerning either: onely a ſolemn ſymbol, intimating the one, 1 Sam.16.12,13. and a ſolemn meſſage ſent unto him, concerning the other, 2 Sam.7. 12,16. but Gods promiſes are as firm and ſure, as any oath is, or can be. God cannot ly, nor fail in the leaſt title of ought he ſaith, or undertaketh, Num.23.19. 1 Sam.15.29. Mat.5.18. Tit.1.2.

that the waters of Noah ſhall no more go over the earth:] That is, ſuch an inundation, as was in Noahs time, to drown the whole world again, Heb. from the waters of Noah paſſing over the earth: as if he had ſaid, I bound my ſelf, as by oath, from cauſing or ſuffering them ſo to do. Of the phraſe, ſee before, Chap.17.1.& 23.1.& 24.10. So in the next clauſe, from being wroth, and from rebuking.

ſo have I ſworn, that I would not be wroth with thee, nor rebuke thee] I have bound my ſelf by oath, from being ſo incenſed againſt thee, as utterly to caſt thee off, or to deſtroy thee; for of ſuch a kind of wrath, and ſuch a kind of rebuke, Pſal. 9. 5. doth God ſpeak in this place. See on the next verſe. Otherwiſe God is angry oft, even with the beſt of his, Exod. 3. 14. Num. 12. 7. Deut.3.26. and rebuketh thoſe, and that ſharply too, ſometime, whom he loves beſt, 2 Sam.11.27. and 12.10,11. Pſal.32.3,4. & 38.3. & 118.18. Heb.12.6. Rev. 3. 19. Of Gods rebuke, not verbal, but real, ſee Chap. 50.2. Many other reſemblances, between the waters of Noah, and the ſtate of people, do ſome Expoſitors, and other Writers, here frame; which conceiving to be beſide the intention of Gods Spirit in this place, I forbear either to refute, or relate.

V. 10. For the mountains ſhall depart, and the hills be removed; but my kindneſſe ſhall not depart from thee, neither ſhall the covenant of my peace be removed] That is, ſooner ſhall the one be, then the other. So Chap.51.6. See Jer.31.35-37.& 33. 20,21,25,26. from which places, parallel to this, collated with this, may evidently appear, in what notion thoſe terms of wrath, and rebuke, ver.9. are to be taken.

the mountains ſhall depart] Not neceſſarily implying, that they ſhall ſo do: for many of them are like to ſtand as long as the world laſts, Pſal.65.6. but that they ſooner may ſo do, (as alſo ſome, ſometime, in earthquakes, have done, alluded unto, Hab.3.6. Zach.14.4. Rev.6.14. and whole regions with them; whereof, ſee Seneca, in his natural queſtions, l.6. c.29. and Pliny, in his natural ſtory, l.2. c. 81,85,86.) ſooner then that ſhould come to paſſe, that God ſaith, and ſwears, here, ſhall never be: this the people of God build upon, Pſal. 46. 3.

the hills be removed] As following, or going along with the greater; mountains and hills, are oft joyned together, Chap. 30.25. & 31.4. & 40.4,12. & 41.15. and in the two verbs here uſed, mut, and muſh, differing but in one letter, there is an harmony of ſound, which our language cannot fitly expreſs.

the covenant of my peace] Or, rather, my covenant of peace, Ezek.34.25. & 37.26. that is, of reconcilement to thee, and continuance at one with thee, Rom.5.1,10. & 8.35,38,39. or of welfare, proſperity, and ſafety, everlaſting, and never to have an end; for that notion alſo, the word of peace, oft hath, Gen. 33. 18. Chap.9.6. & 26.3,12. & 48. 18. ver. 13. See Heb.9.12. & 10.14. & 13.20. whether way we take it, a moſt ſweet and comfortable conſideration for every true-hearted ſoul to rely, and reſt it ſelf upon, Chap.50.10, ſaith the Lord that hath mercy on thee] So Chap.14.1. implying, that it is all of meer mercy, whatſoever God, in this kind, doth for any of his, Pſal.6.4. & 106.43. Eph.2.4,5. Tit.3.5.

V. 11. O thou afflicted, toſſed with tempeſt, and not comforted] Heb. afflicted, (Chap. 51. 21.) ſtormed; like Jonas his ſhip, Jon.1.11,13. for the ſame word is uſed of either: ſuch ſeemed their eſtate to be, forlorn, helpleſs, and hopeleſs, during the time of their captivity. So God by Zachary uſing the very ſame word, ſaith, that he had ſtormed them, that is, with a ſtorm, or tempeſt, driven them out, as a ſhip, or a fleet of ſhips, forced out of the haven, or from their moorings, where they road in harbour quietly, into the main ocean, Zach.7.14. and there with boiſterous winds diſtreſſed, weather-beaten, and without rudder, tackle, or ancker, toſſed to and fro, Jam.3.4. in which diſtracted and diſtreſſed eſtate, they ſeemed to continue, while their captivity laſted, both deſtitute of all help from man, Chap.51.17,18. Lam.1.2,3,12. and ſeeming utterly forſaken of, and forgotten with, God, ch.40. 27. & 49.14.

behold, I will lay thy ſtones with fair colours, and lay thy foundations with Saphirs] God promiſeth, not to raiſe her onely, out of that dejected and diſtreſſed eſtate, wherein at preſent ſhe was, but to advance her, to a moſt eminent, and glorious condition: the ſpiritual excellencies of the Church, under the Meſſias, being here deſcribed by an hyperbolical ſimilitude of ſuch a goodly, coſtly, ſtately ſtructure, whether city, or palace, as here on earth, is ſcarce imaginable: whereof, ſee the like, Rev.21.11-21. and the relation hereof, is therefore uſhiered in, with a note uſually prefixed before ſuch matter, as may deſervedly require, both ſerious conſideration, and admiration in abundance. See Chap.7.14. & 28.16.

lay thy ſtones with fair colours] Heb. I am making, or, will make, (as Chap.3.1. is taking away) to lye with puc, or phuc, thy ſtones; about which, the Jewiſh Criticks much puzzle themſelves. Some would have it rendered, I will lay thy foundation, and the ſtones ſhall be of puc, or phuc. Other, I will lay thy pavement, with ſtones of puc, or phuc: and they tell us, ſome of them, that it is the name of a precious ſtone, of a ſandy colour. Others, that it is black; and the ſame with nophec, mentioned, Exod.28.18. which the moſt render, a carbuncle, there; as many alſo do this here. Howbeit, a carbuncle is not black, having its name, indeed, from a coal, but a quick, and burning coal meant, not a dead one, as being of a fiery and flamy colour. See on ver. 12. The word certainly ſignifies a kind of paint, tincture, or complexion, (as we now adayes term it) wherewith women uſed to improve, or taint and corrupt rather, their native hew, 2 King.9.30. Jer.4.30. which, whether it were compoſed of the juice of ſome plant, or, the matter of ſome mineral, is not among the Jewiſh Doctors agreed: But hence it is, not unlikely, that the latine word, fucus, uſed in general, for all ſuch ſtuff, accuſtomed to counterfeit with, had its original; from whence alſo, was one of Jobs daughters named, the horn of paint, or, complexion; for the eminency of her beauty, Job 42.14. and the Chaldee Paraphraſt, therefore, rendreth the words, I will cover, or, varniſh thy ſtones with paint; uſing a word that is acknowledged to ſignifie ſuch ſtuff, as was before deſcribed: and ſo our late tranſlators, as ſome others alſo before them, both here, and 1 Chr.29.2. render it, where the text is, ſtones of puc, or phuc. The verb, whoſe participle is here uſed, ſignifies, in its firſt form, to lye down; properly, as beaſts do: diſtinguiſhed from another appropriated to mankind: yet ſometime it is uſed more generally, as Job 11.19. Chap.14.30. in the form here uſed, it ſignifies, to make to lye down, or to lay. Whence ſome of the Jewiſh Commenters here render it, by a word uſed, Cant.3.10. (from whence another for a pavement, 2 King.16.17.) ſignifying to pave; as if he had ſaid, I will lay thy pavement, or pave thee, with painted ſtones; or, make thy pavement ſtones of goodly colours; that is, of ſuch fair, and curious colours, as may ſeem to have had ſome artificial tincture uſed to them, Rev.21.21. the ſtreets of the new Jeruſalem, are ſaid to be paved with pure gold, as tranſparent as glaſſe. The participle is here put for the verb: as chap.3. 1. and there may ſeem an inverſion of the terms, I will lay, or pave in, or, with, paint, thy ſtones, for, I will pave thee with ſtones of paint: as the words are, 2 Chr. 29. 2. See the like inverſion of terms, Judg.1.8. Pſal. 74. 7. Howſoever, I concur rather with thoſe, that underſtand this branch of the pavement, then with thoſe that refer it to the foundation; whereof, in the next.

and lay thy foundations with Saphirs] Heb. found thee with ſaphirs: as before, pave thee with painted ſtones. This ſtone is found in the Prieſtly breſt-plate, Exod.28.18. as alſo, in the foundations of the new Jeruſalem, Rev. 21. 19. the Jewiſh Doctors tell us, ſome of them, that it is a precious ſtone of a red colour; and that they would prove from Lam.4.7. Other of them, that it is of a white colour; that which they would draw from Exod.24.10. but neither with any probability of proof from thoſe places, as we ſhall (God willing, and aſſiſting us) ſhew, if we ſhall be able to break thorow to the former of them. But our Jewellers, and Lapidaries, generally hold the right Saphir, to be of a sky colour; though ſometime found, as poudred with ſome golden ſpots. So Theophraſt, of ſtones, Pliny, l.37. c.9. and Dennis, the Greek Geographer, who calleth it therefore, the golden sky coloured-Saphir. In regard hereof, it is in viſions, and apparitions, ſo frequently mentioned, Exod.24.10. Ezek.1.26. & 10.1. and hence ſome read thoſe words of God to Job, Job.38.37. Who by his wiſdom can make the sky of a Saphirine hew; ſuch as it ſheweth, when the ayr is moſt cleer, and free from clouds. The word is both in Greek and Latine, the ſame with the Hebrew.

V. 12. And I will make thy windows of Agates] The windows are of ſpecial uſe in a building; and in regard of their ſituation, very conſpicuous. They are here ſtyled by a term, not elſewhere found, derived from the Sun, (whence alſo Samſon had his name,) becauſe the ordinary uſe of them, is to let in the day-light, that proceeds from the Sun. And this being a principal uſe of them, beſide their eminency otherwiſe, gives juſt cauſe to doubt, whether the word Cadcod, be well rendred an Agate; the Agate, being a ſtone, neither of any eſteem or reckoning neer to a Saphir; nor tranſparent, as the Saphir is. Howbeit, in Theophraſts time, it ſeems by him, that it bare ſome price: and Pliny, l.37. c.10. enformeth us, that though, in his time, they were of no great value, yet were, ſome ſort of them, commended for their glaſſy perſpicuity. But they that render it an Achate, or an Agate, ſeem to have been led moſt thereunto, by the affinity of the ſound, and the letters, in either term, interchangeable. Others render it, both here; as alſo, Ezek. 27. 16. ſome, a Pyropus, as ſo termed, of ſparkling like fire, Job 41.19. ſome, a Chryſopraſe; ſome, Pearl; ſome, Amber; ſome, Chriſtal; which with windows ſeems beſt to ſuit: for they go too low, that would draw it down to glaſſe; whereof alſo, I ſuppoſe no mention to be, in the ſacred records, left us, in the Hebrew. Some would have inſtead of windows, here, turrets, or ſentinels: but the notation of the word ſpeaketh for the former.

and thy gates of carbuncles] Heb. ſtones of Ekdah, or, Ekdach: as Ahaz, and Achaz, Chap.1.1. a word no where elſe found in Scripture; but having its name from a word that ſignifies to kindle fire, and to burn, Chap.50.10.& 64.2. from which root alſo comes another term, that denotes a kind of hot, burning, malady; as doth alſo the word Carbuncle, both in Engliſh and Latine; and its parallel in Greek, importeth as well a ſore, or ulcer, ſo called of the inflammation, it bringeth with it, as a rich ſtone, of its fiery, or flamy colour, ſo termed. See on ver.12. the gates, Rev.21.21. are ſaid to be each of one entire pearl.

all thy borders of pleaſant ſtones] Heb. all thy border; or, thy whole border; that is, ſay ſome of the Jewiſh Commenters, all thy cities; not Jeruſalem alone, but all the cities, within her territories, called Jeruſalems cities, Jer. 34.1. as intimating, that they ſhould be built with goodly rich ſtones, as well as ſhe. But I rather conceive, with the ancient Greek Interpreter, that by border, is here meant, the whole compaſs of her walls, ſo far, as the ſame ſhould reach, See Chap. 60. 18. Ezek.48.35. the foundation, the pavement, the gates, and windows, were before; there reſts nothing, but the walls, that bound it; and the compaſſe thereof, therefore, not unfitly termed, her border. By the foundation, ſome would have underſtood here, Chriſt our Saviour, 1 Cor.3.11. By the windows, the teachers, that let in light to the people, Dan. 12. 3. By the gates, and walls, Gods protection, Chap. 26. 2. & 60.12. But to deſcend to ſuch nicities, I deem it both unſafe, and needleſſe.

of pleaſant ſtones] Heb. into ſtones of deſire, or delight: ſtones of delight, for, goodly, beautiful, delightſome ſtones; ſuch as are pleaſing to the eye, and men delight to look upon: (ſee Pſal. 102.14.) as, a city of deſire, or delight, for, a delightſome city, Mal.3.12. for the ſyntax, both here, and in the former branch, I will put thy windows, and border, into ſuch and ſuch ſtones: Some would have it to be an Hypallage, or Inverſion of the words; for, I will put ſuch and ſuch ſtones into thy windows, and into thy walls; or, in thy windows, and thy walls; as Judg.1. 8. They caſt the city into the fire, for, they caſt fire into the city. Others, and ſo ſome of the Jewiſh Criticks, would have it to be, as if it were ſaid, I will turn the ſtones that thou waſt at firſt built with, into ſuch and ſuch ſtones; and ſo the terms of windows and walls, ſhould be put for the materials whereof they were built: and they point us to Hoſ.2.12. where it is ſaid, (the ſame verb and particle, being both there uſed, that are here) I will turn her vines and fig-trees (that is, the places wherein they grow, their vineyards, and orchards) into a foreſt. But this paſſage helps rather to put us into the right. For it is well there rendred in our verſion, I will make them a foreſt. And in ſuch forms of ſpeech, the particle ſeems oft to be ſuperfluous, as 2 Sam.3.30. 1 Chron. 3.2. compared with, 2 Sam.3.3. Jer.40.2. See ch.4.2. Jer.12.11. or, if it ſhall be deemed to be of ſome ſpecial uſe, the words may be rendred; I will make them to become a foreſt, in the one place; and I will make them to be ſuch, and ſuch ſtones, in the other; which our verſion ſufficiently expreſſeth.

V. 13. And all thy children ſhall be taught of the Lord;] Or, made skilfull, and learned, by the Lord. See Chap.8.16. & 50. 4. For Gods teaching, is an effectual teaching unto thoſe, whom, by the inward efficacy of his Spirit working together, with the external miniſtery of his Word, he inſtructeth, Jer. 31.34. Joh.6.45. 1 Cor.2.10. 2 Cor.13.3. Eph.4.20,21. 1 Joh.2. 20,27.

and great ſhall be the peace of thy children.] They ſhall enjoy abundance of proſperity and welfare, Pſal.37.11. & 119. 165. Chap.48.18.& 52. 7. See on ver.10.

V. 14. In righteouſneſs ſhalt thou be eſtabliſhed:] Thou ſhalt be ſetled again by righteous and faithful Governours; ſuch as were Zorobabel, Ezra, Jeſhua, and Nehemy: righteouſneſs, for men of righteouſneſs; as Chap.1.21. & 41.2. So ſome: See Chap. 1.26,27. Others, by righteouſneſs, underſtand Gods gracious goodneſs, whereby their State ſhould again be eſtabliſhed. So the word ſeems uſed, 1 Sam. 12.7. Pſal.36.10. ver.17. Others, Gods fidelity and faithfulneſs, in performance of his promiſes; as Pſal.142.1,2. Chap.51.5.& 56.1. Heb.6. 10. 1 Joh. 1.9. But I conceive the meaning to be, as the words plainly ſound, (righteouſneſs being oppoſed to oppreſſion) that ſhe ſhall be ſetled again in a conſtant tenour, and due execution of juſtice; with ſecurity, to enjoy quietly that condition, that God ſhould reſtore her unto, (ſee Chap.1.27.) the continuance whereof, as ſetled on a ſure ground-work, is implied in the term of eſtabliſhment, Pſal.111.7,8. & 125.1. Mat.16.18. Heb.12.28. See Chap.2.2.

thou ſhalt be far from oppreſſion;] Heb. be thou far from oppreſſion: though ſome would make it not a verb, but a verbal, rendring it; being far off from oppreſſion; but no inſtance is given of the like: the meaning is, either be thou far, for thou ſhalt be far: as, live, for thou ſhalt live, Gen.20.7. Prov. 4.4. and dwell, for thou ſhalt dwel, Pſal. 37.27. and ſo the Hebrew Commenters expound it: or, be far from fear of oppreſſion: fear it not; and ſo ſome of ours, ſupplying that term of fear, or dread, from the words enſuing. See the like promiſe, Chap.60.18.

for thou ſhalt not fear;] Thou ſhalt have no need, or cauſe, to fear it; becauſe the former oppreſſors ſhall be deſtroyed; and an utter riddance made of them, Chap. 16.4. and if any ſhall hereafter attempt ought againſt thee, their deſigns ſhall be utterly fruſtrate, ver. 15-17. Some read the words, that thou maiſt not fear; that thou mayſt be freed from thoſe fears, that ſo much poſſeſſed, diſturbed, and diſtracted thee in times paſt, Chap.33.18.& 51.12,13. So is this particle uſed, Job 6. 11. Chap. 52.5,6. and this reading ſuiteth well with the former expoſition of the branch before-going.

and from terrour;] Or, dread; to wit, of oppreſſion; whereof before: for the word is oft uſed for conſternation; or, a quelling and diſmaying dread, Jer.10.2.& 17.17.& 48.39. but it may as well be rendred, and from contrition, or deſtruction, or ruine: for ſo alſo the word ſignifies; and is ſo rendred, Pſal.89.40.Prov.10.14,29. & 13.3.& 18.7. ſuch as formerly hath befallen thee, Jer.4 20.Lam.3.47.

for it ſhall not come neer thee.] Or, that it may not come neer thee; as before, Pſal.91.7.Prov.1.33.

V. 15. Behold,] To give them fuller aſſurance of future ſafety, becauſe they might have ſome thoughts within them, that though their former adverſaries, and oppreſſors, were quelled and deſtroyed; yet ſome other riſing up in their room, might again diſturb them, and reduce them to their former ſad condition, the Lord promiſeth to fruſtrate whatſoever attempts ſhall, by any evill-affected, be at any time made againſt them; and to encite, and ſtir them up to a more ſerious and ſedulous conſideration thereof, he prefixeth this note, as requiring attention before it: whereof, ſee on verſe 11.

they ſhall ſurely gather together,] Heb. he ſhall gathering, gather together: ſo the word is uſed, Pſal. 56.6. & 59.3.& 140.3. and the word, though ſingular, yet is in a plural, or collective notion; as ſpeaking, not of ſome particular perſon, but of people: the gemination of the word, in this manner, doth ſometime imply, certainty; as Mic.2. 12. and ſo our tranſlators here take it: and the meaning then is, that there ſhall undoubtedly be ſuch, as will be attempting the diſturbance and deſtruction of Gods people; as ſuch formerly have ever been, Pſal.129.1. 2 Tim.3.12. ſometime, ſedulity; as Exod. 19.5.Deut.6.17. and taking it ſo here, the text may be rendred, they may diligently gather together; as not foretelling what ſhall be, but forecaſting what may be; as if it were ſaid, though people ſhould never ſo ſedulouſly, and in never ſo great multitudes, combine, and gather themſelves together againſt thee, Zach.12.3. yet it ſhall be to no purpoſe, Chap. 8. 9, 10. Thoſe that here conceive the word in a notion of dwelling, or ſojourning (though it be moſt commonly ſo uſed) and expound the text of hollow-hearted Proſelytes, do ſwerve clean away from the genuine ſenſe of the Prophet.

but not by me:] Heb. not from me: the adverſative is wanting; as chap.17.11. from me: not with any charge, command, or commiſſion from me; as Sennacherib pretended, and God himſelf, in ſome ſort, acknowledgeth; though that neither known to him, nor minded by him, Chap. 10. 6, 7. and of Nebuchadnezzar the like may be ſaid, Jer.25.9. & 40.2,3. but it ſhould not be ſo with theſe, who are therefore ſaid to come not from him, becauſe he ſhould not go along with them, to make them ſucceſsfull, as with ſome of them he did. So Hoſ. 8.4. they have ſet up Kings, but not by me. The Jewiſh Commenters, expounding this paſſage of Gog and Magog, with their retinue, object, that God himſelf is ſaid to bring them againſt his people, Ezek.38.17. whereunto they anſwer not amiſs, that God indeed is ſaid to bring them; but that it is to their ruine, and to the benefit of his people. So Mic. 4. 11-13.

whoſoever ſhall gather together againſt thee ſhall fall for thy ſake.] Or, whatſoever people ſhall gather themſelves together againſt thee, to fight with thee, ſhall fall, Pſal. 59.3. & 140.3. or, whoſoever ſhall gather together, to fight with thee, ſhall fall before thee: as the particle is uſed, Zach.6.5.Exod.20.3. Pſal. 9.19. So, they ſhall fall before you, Levit. 26. 7,8. All their attempts againſt thee, ſhall tend to their own ruine, and end in their own deſtruction, Pſal. 27. 2. & 37.12-15. Chap. 10.34.

V. 16. Behold] as before, ver.15.

I have created the Smith that bloweth the coals in the fire, and that bringeth forth an inſtrument for his work:] Both the workman, that maketh weapons, and arms, and the Warrier, that weareth them, or maketh uſe of them, are my creatures; and in my power therefore it is, to diſpoſe both of them, and their arms, and weapons, as I pleaſe, Pſal.119.91. Joh.19.11.

created the Smith] Both made him a man, Job 10.8. Pſal. 119.73. Jer.1.5. and made him a Smith; a man skilful in the work of his trade: for, skill in ſuch things, is alſo of God, Exod.31.3-6. of the word rendred Smith, ſee on Chap. 40.19.

that bloweth the coals in the fire] Or, that bloweth the fire of coals. Heb. coal. See Chap.44.12. thereby to melt, or mollifie the metal, that he is to work upon: this is added, to diſtinguiſh him from the Carpenter, that worketh in timber, and the Maſon that worketh in ſtone; and need not the help of fire ſo much, to make out their work: becauſe the term here uſed, comprehendeth them all three. See on Chap.40. 20. & 41.7.

and that bringeth forth an inſtrument for his work] That is, if we ſo read it, a [illegible] for himſelf to uſe in his trade; which ſeems not [illegible] with the ſcope of the place, ſave that ſuch tools, as he frames for his own uſe, may further him, in the framing of arms. See Chap.44.12. Others, therefore, read it, an inſtrument of his work: as, a Pſalm of David, Pſalm, 20. & 21, &c. that is, ſuch an one, as he is wont to make: warlike weapons, b[illegible]g [illegible] great part of them, fruits of the forge, 1 Sam.13.19. [illegible] his not amiſs. Howbeit, I conceive, that it may as [illegible] rendred, that produceth inſtruments for their work; th[illegible]s, [illegible]ch weapons, as they muſt uſe, that intend ought againſt thee, ver.15. for though the verb there be ſingular, yet the notion is plural, and ſo may alſo be here; as Chap.5.26- [illegible], though the text in the original run conſtantly [illegible]gular; yet the words, becauſe collectively uſed, ar[illegible] al along, rendred in the plural: and ſo it ſuite[illegible]h with what went before, ver.15. and with wha[illegible] e1.17. For I cannot concur with thoſe, that wou[illegible] ave th[illegible] ords expounded, by way of inverſion; that bring [illegible] his work out into an inſtrument. But inſtrument, for, inſtruments: as Jer.51.34. Zach.11.15. ſo, coal, for coals, before.

and I have created the waſter to deſtroy] to deſtroy thoſe, whom my Will is to have deſtroyed. It may be underſtood of wicked men, whoſe whole ſtudy, life, and practice, is to waſte and deſtroy: for ſuch alſo doth God make uſe of, Chap.10.6. and for ſuch uſes, hath he made them, Prov.16.4. to be executioners of his juſt wrath againſt other wicked, (ſo is that of Solomon to b[illegible] underſtood) Chap.10.5. Ezek.7.21,24. But I ſuppoſe, th[illegible] oy th[illegible] waſter, or deſt oyer, is underſtood the warrier, in gen[illegible]; whoſe work and employment is to waſte and deſtroy; an[illegible] hoſe arms are therefore termed weapons, or, inſtruments [illegible] deſtruction from the word here uſed, Ezek.9.1. Some woul[illegible] ave th[illegible] who[illegible] verſe, to this effect, rendred; As I have creat[illegible] h to produce warlike weapons; ſo have I made waſters [illegible] not [illegible]ſtruments my ſelf) to deſtroy mine enemies, an[illegible] But the former ſenſe is more familiar, and agreeth better with [illegible]e context.

V. 17. No weapo[illegible] formed againſt thee ſhall proſper:] That is formed to be employed againſt thee: a form of ſpeech defective, but in Scripture very frequent. See Chap.38.17, 21. and of Gods turning back mens weapons, upon thoſe themſelves, that uſe them. See Je[illegible].4.

and every tongue that ſhall riſe up in judgment againſt thee, thou ſhalt condemn] There are two wayes eſpecially, whereby perſons are wont to be oppreſſed, either by force and violence, as Urias was, Jer.26.23. or, by pretence of law and right; as was Naboth, 1 King.21.13. againſt the one, God in the former branch, had given them ſecurity; aſſuring them, that none, by hoſtile courſes, ſhould prevail againſt them: for no weapon, or engine, uſed againſt them, ſhould be able to do, either the enemy ſervice, or them damage: againſt the other, he giveth them ſecurity in theſe words, aſſuring them, that none ſhould by falſe ſuggeſtions, and wrong information, any way impeach them in their right; but that they ſhould have the better, at length, in the upſhot, of all thoſe, that by any means ſhould attempt ſo to do. See Chap. 49.24,25. & 50.8,9. & 51.22.

every tongue] That is, every perſon, that ſhall ſo uſe, or abuſe rather, his tongue; as Pſal.12.3. The Lord will cut off the flattering lips, and the tongue that ſpeaketh proud things; that is, thoſe that ſo uſe lips and tongue; becauſe ſuch things are acted by the tongue, Pſal.52.2. whence, a man of tongue, for, a detracter, or ſlanderer, Pſal.140.11.

riſe up in judgment againſt thee] To accuſe, or charge thee wrongfully, Deut.19.16. as the Devil did Job to God, Job 1. 9,11. and his friends to himſelf, Job 16.20. & 22.5-10. or, to lay claim to thee, as pretending to have right to thee, and power over thee, as their lawful captive, or ſlave, Chap.49.24. & 52.3-5.

ſhalt thou condemn] They ſhall not caſt thee, Pſal.109.6,7, 31. but thou ſhalt caſt them: thou ſhalt be cleered, Pſal.37.6. and they ſhall be convinced of falſhood, and condemned accordingly to ſuffer, Deut.25.1. & 19.17-19.

This is the heritage of the Servants of the Lord;] A ſolemn cloſe of all before related, concerning the ſtate of Gods people. The like whereunto, ſee, concerning their adverſaries, Chap.17.14. and the wicked in general, Job 18.21. & 20.29. and concerning both the one, and the other, Judg. 5.31.

the heritage of the ſervants of the Lord] The portion that God will vouchſafe to beſtow upon his ſervants, for their fidelity & loyalty ſhewed in his ſervice; and the priviledge, or benefit, that from thence ſhall accrue unto them. See Job 20.29. & 27.13. & 31.2. and it ſeems to allude to that of Solomon, concerning a wiſe, and diſcreet ſervant, that he ſhall ſhare in the heritage among the brethren, Prov.17.1. that which the Apoſtle alſo ſaith of the faithful Servant, that from God, he ſhall receive, as a reward of his faithful ſervice, the inheritance, that belongeth to a ſon and heir, Col.3.24. and God indeed makes all his ſervants, not ſons only, but heirs alſo, 2 Sam.7.14. Mat.6.1,4,9,26,32. Luk.12.32. Rom.8.14-17. Rev.21.7.

and their righteouſneſſe of me] Heb. from with me; which ſome expound, from before me, or, in my ſight: as it is ſaid of Zachary and Elizabeth, Luk.1.6. they were both juſt in Gods ſight; that is, ſincerely righteous; not in outward ſhew and ſemblance only; as thoſe, 2 Tim.3.5. but in inward diſpoſition of heart, and ſoul: where God only ſees, 1 Sam. 16. 7. as if the meaning were, in way of further deſcription of the ſervants of God before-mentioned, of whoſe uprightneſſe I am well aſſured. But, from with me, ſeems to be no more here, then ſimply from me; as Gen.4.1. where the former particle is deemed to be underſtood: and Gen. 19. 24. and Pſal. 24.5. where both forms are uſed; the latter particle being expreſſed in one part of the verſe, omitted in the other. Howbeit, the meaning is rather their righteouſneſs; that is, the reward of their righteouſneſs: as, my work, for, the reward of my work, Chap.49.4. So Pſal. 112.3,9. or, that beneficence, and bleſſing, which from my hand they ſhall receive: for ſo alſo, is the word righteouſneſſe, uſed: as the Apoſtle alſo ſeems to expound that of the Pſalmiſt, at leaſt, ſo uſeth the word himſelf, 2 Cor.9.9,10. So Pſal.24.5. forecited, he ſhall receive the bleſſing from the Lord; and righteouſneſſe from God his Saviour. See ver.14. or, if it be deemed to have a peculiar reſpect, to the priviledge in the laſt place, to wit, in the forepart of this verſe propounded; by righteouſneſſe, may be underſtood, Gods juſtification of them, and vindication of their righteouſneſſe, againſt all thoſe, that ſhall wrongfully attempt to appeach them, and impeach it, Pſal.37.6. & 106. 30,31. Chap.50.8,9. Rom.8.33. 2 Cor.5.21. See Chap. 45. 24,25. unto which place, if this be deemed parallel, it would rather be rendred, and their righteouſneſſe is from the Lord. But I take the former to be the genuine ſenſe of the word, in this place.

ſaith the Lord] As ver.10.

CHAP. LV.

Verſ.1. HO, every one that thirſteth, &c.] In this Chapter is contained, a free invitation of all ſorts of people, as well Gentiles, as Jews, to come in, unto Chriſt, and to yeeld themſelves to him, to be inſtructed, and ruled by him, for their own good, ver.1-5. together with a ſerious exhortation to repentance, and amendment of life, ver.6,7. and a gracious promiſe of reconciliation, and reſtitution thereupon, ver.8-13.

Ho] Of the various acception of the particle here uſed, ſee on Chap.1.4. & 10.5. & 18.1. here it is without queſtion, a note of compellation; and of invitation, and incitation withal: as alſo, Zach.2.10,11.

every one] Whether Jew, or Gentile, ver. 4, 5. Joel 2.32 Rom.10.12. though ſome reſtrain it to the former; becauſe ſome things, hereafter mentioned, ver.12,13. ſeem more ſpecially to concern them.

that thirſteth] That is in diſtreſs, and being ſenſible of his diſtreſſed condition, is deſirous of relief, that finding and feeling in himſelf a want of ſincere grace, & ſound comfort, is pained with the ſenſe thereof, and earneſtly deſires a ſupply: for all theſe things concur in bodily thirſt; a want of moiſture in the inward parts; a ſenſe of pain, and grievance, thence ariſing, and ſuch an earneſt deſire of liquor, to ſlake and relieve the ſame, as nothing can ſatisfie, but that alone, Pſal. 42. 1. Chap. 41. 17, 18. and a ſpiritual affection, proportionable hereunto, is required, in all thoſe, that are invited to partake in the mercies and favours of God, here offered, to be found, and had, in Chriſt. So Mat.5.6. & 11.28. Joh.7.37. Rev.21.6. & 22.17. and neither brutiſh worldlings therefore, that reſt fully ſatisfied with worldly contentments, and carnal delights, Pſal.17.14. nor Phariſaical juſticiaries, that are puffed up, with a fond and vain conceit of their own good parts, and perfections, while they ſo continue, can have any ſhare in the mercies here propounded, Luk.1.53. & 18.9-14. Rom. 10. 3. Rev.3.17,18. Of this ſpiritual thirſt, after God, and grace, and the enjoyment of his ordinances, and the comforts of his Spirit, ſee Pſal.42.1,2. & 63.1,2. & 84.2. Howbeit, under the name of thirſt, is hunger here alſo comprehended; that which appears by the mention of eating here, of bread, or food in general, ver.2. and both are expreſſed, Mat.5.6. as alſo, Pſal.107.5. See the like, chap.5.13. but thirſt is more frequently mentioned; partly, becauſe that is the more vehement, and intolerable, of the twain: and partly, becauſe thoſe means that quench thirſt, do in part, alſo, ſlake hunger; whereas, thoſe that allay hunger, are not wont to abate thirſt.

come] The word ſignifies indifferently, either go, as Gen. 42.33. or, come; as Hoſ.6.1. here it is rightly rendred in the latter notion; becauſe they are called to return to God, the Fountain of living water, whom before they had forſaken, Jer.2.13.

to the waters] That is, as the moſt, to the waters of ſaving grace, and ſpiritual comfort, Chap.12.3. Ezek.47.1,2. Joh.4.10,14. [illegible] 38. Rev.21.6. & 22. 17. But it ſeems to me, tha[illegible], here, is, as if he had ſaid, to the water ſide; as Judg[illegible] for it ſeemeth to be, not ſo much water, as other co[illegible]ities, (yet ſuch as ſupply the room of water, and in [illegible] eminent manner, relieve, and refreſh; do that, for which [illegible]er is deſired, and much more then it,) are thoſe precious things, that they are invited to partake in: and the water, or [illegible]er-ſide, the place whether they are willed to reſort, ther[illegible] furniſh themſelves with them: and I conceive it, to be [illegible]ſion to the manner of people dwelling in towns and citie[illegible]neer to ſome river, by which victuals, and other wa[illegible]nt to be brought to them; who, upon the arrival of ſh[illegible]ing there, with ſuch proviſions, are wont, after notice [illegible] given, to repair thither, for the ſtoring of themſel[illegible]uch neceſſary proviſions, as they ſtand in need of, an[illegible]re there to be had: it is like our Saviours invitation, to come unto him, with aſſurance of finding with him, and receiving from him, means of relief, and refreſhment, Mat.11.28. Joh.6.35,37. in which place, he ſheweth what manner of coming it is, that is required; not a bare corporal motion; but a ſpiritual acceſſe by faith, which is as well the foot of the ſoul, to bring us unto Chriſt, as the hand of the ſoul, to lay hold upon Chriſt, Cant.3.4. Mat.9.11,12. See ver.3.

and he that hath no money] Or, even, (as Chap. 40.30.) he that hath no money. Heb. ſilver: as Chap.43.24. that is, ſay ſome, that hath no merits; but merits none can any have. The meaning is, that is never ſo poor, that hath nothing in this world, of any worth, or valuable conſideration; implying, that Gods grace (which Simon the Sorcerer fondly ſuppoſed, might be bought with money, Act.8.20.) is given freely without regard had to the wealth, or poverty of the party, that deſireth to partake of it, Mat. 11. 5,25. 1 Cor. 1. 26-28. Jam.2.5. and without any matter of valuable conſideration required of any, in liew of it, Mat.10.8. Rom.3.24. Eph.2.8.

come] As before: and again in the next branch; and yet again, in the third verſe, ſo oft repeated, as to ſhew Gods forwardneſs to invite, and willingneſs to impart: ſo cloſely to tax mans natural backwardneſs to thoſe things, that moſt neerly and deeply concern his own good. See the like, Ezek. 18.30,31,32.

buy] The word here uſed, ſignifies in the firſt place, to break, Chap.14.5. & 30.14. and becauſe in buying, and ſelling, eſpecially by retail, the wares and commodities that are bought and ſold, are wont to be broken, if ſolid bodies of large bulk; or to be divided, and made out into parcels: hence the word is, in the ſecond place uſed, in one form, for to buy: as Gen.41.57. & 42.3. and ſo here; in another form, for to ſell, Gen.46.6. Amos 8.5,6. But here may be a queſtion moved, how they are called to buy, when no price is required; or, how the commodities here mentioned, are freely conferred, when they are ſaid to be bought? Hereunto it is commonly anſwered, that theſe things are ſaid to be baught; becauſe ſomething is to be done by thoſe, that deſire to partake of them; for it is required of them, that they come to the water, that they have recourſe to the place, where they are to be had; that they repair to him, from whom they are to be had, come unto me, ver.3. that they hearken to him, and be adviſed, and ruled by him, ver.2,3. and again, becauſe ſomething muſt be parted with, for the atchieving of them: for they muſt part with their corruptions, they muſt leave, and lay down their ſins, ver.7. yea, the caſe may ſo ſtand, that a man muſt be fain to part with all that ever he is poſſeſſed of, and his life it ſelf alſo, or he cannot become owner of the commodities here mentioned. See Mat.13.44-46. & 16.24,25. & 19.21. Luk. 14. 26,33. and yet notwithſtanding all this, the things offered, may be truly ſaid to be freely beſtowed; as a Princes almes may be ſaid to be freely given, albeit, it be required, that thoſe that deſire to ſhare in them, do repair to his Almoſyner, reſiding at his Court; or, as a Scholer is ſaid to have his learning freely given him, when no ſtipend is required for the teaching of him, albeit, that for the attaining of learning, he muſt frequent the School, and follow his book hard; or, as the Phyſitian may be ſaid freely to have cured his Patient, of whom he demandeth no fee, for his viſitation, and advice; although he require of him, to be ruled and ordered in all things by him, and to obſerve exactly what he preſcribeth. The rather here, notwithſtanding all that is required to be done, or to be endured, to be parted with, or obſerved: becauſe, 1. nothing is required, that is any matter of gain to God, or whereby any benefit can redound unto him: he receiveth nothing from us, that can add ought to him, Job 22.2,3. and 35.6,7. Pſal.16.2. 2. All that is required of any, is for the good, behoof, and benefit, of thoſe, of whom it is required, ver.2,3. Deut.5.29. & 6.24. & 10.13, & 30.16, 19,20. Prov. 9.12. 3. All that is required of them, is no more, then they were bound in duty to have done, albeit, no ſuch mercies, as are here typified, had been vouchſafed unto them, Luk.17.10. and a Kings pardon of a rebel, is not the leſs free, becauſe granted under condition of loyal carriage for the future. 4. All that is neceſſarily required, for them to part with, is nothing but that, that is the very bane of their ſouls, and will, at length, ſo prove, if it be not timely avoided: it is, as the Phyſitians requiring to have the malignant humour purged out, with ſome pill, or potion; or the Surgians, to have the dead, or proud fleſh eaten out, with ſome corroſive: And laſtly, whatſoever elſe may, upon occaſion, be parted with; beſides, that it is Gods own, either lent us only, or, at moſt, not ſo abſolutely given us, but that God retaineth ſtill a right to it, and intereſt in it, and may re-demand it, when he pleaſeth, 1 Chr.29.11,12,14,16. Job 1.21. it is all as nothing, of no worth, of no valuable conſideration, in compariſon of that which, parting with it, we gain, Rom.8.18. 2 Cor. 4. 17,18. Phil.3.7,8. not to add, that whatſoever it be, that is ſo parted with, is requited an hundred fold, ſome way, or other, Mar. 10. 29,30. All which Conſiderations laid together, it may eaſily be conceived how, in ſome ſenſe, theſe commodities may be ſaid to be bought; and yet nothing thereby derogated from the freeneſs of the gift. Howbeit, I conceive that the readieſt way of anſwer is, that the words of buying, and ſelling, are in Scripture oft uſed improperly, to ſell, for, to give, part with, or deliver: and ſo God is ſaid, ſometime, to have ſold his people, Deut.32.30. Judg.3.8.& 4.2. Pſal.44.12. ſometime, to have delivered, or given them up, Judg.2.14.& 6.1. Pſal. 106.41. into the hands of the Heathen, their enemies, the latter term expounding the former. See Chap.50.1. & 52.3. and in like manner, to buy, is uſed for, to get, gain, compaſſe, receive, or attain ought. So, buy truth, but ſell it not; buy wiſdome, and inſtruction, and underſtanding, Prov.23.23. that is, get wiſdome, get underſtanding: forget it not: get wiſdome, forſake her not; and with, or among, all thy getting, get underſtanding: as it is well rendred, Prov.4.5,6,7. Yet in another place, not amiſs, buy; becauſe oppoſed, to ſell; but taken improperly; buy, for, get: ſell, for, forſake, put away, or, forget. So our Saviour, to the Angel of the Laodicean Church: I adviſe thee to buy of me; that is, to procure from me: for Chriſt ſetteth not ought to ſale. Thus the plain meaning will be; get, provide you, furniſh your ſelves: the word of buying, being only uſed to this purpoſe; becauſe that is the ordinary, and moſt uſual way, whereby men, that want ſuch neceſſaries, are wont to ſupply themſelves. See Chap.1.3. yet here, as ſome ſuppoſe, alſo, to aſſure them, that they ſhould as readily have it, without payment of ought, as if they were able, and willing, to lay down the full price for it.

buy, and eat] That is, buy, or get, that which you may eat: furniſh your ſelves with food; as they did, by going into Egypt, Gen.41.57. & 42.5. buy, and eat, for, buy, that ye may eat: as, do this, and live, that is, that ye may live, Gen. 42.18. and, make haſte, and go, for, make haſte to be gone, Gen.45.9. and, Balak aroſe, and warred, for, aroſe to war; or, that he might war againſt Iſrael, Joſh.24.9. for, indeed he never durſt do it, nor did, Judg.11.25.

eat] Or, feed: for it comprehendeth both eating and drinking; as Gen. 31.46. Neh. 9. 21. and hath reference as well to bread, in the next verſe, as to milk, and wine, in this.

yea, come,] Or, come, I ſay. Heb. and come: ſo Chap. 44.15. & 49.6. of coming, ſee before: the ſame thing, for more vehemency, not doubled, but trebled, as Chap.51.9.& 52.11.

buy wine, and milk]. Of buying, before: wine, and milk, are here put, as two eminent, and principal kinds, and parts of nouriſhment, to comprehend, as whatſoever is neceſſary for the ſuſtentation, refreſhing, and cheering of the body; ſo typically, whatſoever is requiſite for the ſupport, relief, comfort, and delight of the ſoul, ver.2.

wine] Not water, (for it was to the water-ſide only that they were called to come, as well for the wine, as for the milk; nor was either to be found in the water, but at the water) but wine: not drink barely, but drink of more then ordinary excellency: drink reſerved for Feaſts. See Chap. 25. 6. ſuch drink, as may not allay thirſt only, but pleaſe and delight the palate, Cant.1.2.& 4.10.& 7.9. cheer and glad the heart, Judg. 9.13. Pſal.104.15. Zach.9.17. & 10.7. and make men forget their griefs, as drowned in it, Prov. 31. 6. in regard whereof it is, that Chriſts blood, whereby remiſſion of our ſins is procured, and our reconcilement to God purchaſed, the main ground of all true joy, and ſound comfort, Rom.5.25.& 5.1,2,10. Eph.1. 7. is reſembled by wine, Matth. 26. 28, 29. See alſo Prov. 9. 2.

milk:] As not water, but wine: ſo not water, but milk: ſuch as Jael gave Siſera, inſtead of water, as in a ſweltring heat, having fled on foot, the leſs hazardous, and more comfortable, Judg.4.19.& 5.25. milk, a food commended, not for wholeſomneſs, and battleing only, as appears in children that feed mainly, if not wholly on it, and thrive exceedingly with it; but for ſweetneſs alſo, and delight, Cant. 4. 11. it is put ſometime, for the weaker ſort of food that children are fed with, oppoſed to ſtrong meat, 1 Cor.3.2. Heb.5.12,13. but it is here uſed more largely to comprehend all ſuch kind of ſuſtenance, as affordeth plentiful nouriſhment; and not children only, but men alſo, are wont to feed on with delight, Gen.18.8.& 49. 12. where wine, and milk, are joyned together, as two principal, not ſtays only of life, but maintainers, where plenty is of them, of a cheerful life. So in a typicall notion, and a ſpiritual ſenſe, they are alſo found together, Cant.5.1.

without money.] Heb. ſilver, as before.

and without price.] Freely, without any valuable conſideration whatſoever; without any ſuch expence, as wicked wretches would ſeem willingly to tender unto God, therewith to purchaſe liberty for continuance in their ſin, Mic. 6. 6,7. So Chap.45.13. the word is rendred hire, Mic.3. 11. and our Engliſh word comes very neer to it.

V. 2. Wherefore do ye ſpend money for that which is not bread? and your labour for that which ſatisfieth not?] An affectionate expoſtulation, containing in it a gentle reproof, and compaſſionate complaint withall, of their folly, in being at great coſt, and taking of much pains, about the procuring of ſuch means, as were not able to relieve them, in their diſtreſſed condition, or to afford them ſuch contentment, as they deſired, and expected, from them, Chap.30.4-7.& 57.9,10. Hoſ.5.13.

ſpend] Heb. weigh; as Jer.32. 9, 10. becauſe payments of money anciently were, for the moſt part, by weight, Gen. 23.16.

money] Heb. ſilver: as ver.1.

for that which is no bread] Heb. for not bread; as, not wood, Chap.10.15. bread, for food, in general; as Neh.5,18. Chap.3. 1. for that which can no more feed you; then thoſe husks could the hungry prodigal, Luk.15.16.

your labour] weigh out your ſilver, and your labour; for, weigh, or lay out your money, and ſpend your labour: for labour cannot be weighed out, as ſilver, or moneys, may: ſo 1 Cor.3.2. I gave you to drink milk, and not ſolid meat, for, I gave you milk to drink, and fed you not with ſolid meat; and the word properly ſignifies, weariſome labour, Chap.57.10.

for that which ſatisfieth not] Or, for that which cannot ſatisfie; or, wherewith ye can not be ſatisfied. Heb. for not to be ſatiated; or, not unto ſatiety (for it may be either a noun, or a verb) as Hag.1.6. as, not to profit, Chap.30.5.& 44.10. for, that cannot profit.

hearken diligently unto me] Heb. hearing hear; as Chap. 6. 9. but there, in a notion of bare hearing; when, as we uſe to ſay, one giveth us the hearing, but regardeth not what we ſay; but here rather, hearkning hearken; implying both attention to what is ſaid, and obedience to what is thereby required. So Exod.15.26. & 19. 5. Deut.11.13. & 15.5. Jer.17.24. Zach. 6. 15.

and eat ye that which is good;] Or, and ye ſhall eat that which is good; as Chap.1.19. Heb. eat good: eat, for, ye ſhall eat; as Gen.45.18. Chap. 36. 16. good; that which is both wholeſome, and toothſome, alſo, as we uſe to ſay; comfortable, pleaſant, and [illegible]ful: for the Hebrew word comprehendeth as well th[illegible] as the other, Gen.3.6. Pſal.34.8. Prov.13. 2. & 24.13. Cant.4.10.

and let your ſoul delight it ſelf in fatneſs.] Or, and delight your ſelves with that which is fat: your ſoul, for, your ſelves; as Jer.6.16. and, your heart, for, your ſelves, Pſal. 22.26. let it delight it ſelf; Heb. it ſhall delight it ſelf: and ſo it would be rendred; ye ſhall be both abundantly and daintily fed, even as ye your ſelves would deſire, Pſal.37.3,4. Job 36.11.

in fatneſs] Or, with fatneſs: fatneſs, for that which is fat: fat meat, that is uſually more pleaſing to the taſte, then that that is lean; and is the choiſer ſort of fleſh, Neh.8.10. So Pſal. 36. 8. & 63. 5. See Chap. 25.6.

V. 3. Encline your ear,] So Pſal.45.10. & 78.1. A metaphorical ſpeech, borrowed from thoſe, that either bow down, or turn the head to the one ſide, to bring the better ear; if the one be quicker of hearing then the other, to liſten to him, that ſpeaketh unto them; and is uſed here, in the ſame notion with that of hearkning, before, ver.2.

and come unto me:] As before, ver.1.

hear] Obey; as 1 Sam.16.22,23. the principal matter that God requires of them, Jer.7.22,23.

and your ſoul ſhall live:] That is, ye ſhall live; as, let my ſoul live, (that is, let me live) that I may praiſe thee, Pſal. 119. 175. See before, on ver. 2. Ye ſhall not miſcarry and periſh, whether temporally, or ſpiritually, for want of ſuch ſupplies, and ſupports, as, in vain, ye ſeek for elſe-where, but ſhall aſſuredly, and abundantly, be furniſhed with either from me, Pſal.37.3,4. Chap.33.16.

and I will make an everlaſting covenant with you,] I will enter into a new gracious covenant with you, that ſhall never be diſanulled; Chap.54.10. Heb. I will cut out unto them, (a metaphor taken from that ſolemn right of cutting, or cleaving the body of ſome beaſt aſunder, at the making of ſuch covenants, Gen.15.9,10,17,18. Jer.34.8,18. or from the ſtrict and exact cutting out of articles, agreed upon, for mutual performance, by the Covenanters on either ſide: that which a word of the like notion of this, importeth. See on Chap. 10. 22, 23.) a covenant of perpetuity, or eternity; as Gen. 9. 16. Chap.24.5. See the ſame promiſe, Chap.61.8.

even, the ſure mercies of David.] Or, as ſome would have the words rendred; the ſure mercies of David will I beſtow on you, or, I will give you the ſure mercies of David; becauſe the Apoſtle ſo citeth the place, Act. 13.34. but it is not needfull to thruſt into the text, whatſoever the Apoſtles in citing of a paſſage, or ſome ſmall parcel of a paſſage, ſhall, for the fuller explication, or fitter application of it, to their preſent purpoſe, add, or annex thereunto. Otherwiſe, it would be neceſſary to inſert ſome things, into the text, in other places likewiſe; as Chap.61.1. from Luk.4.18. and elſe-where; yea, and to alter a word in the text here; becauſe inſtead of mercies here, we have, after the Greek verſion, holy things, there. I ſhould rather chooſe to render the words, according to the ſure mercies of David; for that note of ſimilitude, or correſpondency, is very frequently omitted. See on ver.8. & Chap. 54.9.

the ſure] Or, firm; as Chap.22.23. & 33.16. or, faithfull; as Neh. 13.13. Chap.8.2. and, as the Apoſtle, from the Greek, the word may well ſignifie either.

mercies of David] Thoſe that God had ſometime promiſed unto David, and, by covenant, ſolemnly engaged himſelf, to perform, and obſerve, for ever, 2 Sam.7.13-17. Pſal.89.35, 37,40. & 132. 11, 12. and there want not, that ſuppoſe the beginning of that 89. Pſalm, to be here alluded unto, the Pſalm it ſelf, being commonly called, and known among the Jewiſh people, by that name, taken from the firſt word of it, (as divers books of Scripture are in like manner entituled with them) The mercies of David, as deemed the Pen-man of that holy Hymn. But this ſeems to be but a groundleſs conjecture: for neither doth the Pſalm begin with thoſe words, The mercies of David; but, The mercies of the Lord: nor is Davids name prefixed before it: nor doth it appear that David was the Compoſer of it; but Ethan, rather, whoſe name it holdeth forth in its front. And howſoever it be undoubtedly true, that this paſſage hath, queſtionleſs, reſpect to the ſubject matter, and ſubſtance of that Pſalm [illegible] ea[illegible] not improbable, that it may have ſome glance at the very words and terms alſo, wherein the ſame is there de[illegible], 28, 29,33-37. yet becauſe I find the preciſe word[illegible] not there, but elſe-where, to wit, in the cl[illegible]ſe of Solomons ſolemn ſupplication, 2 Chron.6.42. concluded with theſe words, Remember the mercies of David thy Servant. I ſuppoſe this form rather to have reference thereunto. Now ac[illegible] is expoſition, moſt commonly received, by the mercies of David, ſhould be meant, mercies prom[illegible] unto D[illegible] and covenanted with him; and that Solomon ſ[illegible] to have meant thereby; which ſome conceive to im[illegible] covenant, which God promiſeth to make this people upon their return to him, ſhould be as firm, and as ſure, as th[illegible] which he had plighted with David concerning the perpet[illegible] ſucceſſion of his ſeed. Others, that the covenant ſho[illegible]e ſame in ſubſtance, with that, which God, at firſt, mad[illegible]raham, to be the God of him, and his ſeed, and that in [illegible]ll the Nations of the World ſhould be bleſſed, Gen. [illegible] 18. and afterward again, renewed, and ratifie[illegible] for that took in, and comprehended together with [illegible]is iſſue alone, that was to reign after him, but the body a[illegible] of Gods people, that were to be ruled, and reigned over, by him, and them. See Jer.31.36,37. & 33. 24-26. and David the rather may [illegible] be mentioned; becauſe by the Ba[illegible]ian captivity, the ſucceſſion of Davids line, in the royalty o[illegible] that State, might ſeem to be wholly cut off, without hope of riſing, and recovery again. The words of the text may well bear either: and this latter, moſt go with. Howbeit, by David, divers, both Jewiſh, and Chriſtian Commenters, underſtand the Meſſias, the ſeed promiſed to Abraham, and David; and that was to be of the ſeed of David, Act.13.23. Rom.1.3. Now, as of Chriſt it is ſaid in the Goſpel, that God would give him, the Throne of his Father David; and he ſhould reign over the houſe of Jacob for ever: ſo is he frequently mentioned, and ſtyled by the name of David, in the writings of the Prophets, Ezek.34. 23,34. & 37.24,25. Hoſ.3.5. And this the rather I encline unto; albeit, Solomon ſpake it in the other ſenſe; becauſe, not of David himſelf, but of the Meſſias, a ſecond David, (as John Baptiſt, another Elias, Matth. 11. 14.) the very next words, ver. 4. (which of neceſſity muſt have relation to this clauſe) are by all ſound Interpreters underſtood. As for that learned man, that would turn off, both this, and other pregnant Prophecies of the Meſſias, from Chriſt to Jeremy, he is herein not worth the regard: the meaning then is, the mercies of the Meſſias, the David, not paſt, but to come: the mercies before promiſed, and to be exhibited in, and by him; in whom the covenant is made with Gods people, Chap.49.8. in whom all Gods promiſes are yea, and amen, 2 Cor. 1. 20. but whether way we take it, the Apoſtle to good purpoſe alledgeth it, Act. 13. 34. for neither had Gods gracious promiſes, made to that David, nor concerning this David, taken effect, and been fulfilled, had not Chriſt been raiſed up again from the dead.

V. 4. Behold,] Thus are prophecies, and promiſes, concerning the Meſſias very commonly uſhiered in. See Chap. 7. 14. and 42. 1. and 52. 13. Jer. 23. 5. and 33. 15. Zach. 6. 12.

I have given him for a witneſs to the people;] The words of God the Father, concerning the Meſſias; of whom the Jewiſh Doctors themſelves expound this place.

given] That is, appointed, or ordained; as Jer.1.5. Ezek.3. 17. as Chriſt is ſaid to be conſecrated by God, Heb.5.9. howbeit, the term of giving, may withall have a glance at the freeneſs of Gods mercy, in the beſtowing of Chriſt on us, Chap. 9.6. Joh.3.16.

for a witneſs;] That is, a witneſs of the truth of Gods promiſes, Chap.43.10. 2 Cor.1.20. Heb.7.22. and, (that which the Jewiſh Commenters alſo hold out to us) a teacher and teſtifier of his Will, Joh.7.16,17. & 12.49,50. & 17.6. & 18. 37. Hence, he is called, Amen, the true and faithfull witneſs, Rev.3.14.

to the people] Not to Iſrael alone. So Chap.49.6. I have given thee for a light to the Gentiles.

a leader, and commander to the people.] A leader, as the word is rendred, 2 Chron.32.21. or, a Ruler, as 1 Chron.9.20. & 11. 2. or, a Prince, as Ezek. 28. 2. and ſo is Chriſt termed in the New Teſtament, a leader, Heb.2.10. & 12.2. a ruler, Matth.2.6. from Mic.5.2. a Prince, Rev.1.5.

commander] One, whoſe commands, under pain of eternal deſtruction, each one ſtandeth bound in all things to obey, Act.3.22,23. 2 Theſſ.1.8. Heb.5.9.

V. 5. Behold,] as above, ver.4.

thou ſhalt call a nation, that thou knoweſt not;] Or, kneweſt not, as Pſal.18.43. whom thou didſt not own, or regard, or look after, or take notice of, in times paſt, Act.14.16. & 17.30. So is the word of knowing, oft taken, Pſal.1.6. Prov. 12. 10. Matth. 7.23.

and nations that knew not thee, ſhall run unto thee,] The Gentiles that never heard of thee, nor were acquainted with thee, nor had any notice of thee before, Rom.15.20. & 16. 25, 26. Eph.2.11,12. & 3.5,6. See Chap.65.1. a defect of the relative, as Chap.54.1.

run unto thee,] They ſhall with all ſpeed, and readineſs, repair unto thee, aſſoon as they hear of thee, by the miniſtery of the Goſpel, Pſal.18.44. this running intimates, as the alacrity of the perſons called; ſo the efficacy of Chriſts call, Pſal.119.32. Cant.1.4.

becauſe of the Lord thy God, and for the Holy one of Iſrael; for he hath glorified thee.] Or, for he will glorifie thee; or, becauſe he hath glorified thee; or, when he ſhall have glorified thee; as Chap. 53. 10. after thy former ſtate of humiliation, and thy paſſion over-paſt, that the Lord ſhall have raiſed thee up from the dead, taken thee up into the higheſt heavens, and placed thee at his right hand, Pſal.110.1,3. Chap.2.2. Joh.12.32. Act.2.33,41. & 13.48. then ſhall the Lord, the Holy one of Iſrael, be the God of the whole earth, Chap.54.5. See Chap.60.9. They narrow the text over-much, that would reſtrain it, to the repairing of forrein Nations, to worſhip God in his Temple at Jeruſalem, upon the report of ſuch remarkable works of deliverance, as God ſhould do for the Jewiſh people, Pſal. 68. 28, 29.

V. 6. Seek ye the Lord, while he may be found;] An exhortation of the Prophet, directed, as Some would have it, to the Gentiles, not yet converted, calling upon them to come in, and make their peace, while they may, while Gods gracious offers, and tenders of grace,yet continue,2 Cor.6.1.as others to the Jews,now under heavy preſſures, for their defections, and revolts,Chap.2.5. I conceive, by what followeth, that it is not to be reſtrained unto either; but extendeth unto both.

Seek ye the Lord,] As implying, that they had left him, and eſtranged themſelves from him; yea, they had left him, and were fallen out of favour with him,by their ſins; and it ſtood them upon therefore, if they deſired their own ſafety and welfare,to ſeek after him,and ſeek to him,to uſe all the means that might be, to regain and recover his favour again: the word ſignifieth,in the firſt place, to enquire, to make enquiry after ſomewhat that we are ignorant of,1 King.1.2.2 King.22. 13. Chap.8.19.and ſo God muſt be enquired after by us, ere we can come to know,or be acquainted with him, Pſal.14.2. & 24.6.& 119.10.Act.15.17.& 17.27. but that is not the ſeeking here principally intended: in the ſecond place, it ſignifies, to make requeſt for grace and favour, to ſome perſon offended,to ſue to them,for reconcilement again. So Pſal. 34. 4.& 77.2. & 78.34. and ſo here: the next branch ſheweth it.

while he may be found;] So Pſal. 32. 6. in a time of acceptance, Chap.49. 8. while he offereth himſelf unto you in the means of grace,in the miniſtery of his Word,Pſal.27.8. & 95. 7,8.2 Cor.5.20.& 6.1,2. Eph.2. 17. while he is neer yet in mercy, and the means and offers of mercy; not in judgment, and execution of wrath and vengeance, Mal.3.5.

V.7. Let the wicked forſake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts;] Prayer and ſupplication,that it may prevail for grace and favour with God, muſt be backed, and ſeconded, with ſincere repentance, teſtified by ſerious reformation, and amendment, both of heart and life, Prov.28.13. Dan. 4.27. Mat. 3. 8. his way] His own way; wherein he had gone aſtray from God and his ways,Chap.53.6. as thine own ways; oppoſed to Gods ways,Chap.58.13. or,his evil way, his wicked way; as Jer.18.11.& 25.5.& 26.3. and ſo,his thoughts; that is,his own, or his unrighteous thoughts: thoughts of iniquity; as Prov.6. 18.Chap.59.6. and if we take it the latter way, there is a defect of the adjunct; but to be ſupplyed from the quality of the perſon,whoſe way,and thoughts, they are.

way] For courſe of life and converſation; as Pſal.1.6.& 119.1. Jer.7.3.

the unrighteous man] Heb. man of iniquity, or wrong, or vexation rather. See Chap.10.1. So Prov. 6.12. by the former ſome would have underſtood the profane and ungodly; by this latter,the injurious, or unjuſt, in their dealings with men: but the terms ſeem to be promiſcuouſly uſed; and our Prophets manner is,in divers terms,for variety,and elegancy, to expreſs the ſame thing.

his thoughts] Or, imaginations, or devices, or projects, or contrivances, or purpoſes; (for the word is large, Gen. 6.5. Prov.15.22. & 19.21. Ezek.38.11.) ſuch as above. See chap. 59.7. and ſuch thoughts, and purpoſes, as well as wayes,and works, are to be purged out, and repented of, Jer.4.14. Zach. 8.17. Act.8.23. Rom.2.15,16.

and to our God] Whoſe nature and diſpoſition,in this kind, we well know, having had good proof, and large experience thereof, Exod.34.6. Num.14.18. Pſal.86.5. & 103.8. Jon. 4.2.

for he will abundantly pardon] Heb. he will multiply to pardon: as, multiply to waſh, Pſal. 51. 2. for, waſh throughly, over and over: and, multiply to tranſgreſſe, Amos 4. 4. for, multiply tranſgreſſions. Of Gods proneneſſe to pardon,and his frequent, abundant, and plentiful pardoning, ſee Numb 14.19,20. Pſal.32.5. & 78.34-40. & 103.8-13. Jer.3.1-12 Mic. 7. 18, 19. and a lively reſemblance of it, Luk. 15 20--24.

V. 8. For my thoughts are not your thoughts; neither are your wayes my wayes——ſaith the Lord] Theſe words are by divers Interpreters diverſly referred, and diverſly reſolved. Some refer them to the requiry of reformation, both in their thoughts and wayes; as rendring a reaſon why theſe are to be reformed, if they deſire to be reconciled to God; to wit, becauſe there is a great diſtance between Gods wayes,& theirs; his thoughts, and theirs: his thoughts,and wayes, being all holy and heavenly; theirs, wicked, and earthly; ſet wholly upon the things here below: and ſuch, therefore, as muſt both be reformed, and raiſed up,if they would have any either reconcilement to him, or entercourſe with him, Mat.5.8. Col. 3.1-5. Heb.12.14. Others, refer them to the motive annexed to the requiry, containing a promiſe of finding favour, and mercy with God; and giving aſſurance of having the ſame, upon their return to him, made good: And of thoſe that go this way, ſome expound it of Gods proneneſs to pardon,and forwardneſſe to receive into full favour again: that Gods diſpoſition, & his dealings are herein much unlike unto mens; men are commonly of unmerciful, and revengeful minds; and where they have been much wronged,are with much difficulty drawn to admit any motion of reconcilement, on any reaſonable terms; ſeldome ſo freely, or fully reconciled,but that ſome inward grudge ſticketh ſtill in their ſtomacks, ſome remembrance of the wrong done them, ſtayeth ſtill in their minds: yea, that many times,though from the face,and teeth outwardly, they make ſhew of reconcilement, and profeſs to be ſatisfied; yet they nouriſh hatred, and malice inwardly in the heart; and do but wait, and watch, for an opportunity to do the delinquent ſome ſhrewd turn, or other, even to miſchief him, if they may. See 2 Sam.3.27,30.& 13.20,22,26, 28.& 20.9,10. Pſal.55.21. Jer.41.1,2. Dan.11.27. But with God it is not ſo, he is of a clean contrary diſpoſition, he is of tender bowels, ſlow to wrath, loath to take vengeance, Exod. 34.6. Chap.1.24. Lam.3.33. Ezek.18.31,32.& 33.11. ready to remit the greateſt wrongs, ſuch as no man almoſt would, or could endure to put up, Jer.3.1. and to receive the wrongdoers into as great grace and favour again, as ever not retaining the leaſt memory of ought, formerly done, no more then as if the ſame never had been, either done by them, or known to him, Chap.1.10,15,18. & 43.25. Jer.31.34. Zach. 10.6. Others,again, expound it of Gods conſtancy and immutability in his purpoſes and propoſals: Men are mutable and variable; they promiſe much, and perform little; what accord, and agreement they are brought unto one day, they repent many times, the ſame day, and the next day revoke: ſuch they are,both in their carriage towards God,and in their courſes and dealings one with another, Pſal.78.34,41,57.Jer. 34.10,11,15,16. But it is not ſo with God; he is a moſt true and faithful God; there is no mutability,or ſhadow of change with him: his promiſes are not ſo free, and large, but his performances are as ſure, and as full, Num.23.19. Joſh.23. 14. 1 Sam.15.29. 1 King.8.23. Mat.5.18. Mar.13.31. Rom. 11.29. 1 Cor.1.8,9. 2 Cor.1.19,20. Phil.1.6. 1 Theſſ.5.24. 2 Tim.2.13. Tit.1.1. Jam.1.17. 1 Joh.1.9. Rev.15.3. and this ſuiteth well with that which followeth, ver. 10,11. But this,and the former, may well ſtand together, as being both included,and intended in the diſparity,propounded between God and Man; and adding much ſtrength to the motives before-mentioned,to perſwade people to come readily in unto God.

mine not yours,——neither yours mine] For, as, or, like yours; and,as,or,like mine; a defect of the note of ſimilitude. See the like,ver.3.

V. 9. For as the heavens are higher then the earth; ſo are my wayes higher then your ways;and my thoughts then your thoughts.] There is as vaſt a difference, between my diſpoſition, and dealings,and yours; as there is diſtance between heaven and earth: my diſpoſition and dealings,both for mercy and goodneſs,and for firmneſs and faithfulneſs, are as far above yours, as the very higheſt heavens are above the very center of the earth: yea,indeed far higher; for the one is, though unmeaſurable,yet,finite; whereas the other, becauſe infinite, is for greatneſs,and amplitude,and immenſity,inconceiveable. So Pſal.103.11,12.Jer. 31.37. and God is as far above man, in mercy and goodneſs,in truth and faithfulneſs,as in immenſity of height and greatneſs,Pſal.36.5,6.& 57.10, 11.& 108.4. & 119.89,90.& 145.3,9. and there may well be ſome emphaſis in theſe words, your ways, and your thoughts; as if he had ſaid, yours,even the very beſt of you,that either have,or would ſeem to have,ſome bowels of compaſſion, ſome tender-heartedneſs,ſome equanimity,ingenuity, and readineſs, to remit a wrong; or ſome firmneſs, or faithfulneſs, in making good what ye promiſe. See the like,Matth.7. 9-11.Luk.11.5,12.

For as] Or,But as. So the particle is rendred, Chap.30. 16. & 49.25. and may well be here: They are not as yours; but far higher then they.the note of ſimilitude is not expreſſed in the text; but is to be ſupplyed, and is in the other particle very frequently included. So Chap.54.9. & 62.5.

are higher then the earth] Heb.are high from,or,in regard of the earth. So 1 Sam.10.24.Job 11.8,9.& 35.5. and the like in the next branch.

V. 10. For as the rain cometh down, and the ſnow from heaven,and returneth not thither, but watereth the earth, and maketh it bring forth, and bud;] As theſe inferiour creatures, through my bleſſing accompanying them, do not fail of their effect, but attain their intended end, in cauſing the earth to fructifie,for the benefit and behoof of mankind, when to that purpoſe I am pleaſed to employ them, Job 37. 6, 11-13. ſo ſhall the gracious promiſes of mercy, and of delivery, that I make unto you, not fail, or be fruſtrate, but ſhall certainly take place,and be aſſuredly effected,Chap.14.24-27.

from heaven] From above; for all above us,goeth under the name of heaven,Gen.1.1,6-9,14,17,20.from the clouds, that are as Gods chambers, Pſal. 104. 13. or, ſtore-houſes, Job 38. 22.

returneth not thither; but watereth the earth,] Or, till it have watered. Heb. but if it have watered; or,unleſſe it have watered; as Gen.32.26. I will not let thee go, but if thou bleſſe me, or,unleſſe thou bleſſe me; that is,untill thou have bleſſed me: neither ſnow, nor rain return, untill they have done the work that God ſendeth them about; who by them is ſaid, to water the earth,Pſal.65.9,10.& 104.13.& 147. 8. not that they then go up again,(though as the rivers are ſaid to return again to the ſea,whence they had their original,Eccl.1.7.ſo the moyſture that cometh from above, being licked up by the wind, and exhaled by the Sun, doth, in proceſs of time, aſcend up oft in vapors again, Pſal.135.7. Jer.10.13.) but the meaning is,that it never faileth to effect that, for which God ſends it, whether it then go up again,or no: for the term uſed in theſe forms oft-times implies no more. See Gen.28.15. Mat.1.25. See the like form of ſpeech, 1 Sam.1.22. Chap.37.29,34.Jer. 23.20.& 50.9.

maketh it bring forth,and bud] Heb. maketh it child; as we ſometime ſpeak: for the term is properly uſed of childing women; applyed to Sion, Chap. 66.8. and it is indeed uſed, not of men and women only,begetting and breeding; but of other creatures alſo that bring forth young: of the earth, or ground,as here,more both improperly,and unuſually: for as for that paſſage in the place cited,where it is ſaid, ſhall a land be brought forth in one day: by land, is meant, not the ground, but a people.

and bud] Heb. and maketh it bud, or ſprout up, Job 38.27. Pſal. 104. 14. & 147.8. the word is rendred, ſometime, to grow,Gen.2.5,9. ſometime,to ſpring up,Chap.44.4.Job.5.6.the text may well be read,till it have watered the earth,cauſed it(to wit, the earth) to bring forth, and made it ſprout up: made the earth to ſpring up; that is, made graſs, and corn,and plants to ſpring, or ſprout out from the earth; as it is, Gen.2.9. that it may give ſeed to the ſower, and bread to the eater:] Unto bread-corn,eſpecially,hath this paſſage reſpect, becauſe of greateſt moment for the ſupport of mans life, Chap. 3. 1. ver. 2. and becauſe there is a two-fold neceſſary uſe of ſuch grain,for food, and for ſeed; the Prophet pointeth at either. See Gen.47.17,19.Heb. and gives, or hath given: but the copulative is oft ſo uſed,and ſo rendred, Chap. 53. 2. Mal. 1.9. Howbeit,this is not to be referred to the earth; but to the rain, or ſnow; as by the gender of the terms uſed in the original, appeareth: they give; becauſe they cauſe the earth to give, what without them,it could not: For when the heaven is as braſs, the earth is as iron, Deut.28.23. and God himſelf, by them, moiſtening the ground,Pſal.104.23,24.unto whom the Apoſtle therefore applies this paſſage,2 Cor.9.10.

V. 11. So ſhall the word be that goeth out of my mouth: it ſhall not return unto me void; but it ſhall accompliſh that which I pleaſe,and it ſhall proſper in the thing,whereunto I ſent it.] So Ezek.12.25.

return void] As Embaſſadors, or Meſſengers, failing of that they were ſent about; or miſſing that they went for, Gen.32.3,6. 2 King.18.14,17,37. Chap. 30. 4,5.& 33.7. Jer. 14. 3.

V. 12. For ye ſhall go out with joy, and be led forth with peace:] From Babylon the place of your captivity; a type of mans ſpiritual thraldome under ſin and Satan; as Chap. 52. 11.

with joy] Chap.35.10.& 51.11.

led forth] Or,led along: So the word rather importeth,Pſal. 45.14,15. where it is uſed of conveying, and conducting, in State: and it ſeems to have relation to the conduct of Gods people,by the pillar of cloud from Egypt to Canaan, Exod. 13.21,22.

with peace] Or, in peace; that is, quietly and peaceably. See Chap.52.12.Exod.11.7.or,in ſafety (ſo is the word, peace, oft uſed. See Chap.54.13.) ſafely; under Gods protection, Chap.52.12.& 58.8.Exod.14.19,20. Pſal.78.53.

the mountains, and the hills ſhall break forth before you into ſinging,] So great ſhall your joy be, and the expreſſions of it, by ſinging and ſhouting,ſo loud and ſo plentiful,that the very ſenſleſs creatures ſhall ſeem to be ſenſible of it, and affected with it,when the mountains and hils,on every ſide ſounding therewith,return ecchoes of it, as if they rejoyced joyntly with you, and praiſed God together with you, for it. For thereunto do theſe, and the like forms ſeem to allude, Pſal. 98.7,8.Chap.35.1.& 44.23. & 49. 13.

and all the trees of the foreſt ſhall clap their hands] Heb. applaud with the hand; as Ezek.25.6. or, with the palm of the hand; as the word properly ſignifieth, uſed both here, and Pſal. 96. 12. where the ſame geſture is attributed to the flouds: the trees of the foreſt being gently ſhaken with the wind that ye ſhall have to refreſh you by the way, ſhall by making a pleaſant ——— noiſe,and entertwining their twigs and branches,as their hands and arms,one with another,ſeem to applaud you, and your joy, as you go. See Pſal. 76. 11,12.

V. 13. Inſtead of the thorn ſhall come up the fir-tree; and inſtead of the bryar ſhall come up the myrtle-tree:] That this paſſage hath, in the firſt place,a reference to the Jews return from the Babylonian captivity, as well as thoſe, ver.12.to me ſeemeth undeniable, and the beſt Interpreters acknowledge it. Some underſtand it, of the accommodation of them in their way homeward, when they were to paſs thorow waſte Wilderneſſes: and ſo it ſhould be the ſame with that, Chap. 41.19. Others, rather conceive it meant of their land and country,that they were to return unto. For whereas aſſurance was given them, of a quiet diſmiſſion from the place of their captivity, and a ſafe conduct unto their own country again, ver. 12. their minds might be troubled, when they began to think,what there would be to entertain them with at their arrival there;conſidering that they ſhould finde their land,moſt of it having lien waſte, and enjoyed,not a ſeventh yeers,but a ſeventy yeers,ſabbath, Lev.26.34,35,43. over-grown with buſhes,and thorns,and bryers,and brambles,Chap.7.24. and the Prophet therefore,from God,telleth them, that inſtead of ſuch traſh,as the face of their land was then over-ſpread with, it ſhould, upon their return, be furniſhed with ſuch plants and trees,as ſhould be,not uſeful only, but beautiful,and delightful alſo: and ſo the paſſage is parallel to that,Chap.4.2. and that Chap.35.1,2. So the meaning is, that the face and ſtate,of their Land and State, ſhould be ſtrangely altered for better. See the like, in another notion, Chap.60.17. Now this is commonly expounded of, and applyed unto, that gracious and bleſſed change,that ſhould be wrought upon, and appear in,thoſe perſons and people, that ſhould,by the miniſtery of the Word, be converted unto God; being now ſo ſtrangely altered, and changed, 2 Cor.5.17. that as they are elſe-where ſaid, to be thereby transformed, out of ſerpents, and wild-beaſts,into mild and tame creatures,Chap.11.6-8. ſo here,out of ſuch thorny, and prickly ſhrubs and buſhes, as wicked men for their harmfull, and miſchievous minds and courſes, are in Scripture commonly compared unto, 2 Sam. 23.6.Mic.7.4. into ſuch plants and trees, as are both pleaſant and uſeful,Chap.61.3. or,as others,that thoſe vices and corruptions, that their hearts and mindes were formerly overgrown with,as with brambles and bryers, Heb. 6.8. ſhould be ſtubbed up,and rooted out, Jer. 4. 4. and the graces of Gods Spirit there implanted in the room of them. But the ſoundeſt, and moſt judicious Interpreters, deem it over-curious to deſcend unto, and reſtrain the paſſage to theſe particulars: they conceive the flouriſhing eſtate of the Church of God, in general, hereby to be intimated, as abounding in ſpirituall graces and comforts;thoſe at ſome times alſo are accompanied and dignified with remarkable deliverances, proſperous ſucceſſes,countenance of Potentates, peace, plenty, and the like temporal bleſſings,Act.9.31.

thorn] See of this,Chap.7.19.

brier] The word ſirpad, here uſed, is no where elſe found; the Jewiſh Criticks leave us here in the briers; one while telling us,it is a kind of thorn; another while, that it is a kind of baſe ſhrub; and no more: The ancient Greek rendreth it, coniza; an hearb deſcribed by Dioſcorides,l.3.c.127.& Pliny, l.21. c. 10. and is ſuppoſed by ſome, to be a kind of Mullen; the old Latine,a Nettle. Some of our Criticks would have it ſignifie not any ſhrub,or herb,one,or other, but a thornyground; a place over grown with thorns, as compounded of ſir, that ſignifies a thorn; and the verb rapad, or raphad, that ſignifies, to ſtrew, or pave, (whereof ſee on Chap. 54.11.) but the oppoſition of plant to plant, here; not of ground to ground, as Chap. 35. 2. ſheweth it rather to denote ſome particular buſh or ſhrub: and the name of a thorn found in it, ſeems to imply one of a thorny kind: To which purpoſe, ſome late Interpreters, conceiving the word rather to be made up of ſir, a thorn; and pid, that ſignifies harm, or miſchief, Job 31.29. Prov.24.22. as you would ſay, an harmfull, or miſchievous thorn; do render it, paliurus, a ſhrub; of note, for ſharp and thorny prickles: Of which, Dioſcorides, l.1.c.106. and Virgil, ecloge, 5. our verſion gives it a brier; but another word, is by that term elſe-where uſually rendred, Chap.5.6.& 7.23 25. Mic.7.4.

and it ſhall be to the Lord for a name,] Or, as ſome render it; and this ſhall be to the Lord for a name. This deliverance of his People, and reſtitution of his Church, and the ſtate thereof, ſhall be a means of bringing much glory to God, Chap.44.11. & 60.21. & 61.3. for they ſeem to ſwerve from the genuine ſenſe of the words, that would have it underſtood of the acknowledgment of God, for their Soveraign Lord, by bearing his name, as children do of their parents, ſervants of their maſters, wives of their husbands, Gen.48.16. Chap.4.1.& 63.19. name, for fame, renown, and honour, Gen. 11.4. Num.16.2. Chap.63.12. See Chap.56,5.

for an everlaſting ſign,] An everlaſting monument, and memorial of Gods gracious goodneſs to his people. Heb. a ſign of perpetuity, or eternity; that is, a ſign to endure for ever; as Exod.31.17. as, a name of eternity, for, an everlaſting name, chap. 63. 12. That which ſome ſuppoſe to have an eye unto ſuch ſtones, or pillars, as men uſe to erect for boundaries, or landmarks, with their names thereon engraven, in lands eſpecially, either newly purchaſed, or recovered from ſome adverſary that had before held, and with-held them. But I ſhould rather conceive it to allude to ſuch tropheys, as are wont to be erected, in memory of ſome great victory, or extraordinary atchievement; ſuch as that monument erected by Moſes, upon the diſcomfiture of Ameleck, and Gods ſpeech thereupon, with thoſe words (as ſome think) engraven on it, Jehovah niſſi, Exod.17.15,16. for what Popiſh Writers here prate of the ſign of the croſs, is ridiculous.

that ſhall never be cut off.] Or, that it may never be cut off; that is, applyed to the memorial, and the matter thereby to be remembred, that ſhall never be forgotten, Jer.50.5. or that it may never be forgotten, but abide ſtill in mens mindes and mouths. See Jer. 7. 28. But the text may as well be rendred, that it ſhall not be cut off: and ſo relating to that which is by the ſign obſigned, the meaning will be, that this act of God, in delivering and reſtoring his Church, ſhall be, as an everlaſting honour to God; ſo for a ſign to his Church, that it ſhall never be forſaken by God, no more then that act of his forgotten by his people: It ſhall ſtand firm and faſt for ever, under Gods powerful ſupport and protection, never to be cut off, or caſt off, again, Chap.48.19.& 54.9,10. Jer.31.31-37. & 32.40.& 33.25,26. a defect either of the pronoun relative; as ver.5. or of the finitive particle; as Chap.41.7.

CHAP. LVI.

Verſ. 1. T*Hus ſaith the Lord,*] This whole Chapter, (the four laſt verſes onely excepted) ſeemeth to belong to the foregoing Sermon, and to be the concluſion of it: wherein God admoniſheth his people to do that, whereby they may obtain a part in the favours and mercies beforementioned, Chap. 55. and retain it, when they have them: withall, comforting the religious Eunuch againſt want of iſſue; and the Proſelytes of other people, (the number of whom he promiſeth to encreaſe) with promiſe of an equall intereſt with his ancient people, in all the priviledges of his houſe, the Church.

keep ye judgment, and do juſtice:] Or, as ſome render it, Obſerve equity, (as the word judgment is oft uſed for moderation; oppoſed to ſtrictneſs, and rigour of juſtice, Pſal. 25.9. & 112.5. Jer.10.24.& 46.28. Mat.23.23.) and deal juſtly; ſo to do juſtice, it ordinarily uſed for to carry a mans ſelf uprightly, and faithfully, in his dealings with others, Pſal.15.2. Chap.64.5. 1 Joh.3.7,10. Judgment, and Juſtice, are frequently joyned together; which when they are attributed to publike perſons, ſeem to deſign, the one the due and equal hearing, and deciding of cauſes, that come before them; the other, the cauſing of juſtice to be executed, for the righting of the wronged, and puniſhing of the wrong-doer, 2 Sam.8.15. 1 Chr.18.14. Pſal. 99.4. Jer.33.15. when to private men, the one ſeems to import equitable carriage, free from rigour, and extremity, mixt with mercy and moderation, in exacting their own from others; the other, a juſt and faithful dealing, in, and about thoſe things that they ow unto others, or are employed about, or entruſted with, by others, Gen.18.19. Pſal.106.3. Ezek.18.5. the exerciſe of theſe Offices, God requires here of them, as fruits of true faith, and ſincere repentance. So Chap. 1.16. Dan.4.27. Mic.6.8. Zach.8.16,17. Mat.3.8. Act.26.20. Gal.5.6. Tit.3.8.

for my ſalvation is neer to come,] Which none muſt look to partake in, unleſs they be thus qualified. So Pſal.85.9. Ch.46. 13.& 51.5. Mat.3.2. Mark 1.15. 1 Cor.6.9,10. Eph.5.5.

my righteouſneſs to be revealed.] My righteouſneſs, which I ſhall manifeſt, as by my faithfull performance of my promiſes to my people; ſo by juſt vengeance inflicted upon their oppreſſours, Chap.1.27.& 51.5.

V. 2. Bleſſed is the man that doth this,] So Pſal. 106. 3. Bleſſed are they that obſerve judgment, and each one, that doth Juſtice.

and the Son of man that layeth hold on it:] Or, that holdeth it faſt. So ver.4. Jer.8.5. that keepeth cloſe to it, that practiſeth it conſtantly; not by fits and ſtarts, but at all times, Pſal. 106.3. Son of man, the ſame with man before; as Job 25.6. and a defect of the relative in either branch, as Ch. 55.5,13.

that keepeth the Sabbath from polluting it,] That ſo obſerveth the Sabbath (Exod. 31.13,14,16.) that he pollute it not: for that is the meaning of that phraſe. See the like, Pſal.69. 23. Chap.33.15. Hoſ.4.6. So ver.4. The obſervation of the Sabbath, put here for the whole exerciſe of religion and piety; as Lev.19.3. Jer.17.21,22. to be joyned unto, and go along with the practice of thoſe other duties, before required, ver. 1. Amos 5. 24. and that here the rather put for the reſt; becauſe that might be obſerved in forrein parts, during the time of their captivity; whereas many other parts of Gods religious Worſhip, being confined to the Temple at Jeruſalem, could not, Deut.12.11-14.

pollute it] Or, profane it: by ſpending it, or any part of it, ſave in caſe of neceſſity, in any profane employment, Exod.31. 14. Neh.13.17,18. Jer.17.21,22,24.

and keepeth his hand from doing any evill.] Or, that it do not any evill; to wit, to his neighbour; as it is more fully expreſſed, Pſal.15.3. So Zach. 8.17. Heb. all, for any; as Ezek.18.13. that is as well careful to walk uprightly among men, as to carry himſelf religiouſly toward God, Act.10.35. Jam.1.27. and to abſtain as well from wronging his Neighbour, as from profaning Gods Sabbath. See Chap. 1.13, 15.& 58.3-5,13. Amos 5.21,24.

V 3. Neither let the ſon of the ſtranger, that hath joyned himſelf to the Lord, ſpeak, ſaying, The Lord hath utterly ſeparated me from his people:] Let no man think himſelf excluded from partaking in the gracious promiſes of God, before propounded, Chap. 55.1,2,12,13. in regard of his birth and generation, becauſe he is of another nation, and no native Jew, Gal. 2.15. for Gods offers of grace, are propounded to all, without diſtinction of nation; be they Jews, or Gentiles, that ſhall ſincerely come in unto God, and embrace his ſervice, Act. 10. 34,35. Rom.1.10,11.& 3.29,30.& 10.12. 1 Cor.12.13. Gal.3. 28. Col.3.11.

the ſon of the ſtranger] That is, the ſtranger born, or by deſcent. See ver.6. But ſo he ſpeaketh the rather, in regard of that law, whereby the iſſue of ſome people, were for divers deſcents ſecluded, from admiſſion into the congregation of Iſrael, Deut. 23. 3,7,8. whereunto the Jewiſh Commenters further add, that he makes mention of the ſtrangers ſon, becauſe he had no inheritance in the land of the Eunuch; becauſe though he were a Jew, yet he had no iſſue to inherit: But God here intimateth, that thoſe laws that made ſuch diſtinction between the native Jew, and the ſtranger, ſhould under the Meſſias be repealed; the partition wall being then removed, that ſevered Jew, and Gentile, the one from the other, as the veil was from the top to the bottome rent in twain, at his death, Mat.27.51. Eph.2.11-16. and in the Prophecy of Ezekiel, proviſion is made for the ſtranger, alſo, and his iſſue, that had joyned himſelf unto Gods people, to inherit alſo among them, Ezek. 47. 22, 23. a type of their joynt portion in the heavenly inheritance, Eph.3.6.

that hath joyned himſelf] Heb. that is joyned; as it is rendred, Chap.14.1. where the ſame thing is mentioned; but theſe paſſives have oft a reciprocal notion. See Chap. 5.8. and ſo Jer. 50. 5. let us joyn our ſelves to the Lord. See further, ver.6. utterly ſeparated] Heb. ſeparating ſeparated.

neither let the Eunuch ſay, I am a dry tree.] Barren, and without poſſibility of iſſue: which might peradventure run in the minds of ſuch, as if therefore they ſhould ſeem to be without the verge of Gods benediction; becauſe fecundity was promiſed, and eſteemed, as a bleſſing, Exod.23.26. Deut.28.4,11. Pſal.128.1,3.

Eunuch] Of the term, ſee on Chap.39.7.

a dry tree] Or, a ſear tree, Luke 23.31.

V. 4. For thus ſaith the Lord unto the Eunuchs, that keep my Sabbaths, and chooſe the things that pleaſe me, and take hold of my covenant.] That are careful, as well in other things, generally to pleaſe me, and approve themſelves unto me, and to keep covenants with me, as in the obſervation of my day, 1 King.8.23. Pſal.132.12. Col.1.10.

thus ſaith the Lord] This the rather doth the Prophet here prefix, thus ſaith the Lord; becauſe it might ſeem to croſs the Law given by Moſes, before-mentioned. So the Apoſtle, 1 Cor.7.10. not I, but the Lord.

unto the Eunuchs] Or, concerning them; as the particle is rendred, Chap.23.5. for Gods ſpeech here related, is not directed to them, but delivered as concerning them.

chooſe] Not take them up upon ſome ſudden motion, or from example barely, or tradition, or for ſome baſe reſpects, and ſiniſter ends; as Eſt. 8. 17. but after ſerious and mature deliberation, upon due conſideration, out of judgment rightly enformed, and affection thereon grounded, do by a free election, betake themſelves to them. See ver.6. ſo David, I have choſen the way of truth, Pſal. 119. 30. a term very ſignificant.

thoſe things that pleaſe me] So Chap.38.3. Joh.8.29. 1 Theſſ. 4.1. Heb.13.16. 1 Joh.3.22.

take hold of my covenant] Or, hold faſt my covenant; as ver. 2. Pſal.103.18.

V. 5. Even, unto them will I give in mine houſe, and within my walls, a place] By the Law of Moſes, none, ſo maimed, and diſmembred, might be admitted into the Prieſtly function, ſo as to execute any ſervice within the vail of the Tabernacle, or the walls of the Temple, Levit.21.20,23. Deut.23.1. but no ſuch bodily maim, or defect, ſhould hinder any true beleever, any ſincere and faithful ſoul, from having a part in the ſpiritual Prieſthood, 1 Pet.2.9. Rev.1.6. & 20.6. and a place in Gods houſe, the Church, 1 Tim.3.15.

Even] Heb. And. as Chap.1.6. & 40.30.

within my walls] The walls of Jeruſalem, as ſome, Pſal. 122.7. a type of the Church: but I ſuppoſe rather, of the Temple; of which, ver.7. and from which, ſome were excluded, though not ſhut out of the city. See Lev.21.22,23. Lam. 1.10. Act.21.28.

a place] Heb. hand: as Chap.57.8. Deut.23.12.

and a name better then that of ſons, and daughters;] Mens names are ſaid to be continued in their iſſue, male eſpecially; and to fail conſequently in ſuch as wanted iſſue, Num. 27. 4. 2 Sam.18.18. and a numerous iſſue is deemed no ſmall honour, Pſal.127.4,5. & 128.3. Prov.17.6. God therefore promiſeth here, to ſupply and make good the want of iſſue, and of whatſoever, either honour here, or memorial hereafter, might, from it, have accrewed unto them, by beſtowing upon them, matter of far greater honour, and more durable; even ſuch as ſhould continue unto all eternity: that which ſhould abundantly recompenſe, and much more then countervail that defect.

a name] What this name ſhould be, many debate much; and ſome would have it to be the name of Gods people, Hoſ.2. 23. ſome, of Gods ſervants, Chap. 44. 1, 2. ſome, of Gods Prieſts, and Miniſters, Chap.61.6. ſome, of Gods ſons, and heirs, Joh.1.12. Rom.8.16,17. 2 Cor.6.18. Eph.3.6. 1 Joh.3.1. But this is not unlike the diſpute about the name ſaid to be given unto Chriſt, Phil.2.9. but as by name there, doth not import any one particular title, but is put for power and authority, as Act.3.16. & 4.2. ſo by name, is not any ſuch particular ſtyle here meant, but ſuch honour and dignity, as ſhould far ſurpaſſe that, which iſſue was able to afford, both for eminency, and for continuance. See Chap.55.15. & 66.15. Howbeit, what Popiſh Writers hence gather for the merit of ſingle life, above the married eſtate, expounding the place of voluntary Eunuchs; from Mat.19.12,13. is groundleſs, and frivolous.

better then that of ſons, and daughters] Heb. good from, or before, ſons and daughters: as Prov. 22.1. Eccl. 7.1. that is, better then the name of ſons, and daughters: the word name, ſupplyed from that before-going, as Dan.4.33.

I will give them an everlaſting name] Heb. I will give him (that is, each one of them, as Chap.26.19.) a name of eternity, as Chap.63.12.

that ſhall not be cut off] As that by iſſue continued, (it failing oft) is, 1 King.14.10. 2 King.10.11. Pſal.21.10. & 109. 13. See Chap.48.18. & 55.15. Rev.3.12.

V. 6. Alſo the ſons of the ſtranger that joyneth himſelf to the Lord to ſerve him] Heb. And the ſons of the ſtranger, that ſhall be joyned to the Lord, to ſerve him. Which ſome render, And as for the ſtrangers; becauſe the nominative caſe ſeems to be put abſolutely.

the ſons of the ſtranger] That is, ſuch as are ſtrangers by deſcent. See Chap.2.6.

joyneth himſelf] Heb. are joyned; and it ſhould be rendred, that joyn themſelves. See ver.4.

to ſerve the Lord] The end of this joyning himſelf to him more fully, then before, ver.4. here expreſſed; ſo it is ſaid of the prodigal, that he joyned himſelf to one, that kept a farm, not as a partner with him, but as a ſervant to him, Luk. 15.15. and ſo the words here following are. Howbeit, the term here uſed, would rather be rendred, to miniſter unto him; it being ordinarily applyed to the Prieſtly function, Deut.10. 6,8. and it is ſaid here, not as of the Levites, to miniſter unto Aaron, Num.18.2,4. but as of the Prieſts, to miniſter unto the Lord, Deut.21.5. thereby intimating, that they ſhould be admitted, unto the ſacred adminiſtration, to miniſter, not as Levites only, but as Prieſts. See Chap.61.6. whereas all ſtrangers, all, that were out of that one tribe, whether Iſraelites, or forraigners, were before excluded from either, Num.3.38. & 18.4.

to love the name of the Lord, to be his ſervants] That is, out of love to the Lord, to be his ſervants. So Deut. 10. 12. to love him, and to ſerve him; that is, out of love to ſerve him: that was before cloſely intimated in the term of chooſing, ver.4. See the like ſyntax, ver.10.

the name of the Lord] For, the Lord himſelf: as Pſal.116.4, 17. Prov.18.10.

every one that keepeth the Sabbath from polluting it, and taketh hold of my covenant] See on ver. 2. every ſtranger, that ſo doth; for of them ſtill he here ſpeaks: and he mentioneth the obſervation of the Sabbath more ſpecially, as the Jewiſh Doctors, ſome of them, would have it, becauſe that was appointed by God, in more ſpecial manner, to be a ſolemn ſign between God and his people, to ſignifie, and obſign, his ſanctifying of them, and being in covenant with them, Exod. 31. 16,17. Ezek.20.20. ſome other, to diſtinguiſh between ſtranger and ſtranger, and to ſhew what manner of ſtranger it was, that he here intended: for among the Jews, ſay they, there were two ſorts of ſtrangers; one ſort, that obſerved the commandements given unto Adam, and Noah, but went no further: another, that were circumciſed alſo, and obſerved the rites delivered by Moſes; among which, the Sabbath, Exod.16.23. and of theſe, ſay they, it appeareth, that he ſpeaketh, by mention made of the Sabbath. But this diſtinction, we find no ground for, in Scripture; and places are much wronged, to wring this conceit out of them: the Sabbath being the time ſet apart for Gods conſtant ſolemn ſervice, Levit.23.3. is put for the whole ſervice of God, performed ordinarily on that day. So Levit.26.3.

V.7. Even, them will I bring unto mine holy mountain] Heb. And I will bring them (but, Even them; as ver.5. or, Them, I ſay: as Chap.49.6.) unto my mountain of holineſſe; as Pſal.15. 1. to Mount Sion, on which the Temple was ſituate, a type of the Church, Chap.2.2. & 11.9. Ezek.20.40.

and will make them joyful in mine houſe of prayer] I will cauſe them to ſerve me there, with alacrity, and cheerfulneſs of ſpirit, Deut.16.14,15. for the manifold bleſſings, wherewith I have bleſſed them, and for the ſpiritual comforts, that by their communion with me, in my ſacred ordinances, I ſhall there impart unto them, Pſal.36.8. & 42.4. & 43.3,4. & 63.5. & 84.4,10.

houſe of prayer] The Temple, in which, and towards which, as Gods palace, and peculiar place of his reſidence, they were wont to pray, being at Gods command, built, ſanctified, and ſet apart for that purpoſe, 2 Sam.7.13. 1 King.8.19,28-30,33, 35. & 9.3.

their burnt-offerings and their ſacrifices, ſhall be accepted upon mine altar:] Heb. ſhall be to acceptance upon mine altar. So Exod.28.38. Levit.22.21. Pſal.19.14. and ſo the contrary, Levit.10.21. Jer.6.20. Howbeit, there ſeems to be here, a defective form of ſpeech, th[illegible]o be ſupplyed, their burnt-offerings (of which word, ſee o[illegible]hap.1.11.) ſhall unto acceptance, or, with acceptance, go up upon mine altar; or, they ſhall be accepted, being offered upon mine altar: as it is more fully, chap. 60.7. See of the like, Chap.38.17,21. A type of thoſe their ſpiritual ſacrifices, of themſelves, of their ſervice, their prayers, their praiſes, their beneficence, Pſal.50.23. & 69.30,31. & 141.2. Rom.12.1. 2 Cor.8.5. Phil.2.17. & 4.18. that ſhould be accepted, Pſal.51.17,19. Mal.1.11. & 3.4. Rom.15.16. Heb. 13.16. being offered upon the true altar, that ſanctifieth every oblation, on it offered, the Lord Jeſus, Mat.23.19. Heb. 13. 10,15. Rev.8.3,4. Jer.33.18.

for mine houſe ſhall be called the houſe of prayer] Mat.21.13. Mar.11.17. Luk.19.46. ſhall be called; that is, ſhall ſo be; and be ſo accounted; as Chap.54.5. Mat.5.9.

for all people] Heb. all peoples: as Pſal. 117.1. ſo rendred alſo, Rom.15.11. not for Jews only, but for other nations alſo, without exception, or excluſion of any, Rom. 10. 12, 13. See 1 King.8.41-43.

V. 8. The Lord God which gathereth the out-caſts of Iſrael, ſaith] Heb. The ſaying (as Chap.1.24.) of the Lord God that gathereth together the out-caſts of Iſrael: as it is well rendred, Pſal.147.2. See Chap.11.12.

Yet will I gather others to him, beſides thoſe that are gathered to him] Heb. Yet, or, Furthermore, (as Chap.8.5.) or, (dividing it) I will further gather together more upon him, (as alluding to an heap, which to raiſe higher, materials are laid one upon another*)* or, to him, (ſo is the particle uſed, Pſal.16.2. & 23.2. Chap.22.15. & 53.1.) unto, or *above (*as Job 23. 2. my ſtroke is above my groaning:) his gathered together; that is, over and above, or beſides thoſe, that I ſhall at firſt gather together. This, a learned Writer of great note, would have meant of a ſecond gathering of ſome by Nehemy, after the firſt by Ezra, Ezr.2.1,2. Neh.7 7. but we read not of any remarkable number gathered together by Nehemy; who was not that way employed, but about repairing the city, and reforming, and ſetling of the State, with thoſe, whom he found there. The courſe of the context rather carrieth it to thoſe forraigners, and ſtrangers, before ſpoken of, ver. 6, 7. who were alſo to be gathered, and brought in to Gods people, and added unto his fold, the Church, Joh.10.16. & 11.32. Act. 1. 41,47. & 11.24. And ſo not ours alone, but the Jewiſh Commenters alſo, expound it; only one telleth us of an expoſition of his fathers, which yet he doth not expreſs any allowance of, that this verſe, ſhould be underſtood of Gog, and Magog, of whom, Ezek.29 16,17. unto whom, he would alſo apply the paſſage enſuing, ver. 9. reading the text, I will gather together againſt him, &c. But the former paſſages control this expoſition; and the enſuing words ſeem to be part of another Prophecy.

V. 9. All ye beaſts of the field, come to devour, yea, all ye beaſts in the foreſt] Divers Expoſitors annex the enſuing part of this Chapter, to the former; making, ſome of them, this the coherence, That the Prophet, from the conſolation of the godly party, in the former part, doth in this latter part, proceed unto the reprehenſion of the wicked, and ungodly party among them. Other of them, that this is ſubjoyned unto the promiſes before-going, to ſhew that yet, before they ſhould be fulfilled, very fearful and ſad matters ſhould befall the Jewiſh State: which by the Romanes they conceive to have been done, in the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, Dan.9.26,27. Mat.23. 38. & 24.15-22. Luk.19.43,44. & 21.20-24. But the moſt, and beſt, herein agree, that at theſe words beginneth a new Sermon, or Prophecy: and that the four laſt verſes of this Chapter ſhould go joyntly, in one, with the next.

All ye beaſts of the field] Heb. Every beaſt; and ſo in the next branch: but taken collectively; as Chap.43.20. Ezek. 31.6,13. & 34.5,8. The Prophet maketh entrance into the enſuing Prophecy, with a ſolemn proclamation, wherein ravenous beaſts of all ſorts, are called upon to come in to devour, and make havock of Gods own flock, of his own people; and by ſuch kind of creatures are here deſigned, as ſome would have it, the Romanes; but, as moſt rather, the Chaldeans, together with the Syrians, Aſſyrians, Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, and other people, that joyned with the Babylonians, and ſerved under the King of Babylon, in his expedition againſt the Jews, 2 King.24.2. Pſal.137.7. Jer.1. 15,16. See the like, Jer.12.9.

come to devour] Heb. to eat: as alſo, Jer. 12. 9. The adverſaries of Gods people ſo deſcribed, as alſo, Pſal.80.13. are incited to do with them, as ſuch creatures are wont to do, with ſuch as they prey upon. Howbeit, ſome conceive, that the beaſts themſelves are called to devour their ſlain, as intimating what havock would be made of them, and what ſhould become of their corpſes, *(that which, in likelihood alſo, befell many of them)* after they were dead, Pſal.79.2. Jer.7.33. & 34.20. See the like, Ezek,39.17-20. where the ravenous birds, and beaſts are invited, as to a feaſt, to eat, unto their fill, at Gods table, on the carcaſes of horſe, and men; as alſo, Rev.19.17,18. and I ſuppoſe there may well, in this paſſage, be ſome alluſion thereunto: but take the former to be the genuine ſenſe of the place; the rather, for the reaſon of this call, and invitement, rendred, ver.9,10. to wit, the defect, and neglect, blindneſſe, and ſleepineſſe of their ſhepherds, that which is wont to give opportunity to wolves, and wild beaſts, not to prey upon dead carcaſes, but to break in upon, and wory the flock. See Ezek.34.2-8.

all ye beaſts in the foreſt.] Beaſts in the foreſt, for, beaſts of the foreſt: the uſual receptacle, and harbour of ſuch ravenous creatures, Pſal.50.10. & 80.13.2 King.2.24.Jer.5.6. So mountains in Gilboa, for, mountains of Gilboa, 2 Sam.1.21. and, the Prince in thy people, for, the Prince of thy people, Act.23.5.

V. 10. His watchmen are blind; they are all ignorant.] Or, Their watchmen are blind (becauſe he ſpeaketh of his people; as Chap.5.25.) they have no knowledge any of them. Heb. they know not. So Pſal.14.4. & 82.5. Chap.1.3. & 44.18. Their Prieſts, and pretended Prophets, or their Rulers, as well Civil, as Eccleſiaſtical, *(*for under the name of watchmen, both may well go, though theſe eſpecially ſeem here intended*)* that ſhould watch, and look out, to diſcover any evill, or enemy, approaching, to give warning of it, both to People and State, Chap.62.6. Jer.6.17. & 33.2,7. are ſtark blind, utterly void of any ſound knowledge, or ability to diſcern, Chap.42.19. Hoſ. 4.6. and any enemy therefore may ſafely and eaſily break in upon either, without any notice taken of their approaches, or oppoſition made againſt them. Some underſtand this of the Scribes, and Phariſees, in our Saviour Chriſts time, taxed by him, in his preachings under the name of blind guides, Matth. 15.14. & 23.15,16,24. and unto them it may be well applyed; but ſeemeth to be of a far larger extent, and to intend other times.

they are all dumb dogs, they cannot bark;] That which is principally required of a watchman, is to ſee, and look about him: that which of a dog, ſet to keep the houſe, or the flock, is to give warning, by barking, of the approach of the thief, or any ſtranger unto the one, of the Woolf, or any ravenous beaſt to the other, Job 30.1. watchfulneſs is required in either; and in thoſe, conſequently here reſembled by either, Mat.24. 41-45. Mark 13.33-37. Luke 12. 36-42. whereas they were blind, dumb, drowſie, and drunk; for ſo the words enſuing intimate. So the Princes are revelling, when Babylon is taken, Chap.21.5. Dan.5.1-4,30. and the ſhepherds are ſlumbring, when Niniveh is ſurpriſed. Nah.3.18.

bark] By reproving the people for their ſins, chap. 58.1. and forewarning them of ſuch evils, as would befall them for the ſame, unleſs prevented by repentance, Ezek.18.19. and it is not unuſual in Scripture, to ſay, that men cannot do thoſe things, which they have no mind, or will, to do. So ver.11. Gen.44.22,26. Jer.13.23.

ſleeping] So the moſt: Yet ſome, dreaming; ſome, talking in their ſleep: ſome, ſnorting: ſome, doting; from an Arabick term, that by change of a letter ſo ſignifies: the old Latine, ſeeing vain things: which ſome impute to a miſtake of hozim, for chozim, or hhozim, that ſignifies ſeeing. A late Interpreter of ſpecial note, ſerving the time; but of that his verſion, ſo diſcrepant from the reſt, no ground is, by him, given; nor am I able to conceive what it ſhould be.

lying down, loving to ſlumber.] That is, lying down of purpoſe to take their eaſe, and repoſe themſelves, as the only thing, that they deſired, took delight in, and had never enough of, Prov.6.9,10. & 24.33. Amos 6.4. See the like form of ſpeech, ver. 6. So Nahum 3. 18. Thy Shepherds ſlumber.

V. 11. Yea, they are greedy dogs, which can never have enough:] To their ſluggiſhneſs, and love of their eaſe, is added their greedineſs, and their inſatiable covetouſneſs, an uſuall concomitant of the former, with the moſt, requiring means to maintain them, in an idle and looſe courſe of life.

yea, they are greedy dogs] Or, And theſe dogs, or, Theſe dogs alſo are very greedy. Heb. ſtrong of ſoul, or, of appetite; as, a man, or, owner of ſoul; that is, of appetite, for one of greedy appetite, Prov.23.2.

which can never have enough] Or, they can never have enough. Heb. they know not to be ſatisfied: Our margent renders it, as if it were a verb of the infinitive mood; which ſome of the Jewiſh Maſters alſo, but doubtingly, deliver. Or, rather, they know not ſatiety: for the word ſeems to be a noun, in that notion, frequently found, Ruth 2.18. Chap.23. 18. & 55.2. Ezek.16.28. & 39.19. Hag.1.6. as Chap.59. 8. they know not the way of peace: that is, they know not how to walk, or carry themſelves peaceably: they cannot do it, becauſe they have no mind thereunto. See ver.6. of ſome ſuch like dogs, David, Pſal. 59.6,14,15. the greedineſs here ſpoken of, is not of meat, or drink, (though in following their voluptuous courſes of riot and exceſs, they were that way alſo inſatiable, ver. 12.) but of moneyes, and means, to maintain that withall, Eccl.5.10. & 10.19.

and they are ſhepherds that cannot underſtand:] Or, and ſuch ſhepherds they are, as have no underſtanding; a defect of the relative, as ver.2. Heb. know not to underſtand; as Jer.6.15. & 8.12. they know not to bluſh; and, they know not to do right, Amos 3.10. though ſome render it; they know not to teach; as if it were to make to underſtand; to inſtruct: and ſo the word is uſed, Dan.10. 14. See alſo Chap. 28. 19. but is more frequently taken in the former ſenſe, 1 King. 3. 9. Prov.1.2,6. & 14.8. Some would here diſtinguiſh between the dogs, and the ſhepherds; as if the one were the inferiour officers; the other, the ſuperiour governours: But the ſame parties ſeem to be, in either appellation, intended; as before, ver.10. they have no underſtanding to foreſee, and conceive, what the iſſue of things will be, Jer.6.14. ſo the Jewiſh Commenters. Or, they have no skill to order the flock aright: a matter of much moment, and, in ſpecial manner, required in a ſhepherd, Jer. 3. 15.

they all look to their own way, every one to his gain, from his quarter.] This clauſe ſheweth more plainly, what greedineſs was ment before; to wit, greedineſs of gain, Prov.15.27. & 31.15,16.

look to their own way] See Chap.53.6. they are all for themſelves, without any regard to, or care of, the flock, and its welfare, Jer.22.17. Ezek.34.2,3. Phil.2.21. Some make this paſſage parallel to that, Chap. 53.6. We have turned every one to his own way. Others, to that, Judg.17.6. every man did that which was right in his own eyes. Both underſtand them, as implying not a general concurrence only, in running out into evil; but a diverſity of thoſe courſes, that they ſeverally took; ſome abandoning themſelves to the giving of ſatisfaction to one inordinate loſt, and ſome to another: whence, alſo, ſome conceive a diſtribution of them here, into two ranks; ſome addicted to covetouſneſs, and ſome to riot and exceſs. But I ſuppoſe the meaning of the words to be ſimply ſuch as was before hinted: nor do the places pointed to, ſeem altogether parallel, the pronoun being in them ſingular, as importing a diſtribution; whereas here it is plural. Beſides, that the ſame parties ſeem charged with the ſame vices, not ſome of them with the one onely, and ſome with the other. See the like, Amos 4.1.& 6.3,4.

his gain] As Prov.1.19.& 15.27. it is rendred, covetouſneſs, Chap.57.17. Jer.6.13. Ezek.33.31, but the word ſignifies, properly, lucre, or, gain.

from his quarter] Heb. from his end; which Interpreters diverſly expound. Some, from the one end of them to the other; that is, from the higheſt to the loweſt, as Jer.6.13. all ſorts of them; and ſo the old Latine rendreth it. Others, from the one end of their way to the other: from the firſt to the laſt, they mind and follow nothing but this: it is the whole tenour of their life, to look after their gain. Others, from the one end of the city to the other; as if out of all parts of it, they did rap and rend what they could; no place was free from their pillage. and according to theſe expoſitions, the ſpeech ſhould be defective, as wanting the latter term, more fully expreſſed elſewhere, as Exod.26.28.& 36.33. Others, and ſo ſome of the Jewiſh Commenters, from the place of his abode, and they parallel it with that, Gen.19.4. where the word is not amiſs rendred, quarter, as it is alſo according to this ſenſe, which ſeemeth the plaineſt here. Howbeit, ſome conceiving it further to intimate their inſatiable thirſt, and purſuit after gain, render it, without end; and in that notion is the noun oft uſed, as Chap.2.7. and the particle alſo prefixed before it, is ſometime uſed in the like ſenſe: and ſo, from end, ſhould be here, as much, as without end; as, from viſion, without viſion, Mic.3.6. But the pronoun, his, affixed, ſeemeth to make the conſtruction, in that ſenſe, here, the harſher, and to carry it rather the other way. I ſhall ſubjoyn only an Annotation of a late learned Writer: He conceiveth that the word here uſed, though commonly ſignifying, coaſt, or, end, or, extremity, doth oft-times alſo denote, eminent, or honourable perſons. So he deemeth it to be taken, Gen.19.4.& 47.2. Judg.18.2. Chap.26.15. Ezek.33.2. and ſo he would have it taken here; and the meaning to be, either referring it to the Prieſts, they look after their gain, the very chief of them; not the meaner ſort only: or referring it to the people whom they made a prey of; they follow their gain, from the principall, (that is, the richer ſort) of them, to wit, of that people, whoſe watchmen they are ſaid to be, ver 10. But the places produced, are all queſtionable; nor doth it ſeem to go ſmoothly either way here: yea, this Author himſelf [illegible] ſeemeth confident, that this phraſe ſignifies [illegible] ev[illegible]re, & Jer.50.26.& 51.31. and [illegible] moſt o[illegible]ed by him to other purpoſe. But howſoever it [illegible] in other places, the pronoun affixed will not permit it to be taken ſo here.

V. 12. Come ye,] The ſpeech of theſe wicked Prieſts, and pretended Prophets, either enciting one another, to joyn together, in the practice of riot and exceſs; or inviting ſome of the people to partake therein with them; and ſo impiouſly encouraging them unto ſuch vile courſes, as their duty was to have reproved in them, and to have by all means endeavoured to withdraw them from. Thus they applyed themſelves to the humour of the people, Mic.2.11. and ſtrengthened the hands of the wicked, that they might not leave their ſins, Ezek.13.19,22.

ſay they] Theſe words are ſupplyed, being not in the text, as Chap.22.13.& 45.14. Neh.13.15. Act.7.32.

I will fetch wine, and we will fill our ſelves with ſtrong drink;] Heb. I will take wine (but it is well rendred here fetch; as alſo, Gen.18.7.& 27.9. for it includeth two notions, to take, and to bring; as, to receive, and to beſtow, Pſal.68.18. compared with Eph.4.8.) and we will be drunk (as it is well rendred, Mic.1.10.) with ſtrong drink: we will want no good liquour of any kind. Of the word, joyned alſo with wine there, ſee on Chap.5.11. a defect of the particle with; as Chap.28.1. Jer.13.12.

and to morrow ſhall be as this day, and much more abundant.] Some conceive it to be ſpoken in deriſion of Gods Prophets; as ſcoffing at their denunciation of deſtruction, ſhortly and ſuddenly to befall them; we do well enough to day, and we will do better to morrow. See Chap.22.13. But it ſeemeth rather a profeſſion of a wicked and wretched reſolution, to proceed in the continued practice of their preſent exceſs, day after day, without abating an ace of it, but improving it rather. See ſomewhat the like reſolution of the drunkard, Prov.23.35.

and much more abundant] Heb. great; (that is, greater then this: the poſſitive, for the comparative, as Gen.10.21.) yea of much more excellensy, or abundance, as Gen.49.3.

CHAP. LVII.

Verſ. 1. THe righteous periſheth;] Amidſt the reproofs of the wickedneſs and profaneneſs of the times, and the dreadful denunciations of wrath and judgment, againſt the main body of the ſtate for the ſame, the Prophet here, by the way, inſerts ſomewhat for the comfort of the ſincere-hearted, that living in thoſe times, ſhould either by the cruelty of oppreſſion, have their lives ſhortned, or be taken away otherwiſe: yet not without a ſecret nip, unto thoſe other ungodly ones, that regarded it not, nor took notice of Gods mercy toward them, in tranſlating them hence, before the judgments denounced came to be put in execution; or, of the warning thereof given by the ſubtraction of ſuch.

The righteous] This ſome reſtrain to Joſias, commended for his juſtice, Jer.22.15,16. as well as for his piety, 2 Chron.34.3. and taken away by an untimely end, 2 Chron.35.23,24. But the word ſeems more general; being taken collectively, as Pſal.11.5.& 34.19.

periſheth] Is taken away by death: the deceaſe of many ſuch, a fore-running ſign of ſome general judgment approaching. See Chap.3.2.& 6.13. and ſee the like complaints of a defection of ſuch, Pſal.12.1. Mic.7.1,2. Howbeit, it is not ſo to be underſtood, as if ſuch utterly periſhed, and were loſt: for it is not ſo; they live even in death, Joh.11.25,26. But by periſhing, is underſtood only deceaſe, and departure hence, as, ready to periſh; that is, to dy, Chap.27.13. And the Prophet the rather uſeth this term, becauſe to the carnal eye, it ſeemed ſo to fare with them; which yet he controlleth, ver.2.

and no man layeth it to heart:] Heb. there is no man, or, not any, (as Chap.36.6.& 40.26.) laying it on heart; as Chap.47.7. So ver.11. where a defect alſo of the pronoun demonſtrative it, as here: heart, for his heart. See the like defect of the poſſeſſive, Chap.27.9.& 53.10. none of them, of thoſe debauched ones, Chap.56.12. do any whit regard it, or take notice of Gods hand, and end, in it. See Chap.5.16,17. Amos 6.5,6.

and mercifull men are taken away;] Or, pious, godly; or, kind, pittifull; for the word is uſed for either: for the former, Pſal.16.10.& 32.6.& 86.2. for the latter, Pſal.103.4.& 109.18. Jer.2.1.& 3.12. Heb. men of piety, or pitty: or, men of benignity, or kindneſs; as Prov.11.17. a man of benignity, or kindneſs, oppoſed there to a cruell man: the word is uſed in the adjective, Pſal.12.1. Mic.7.2. The Jewiſh Criticks thus diſtinguiſh theſe two; the Juſt, or Righteous; and the kind, or bountifull man: the former, ſay they, is one that giveth preciſely to God, or Man, in matter of tithes, or alms, and the like, what the ſtrict letter of the Law exacts of him, and no more: the latter, one that affordeth it with ſome over-plus: For example, the firſt-fruits of their corn, wine, and oyl, was without any certain ſet proportion, or ſtint, required of them by the Moſaicall Law, Deut.18.2. howbeit, their Doctors had ſo defined it, that a ſixtieth part, at leaſt, was to be given. This they gathered from Ezek.45.11. where for their oblation, the ſixt part of an Epha, is required out of an Homer, which contained ten Ephaes. Hence, they made three degrees of offerers, one that brought but a ſixtieth part; whom they call a man of a ſtrict eye: Another that brought the fiftieth part, whom they term the middle man: A third, that brought the fortieth part, whom they call a man of a good eye. So Eccleſ.35.9. And this third, is the kind, or bountifull man. Again, from Eſaus words to Jacob, Gen.33.9. they coin four ſorts of men: The firſt, he that ſaith, Mine to thee, and thine to me; or, Mine thine, and thine mine. And this is the man of the world, that dealeth ſtrictly in mutuall commerce. The ſecond, that ſaith, Mine to me, and thine to thee; or, Mine mine, and thine thine. And this is the way of Sodom, that would part with nothing to the Poor, Ezek.16.49. or, the middle man, between the wicked, and the kind. A third, that ſaith, Mine to my ſelf, and thine too to me; or, Mine mine own, and thine mine, and that is a wicked man. A fourth, that ſaith, Mine to thee, and thine to thy ſelf; or, Mine thine, and thine thine own; that giveth freely, looking for nothing again, Pſal.37.21. Luk.6.35. And this is the kind, or bountifull man. See Chap.32.5. True it is, that the word hath a notion of bounty, and benignity in it; but ſo is the word of righteouſneſs alſo oftentimes uſed. See on Chap.54.17. and ſo Matth.1.19. nor ſeemeth it the purpoſe of the Holy Ghoſt, here to diſtinguiſh between righteous men, and men of piety, or kindneſs; but to deſcribe the ſame perſons by words, as they are largely conſidering] Or, often conſidering. How patiently they ſuffered in defence thereof.

Or Chriſt may be called our Altar, becauſe we muſt offer up our prayers and thankſgivings unto God by him. See ver.15. Rev. 6.9. & 8.3. V. 11. For] Here is a reaſon given of that which went before, Verſ. 10. and it ſtands thus: Even as thoſe who ſerved the Tabernacle,might not eat of thoſe beaſts,which were burnt without the camp or tents: ſo thoſe who now cleave to the Tabernacle, cannot be partakers of Chriſt. This is further illuſtrated, Verſ.13. where the Apoſtle ſhews, that thoſe beaſts were a type of Chriſt, and the place of their burning, a type of the place of Chriſts ſuffering.

ANNOTATIONS
On the general Epiſtle of JAMES.

The ARGUMENT.

Author of this Epiſtle, was the Apoſtle James, not the Son of Zebedeus, and the Brother of John, Matth.
. (as ſome have ſuppoſed) who was ſlain not long after our Saviour Chriſts Aſcenſion, Act. 12. 2. But

Commended for a principal Pillar in the Church of God, Gal.2.9. Who abiding at Jeruſalem after that moſt of Apoſtles were departed thence, as having a more ſpecial care and charge of his own Nation, the Jewiſh peopte, ote this Epiſtle in general to ſuch of them, as were diſperſed into ſeveral Countreyes and Provinces abroad:
it is probable, That he wrote it after ſundry of Saint Pauls Epiſtles, and in particular of thoſe two to the
, and to the Galathians: And obſerving how many profeſſing the Faith of Chriſt, perverted that whole- comfortable Doctrine by him in thoſe Epiſtles delivered, concerning free Juſtification by Faith without aking thereby occaſion to neglect the practice of good Works, he preſſeth the neceſſity of them, for the Ju-ſt of ſound and ſincere Profeſſion. In the courſe of this Epiſtle, Firſt he perſwades them to patience, cheer-f d wiſe carriage under the croſſe, and a ſanctified uſe thereof. Secondly, To ſhew the ſoundneſſe of their Pro, and the ſincerity of their Faith, by an exemplary courſe of life, in the practice of all Chriſtian duties, and fruitfuneſſe in well doing. Thirdly, diſſwades from cenſorious taxing of others, and bitter contentious with them, either by foul language, or injurious courſes. Fourthly, Denounceth Gods Judgments againſt the rich, cruelly oppreſſing the poor. Fifthly, Exhorts the faithful to patient carriage under ſuch oppreſſions, and to a Chriſtian demeanour, anſwerable to their ſeveral eſtates, and conditions, and a brotherly care of the ſpiritual welfare, one of another, wherewith he cloſeth his Epiſtle.

Verſ. 1. IAmes] There being two of this name, viz. James the ſon of Zebede, and James the ſon of Alpheus, Matth, 10. 2, 3. it is moſt probable, that here is to be underſtood the latter; becauſe the former was killed by Herod, before (as it is likely) the Apoſtles began to write. See Act. 12.2.

greeting] Act.15.23. 2 Joh.10.11.

V. 2. joy] Matth. 5. 11,12. 2 Cor.12.10. Heb.10.34. 1 Pet. 4. 13. That is, Be ſo far from fainting under your afflictions, Heb.12.5. as to account them the matter or occaſion of great joy; both becauſe you are counted worthy to ſuffer for the Name of Chriſt, Act.5.41. 2 Theſſ.1.5. as alſo becauſe of the bleſſed fruits of them, Heb.12.11. Rom.5.3.

divers] Both inward and outward. See 2 Cor.7.5.

temptations] Or, tryals; That is, afflictions, ver.12. Luk.8. 13. Act.20.19. 1 Cor.10.13. Gal.4.14. 1 Pet.1. 6. and 4. 12. whereby the ſoundneſſe of your faith, love, and obedience is tryed. See Gen.22.1. Heb.10.32.

V. 3. Knowing] Rom.5.3.

trying] Saint James his meaning is not, that afflictions of themſelves work patience; for we ſee the contrary often, both in the wicked and the godly; as in Job, Chap.3. David, Pſal.73. and Jeremy, Chap.12.1. but that faith being proved to be ſound through affliction, doth work it, becauſe thereby it is experimentally aſſured of Gods gracious preſence and aſſiſtance in afflictions, and deliverance out of them.

V. 4. perfect] That is, be patient unto the end, Matth.10.22. & 24.13. Heb.10.35, &c, Rev.2.26.

that ye may] 2 Cor.9.8.

perfect and entire] See 1 Theſſ.5.23.

V. 5. wiſdome] Though all true wiſdome be from God, yet here more particularly we are to underſtand that ſpiritual wiſedome, whereby Chriſtians may be enabled rightly to judge of the Author, cauſes, and fruits of afflictions; for want whereof many of Gods children have murmured againſt God, and fainted under them, Job 3.1. Pſal.73.2. Jer.12.1. & 20.8. Unto this Chriſtians are directed, Heb.12.5—12.

let him ask of God] Mat.7.7. & 21.22. Luk.11.9.

liberally] The original word in the firſt notation thereof ſignifieth ſimply, or ſingly, or ſincerely; that is, without any mixture of by-reſpects, or without hypocriſie; ſo 2 Cor.1.12. & 11. 3. Epheſ.6.5. Col. 3. 22. But becauſe thoſe who give with a ſingle and ſincere heart, give liberally according to their ability: hence conſequently, or in a ſecondary ſenſe, it ſignifieth liberally. So Rom.12.8. 2 Cor.8.2. & 9.11,13.

upbraideth] When he gives to thoſe who ask; though he doth thoſe who unthankfully abuſe his bleſſings, not walking worthy of them, Eſay 1.2, &c. & 5.1, &c. Jer.2.4.

V. 6. in faith] That is, reſting upon Gods power, whereby he is able; and upon his truth, whereby he will be faithful; and upon his goodneſſe and mercy through his Sonne Jeſus Chriſt, whereby he will be ready to make good his promiſes for the hearing of thoſe who call upon him, Joh. 16.23. Mark 11. 24.

wavering] That is, not doubting, diſputing, or calling into queſtion the former Attributes of God, Mat.21.21. See Act. 10. 20. & 11.12. Rom. 4.20. 1 Tim.2.8. and hangs wavering between God and man. Hereby is meant ſuch a doubting which excludes all faith: for otherwiſe God doth not reject a weak faith which cannot be without doubting. See Mat.17.20. Mar. 23.24. Pſal.31.22.

like a wave] By this ſimilitude Saint James illuſtrateth the property of a wavering minded man. As the waves of the Sea through tempeſtuous winds ſometimes are carried up to heaven, ſometimes deſcend as low as the deep: So a wavering minded man ſometimes is of this opinion and reſolution, and ſometimes of that. See ver.8.

V. 7. think] Perſwade himſelf as many vainly do, that he ſhall receive any thing, becauſe he hath no promiſe for it: notwithſtanding God out of his general providence and goodneſs, whereby he cauſes the Sun to ſhine, and rain to fall upon the wicked, Mat. 5. 45. often beſtowes temporal bleſſings upon them.

V. 8. double-minded,] Chap.4.8. Whom he ſtyled wavering, and compared to a wave of the Sea, driven with the wind, and toſſed with blaſts; the ſame he ſtyles double-minded, becauſe he is ſometimes of one mind, ſometimes of another: unſettled in his reſolutions and purpoſes, having not a foundation of faith to build them upon: and ſuch an one muſt needs be inconſtant in his wayes; that is, practiſes, courſes, and undertakings.

V. 9. low degree] That is, who is afflicted with poverty, diſgrace, or any kind of calamity.

rejoyce] Or, glory.

exalted] That is, in that he is rich in faith and the knowledg of God, and highly honoured to be the ſon of God by grace and adoption.

V. 10. low] That is, in his humility: becauſe God hath given him an humble and lowly heart notwithſtanding his riches and honours.

for] Here and in the next verſe, Saint James ſhews by what means God doth work humility in rich and honourable men endued with faith: viz. by putting into their hearts a ſerious conſideration of their own inſtability and vanity, and of all thoſe outward comforts which they enjoy, Pſal. 103. 15. Eſa. 40. 6, &c. 1 Pet. 1. 24. Luk. 12. 20, &c. & 16. 19.

as the flower of the graſſe] Eſay 40. 6. 1 Pet. 1. 24. Job 14. 2. Pſal. 10. 2. & 103 15.

V. 11. waies] Whatſoever he ſtudies, purpoſes, or practiſeth, ſhall periſh. See Pſal. 1. 3.

V. 12. Bleſſed is the man] Pſal. 94. 12. Job 5. 17. Mat. 5. 10, &c.

endureth] It is thought to be a military word taken from undaunted Souldiers, who couragiouſly without giving back receive the fierceſt onſets of the enemies: anſwerable hereunto, to endure, &c. is patiently and with courage to undergo them, ſubmitting their wils to Gods, without fainting, murmuring, or repining.

temptation] Affliction, whereby he is tryed. See verſ. 2.

when] Or, being is made, or found proof, or found.

tried] Rev. 2. 10. It is a metaphor taken from metals, whoſe truth and goodneſſe are uſed to be tryed, and their droſſe purged from them, by fire: Pſal. 66. 10. Prov. 17. 3. 1 Pet. 1. 7. Afflictions ſerve to both theſe ends and uſes.

the crown of life] 2 Tim. 4. 8. 1 Pet. 4. 5.

V. 13. ſay] Either with his tongue, or in his heart; as Pſal. 14. 1.

tempted] That is, in reſpect of himſelf, becauſe he is infinitely and immutably good and holy; yet in regard of men he is often tempted. See Exod. 17. 2. Mal. 3. 15. Act. 15. 10.

evil] Or, evils.

tempteth] That is, by inciting and moving them to ſin, for God wils it not. See Pſal. 5. 5. Eſay 65. 12. Zech. 8. 17. Zeph. 3. 5. Though he doth for the proof and trial of their faith, conſtancy and patience, Gen. 22. 1. Deut. 13. 1, &c.

V. 14. But] Here Saint James ſheweth the ſource, original, and fountain of all temptation unto ſinne: viz. that natural corruption which we brought into the world with us, Pſalm 51. 7. Rom. 7. 7. without which, neither the Devil nor the world could hurt, they tempting by working upon our concupiſcence.

drawn] Here are ſet down two waies, whereby luſt tempts unto ſinne. Firſt, by withdrawing from that which is good. Secondly, by enticing unto that which is evil, under ſome apearance of that which is good and pleaſant: even as fiſhes and other beaſts are allured unto the hook, nets, or ſnares, by ſome pleaſing bait. See Gen. 3. 5, &c. 2 Sam. 11. 2, &c.

V. 15. conceived] It is an alluſion to, or a metaphor taken from teeming women, who firſt conceive, and then bring forth. Now luſt may then be ſaid to have conceived, when the will entertains thoſe evil motions with conſent and delight, which luſt hath ſtirred up.

bringeth forth ſinne] That is, in outward act and deed; and therefore though luſt be not ſuch a ſin, yet it may be, and is properly ſin. See Rom. 7. 7.

finiſhed] Or, fully perfected. That is, committed adviſedly, deliberately, or with the full conſent of the will: or come to its height.

V. 16. Do not] It is a metaphor taken from Travellers, when they go out of the way, Pſal. 119. 176. 1 Cor. 6. 9. Gal. 6. 7.

V. 17. Every] Here is a reaſon given, why we ſhould not conceive that God is the Authour of ſin; and the reaſon is, becauſe God is the Authour of all good: now if he ſhould likewiſe be the Authour of ſinne by tempting man unto it, there would be found a change in him.

good gift] Whether of nature, grace, or glory.

from above] That is, from God, whoſe throne is in heaven. See Mat. 5. 34. Joh. 19. 11. Mat. 21. 25. Joh. 3. 27.

Father of lights] So called, Firſt, becauſe he is in himſelf light, 1 Joh. 1. 5. Secondly, and that chiefly here, becauſe he is the fountain of all wiſdom and knowledg, See verſ. 5. Joh. 1. 19. and every other good and perfect gift.

variableneſſe] Exod. 3. 14, &c.

V. 18. Of] The Apoſtle having taught, verſ. 17. that every good gift came from God, exemplifies this here in the great work of mans regeneration.

will] That is, out of his good pleaſure, and not for any merit in man. See Rom. 9. 11. Epheſ. 1. 9. Phil. 2. 15. 2 Tim. 1. 9. Joh. 1. 13.

with the word] Or, by, Epheſ. 1. 13. Col. 2. 5. See Rom. 10. 14. 1 Pet. 1. 23.

a kind of firſt fruits] Herein Saint James alludes unto the firſt-fruits under the law, which were certain handfuls of firſt ripe corn, and ſo conſequently of the beſt, which they were to offer unto God. See Levit. 23. 10, 11. Numb. 15. 20, 21. Hence firſt-fruits ſometimes import the firſt in order. So it is ſaid the houſe of Stephanus was the firſt-fruits of Achaia: firſt called into the fellowſhip of the Goſpel, 1 Cor. 16. 15. And ſo ſome underſtand this place, viz. of the Apoſtles and the Jews which were firſt regenerate. Sometimes again the beſt and chiefeſt. So Jer. 2. 3. And thus moſt underſtand this place; interpreting it of all the faithful, who are called the firſt-fruits, becauſe of their dignity and excellency above all men; being ſeparated out of the world, Epheſ. 1. 4. 1 Pet. 2. 9. and conſecrated to God.

creatures] Of men. So Mar. 16. 15.

V. 19. ſlow to ſpeak] Prov. 17. 27.

ſlow to wrath] Tit. 1. 7.

V. 20. wrath of man] That is, the unadviſed and immoderate wrath of man.

righteouſneſſe] That is, that which is right in Gods ſight: it rather leads him to that which is unlawful.

V. 21. lay] Gr. laying aſide, or putting off, &c. See Heb. 12. 1. Col. 1. 8. 1 Pet. 2. 1.

filthyneſſe] That is, all manner of ſin, ſo called from the polluting nature thereof: hence ſin is compared unto thoſe things which are moſt filthy and loathſom: as to the vomit of a dog, and the myre of a hogge, 2 Pet. 2. 22.

ſuperfluity] Or, remainder.

receive] As good ground. See Mat. 13. 8. 23. Mar. 4. 8.

engraffed] Rather, the implanted word. It is an alluſion to the ſowing and planting of ſeeds, herbs or young trees, wherein faithful miniſters are compared to planters. See 1 Cor. Thoſe who tranſlate the Original [engraffed] ſuppoſe that it is a metaphor taken from the art of engraffing twigs into a ſtock, who turn the ſtock into their own nature.

V. 22. be ye doers of the word] Mat. 7. 21. Rom. 2. 13. Luke 11. 28. Joh. 13. 17. 1 Joh. 2. 4.

deceiving] By falſe concluſions and inferences, as if it were ſufficient to hear without practiſe.

V. 22. like] By this ſimilitude, Saint James intendeth to teach us that thoſe, who are hearers and not doers of the word, quickly forget what they have heard.

V. 25. looketh] The original word ſignifieth an accurate and intentive looking upon a thing, bowing and ſtooping down to it. See Joh. 20. 5. 1 Pet. 1. 2. So that hereby we are to underſtand a diligent and intentive hearing, or reading Gods word, and meditating thereon.

law] Chap. 2. 12. Thereby underſtand the whole word of God regiſtred in the Scriptures, Pſal. 1. 2. which is called perfect, becauſe it contains all things neceſſary to be believed or practiſed; and the law of liberty, becauſe thereby we are born again to a new ſpiritual life, and ſo freed from the bondage and ſlavery of ſin, verſ. 18.

continueth] That is, in the belief and practiſe thereof; ſo the words following import.

deed] Or, doing.

V. 26. ſeeem] Flatters himſelf with a vain conceit and perſwaſion, that he is truely religious.

bridleth] Pſ. 39 1. It is a metaphor taken from unruly horſes, which muſt be bridled and curbed, that they may be ruled.

vain] Notwithſtanding all his boaſting.

V. 17. before God] That is, which God requireth, as pleaſing unto him.

world] Underſtand thereby both wicked men, unto whom we muſt not conform our ſelves, Rom. 12. 2. as alſo the pollution or luſts of the world. See 1 Joh. 2. 15, 16.

CHAP. II.

Verſ. 1. O*F glory*] Act. 7. 2. 1 Cor. 2. 7.

reſpect] Levit. 19. 15. Deut. 1. 17. & 16. 19. Prov. 24. 23. To reſpect perſons is for mens outward condition in the world, to reſpect and honour ſome, as for their riches and the like, and neglect and contemn others, though equally or better deſerving, as for their poverty and the like: and this is that fault which St. James warnes the converted Jews to take heed of in this verſe, and blames in them in the verſes following.

V. 2. For if] A fault too common even in theſe dayes in many aſſemblies, wherein the poor are not allotted or allowed a ſeat to ſit in

aſſembly] Gr. ſynagogue.

V. 3. in a good place] Or, well, or ſeemly.

V. 4. Are ye not] Or, are you not condemned in your ſelves, that is, convinced in your own conſciences, that ye do evil in ſo doing? See verſ. 9.

judges] Or, are ye not herein il-affected judges? or are ye not judges of your own evil reaſonings? ſeeing by this your dealing it is plain that you reſpect perſons.

V. 5. choſen] 1 Cor. 1. 26, 28.

rich in faith] Luk. 12. 21.

the] Or, that.

V. 6. deſpiſed the poor] 1 Cor.11.22.

V. 7. name] That is, the name of Chriſt, from which we are called Chriſtians.

by the which ye are called] Gr. which is called upon you.

V. 8. royal law] The law of loving our Neighbour as our ſelves is called the royal law, as high-wayes are called the Kings, that is, becauſe they are common to all : So this law ſhould be extended to all, whether poor or rich : there is no limitation in the law. Thou ſhalt love thy Neighbour, whoſoever he be, without reſpect of perſons.

Thou ſhalt love thy Neighbour] Levit.29.18. Rom.13. 9. Mat. 22.39.

V. 9. reſpect to perſons] Verſ. 1.

V. 10. For whoſoever, &c.] The Apoſtles meaning is this, viz. That ſuppoſe a man ſhould keep the whole law in ſubſtance, except in ſome one particular, yet by allowing himſelf in this particular, thereby he manifeſts that he kept no precept of the law in obedience and conſcience unto God; for if he did, then he would be careful to keep every precept; thus much the words following import, and hereby he manifeſts that he is guilty of all. Some conceive, that therefore ſuch an one may be ſaid to be guilty of all, becauſe by allowing himſelf in any one ſin, thereby he lyes under that curſe which is threatned againſt the tranſgreſſors of the law, Deut.27.26.

V. 11. he that ſaid] Or, that law which ſaid.

V. 12. law of liberty] See Chap.1.25.

V. 13. For he ſhall] Mat.6.15. & 18.35.

and] Or, but.

judgment] Or, condemnation : that is, the condemnation of Satan and ſin, becauſe of thoſe gracious promiſes which are made to merciful men, Pſal. 31. 1, &c. Matth. 5. 7. Luk. 6. 37.

V. 14. What] The drift and ſcope of the Apoſtle in the enſuing diſcourſe is to prove, that neither the bare outward profeſſion of faith, not that faith which is without works can juſtifie or ſave, but that it muſt be an operative or working faith, fruitful in good works.

faith] That is, which is without works. And the interrogation (can, &c.) is a ſtrong negation, as in the former clauſe (what doth it profit, &c.)

V. 15. In this and the next two verſes, St. James compares that faith, which is without works, to the good words of him who wiſheth well to a poor man, but doth nothing at all for him. This ſimilitude ſtands thus : even as fair words, where no relief is given, do nothing profit the needy, naked, and hungry man : ſo neither a bare profeſſion of faith, nor that faith which is without works can profit, that is, juſtifie or ſave.

V. 16. ſay unto them] 1 Joh.3.18.

warmed] Job 31.20.

V. 17. dead] Not that works give life unto faith; or are, as ſome ſpeak, the form of faith; for it is plain, that faith giveth life unto all good works that are acceptable unto God, as appeareth, Heb.11.6. and through the whole courſe of that chapter, and from Hab.2.4. But ſuch a faith is ſaid to be dead in reſpect of the work or office of juſtifying and ſaving, that is, that it availeth nothing to them, as may appear by the former ſimilitude; but is like a dead corps, which hath not power to produce any actions of life. Thus Abrahams body and Sara's womb are ſaid to be dead, becauſe they were unfit for generation, Rom.4.19. And the reaſon thereof may be this, viz. becauſe he that is deſtitute of good works, at leaſt of a ſincere reſolution to walk in obedience, cannot by faith apprehend the promiſes of life; for though faith onely apprehend the promiſes of life, yet theſe promiſes are made onely to thoſe who walk in ſincere obedience. See Pſal. 15.1, &c.

V. 18. a man] That is, one that hath indeed a true juſtifying or ſaving faith.

may ſay] So one that ſaith, that he hath a true juſtifying and ſaving faith, and yet doth not manifeſt it by his works.

without thy works] Some copies read, by thy works.

by my works] Becauſe an uniform, unpartial and univerſal obedience to Gods commandments, is a ſure and certain token of a juſtifying faith, 1 Joh. 2.3.

V. 19. Thou] Hereby it is evident that Saint James in this diſcourſe doth not onely ſpeak of a bare profeſſion of faith, or of a ſhew, and ſhadow of faith, but of ſome kind which is true in its kind, though not juſtifying or ſaving; this is generally called an hiſtorical or dogmatical faith, and is nothing elſe but an aſſent unto the word of God as true in general.

It is well] Yet not ſufficient, and the reaſon hereof is taken from the faith of devils, whoſe faith is not ſufficient to ſalvation, though they beleeve thoſe truths which are contained in the word of God.

beleeve] Mat.8.29. Mark.5.7.

tremble] By reaſon, that by their faith they beleeve that judgment wherewith they ſhall be ſentenced at the laſt day.

V. 20. dead] See Verſe 17.

V. 21. Was not] There were many other works performed by Abraham abundantly, teſtifying the truth of his faith; but the Apoſtle chuſeth this above all other, becauſe it was the moſt conſpicuous work by which his faith was tryed, and God ſeemed to take eſpeciall notice hereof, Gen.22.12.

our father] That is, according to the fleſh, becauſe thoſe to whom Saint James did write were the ſcattered Jews, Chap.1.1.

juſtified] That is, ſay ſome, declaritively and in the ſight of men, his works bearing witneſs of, or to his faith, and not cauſally and in reſpect of God; but becauſe St. James here diſputes againſt thoſe who looked to be juſtified by a faith ſeparated from good works, and that cauſally, and in the ſight of God, it cannot ſtand with the ſcope of the Apoſtle, unleſs here by [juſtified] we underſtand that juſtification whereby we are juſtified cauſally in the ſight of God; the ſtate of the queſtion being not, whether we are juſtified declaritively, or in the ſight of men by faith without good works; but, whether we are juſtified in the ſight of God without works.

works] That is, a working faith, for in this diſcourſe or diſpute, works are not oppoſed to a juſtifying or ſaving faith, but to ſuch a faith which hath not works; ſo that we may well by [works] as a part for the whole, or the effect for the cauſe, underſtand here ſuch a faith which hath works conjoyned with it. Beſides, how could the Apoſtle conclude as he doth, verſe 23. that the Scripture was fulfilled. viz. that Abraham beleeved, and it was accounted to him for righteouſneſs, from Abrahams being juſtified by works, when he offered up his ſon Iſaac, unleſſe by works here we underſtand a working faith? Did not the Apoſtle mean the ſame thing by works, verſ. 21. and by faith, verſ.23? Hence it appears, that there is no contradiction between Saint Paul, Rom.4.2. where he proves that Abraham was not juſtified by works, and Saint James, who here affirms, that he was, although they expreſs themſelves diverſly, diſputing againſt adverſaries of different diſpoſitions : Saint Paul diſputes againſt thoſe who looked to be juſtified or ſaved by their own perfect or inherent righteouſneſſe or works; Saint James againſt thoſe who looked to be ſaved by a faith without works; now there is a mean between theſe two extream opinions, wherein both agree, and that is, that juſtification is by a faith which hath works or a working faith.

offered] Gen.22. 9. That is, in readineſs of affection and full reſolution, though not in real act. See Heb.11.17.

V. 22. Seeſt thou] Gr, thou ſeeſt.

wrought] Or, cooperated to his works, that is, ſupported and directed him in the doing of them: Or which moved him to them. See Heb.11.17.

perfect] That is, declared to be perfect, even as it is ſaid that Gods power is perfected in weakneſſe, 2 Cor.12.9. That is, declared to be ſo.

V. 23. fulfilled] It was fulfilled before, Gen.15.6. How then is it ſaid here, that it was fulfilled at the oblation of Iſaac, which was many years after? Thus; the truth of that which was verified before, was then again confirmed by a new and evident experiment; or it may be ſaid to be fulfilled at Iſaacs oblation, though fulfilled before, becauſe Abraham was juſtified after the ſame manner through the whole courſe of his life. See Verſ.21.

Abraham] Gen.15.6. Rom.4.3. Gal. 3.6. friend] 2 Chron.20. 7. Eſ.41.8.

V. 24. by works] That is, working faith. See verſ.21.

by faith] That is, which is alone, or without good works. See Verſ.17.

V. 25. Rahab] Joſh.2.1, &c. Heb.11.31.

by works] That is, a working faith. See Verſ.21.

V. 26. ſpirit] Or, breath. No ſimilitude muſt be ſtretched beyond its ſcope. Now the ſcope of the Apoſtle in this ſimilitude is to ſhew, that faith without works is dead, and not that works are the form of, or give life unto faith, as the ſoul is the form of, and giveth life unto the body; for works cannot be the form of faith, ſeeing no outward thing can be the form of, or eſſential unto that which is internal; now works are outward, but the habit of faith internal. Some conceive, that the original word ſignifieth breath, and then the ſimilitude ſtands thus; even as the want of breath argues a dead body, ſo want of works a dead faith.

dead] See Verſ. 17.

CHAP. III.

Verſ. 1. B*E not*] That is, let no man uſurpe (as many imperiouſly do) authority to judg and cenſure others : that is, raſhly rigoroſly, Mat. 7. 1, &c. Luk. 6. 37, &c. Rom.2.1.

V. 6. world] That is, a mighty deal, or multitude, or heap : it commits a multitude of iniquity by flattering, lying, ſwearing, ſlandering,&c. amongſt] Gr. in the midſt.

whole] As little fire doth a whole wood.

deadly] That is,which brings death. Some think that herein Saint James alludes unto Pſal.140.4.

V. 9. Therewith] Amongſt other faults of the tongue the Apoſtle chiefly roprooveth backbiting, ſpeaking evil, and curſing of our neighbours, and that in them eſpecially, who would ſeem godly and religious.

curſe] Thereby underſtand all thoſe vices of the tongue, whereby we offend againſt our neighbours;the chief being put or mentioned for all : as in the Negative precepts of the ſecond Table of the Law.

the ſimilitude of God] Gen.1.26.

V. 10. Out of one] The intention of the Apoſtle in this and the two next verſes,is to ſhew, that bleſſing of God, and curſing our brethren cannot ſtand well together.

V. 11. place] Or, hole.

V. 13. Who is wiſe] It is as if the Apoſtle had ſaid; you perſwade your ſelves that in cenſuring others you ſhew much wiſedome and knowledge; but if there be that wiſdome and knowledg in you as ye pretend, then ſhew it by your works without imperious, and rigid, and proud cenſuring your brethren. See verſ.17.

meekneſs of wiſdom] That is,that meekneſſe which is guided by true Chriſtian wiſdom.

V. 14. envying] Or, emulation.

glory not] Of your wiſdom.

lie] Becauſe true wiſdom doth not conſiſt with ſuch bitter emulation and ſtrife. So it is ſaid, That he that ſaith that he hath no ſin, is a liar, 1 Joh.1.

V. 16. confuſion] Gr. tumult or unquietneſs.

V. 17. above] See Chap.1.17.

pure] See 2 Cor.11. 2. Phil. 4. 8. Tit. 2. 5. 1 Pet. 3. 2. 1 Joh.3.3. gentle] Or, patient. Act.24.4.

without partiality] Or, without wrangling ; or, without judging.

V. 18. fruit] That is,life eternal,which is the fruit of righteouſneſs,not by way of merit, but of grace, Rom.4.4.

ſown] Becauſe the world perſwadeth it ſelf, that they are miſerable which live peaceably ; therefore the Apoſtle here pronounceth, that they ſhall at length reap the harveſt of a peaceable righteouſneſſe, Mat.5.9.

make peace] That is, who are not onely of a peaceable diſpoſition, but ſeek peace, Pſal.34.15. 1 Pet.3.11. and labour to make peace between thoſe who are at variance.

CHAP. IIII.

Verſ. 1. VV*Arres*] That is, thoſe emulations,ſtrifes, and contentions, whereof the Apoſtle had ſpoken, Chap. 3. 14. and not open warrs, when as one Army is brought up againſt another; for there was no ſuch thing between Chriſtians in thoſe times wherein Saint James wrote, though open wars and fightings ariſe and ſpring from the ſame fountain.

fightings] Or, brawlings.

luſts] Or, pleaſures. Called pleaſures in the Original, becauſe of that delight or pleaſure which men take in them.

war] 1 Pet.2.11.

members] That is, in you, or in yonr members, becauſe luſts exerciſe a dominion over the members of the body, making uſe of them for the compaſſing of that which they deſire to bring to paſſe; and ſo they do over the faculties of the ſoul.

V. 2. ye kill] Some copies have, ye envy.

deſire to have] Or, eagerly deſire.

ye fight] See verſe 1.

luſt] See verſ.1.

V. 3. Ye ask] In the former verſe it is ſaid, that they did not ask; why then is it ſaid here, that they did ask ? Thus: it is by way of ſuppoſition ; as if the Apoſtle had ſaid ; viz. or ſuppoſe ye ask, yet ye receive not, becauſe,&c.

amiſſe] Job 35. 12. Becauſe to no good end, as the words following import.

luſts] Or, pleaſures.

V. 4. Ye adulterers] There is a double adultery mentioned in the Word of God ; the one is uſually called ſpiritual adultery, whereby, or when as a man or woman forſaking God, beſtows his love upon the creature, or the world. See Jer.13.27. Ezek.23.44,45. Hoſ.2.2. The other is uſually called corporall adultery, whereof there are ſeveral degrees ; as firſt adulterous thoughts, and inward burnings, Mat.5. 28. 1 Cor.7.9. 2 Pet.2. 20. Secondly, wanton words, Epheſ. 4. 29. Thirdly, laſcivious geſtures, Prov.5.20. & 7.13. Jer. 5.8. Fourthly,the act it ſelf, Deut. 23. 17. Levit. 19. 29. Some underſtand this place of the former; others, of the latter, which is the more probable opinion,becauſe of the words following.

the friendſhip] 1 Joh.2 15. Mat.6.24. 2 Cor.6.15.

V. 5. Scripture] Not in any particular place, or in ſo many words, though the ſenſe may be gathered out of the Scriptures. Some conceive that the Apoſtle relates to Gen. 6. 5. & 8.21. others to Numb.11.29.

The ſpirit] If we underſtand by [ſpirit] the ſpirit of a man unregenerate,as ſome do,then the laſt clauſe muſt be rendred, [luſteth to envy] that is, inciteth, or putteth on, or moveth earneſtly unto envy, and the like : but if by [ſpirit] we underſtand here the Spirit of God, which is the more probable opinion, becauſe that clauſe [dwelleth in us] is often attributed to the Spirit of God, Exod 25. 8. & 29.4. Rom.8.11. 1 Cor. 11. 16. then that clauſe muſt be underſtood of the Spirit of God, ſtriving and fighting againſt envy. See Gal.5.17. The Greek prepoſition many times ſignifies againſt; as Luk.20. 19. Heb.12.4.

to envy] Or, enviouſly.

V. 6. God reſiſteth] Prov.3.34. 1 Pet.5.5. Pſal. 101.5.

V. 7. God] Who beſt knows how to beſtow his gifts for your good. This rule is here preſcribed as a means to beat down, and bring in ſubjection the high thoughts of envy and emulation.

reſiſt the devil] Epheſ.4.27.

V. 8. Draw nigh] By faith,obedience, and fervent prayer.

he will] In mercy, and his gifts.

V. 12. who art thou] Rom. 14.4,10.

V. 13. Go to now] Prov.27.1.

V. 14 Whereas] Pſal.103.14,&c.

it is] Or, for it is.

V. 15. If the Lord] 1 Cor.4.19. Act. 8.21.

V. 16. boaſtings] That is,in your preſumptions that ye ſhall live long ; and gain much.

evil] 1 Cor.5.6. Becauſe hereby ye manifeſt that ye neither think of Gods providence, or the brevity, or uncertainty of your own lives.

V. 15. ſin] That is, a greater ſin, and ſo conſequently deſerve greater puniſhment. See Luk. 12.47. Mat. 11. 20,&c. Joh.9 41. & 15.22—24. Rom.1.20,&c. and 2.23.

CHAP. V.

Verſ. 1. R*Ich*] St.James threatneth not all rich men, but ſuch onely who made not either a right uſe of their riches, v.2 3. becauſe they did hoard up,and not diſtribute them to the neceſſities of the brethren; or elſe abuſed them to oppreſſion, v.4. & 6. or to luxury, v.5.

miſeries] Luke 16.23.

V. 22. corrupted] Or, rotted.

V. 3. cankered] Or, grown ruſty.

eat] That is, the abuſe of your riches ſhall be like fuel to put on fire the wrath of God againſt you. Some conceive, that Saint James intends hereby that their carking for riches ſhould conſume them, or ſhorten their dayes. See Mat.6.25,&c.

treaſure] It is as if the Apoſtle had ſaid, viz. Ye thought that ye had provided for many years, Luke 12.19. and it is true, ye have done it, but it is a treaſure of wrath, Rom.2.5. Some underſtand the place, as if hereby the Apoſtle condemned their folly in heaping up riches in the laſt times, or in their luſts, and therefore not likely to enjoy them.

V. 4. the hire of the labourers] Job 31.38,&c. Levit. 19. 13. Deut.24.15.

cryeth] Though all ſin deſerves Gods wrath, yet ſome eſpecially are called, for their greatneſſe, crying ſins, becauſe they cry unto God for ſudden vengeance, and as it were violently force God unto it: thus bloud, Gen.4.10. the ſins of Sodome, Gen.18.20. & 19.13. oppreſſion, Job 31.34. and the keeping of the wages of the hirelings, here.

ſabaoth] Or, hoſts: or, armies. So God is often ſtyled, becauſe all creatures are his armies, and are ready to execute his will at his command, Eſay 1.9. Jer:11.20. Rom.9.29.

V. 5. nouriſhed] Or, pampered.

in a day] That is, ſay ſome, unto the day of ſlaughter, as if here were an alluſion unto the fatting of beaſts for ſlaughter: or, as others conceive [in the day] that is, as in a day of feaſting. Prov.7.14. Iſa.22.13. becauſe at ſuch times there is uſually made a ſlaughter of beaſts; this, theſe rich men did daily. See Luke 16.19.

V. 7. Be patient] Or, be long patient, or ſuffer with long patience. 2 Tim.2.3. Heb.6.12.

early and latter rain] Deut.11.14.

V. 8. ſtabliſh] By meditating upon that crown of glory, which is laid up for you. See 2 Tim.4.6,&c.

for the coming] Job 19.25.

nigh] The time of ſuffering in this life is but ſhort; but for a moment in compariſon of that eternity of glory, which the faithfull ſhall enjoy hereafter. Hence it is ſaid, that the comeing of the Lord draweth nigh; Yet a little while, and he that cometh will come, Rev.22.20.

V. 9. Grudge not] Or, groan, or grieve not. Hereby, S. James forbids not all grieving for, or ſenſibleneſſe of afflictions, or a groaning and ſighing for the day of our redemption; but that groaning, grieving, or inward complaining and crying for vengeance, which is joyned with impatiency and murmuring againſt God.

condemned] That is, leſt God chaſtiſe and puniſh you for it.

Judge] That is, Chriſt. See John 5.22. Acts 10. 34. & 17. 31. 2 Cor.5.10. 2 Tim.4.8.

pitiful] Gr. of many bowels. Even as a tender mother hath her bowels moved, when her child is to ſuffer. See 1 King.3.26, Luk. 1.78.

V. 12. Swear not] Matth.5.34. & 23.15, 28. Saint James doth not forbid all ſwearing, as unlawful; ſee Deut. 6.13. Eſay 65.16. Jer.12.16. Rom.9.1,2. 2 Cor.1.13. Phil.1.8. Heb. 6.16. but raſh and cuſtomary ſwearing, too uſual (it ſeems) in his time. Some conceive, that the Apoſtle forbids onely ſwearing by the creature. Or, do not above all things, through impatience, be moved to take Gods Name in vain.

let your] That is, that which ye have to affirm, affirm it ſimply, without an oath; and that which ye have to deny, deny it ſimply, without an oath.

leſt ye fall] Exod.20.7. See verſ.9.

pray] Gen.20 7. That God would be pleaſed to pardon his ſins, and reſtore his health.

anointing] This was an extraordinary ſign of that extraordinary manner of healing by miracle, and not an ordinary ſign of any ſacrament under the Goſpel.

in the Name] That is, by calling on the Name of the Lord.

V. 15. of faith] Which proceedeth from faith, or made in faith. See Chap.1.6.

ſave] See Matth.9.22. Mark 5.23. Luke 8.36.

raiſe] See Matth. 9. 5, &c. Mark 9.27. Luke 8. 54. John 5.8.

if he have] It is not the Apoſtles intention by this conditional ſpeech, to intimate, as if any man was without ſin; See 1 John 1.13. but here he ſpeaks of ſuch ſpecial ſins, for which God doth often lay ſickneſſe upon men. See John 5.14. 1 Cor.10.5 & 1 Cor.11.30.

V. 16. Confeſſe] Some underſtand it of forgiving one another, but the Original is no where found in that ſenſe; it is applyed to confeſſing of ſins, Matth.3.6. Mark 1.5. Acts 19.18. and ſo here.

one to another] That is, ſay ſome, to thoſe Elders which were to be ſent for; but others more probably, of all the faithful, whether Paſtors of people, though chiefly the Paſtors, it being preſumed, that they are beſt able to comfort them, who find any ſin lye heavy upon their ſoul, and to aſſiſt them with their prayers.

V. 19. if any of you] Matth.18. 15.

erre] As a wandring traveller doth out of his way.

truth] That is, of the Goſpel, either in faith or manners. See verſ. 20.

convert] That is, the means or inſtrument, through Gods bleſſing, of converting him.

V. 20. hide a multitude of ſins] Some underſtand this clauſe of the ſins of the converting, as of Gods rewarding out of promiſe and mercy, thoſe who take pains to convert others; ſee 2 Cor.2.15. Others, of the ſins of the converted, whoſe ſins the converting are ſaid to hide, becauſe they are a means of Gods hiding and not imputing them unto them.

ANNOTATIONS

On the firſt Epiſtle general of

PETER.

The Argument.

THe Apoſtle Peter having by a ſpecial agreement of the Apoſtles among themſelves, the charge of thoſe of the Circumciſion committed unto him, Gal.2. 7,8,9. Was accordingly careful (becauſe he could not viſite them all all in perſon, being diſperſed into ſo many, and ſo remote Regions) to Write unto them this Epiſtle, Which might reach to them in their ſeveral places of abode. Therein his principal ſcope is, to perſwade them unto patience, and holy carriage, under thoſe afflictions, that either at preſent they were exerciſed Withal, or were further to expect ; And that by Arguments taken from the example of Chriſt, Gods calling them thereunto, the Glory that thereby ſhould redound unto God, and the good iſſue thereof, in regard of themſelves. And amidſt general Exhortations to ſuch Religious courſes, and unblameable converſation, as might adorn their Chriſtian Profeſſion, and ſtop the mouthes of malignant Adverſaries, he intermixeth Admonitions concerning the duties of ſeverall perſons in their ſpeciall places ; as of Subjects toWards Magiſtrates, Servants toWards their Maſters, Husbands and Wives, either to other, and of the Miniſters of God toWards the People of God, committed unto their charge, the younger ſort towards the elder, and of equals one to another ; Concluding all with Benedictions and Salutations.

V. 2. deſire] Or, earneſtly deſire, Pſal. 119. 20, 81, 82.

ſincere] That is, uncorrupted, unfalſified: whereby is meant the purity of Gods Word, it is without falſhood; ſee Pſal. 14. 8. and herein it is compared to milk, which of it ſelf is uncompounded.

milk] What is here meant by milk, is expreſſed, Chap. 1. 25. viz. the Goſpel, or the Wod of God revealed in the Goſpel: Compared to milk; firſt, becauſe of the ſweetneſſe of it, Eſa. 25. 6. Pſal. 19. 10. & 119. 103. Prov. 24. 13, 14. Secondly, becauſe of the purity thereof. See the note before. Thirdly, becauſe of the nouriſhing property thereof; ſo eſpecially here. See Eph. 4. 11, &c. 2 Tim. 3. 16, 17.

of the Word] The Syriak Tranſlation renders it [ſpiritual] and not without good probability, it being here oppoſed or compared to that bodily milk which new-born babes earneſtly deſire, and becauſe it is the food of the ſoul, which is a ſpirit, Heb. 12. 9. and ſo the Original word may be taken, Rom. 12. 1.

V. 3. If ſo be] As you profeſſe and perſwade your ſelf.

taſted] That is, have had any experimental knowledg of the goodneſſe and mercy of God in Chriſt; by our taſte we make experience what is ſweet, and what is ſower, or bitter. It may ſeem that St. Peter relates to Pſal. 34. 9. It is conceived by ſome, that hereby the Apoſtle followeth the former ſimilitude, becauſe children do by their taſtes eaſily diſcern their nurſes milk.

Lord] Chriſt Jeſus.

gracious] Underſtand it of that grace which is manifeſted and offered in the Goſpel. See Eph. 6. 9, 27. Tit. 3. 4. Heb. 6. 5.

V. 4. coming] That is, by faith. See John 6. 35. & 5. 40. 43, 44. Heb. 10. 22.

living ſtone] When Chriſt in the Scriptures is compared to a ſtone, it is either to the foundation-ſtone, to ſhew that the whole Church is built upon him. See 1 Cor. 3. 11. or elſe unto the chief corner-ſtone, to ſhew that the whole Church, or all the faithful, are coupled and united together in him. See Eph. 2. 13, 14, 20. & 4. 16. Col. 1. 19. He is further called, a living ſtone, becauſe he giveth life unto all thoſe who by faith are united unto him, Joh. 5. 26.

ſpiritual] Uſually in the Scriptures the Church of God is compared unto an houſe, and that both the Church militant, Pſal. 27. 4. & 69. 10. & 84. Iſai. 56. 5, 7. Epheſ. 2. 19. 22. 1 Tim. 3. 15. Heb. 3. 6. & 10. 21. as alſo the triumphant, Joh. 14. 2. 2 Cor. 5. 1, 2. And the reaſon may be, becauſe God dwelleth in the Church, by his grace and glory. It is further compared unto a ſpiritual houſe, either in oppoſition to our material houſes, or elſe becauſe it is built up by the Spirit of God. See Chap. 1. 22.

holy prieſthood] So all the faithful are ſtyled, becauſe (as the prieſts under the law) ſo theſe are ſeparated from the world to the ſervice of God, as the words following import. See Chap. 1. 22. Iſai. 61. 1.

ſpiritual] That is, your ſelves, and all that ſpiritual ſervice which ye perform unto God. See Pſal. 4. 6. & 50. 14. & 51. 19. & 107. 22. & 141. 2. Iſai. 56. 7. Hoſ. 14. 3. Rom. 12. 1. Phil. 2. 17. Heb. 13. 15.

V. 8. And a ſtone of ſtumbling] Iſa. 8 14. Rom. 9. 33.

a ſtone] A metaphor taken either from thoſe, who, making haſte, ſtumble at a ſtone in their way, and ſo hurt themſelves: or from mariners, who ſplit their ſhips upon rocks. See 1 Cor. 1. 23. So that by ſtumbling, here, the cauſe being put for the effect, we are to underſtand that judgement which unbelievers incur, through their infidelity.

diſobedient] That is, becauſe they are diſobedient unto the Goſpel. Participles oftentimes imply the cauſe of that which went before. See Heb. 11. 31.

whereunto] This clauſe hath reference, not to diſobedient; for God ordains no man thereunto, Pſal. 5, 5. Jam. 1. 13. but unto ſtumbling: whereby is ſignified, that hurt and condemnation which unbelievers receive from the word through their infidelity: thereby it becomes the ſavour of death unto death unto them, 2 Cor. 2. 16. See before. Hence the ſenſe of this clauſe is this, viz. whereunto: that is, unto which hurt or condemnation, expreſſed by ſtumbling. They: that is, thoſe unbelievers were appointed or ordained by God, through his judgement, for their infidelity. Some, by ſtumbling, underſtand diſobeying, or, unbelieving: and theſe make this the meaning of the words, viz. Into which diſobedience or unbelief God ſuffered them to fall, through his juſt judgement, for their former ſins. Others, refer this clauſe to word, and make this the Apoſtles meaning, viz. Unto the obeying or believing of which word they were called of God, darkneſſe] That is, ignorance, Chap.1.14. whereby is meant our ſinful and miſerable eſtate by nature, under which men are kept, through the ignorance of the Goſpel, Epheſ. 4.18. & 5. 8. Col.1.13.

his marvellous] Hereby is meant our eſtate of grace, through the effectual calling of God, by the knowledge of the truth. See 2 Cor.4.6. Acts 13.47. & 26.18. Epheſ.1.18. & 5.8. called marvellous, becauſe of the great myſtery of godlineſſe, which is revealed in the Goſpel: and called his, becauſe God revealeth it. See the places before.

V. 10. Hence it is gathered by ſome, that this Epiſtle was not written to the Jews onely, but alſo to the Gentiles; becauſe that of Hoſea 2. 23. is to be underſtood of the calling of the Gentiles, Rom.9.25.

V. 11. ſtrangers] 1 Chron. 9. 15. Here is a reaſon given why we ought to live holily, viz. becauſe in this world we are ſtrangers and pilgrims, and therefore we ought not to live according to the laws and luſts of the world, which is moſt corrupt.

Hence thoſe luſts are called fleſhly luſts, or, the luſts of the fleſh, which proceed from corrupt nature, Gal.5.1. Rom.13.14. Epheſ.2.3. 2 Pet. 2.18. Sometimes the luſts of the fleſh are taken for thoſe luſts which are againſt the ſeventh commandment, as 1 Joh.2.16.

V. 13. Gr. Therefore] Hereby two things are implyed: 1. That diſobedience to the civil magiſtrate proceeds from fleſhly luſts. See James 4.1. 2. That diſobedience unto the civil magiſtrate opens the mouth of unbelievers againſt the profeſſours of the Goſpel. See ver.11.

Submit your ſelves] Rom.13.1. Tit.3.1.

ordinance of man] By ordinance, is meant, the framing and ordering of civil government: called the ordinance of man, not becauſe it is invented by, or hath its original from men: (for all power is from God, Rom. 13. 1, 2. though ſometimes he uſeth men as means to derive power or government to ſuch or ſuch a perſon or perſons, that ſo they might be the more willing to yeeld obedience) but becauſe it is proper to men, or becauſe it is diſcharged by men.

V. 16. free] 1 Cor.7.22. Here the Apoſtle ſeems to prevent a ſecret objection. Some might reply; We are free, and therefore owe no obedience to any above us. The Apoſtle granteth the antecedent, underſtanding it of their freedome from the burthen and curſe of the law, and from the bondage of ſin and Satan; but withal he admoniſheth them, not to withdraw, under the pretext of this their freedom, their obedience due unto the Magiſtrate.

See Matth.18. 15. 1 Cor.9.19. For, ſuch husbands ſeeing the good converſation of their wives, may be brought to have a liking and good opinion of the Goſpel, and ſo to have a deſire to it, and by the grace of God, to frame their life unto it.

V. 2. fear] Both of offending their husbands, and of offending God.

V. 3. Whoſe adorning] 1 Tim.2.9. Iſa.3.16.

adorning] The Apoſtle doth not here abſolutely forbid women to adorn themſelves; ſee Gen. 29. 30. ſo it be without exceſſe and pride, and according to their places: but comparatively, that is, that they make not that outward adorning their chief ornament.

V. 4. hidden] This is oppoſed to the outward decking of the body. Hereby is meant the new man, which according to God is created in righteouſneſſe and true holineſſe, Epheſ. 4. 24. See Rom.2.29. & 7.22. 2 Cor.4.16.

weaker] It is uſual in the Scripture to compare man in general unto a veſſel; ſee 1 Sam.21. 1 Theſſ.4.4. 2 Cor.4.7. Hence the woman is here called weaker veſſel, becauſe generally ſhe is weaker, both in the faculties of her ſoul, and the conſtitution of her body. And in that ſhe is called the weaker veſſel, thereby is implyed the reaſon wherefore husbands muſt ſo carry themſelves as before, viz. becauſe women are the weaker veſſels. Weaker veſſels, as thoſe of glaſſe and earth, we uſe carefully and tenderly: and ſo husbands ſhould carry themſelves towards their wives.

ANNOTATIONS
On the ſecond Epiſtle of Saint PETER.

The Argument.

IT ſeems, that after the Writing of the former Epiſtle, Wherein the Apoſtle had laid down the true Doctrine of Salvation by Chriſt alone, and ſome Rules for good life, becoming ſuch as ſhould be ſaved by him; there aroſe certain men, who were remiſſe in their lives; others who were fearful of Gods Truth, laid down in the Scriptures; as alſo, falſe Teachers, who living looſely themſelves, miſled and corrupted others, and ſcoffers at the comeing of Chriſt to judgment. The Apoſtle therefore after ſalutation, Chap.1.1,2. and mention of the riches of Gods Mercy to true Chriſtians, Verſe 3,4. Perſwades to good works, from Verſe 5. to Verſe 12. from thence, to the end of the firſt Chapter: He being very old, and neer unto death, Verſe 14. before his departure, minds them of Truths forgotten by many of them. In the ſecond, he armes them againſt falſe Teachers, and deters them from Apoſtacy. In the ten firſt Verſes of the third Chapter, he confutes ſuch as ſcoffe at the coming of our Saviour, and the end of the World: From thence to the 17. Verſe, he ſtirs them up to prepare for that day, and to fit themſelves for that glorious eternal Habitation that is prepared for them. In the two laſt Verſes, he exhorts them to take heed of being miſled, and to increaſe in Grace, and in the knowledge of Chriſt; Which the Lord give us Grace alſo to do, through Jeſus Chriſt our onely Lord and Saviour, Amen.

CHAP. I.

Verſ. 1. S*imon*] Gr. Symeon, as it is tranſlated, Acts 15.14. The name of one of Jacobs ſons, Gen. 29. 33. and of another godly man, Luke 2. 25. He is called Simon alſo, Matth.10.2. Joh. 21.16. as we commonly call him. It ſeems that this was the name that was given him by his parents, at his circumciſion.

Peter] A ſirname given him by Chriſt, John 1. 42. It may be, to diſtinguiſh him from Simon the Canaanite, who was alſo an Apoſtle, Matth.10.2,4. It was renewed, upon his confeſſion, Matth.16.16,17,18. The former name, Simon, comes from a word that ſignifies hearing. This later name, Peter, ſignifies a ſtone. The name imports, an hearer, and firm obſerver of Gods Word; and ſuch an one indeed this Apoſtle was, Matth.7.24.

A ſervant] See on Rev.1.1.

an Apoſtle] One called by Chriſt immediately, Matth. 10. 2. and ſent to preach the Goſpel in any part of the world, Matth. 28.19. and having authority over all Churches, 1 Cor.9.1. compared with 2 Cor.11.28.

of Jeſus Chriſt] See on Matth.1.1. Rev.1.1.

to them] To whom this Epiſtle was written. See on Chap. 3. verſ. 1.

that have obtained] The Greek word, in the primitive ſignification of it, ſignifieth getting a thing by lot, as inheritances were ſometimes divided, Joſh.14.2. yet it is uſed for obtaining a thing any other way.

like] In ſubſtance, not equal in degree; for faith might be ſtronger in the Apoſtle, then it was in them to whom he writ, Rom.1.12. 2 Cor.4.13. Tit.1.4.

precious faith] 1 Pet. 1. 7. It is called ſo, in regard of the precious promiſes it layes hold upon, v. 4. which belong alike to all believers.

with us] Apoſtles, as 1 Joh.1.3. and other Chriſtians, Jude v.3. 2 Cor.1.21. Or, with me. See on 1 John 1.1,3.

through the righteouſneſſe] By the merits of Chriſt, who hath deſerved for us both grace and glory. Gr. in the righteouſneſs. Our faith reſts on Chriſts merits. Or, by Gods mercy and bounty. So the word is uſed, 2 Cor.9.9. Faith then comes not by any deſert of ours, but from Chriſts merits, or Gods mercy, or by Gods faithfulneſſe in keeping his promiſes, Pſal. 89. 33. Luke 18.8. 1 Joh.1.9.

of God, and our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt] Gr. of our God and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt. See on Jude v. 25.

V. 2. Grace and peace be multiplyed unto you] See on 1 Pet. 1.2. Rev.1.9.

through the knowledg of God, and of Jeſus] That is, through faith in God, and Chriſt made known to us, Iſa.53.12.

our Lord] 1 Cor. 8.6.

V. 3. According as his divine power] It may be referred to that that went before. Let grace and peace be multiplyed to you, according to the riches of his proviſions for us. Or to the words following: As God hath given us all things, &c. ſo Adde to your faith, virtue, &c. ver. 5. So Paul begins, after ſalutation, 1 Tim. 1. 3. Or, O how hath his divine power, &c. Rom. 11. 33.

hath given unto us] To us Chriſtians, to enjoy: or, to us Apoſtles, to preach to you, that ye may be partakers of the Divine nature, ver. 4.

all things that pertain unto life and godlineſſe] All things needful to preſerve our natural or ſpiritual life here. Or, all things requiſite to bring us to heaven hereafter, and to enable us to live godlily here.

through the knowledge of him] See on ver. 2.

that hath called us] God, 1 Pet. 1. 15. Or, Chriſt, Rom. 1. 6.

to glory and virtue] To glory in heaven, and vertue on earth. Or, by glory and vertue; That is, by a glorious and powerful Goſpel. Or, employing his glorious power to convert us, Epheſ. 1. 19. & 3. 6.

V. 4. Whereby] By which glory and power appearing in the preaching of the Goſpel. Or, Becauſe that. Seeing God hath made ſuch glorious promiſes to us, he hath given us all things needful for grace and glory.

exceeding great and precious promiſes] Promiſes of very great matters, and things of high price and account.

that by theſe] By theſe promiſes: or, by theſe things given us, ver. 3.

you might be partakers of the divine nature] Not of Gods ſubſtance, which is incommunicable; but have excellent graces given us, whereby we are made like to God in wiſdom and holineſſe, wherein the Image of God, after which man was at firſt created, conſiſts, Eph. 4. 24. Col. 3. 10.

in the world through luſt] In worldly men, by reaſon of wicked deſires reigning in them, 1 Joh. 2. 15, 16.

V. 5. And beſides this] It is not enough to flee corrupt luſts, but we muſt alſo get ſtore of vertue. Or, And for this very thing alſo. Gods grace to us, ſhould make us ſtrive to encreaſe his graces in us. Or, So do this very thing alſo. So the firſt particle is tranſlated, Joh. 6. 57. As God hath given you great benefitsl ver. 3. ſo do ye ſeek to add grace to grace. Or, Therefore do ye alſo this very thing. So the firſt particle is tranſlated, 1 Cor. 15. 13. And if the beginning of the third verſe be read by way of exclamation, it anſwers well to it.

giving] Gr. bringing in beſides. As not having done enough in avoiding luſts, unleſſe ye be pious.

all diligence] The greateſt diligence that ye can poſſibly. The word comes from another word in the original, that ſignifies to make haſte, as diligent menuſe to do, who omit no occaſions to accompliſh their juſt ends.

vertue] Moral vertues, which may make you acceptable in the ſight both of God and of men, Phil. 4. 8. 1 Pet. 3. 4.

V. 8. be in you, and abound] Be plentifully in you, Col. 3. 16.

they make you, that ye ſhall neither, &c.] Ye ſhall not only not be negligent and unfruitful, but alſo be painful in good works, and ſee fruit of your faith, ver. 5.

be barren] Gr. be idle. They are idle, not onely who do nothing, but alſo who uſe not the gifts they have to their beſt improvement and advantage.

unfruitful] As fruits are pleaſing to us, ſo are good works to God; and are therefore called fruits, Matth. 12. 23. Gal. 5. 22. 1 Theſſ. 1. 4. Col. 3. 20. Heb. 13. 16.

in the knowledge] In exerciſing your knowledge. That you know of Chriſt, will make you fruitful in good works.

for if ye do theſe things] Continuance then in well doing, is the way to get and keep aſſurance of ſalvation.

ye ſhall never fall] Jude ver. 4. Our life is likened to a race, 1 Cor. 9. 24. we muſt take heed leſt we fall, and come ſhort of the prize ſet before us. The children of God may fall into ſome ſins by weakneſſe; but never ſo as to loſe the goal, ver. 11. Pſal. 15. 1, 5. Rom. 11. 11. Or, ye ſhall never ſtumble. While ye are careful ſo to do, as before, ye ſhall go on ſmoothly towards heaven, without falling into any ſin. of theſe things] To encreaſe your former graces, ver. 5.

though ye know them] Rom. 15. 15. 1 Joh. 2. 21. For we oft forget, through multitude of worldly buſineſſes, what we know of holy and heavenly things.

V. 13. I think it meet] In regard of their natural ſluggiſhneſſe. Or, I think it a juſt thing. For he was an Apoſtle, and it was his duty to do it, 1 Cor. 6. 9.

V. 14. Knowing] Very probably, by divine revelation, as it is likely Paul did alſo, 2 Tim. 4. 6.

to have theſe things alwayes in remembrance] Or, to have whereby ye may alwayes remember theſe things. As I will alwayes call upon you, while I live, (as ver. 12, 13.) ſo I will leave you this epiſtle, as upon record, that may ever put you in mind of theſe things, when I am dead.

V. 16. For we have not followed] Becauſe I have taught Gods truth, therefore I would have it remembred after my death: whereas if I had delivered fables, growing now towards my death, I ſhould rather repent of it, and be willing to have them forgotten, and buried with me.

cunningly deviſed fables] Woven together ſo artificially, that they might ſeem to be true, although indeed they be moſt falſe. Store of ſuch had the Jewes, and heathen Poets in thoſe dayes, and the Mahometans and Papiſts have in theſe times.

power and coming] Powerful coming in the fleſh, which our Saviour Chriſt ſhewed in effectual perſwading many to believe what he taught, and confirming it by miracles, Matth. 7. 28, 29. & 8. 7, 8. Luke 24. 19, 32. Rom. 1. 4.

in the holy mount] The mount whereon he was tranſfigured; which what mount it was, is uncertain. It is called holy, becauſe God appeared there; as the ground where God appeared to Moſes is called holy, Exod.3.5.

V. 19. We have alſo] Leſt any ſhould not believe Peter, but think the former apparition mentioned by him to be a fiction of his, he cites the Prophets, as acknowledgers of Chriſts glory, and the foretellers of his coming, 1 Pet.1.10.11.

a more ſure word] That is, a moſt ſure, or a very ſure word. A comparative, for a ſuperlative; as Acts 25.10. 1 Cor. 13. 13. for the former viſion being from God alſo, as the prophecies were, was in it ſelf as ſure as they. Or, more ſure then thoſe cunning fables, which many follow, v. 16. Or, more firm, as it is in the Greek. The prophecies were, by long uſe, more ſetled in the hearts of the godly Jews, who believed all the prophets ſpake, to come from God, Joh.5. 45. and 9. 29. Luke 24. 27. Act.26.22,23. and therefore might ſooner perſwade them, then the report of a voice from heaven, although that were ſure alſo. Pauls doctrine was examined by the prophets, Act. 17.11.

untill the day dawn] The times of the law were like the night, wherein candles were lighted; the time of the Goſpel like day-light, wherein the ſun ſhines. Or, by the light in a dark place, may be meant the revelation of Gods truth here; and by the day, the viſion of Chriſt in heaven.

the day ſtar] Chriſt, Revel.2.28. & 22.16.

V. 20. of any private interpretation] Such as ariſeth out of mans own brains, and not out of the Scripture it ſelf. He condemns not one mans, or few mens interpretation of a place of Scripture, differing from others; for God may at firſt reveal a truth by one or few men, which afterwards may be embraced by many.

V. 21. For the prophecy came not] It belongeth to God, the author of prophecy, to give the ſenſe of it.

in old time] Or, at any time.

by the will of man] They would not propheſie when they would, or what they would, 2 Kings 4.27. & 21. 14. but when and what God would.

V. 14. Having eyes full of adultery] Gr. of an adultereſſe, Mat. 5. 28. They were not given to riot and exceſe onely, but to a lacivious and looſe courſe of uncleanneſſe alſo. The eyes are mentioned, becauſe they let in adulterous thoughts to the ſoul, Gen.34.1,2. 2 Sam.11.2,4. And they are ſaid to be full of the adultereſſe, as if they cared not to look on any other object.

Or, a little eſcaped. Such as profeſſed the true religion, having left idolatry, and lived without ſcandal. Or, a while eſcaped. Seemed to have done ſo, by embracing the true religion for a time; but ſoon after ſhewed they had not done it, by returning to courſes contrary thereunto, 1 Joh. 2.18,19.

V. 21. it had been better for them] That is, leſſe evil. They had ſinned leſſe, and ſhould have been puniſhed leſſe. For neither the ſtate of ignorant ones or backſliders is good; but the former is leſſe dangerous then the latter.

So are the times of the Goſpel called by the prophets, Iſai. 2. 2. Mic. 4. 1. Peter meaneth, the times then beginning, and likely to hold on to the end of the world, in greater or leſſer meaſure: for he warns thoſe that then lived, as well as others in after-ages, to take heed of ſuch ſcoffers: and ſuch then began to ariſe in the Church, Acts 20.29,30. 1 Iohn 2.18.

all things continue, &c.] And ſo it is likely they will continue ſtill, and the world will have no end.

V. 5. For this they willingly are ignorant of] They might have been informed, but will not: for they obſerve not the things written in Scripture of the end of the world, and day of judgement; elſe they would not be ignorant of theſe things. Or, they wilfully neglect to conſider, that the earth was made by Gods power onely, and the heavens alſo; and that the world ſuffered much alteration in the flood, and ſo may be deſtroyed in the end. Or, For they that think thus, are ignorant, that by the word of God, &c.

ſtanding out of the water, and in the water] Or, conſiſting, or, ſubſiſting. Gr. ſtanding together; ſo as it was not rent in pieces by the water. By Gods power the earth was upheld after it came out of the waters, as well as before, Gen. 1.2,9. Or, ſtanding out of the water, and by the water. For God hath made the earth ſo high, that the ſea cannot overflow it, though it girt it about. Pſal. 24.2.

V. 8. be not ignorant] Know it, and believe it firmly, Rom. 11.25. 1 Cor. 10.1. 1 Theſſ. 4.13.

V. 9. The Lord is not ſlack concerning his promiſe] Or, The Lord of the promiſe is not ſlack. He that made it, will perform it in due time. They are not ſlack, that are long ere they come; but they that come not at their due and appointed time. God puts not off his coming one hour beyond the ſet time, Hebr. 10. 37.

not willing that any ſhould periſh] Any of his elect. He ſtayes till they all be brought in by repentance, and faith in Chriſt. Nor any at all, by his directing and approving will, Ezek. 33. 11.

but that all ſhould come to repentance] All his elect, as before. Or, ſome of all ſorts of men; high and low, wiſe and fooliſh, Jews and Gentiles. So the word all, is uſed, Matth. 4.23. Or, he ſpeaks of Gods approving will, whereby he likes of repentance in any.

V. 10. But the day of the Lord] Every day is the Lords, to diſpoſe of as he pleaſeth. But the day of judgement is called his, in a peculiar manner, 1 Cor. 5. 5. 2 Cor. 1. 14. becauſe Chriſt the Lord will then viſibly judge all the world, Acts 17. 31. Rom. 2.16.

will come as a thief in the night] Matth. 24. 43, 44. Luke 12. 39,40. 1 Theſſ. 5.2. Revel. 16. 15. As a thief comes ſuddenly and unexſpectedly, ſo will Chriſt come to judgement. No man can conjecture when that day will be, Matth. 24.36.

the heavens ſhall paſſe away with a great noiſe] Like as a whirlwind or tempeſt comes roaring, and carries all before it: ſo ſhall the ſtarrie skie paſſe away, Matth. 24.29. Not by being deſtroyed utterly, but being turned into a new form, verſ. 13. Pſal. 102.26. Rom. 8.21.

and the elements] The air and water betwixt the heaven and earth.

the earth alſo] Either the earth is not included under the word elements before; or it is particularly named, becauſe in it the burning will moſt viſibly appear.

and the works that are therein] The works of God made at firſt by creation, or produced daily by nature; or the works of men, made by art, as houſes, ſhips, &c.

V. 11. Seeing then that all theſe things, &c.] If heaven and earth muſt be ſo wonderfully purged, to make a fit dwelling for us, ver. 13. how holy had we need to be! Or, ſeeing ſuch a fearful appearance of judgement ſhall then be.

What manner of perſons ought ye to be] That is, how great a degree of godlineſſe ſhould we labour to attain. So the word is uſed, Matth. 8.27. Mark 13.1. Luke 1. 29. & 7. 39. 1 Joh. 3.1.

V. 12. Haſting unto the coming] Or, Haſtening the coming. Not onely expecting it, or looking for it, as Luke 12. 43. Matth. 24. 42. but alſo, as it were, going forth to meet Chriſt with burning lamps, Matth. 25. 1. So ſervants that deſire their maſters return, get all things ready to entertain him, againſt he comes. And ſo ſhould we prepare our ſelves for Chriſts coming, by fitting our ſelves for it, more then ſeeking after worldly things. He haſtes, that followeth one thing to finiſh it, and is not ſo diſtracted as to begin many things, and end none. The one thing needful for us, Luke 10.42. is to fit our ſelves for Chriſts coming.

of the day of God] Or, of that day of God, mentioned, ver. 10.

wherein] In which heavens: or, in both which, heaven and earth.

dwelleth righteouſneſs] That is, righteous men onely; whereas in this world dwell many ſinners, which then ſhall be all in hell. So righteouſneſſe is taken, Iſai. 1. 21. Or, the whole verſe may be thus read; Nevertheleſs we, in whom dwelleth righteouſneſs, look for new heavens, and a new earth, according to this promiſe. That is, we that are juſtified by faith in Chriſt, and ſanctified by his Spirit, expect eternal hapineſs in another world, when this world ſhall be at an end.

V. 14. in peace] Reconciled to God by Chriſt, Coloſſ.1.20. Rom 5.1. Or, in peace of minde and conſcience, not troubled nor affrighted.

without ſpot and blameleſs] Eph.5.27. Jude v. 24 Col. 1.22.

V. 15. account that the long ſuffering of the Lord is ſalvation] Think not that God doth put off his coming, out of ſlackneſſe, as ſome ſuppoſe, v. 9. nor to do hurt to men; but for the good of his, and to further their ſalvation. Gods patience furthers our ſalvation much, by affording time of repentance, and of the uſe of the means, Rom.2.4.

our beloved brother Paul] Our brother in office, and dear fellow-apoſtle.

according to the wiſedom given unto him] From above, whereby he was fitted to be an apoſtle, Gal.1.11,12.

V. 16. In all his epiſtles] In all his other epiſtles, Mat.16.14.

in which] In which epiſtles. Or, among which things, as the Greek copies run. Among the things ſpoken by him of this ſubject.

hard to be underſtood] Becauſe of the height of the matter, and of ſome particular expreſſions.

which they that are unlearned and unſtable] The Scriptures then are not dangerous for private men to uſe, if by often reading them they get knowledg, and bring ſetled minds with them. The cauſe of hurt by them, is not in the difficulty of them, but in mens unlearned and unſtable minds, who live in ignorance, v. 5. and have no affection to do what they learn out of them, Joh.7.17. Pſal. 25. 14.

wreſt] By miſ-interpreting, and drawing them violently from the true ſenſe to a falſe one, to uphold their errours.

as they do alſo the other Scriptures] Written by the other apoſtles or prophets. They ſerve them all alike: whereby it appears, that the fault is not in the Scripture, but in themſelves.

unto their own deſtruction] Clean contrary to the end for which they were written, which is ſalvation, Joh.21.31.

V. 17. Seeing ye know theſe things before] Out of the doctrine of the other apoſtles, and by my putting you in minde of them in this epiſtle, verſ. 1, 2. and therefore being ſo forewarned of them, ought the better to be forearmed againſt them.

beware] He doth not ſay, Read no Scripture, becauſe ſome places are hard; or, Believe the Churches interpretation. He rather warns them to take heed of ſeducers, and ſuch a miſ-interpreted the Scriptures; and expects they ſhould read them diligently, that they might grow in knowledge, ver. 18. In vain had he writen this epiſtle to private men, for a memorial when he ſhould be dead, Chap. 1. 15. and called upon them to be mindful of the doctrine of the prophets and apoſtles, who were dead, ver. 2. and Jude alſo in his epiſtle, if they ought not to read the Scriptures. The Iſraelites, who had far leſſe knowledg then Chriſtians have now, are blamed for not doing it, Hoſ.8.12. and the Jews exhorted to do it, Joh.5.39.

V. 18. grow in grace] Get more ſenſe of Gods favour daily. Or, ſeek to encreaſe the graces of his Spirit in you, ch.1.5,8,10.

and in the knowledg] How can they do that, without reading the Scriptures? Ignorance then is not the mother of devotion, in Peters own language, whom the papiſts boaſt of, more than the Jews did of Moſes, by whoſe teſtimony our Saviour confutes them, Joh.5.45.

ANNOTATIONS
On the firſt Epiſtle of S. JOHN.

The ARGUMENT.

THe beloved Apoſtle John living longer then the reſt of the Apoſtles, and obſerving the decay of Truth, Godlineſs, and Charity, in many Chriſtians, writes this Epiſtle as a ſalve for the ſores of the Church. He enterweans Truth of Doctrine, with Godlineſſe of life, and love of the Brethren throughout the Epiſtle. Fit ſubjects for him to write of, who was an Apoſtle, and eminent for Piety, and chiefly beloved by Chriſt himſelf. Great reaſon therefore, that all Chriſtians ſhould hearken to him in all theſe things.

This firſt Epiſtle is called general, becauſe it is not directed to any particular perſons, as the ſecond and third are: The one to a ſingular Woman, the eldeſt Lady; The other to a choice man, called Gaius. God grant that by reading of it, we may get Grace to increaſe in Faith, Piety, and Charity. Amen.

CHAP. I.

Verſ. 1. THat which was from the beginning] From the beginning of the world. An alluſion to Gen. 1. 1. Joh. 1. 1. Prov. 8. 22. Chriſt is hereby intended, who is the true God, Chap. 5. 20. and was before the beginning of the world. But the Scripture, ſpeaking of him which is from eternity, uſeth this phraſe, from the beginning, to deſcend to our capaſity, who are not able to comprehend any thing before the beginning of the world, Matth.25.34.

which we] We apoſtles, choſen witneſſes to publiſh theſe things Acts 1. 8. and 10. 41.

have heard] The truth of theſe things was confirmed to them by three ſenſes; hearing, ſeeing, handling,; the latter ſtill ſurer then the former. He doth not ſay, Which we have read, to wit, in the prophets: neither doth mean, what they had heard of the Phariſees, expounding the prophets: But from John the Baptiſt, Joh. 1. 36,37,40. from Chriſt himſelf, in his ſermons, as the Samaritanes did, Joh. 4. 42. For, as he was true God, ſo was he true man alſo; and, in his humane nature, teſtified of his divine. Yea, they heard God the Father from heaven teſtifie of him alſo, Matth. 17. 5. 2 Pet. 1. 17,18.

which we have ſeen] We ſaw him in his humane nature, and ſaw his miracles, Luke 1. 2. 2 Pet.1.16. Eye-witneſſes are more worthy of credit then ear-witneſſes, Acts 4. 20. Joh. 3. 11. and 15. 27. Acts 1.21,22. & 10. 40,41. This proves Chriſt to be true man, as his being from the beginning ſets out his Deity.

with our eyes] So men uſe to ſpeak of things moſt certain, yet not ſo well known to their hearers, Job 19. 27. And ſo of the ears, Pſal. 44. 1. Some reſtrain it to the viſion in the mount, where they ſaw Chriſts glory: but it may be underſtood of all viſible declarations of the truth of Chriſts humane nature to them, by his eating, drinking, &c. and of his divine, by working miracles in their ſight. Ioh. 1. 14. 1 Tim. 3. 16.

which we have looked upon] Wiſhly, and deliberately: for we ſee many things we do not regard, nor faſten our eyes on them. We looked upon him, as men look on rare ſights in a theatre, diligently, clearly, cheerfully, 1 Cor. 4. 9. 1 Pet. 1. 12.

our hands] Touching is the ſureſt ſenſe: for eyes and ears may ſooner be deceived, in bodily ſubſtances, then hands, Luke 24. 39. Ioh. 20. 25.

have handled] Gr. touched: As muſicians touch their ſtringed-inſtruments. They touched him both before his reſurrection, Matth. 14. 31. and after it, Ioh. 20. 27.

of the word] Of Chriſts humane nature, who is alſo the word of God, Ioh. 1. 1. as being begotten of the Father, as the word is by the minde; and making the Fathers minde known to us, as our words make our meaning manifeſt to others.

of life] Who is a living word himſelf, and gives both natural and ſpiritual life to others, Ioh. 1. 4. & 5. 26. Chap. 5. 11.

V. 2. For the life] See on v. 1.

was manifeſted] Before, it lay hid in it ſelf; now it was manifeſted by incarnation, Ioh. 1. 4. 1 Tim. 3. 16. and by miracles, which none elſe did, Ioh. 3. 2. & 7. 31, 46. & 11. 47. & 12. 37. & 15. 24.

we have ſeen it] This is repeated, for more aſſurance, that none need doubt of it.

and bear witneſs] For the glory of Chriſt. See on v. 1.

and ſhew unto you] For your good. Ye could never have found it out your ſelves, if God had not revealed it to us, and we taught it you, Rom. 10. 14.

which was with the Father] Joh. 1. 1, 2. The word imports, neerneſs, with ſome diſtinction: therefore alſo he is ſaid to be in the Father, Joh. 14. 10, 11. Chriſt is one God with the Father, yet a diſtinct perſon from him: and he was with him inviſible altogether, till he was incarnate.

was manifeſted unto us] Joh. 1. 14.

V. 3. That which we have ſeen] This is the third time repeated, to put it out of all queſtion.

that ye alſo] Who did not ſee, hear nor handle the word of life, as we did, verſ. 1. So that he wrote this epiſtle not to get ought from them, but to do good to them, that they might have a ſhare with him in ſpiritual comforts, 2 Cor. 12. 14.

May have fellowſhip] That being united by faith with Chriſt, and with his members, ye may partake of his graces, and ſpiritual life from him; and by him be united to God the Father, and have communion with him, Joh. 17. 21. Heb. 3. 14.

with us] Apoſtles, whom ye think happy, 2 Cor. 1. 21.

and truly, &c.] And not with us onely, but with God and Chriſt alſo, which is a greater preeminence.

V. 4. Theſe things write we unto you] He doth not ſay, We preach them, but, We write them; to ſhew, that there is enough in Scripture, without tradition, to bring us to a comfortable life on earth, and perfect joy in heaven.

that your joy may be full] That by encreaſe of your faith, 2 Joh. v. 12. ye may have peace of conſcience, and joy of the Holy Ghoſt, in ſo great a meaſure, that ye may not doubt of Gods favour, but rejoyce in it continually, till ye come to enjoy him for ever, Rom. 5. 1, 2. 1 Pet. 1. 6. Thus John, the beloved diſciple of Chriſt, imitates his maſter in the very phraſe it ſelf. See Joh. 15. 11. & 17. 13.

V. 5. This then is the meſſage] The ſum of the Goſpel, is communion with God, which cannot be without regeneration.

which we have heard of him] Gr. from him. Not, concerning him, by ſome other, as Joh. 1. 15. We heard it from Chriſt, verſ. 3. who teſtifies concerning his Father, as follows in this verſe.

that God is light] Full of wiſdom and holineſſe, Jam. 1. 17.

in him is no darkneſs at all] No ignorance nor ſin.

V. 6. If we ſay] In heart, as Pſal. 14. 1. Or, profeſs it in word.

and walk in darkneſs] He doth not ſay, And have walked in darkneſſe; for all have done ſo, before regeneration: but, If we walk in darkneſſe, Eph. 5. 8 Walking ſets not out any one action, but the continued courſe of life, Pſal. 119. 1. and 128. 1. To walk in darkneſſe, is to be converſant in ignorance and ſinne.

we lye] In ſaying ſo: for, what fellowſhip hath light with darkneſs? 2 Cor. 6. 14.

do not the truth] Walk not according to Gods word, Joh. 3. 21. Or, deal not truely, that is, ſincerely.

V. 7. If we walk in the light] If we live according to the light of grace received, and go on in a wiſe and holy way, till we come to perfection.

as he is in the light] He poſſeſſeth the fulneſſe of wiſdom and holineſſe from eternity, 1 Tim. 1. 16.

we have fellowſhip one with another] We with God, and God with us. Or, we Chriſtians one with another.

the blood of Jeſus Chriſt] Leſt any ſhould deſpair, as not being able to walk perfectly in the light, as God is in it, he adds this for our comfort, that, if we do our endeavour, Chriſts blood will purge away our failings.

his Son] This ſhews the great price of his blood, as being the blood of the Son of God; yea, of God himſelf, Acts 20. 28.

cleanſeth us from all ſin] Tit. 2. 14. That is, from the guile of all ſin: for if but one ſin be left unpardoned, that were ſufficient to condemn us. It cleanſeth alſo from the filth and ſtain of ſin, Heb. 19. 14. 1 Pet. 1. 2. Rev. 1. 5, 6.

V. 8. If we ſay] As before he did diſcourage fearful ones; ſo now he labours to caſt down proud perſons, that think they have no ſin, nor need of Chriſts blood. He ſaith not, If thou ſay, as if he ſpake to ſome particular perſon onely; nor, If ye ſay, as if he intended ordinary Chriſtians alone; but, If we, apoſtles, or whatever we be, ſay ſo: to ſhew, that all are ſinners, Jam. 3. 1.

that we have no ſin] Contrary to 1 King. 8. 46. 2 Chron. 6. 36. Prov. 20. 9. And he doth not ſay, We have not had ſin formerly, but we have not at preſent, even when we are in ſtate of grace, Rom. 7. 17, 20, 23.

the truth is not in us] We are not ſincere: or, we believe not Gods word, v. 6, 10. Joh. 17. 17 It is not then modeſty onely that makes the beſt men to confeſſe their ſins; but the truth compels them to do it.

V. 9. he is faithful and juſt] A great comfort. If we could conceive God not to be ſo merciful as to forgive our ſins, doubtleſſe he will be faithful and juſt to perform his promiſe, and not to require that again of us, which Chriſt hath diſcharged by ſhedding his blood for us, Rom. 3. 25. Iſa. 53. 7.

V. 10. we make him a lyar] As much as in us lyes. See the like, Matth. 5. 28. A man commits adultery in his heart with a woman, yet ſhe is not defiled: So on the contrary, by believing, we ſeal to Gods truth, John 3. 33. We do then not onely deceive our ſelves, when we deny our ſins, ver. 8. but alſo by conſequence charge God with falſhood, who hath often ſaid, that all men are ſinners, Rom. 3. 10, 23. & 5. 12. and teacheth us to ask pardon, Matth. 6. 12. and ſent his Son to dye for our ſins, Chap. 2. 2. & 3. 16.

his word is not in us] Chriſt: or, the written word hath no place in us, John. 8. 37.

CHAP. II.

Verſ. 1. M*Y little children*] He ſheweth the abundance of his love, by uſing this word eight times, at leaſt, in this Epiſtle. Hereby he intimates, that the counſel given them is ſuch as comes from a paternal affection, ſeeking their good. The leſſe the children are, the more delight parents take in them, and pity them the more, becauſe they are the leſſe able to help themſelves. Now he might call them, Little children, not onely in regard of converſion, as Gal. 4. 19. but alſo in regard of his own age. So 2 John 1. He may call himſelf Elder, in that reſpect, Phil. ver. 9.

that ye ſin not] Leſt any man ſhould ſay, If God will forgive, let us ſin the more; he adds, I write this, that ye may not ſin, Rom. 6. 1.

and if any man ſin] Or, yet if any man ſin. So the ſame particle is uſed, Luke 3. 20. If any man offend out of infirmity, or being overcome by ſome ſtrong temptation, who intended not to ſin, Rom. 7. 15, 19. Gal. 6. 1.

we have an Advocate] He pronounceth it certainly, to take away all doubt. Aud we need not look for him to come, or ſeek him with great coſts; for we have him already. It is a great comfort, to a man accuſed, to have a good advocate. We have an excellent one.

with the Father] Heb. 9. 24. Rom. 8. 34. We ſhall ſpeed well, for God is the Father of our Advocate, and our Father in him.

Jeſus Chriſt] See on Matth. 1. 1. He names him, that the ſick ſouls might not be diſtracted, not knowing what Phyſitian to go to, Acts 4. 10, 11, 12.

the righteous] One that needed not to dye for his own ſins, nor plead for the remiſſion of them; and therefore dyed and pleads for us, Heb. 7. 26, 27. 1 Pet. 3. 18. Acts 3. 14. & 22. 14.

V. 2. And he] Or, For he; as the word is uſed, Luke 6. 32. He dyed for our ſins, therefore he will plead for us, Rom. 8. 34. elſe ſhould he loſe the fruit of his death, if we ſhould periſh.

the propitiation] The propitiatory-ſacrifice, Rom. 3. 25.

for our ſins] He doth not profit himſelf onely (in the exaltation of his humane nature, by his obedience to the death, Phil. 2. 8, 9.) as other men may do, Job 35. 8. Ezek. 14. 16. but ſaves us from our ſins, Matth. 1. 21.

and not for ours onely] Who believe already; or, who are alive now: or, of us Jews, who were Gods peculiar people before.

for the ſins of the whole world] Of all believers in all nations, Acts 10.35. Gal.3.28. Col.3.11.

V. 3. Hereby we know that we know him] That we have acquaintance with him, Chap.1.7. or, have the true and ſound knowledge of him, John 1.18. & 17.3. Or, we acknowledg him really for our Saviour, Pſal.1.6. Matth.25.12.

if we keep his commandments] Many boaſt that they know Chriſt to be a propitiation for their ſins, and therefore they need not forbear ſin, or obey Gods Law: but ſuch know not Chriſt to their comfort. By keeping, is meant, a ſedulous ſtudy, and ſerious endeavour of walking in an holy courſe of life, according to all the commandments of God, and a conſcionable care of obſerving each one, as well as any other, Luke 1.6. Jam. 2.8,9,10. Pſal.119.6.

V. 4. and the truth is not in him] See on Chap.1.8.

V. 5. the love of God perfected] See on Chap.4.12.

V. 6. even as he walked] Then, like a ſervant, he ſhall wear his maſters livery, 1 Cor.11.1. Epheſ.5.1,2.

V. 7. which ye had from the beginning] Taught by Chriſt and his Apoſtles, at the beginning of the preaching of the Goſpel. So that this is not the firſt time of the publiſhing of it. Or, taught from the beginning of the world, and recorded in the old Teſtament.

V. 8. a new commandment] John 13.34. Whereas it might ſeem, by diſuſe, to be out of date, and buried in legal ceremonies; or abrogated, as ſome other things uſed in the old Teſtament were; it is renewed in the New Teſtament, and explained more fully. Or, it is called new, becauſe we have daily new occaſions of exerciſing our charity. Or, new, in regard of the manner of propounding (though old, for matter and ſubſtance) as being propounded formerly in our own example, Levit. 19. 18. now in the example of Chriſt, John 13.34.

which thing is true in him and in you] It is truly found in both. In him, who exerciſed love to us in the higheſt degree, in dying for us, John 15.13. In you, who muſt uſe charity towards others.

becauſe] Or, that.

the darkneſſe is paſt] Shadows, figures, Col. 2. 17. or ſtate of ignorance and ſin, wherein formerly ye lived, Rom.13.12. Eph. 5.8. 2 Pet.1.19.

the true light now ſhineth] Chriſt, who is the light it ſelf, not enlightned by others, but enlightning others, John 1.8,9. ſhineth in the Goſpel, or in your hearts, 2 Cor.4.6. Or, ye have right knowledge and true holineſſe within you.

V. 9. He that ſaith] See on Chap.1.6,8.

V. 10. no occaſion of ſtumbling] Gr. no ſcandal.

V. 11. is in darkneſſe] Remains in his natural condition, ignorant, and wicked.

and walketh in darkneſſe] Liveth fooliſhly and ungodlily.

V. 12. Little children] See on ver.1.

becauſe your ſins are forgiven you] Becauſe ye are reconciled to God, though ye be not ſo wiſe and ſtrong as other Chriſtians of longer ſtanding, and further growth, 1 Cor. 3. 1. This is added, for the comfort of weak Chriſtians, leſt they ſhould think the ſins of ſtrong ones onely to be forgiven, and not theirs.

for his Names ſake] Acts 4.12. & 10.43.

V. 13. Ye have known him that was from the beginning] Chriſt, John 1.1. 1 John 1.1. Ye are not only experienced in worldly things, but (which is a greater honour to you) ye have attained to the knowledge of Chriſt in a greater meaſure then other Chriſtians.

becauſe ye have overcome the wicked one] The Devil, Matth.6. 13. Rom.16.20. As old men are noted for wiſdome, ſo young men for ſtrength, and ability to conquer. Strong Chriſtians get more victories over Satan then weak ones. The Devil layes moſt ſnares for young men, as for them that are moſt prone to ſin, and may ſerve him longeſt. But theſe young men have overcome him.

becauſe ye have known the Father] Nothing is more needfull for children, then to have a father, whom they may repair to in their wants, and that may take care for them. Theſe had found out God for their Father.

V. 14. And the word of God abideth in you] 2 Joh. ver.2. Hence is your power to overcome Satan, Epheſ.6.17. not from bodily ſtrength, or natural boldneſſe.

V. 15. the world] The things that are pleaſing in it to mans corrupt nature, and ſo far forth as they are ſuch.

the love of the Father is not in him] He loveth not God, Jam. 4. 4.

V. 16. all that is in the world] In price or account with worldly-minded men, as 1 Cor.1.28.

the luſt of the fleſh] Deſire of pleaſures, or wantonneſſe.

the luſt of the eyes] Deſire of riches, or covetouſneſſe, Eccleſ.5.11.

the pride of life] Longing for worldly honours, which are moſt regarded in this life, John 12.42,43. and it ſhewes it ſelf in our life; for pride cannot be kept in. Or, pride of the things or goods of this life: and ſo the ſame word is tranſlated, chap.3. 17. for riches puff men up, Pſal.73.5,6,&c. 1 Tim.6.17.

V. 17. the world paſſeth away] Men would alwayes abide in places they love, and enjoy pleaſures there; but that they cannot in this world: therefore love it not, 1 Cor.7.29,&c.

the luſt thereof] Thoſe things in the world that are luſted after; as ver.16. So hope, is put for the thing hoped for, Rom. 8. 24. Col.1. 5. And faith, for the thing believed, Jude verſ.3.

V. 18. Little children] See verſ.1.

it is the laſt time] Gr. hour. The beginning of the laſt age of the world, Heb.1.2. therefore love not the world, becauſe ye can enjoy it but a while, Luke 12.20. 1 Cor.7.29. This argument is good, whether it be underſtood of the neerneſſe of the end of the world, or of our leaving of the world by death; or, as others think, of the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, before which falſe chriſts came, and at which time the Jews were deprived of their pleaſures, wealth and honours. It may alſo ſignifie, that no new doctrine is to be expected; as Heb.1.2.

as ye have heard that antichriſt ſhall come] Ye have heard of a noted antichriſt, 2 Theſſ.2.3,&c. He is not yet come, but there are divers fore-runners of him come into the world, Act.20.29, 30. 1 Tim.4.1,&c.

there are many antichriſts] Many falſe or pretended chriſts, ſuch as in likelihood Judas and Theudas were, Acts 5. 36, 37. And afterward, Bar-Cochaba, or Bar-Cozba, and others. Or, hereticks alſo, as Simon Magus, Ebion, Cerinthus, and the like.

whereby we know it is the laſt time] Becauſe our Saviour foretold, that, towards the later end of times, many ſuch ſhould come, Matth.24.11,24.

V. 19. They] Thoſe antichriſts, verſ.18. Jude ver.19.

went out from us] Either from the body of Gods people, the Jews; or from the ſociety of profeſſed Chriſtians.

but they were not of us] Of us true believers, who cannot fall away, Matth.24.24. John 6.37. & 10.28,29. Rom. 8. 28,29,38, 39. 2 Tim.2.9. Marvel not, nor be not troubled, that many forſake Gods Church. If they had been ſound members, they would never have done ſo. They were in the Church in body onely, not in ſpirit; and the Church loſeth nothing by their departure, as corn loſeth nothing when the chaffe is gone (but is the purer) nor the body, when bad humours are worn away.

that they might be made manifeſt] 1 Cor.11.19.

that they were not all of us] That none of them were of us. An Hebrew phraſe, as Pſal.143.2. Chap.3.15. Or, that it might be made manifeſt in them, that all were not of us, that ſeemed to be ſo by their converſing with us.

V. 20. But ye have an unction] Ye need not fear ſeducing: Gods Word and Spirit will ſafeguard you from falſe teachers. The Spirit of God, that anointed Chriſt for a King and a Prieſt, hath alſo anointed you to be ſuch, ſpiritually, Rev.1.6. that ye may be able to guide and defend your ſelves againſt falſe teachers. Oyl was uſed in conſecration, Exod. 30. 25. Thereby are ſignified the gifts of the Holy Ghoſt, beſtowed on believers, whereby they are conſecrated to God, Pſal.45.7. Heb.1.9.

from the holy One] From Chriſt, in whom the graces of Gods Spirit are, as in a ſpring, to be communicated to us, Dan. 9.24. Luke 1. 35. Iohn 1. 16. & 3. 34. Pſal.133.2. Iſai.61.1.

ye know all things] That are needful for you to know, to preſerve you from being ſeduced by theſe falſe teachers, Matth.24. 24. or, that are neceſſary to guide you to heaven. See the like phraſe, Col.3.20. For no man knows all things ſimply; that is Gods prerogative, Ioh. 21. 17. nor any thing ſo perfectly, as they ſhall do in heaven, 1 Cor.13.9,10,12.

V. 21. I have not written unto you, becauſe ye know not the truth] I write not unto you to acquaint you with any new doctrine, v. 7. but to confirm you further in the truth formerly taught you, and already known by you, 2 Pet.1.12.

no lye is of the truth] And that ye may be the better able thereby to diſcover the falſe doctrines of theſe ſeducers, conſidering how they ſwerve from it.

V. 22. Who is a lyer, but he that denyeth that Jeſus is the Chriſt?] What untruth can be more palpable, or more pernicious then this, that oppoſeth a truth that hath ſo pregnant and ſo plentifull evidences, and is the main ſcope of the whole Goſpel, John 20.31.

He is antichriſt, that denyeth the Father, and the Son] The very word antichriſt, doth ſignifie a direct oppoſition to Chriſt, and that as he is the Son of God, Father: whereupon it followeth, by juſt conſequence, that the denyal of the Son, is the denyal of the Father: and this is a juſt character of antichriſt.

V. 23. Whoſoever denyeth the Son, &c.] The Jews thought it a wrong to God, to confeſſe that he had a Son. Falſe teachers aroſe then, who taught, that it was injurious to God to make Chriſt equal to him. Both thought it ſufficient to acknowledge the Father onely to be God. John ſhews, that it is an injury to the Father, to deny equall honour to his Son, John 5.23.

V. 24. which ye have heard from the beginning] See on verſ.7. When once we doubt of things taught in the Scripture, we ſoon are ſeduced.

ye alſo ſhall continue in the Son, and in the Father] What greater honour can we have, to encourage us to the conſtant profeſſion of the truth?

V. 25. And this is the promiſe] What greater profit is there to ſet before us, then eternal life?

V. 26. Theſe things have I written, &c.] I have done my part to warn you of theſe ſeducers: if ye be drawn away by them, it is your fault, Ezek.33.9. Acts 20.26,27,29.

V. 27. But the anointing] See on ver.20.

abideth in you] Remaineth with you, to teach you on all occaſions, though other teachers ſhould fail.

ye need not that any man teach you] The true grounds of religion. Ye need onely to perſevere in the profeſſion of them. Or, that I ſhould take much pains to inform you in the truth, as ver.21.

of all things] See on verſ.20.

ye ſhall abide] Or, ye will abide. I am ſo perſwaded of you.

in him] In Chriſt, the holy One, verſ.20. by faith and imitation. Or, in it. In that which this anointing hath taught you.

V. 8. when he ſhall appear] In judgment, Col.3.4.

V. 29. that he is righteous Chriſt, of whom he ſpake laſt: or, God the Father, of whom we are new born.

ye know] Or, know ye.

doth righteouſneſſe] Liveth righteouſly, 1 John 3.7.

is born of him] Sheweth the truth of his regeneration, according to Gods Image, by his godly life, Eph.4.24. 1 John 3.7.

CHAP. III.

Verſ. 1. B*Ehold*] Take notice of it, as of a certain truth, and a great priviledge, John 1.12.

what manner of love] And how great, Matth.8.27.

that we ſhould be called the Sons of God] Both be ſo, and alſo acknowledged, Matth.5.9.

the world knoweth us not] To be Gods children, and therefore loveth us not, but hateth us, John 15.21,24. & 16.3.

V. 2. now are we the Sons of God] John 1.12,13. For we have received the Spirit of adoption here, Rom.8.15. Gal.4.5. and ſo have right to glory, as Gods children.

and it doth not yet appear] Or, but it doth not yet appear; as Mat.11.19. It hath not yet been made manifeſt.

what we ſhall be] How glorious we ſhall be.

but we know] Or, yet we know. See on Chap.2.1.

he ſhall appear] See on Chap.2.28. Or, it ſhall appear; as in this verſe before.

we ſhall be like him] Col.3.4. Phil.3.21.

for we ſhall ſee him] And therefore muſt be made like him; elſe are we not fit to live ever in his preſence, which is called ſeeing of God, Matth.5.8. Heb.12.14.

as he is] As he is, now, in glory, not as he was, in the form of a ſervant, John 17.24. Phil.2.7,9. & 3.21.

V. 3. every man that hath this hope] All that look for ſalvation by Chriſt, beſides the righteouſneſſe imputed by God, ſeek to be inherently holy.

in him] Or, on him. On Chriſt.

purifieth himſelf] Matth.5.8. Heb.12.14.

V. 4. Whoſoever committeth ſin] Good men muſt not flatter themſelves in their ſins, nor give way to their infirmities, as if they were no ſins; for they are breaches of Gods law.

tranſgreſſeth alſo the law] It condemns their opinion, who think, that ſuch as are freed from the curſe of the law by faith in Chriſt, are not ſubject to the command of it, 2 Pet.2.19. Jude verſ.14.

ſin is the tranſgreſſion of the law] For, where there is no law, there is no tranſgreſſion, Rom.4.15. & 5.13. And theſe two are convertible: for every tranſgreſſion is a ſin, and every ſin is a tranſgreſſion.

V. 5. He was manifeſted] Chriſt took our nature on him, 1 Tim.3.16. Chap.1.2.

to take away our ſins] The guilt of them, by his blood, chap.1.7. Rev.1.5. The filth of them, by his Spirit, 1 Cor.6.11.

and in him is no ſin] Who neither did ſin, nor had ſin, 2 Cor.5.21. Heb.7.26. and 4.15. We muſt not continue in ſin, becauſe Chriſt came to take ſin away, and had no ſin in himſelf. Or, for thoſe two reaſons, we muſt not deſpair of pardon of ſin.

V. 6. Whoſoever abideth in him] John 15.4,5.

ſinneth not] Doth, nor practiſeth ſin, as verſ.8,9. John 8.24. Maketh it not his trade. He ſinneth not out of malice, or, liveth not in a courſe of known ſin.

hath not ſeen him] Had never any true ſight of him, much leſſe was ever thorowly acquainted with him, Matth.7.23. Joh.10.14.

V. 7. Little children] See on Chap.2.1.

he that doth righteouſneſſe] Not that heareth or talketh of it onely.

is righteous] Doth ſhew that he is ſo, Chap.2.29.

as he is righteous] Like him, as Lev.11.44. 1 Pet.1.16. Mat.5.48. not equal to him, as 1 Sam.2.2.

V. 8. He that committeth ſin] With plotting beforehand, and delight in it, Rom.13.14. and practiſing it, as verſ.6.

is of the devil] John 8.44. Acts 13.10.

the devil ſinneth] Continueth ſinning ſtill.

from the beginning] Of the creation, or, of ſin; for he was the firſt ſinner, John 8.44.

the Son of God was manifeſted] See on verſ. 5.

that he might deſtroy] Gr. diſſolve. For many things are deſtroyed by diſſolution.

the works of the devil] Our ſins, as verſ.5. and the power the devil hath over us, by occaſion of them, 2 Tim.2.26.

V. 9. is born] Gr. hath been born, or, begotten, as Chap.5.1.

doth not commit ſin] See on verſ. 6.

for his ſeed] The graces of the Holy Ghoſt, by whoſe power he was regenerate.

remaineth in him] Holineſſe, planted in him by God, keeps him from ſinful courſes, and, like good ſeed, makes him bring forth good fruit; whereas before, like ground not ſown, he brought forth nothing but the weeds of ſin.

cannot ſin] See verſ. 6.

V. 10. whoſoever doeth not righteouſneſſe] Purity of life, and charity, are two ſure ſigns of a child of God.

V. 11. meſſage] Or, commandment.

from the beginning] See on Chap.2.7.

one another] Not our kindred onely, but others alſo, and that mutually.

V. 12. Not as Cain] Let us not do as Cain did: or, nor that we ſhould do as Cain.

of that wicked one] The devil, the firſt murderer, Chap.2.14. Joh.8.44.

and ſlew his brother] Gen.4.8.

becauſe his own works were evil, and his brothers righteous] Out of mere envy, and malice proceeding from it, Pſal.38.20.

V. 13. Marvel not, if the world hate you] Becauſe the ſame ſpirit of envy that was in Cain, and the ſame occaſions, are ſtill in the world, Gen.3.15. John 15.18,19.

V. 14. We know] We do not onely hope for it for hereafter, but know it now, Chap.5.13.

that we have paſſed] Already, and are in the ſtate of grace and life.

from death unto life] Out of the ſtate of nature, which leads to hell, into the ſtate of grace, which tends to heaven, John 5.24. Chap.4.7.

becauſe we love the brethren] This is not the cauſe of our paſſing from death to life; but the cauſe of our knowledg thereof, or the mark whereby we know it; as Luke 7.47.

V. 15. Whoſoever hateth his brother, is a murderer] For he ſtandeth guilty of tranſgreſſing the ſixth commandement, Matth.5.22.

no murderer hath eternal life] Gal.5.21. Rev.21.8.

V. 16. the love of God] The truth of it, or the force of it, Joh.15.13. Rom.5.8. Chap.4.9.

becauſe he laid down his life] Becauſe Chriſt dyed for us, Joh.10.15. He ſhewed love to us, in his incarnation; but moſt of all, in laying down his life willingly for us, John 10.17. He needed not to have done it.

for us] Whom he had no need of, nor no cauſe given to love; but much cauſe to hate, Rom.5.8,9.

V. 17. whoſo hath this worlds good] That is, things needful for preſerving life. So Mark 12.44. Luke 8.43. & 15.12. & 21.4.

his brother] His neighbour, eſpecially a believer, Gal. 6.10, whom he ought to relieve, becauſe they are brethren.

ſhutteth up his bowels] Sheweth, by not relieving him, that he is not at all moved with any pity of his wants, or compaſſion of him, Lam.2.11. Luke 1.78. Phillip.1.8. & 2.1. Col.3.12. 2 Cor.7.15. Philem. verſ. 7,12. Iſa.63.15. For pity doth, as it were, open the bowels, Gen.43.20 1 Kings 3.16. Matth.9.36. Fraternal charity, ſhould come from maternal affection.

how dwelleth the love of God in him?] It cannot abide in him, let him brag of it never ſo much, Chap.4.20. James 2.15. The love of God, and of our neighbour, are inſeparable, Matth.22.38,39. Chap.4.21. & 5.1.

V. 18. My little children] See on Chap.2.1.

let us not love in word] Not in word onely; as Hoſ.6.6. Matth.9.13. & 12.7. Rom.2.28. By giving good words, without actual relief, which is nothing worth, Jam.2.15.

and in truth] Not giving to avoid the importunity of the poor, as Luke 18.4,5. but out of love to them, and pity of their wants. Or, in deed and in truth. Becauſe that is true charity, which is manifeſted by deeds.

V. 19. And hereby] Or, For hereby. See on Chap.2.2.

that we are of the truth] Sincere Chriſtians, not hypocrites. Or, profeſſours of the heavenly truth, and livers according to it, Joh. 18. 37. Or, the true children of God, ver. 10. Chap. 4. 4, 6. Therefore it followeth, before him.

ſhall aſſure our hearts] Gr. perſwade. It hath no aſſurance by nature, and needeth ſure ſignes to perſwade it, that we are ſincere, and in favour with him, Luke 1. 6.

before him] Before Chriſt with confidence, Chap. 4. 17. 2 Pet. 1. 10.

V. 20. if our heart condemn us] Though our life be ſo fair, that no man condemn us, nor our words or deeds bewray us; yet if our heart condemn us, either of a ſecret wicked courſe of life, or of want of charity, ver. 17. God will much more do it, Job 34 22. Pſal. 19. 12.

condemn us] Or, paſſe ſentence againſt us, according to the Greek etymologie.

God is greater then our heart] We muſt take notice that God is greater then our heart, Chap. 4. 4. and therefore will condemn us much more, Chap. 5. 9. Job 32. 21, 22. & 33. 12. For he is more powerful, Joh. 10. 29.

and knoweth all things] Gen. 1. 31. Job 28. 24. 2 Chron. 16. 9. Prov. 15. 11. Heb. 4. 13. And therefore knoweth our ſecret ſins, which we know not: and hath more cauſe, as well as power, to condemn us.

V. 21. if our heart condemn us not] Of hypocriſie, or want of charity; as ver. 20.

confidence] To pray freely to him, as v. 22.

V. 22. whatſoever we ask, &c.] If we love our brethren, we may be ſure God will hear us, and grant our requeſts, Mat. 7. 7, 8. & 21. 22. Mark 11. 24. Luke 11. 9, 10. Joh. 14. 13, 14. & 16. 23, 24. Otherwiſe we have cauſe to doubt of it.

becauſe we keep] Not for our merit, but for his merciful promiſe to hear ſuch, Dan. 9. 18. Ioh. 9. 31.

CHAP. IV.

Verſ. 1. B*Elieve not every ſpirit*] Every doctrine propounded as received by inſpiration from Gods Spirit. Or, every teacher that ſaith, he hath ſuch a revelation, 1 Cor. 14. 26, 29, 32.

that Jeſus Chriſt is come in the fleſh] Clothed with it. Is become true man, Iohn 1. 14. He doth not ſay, Is come into the fleſh, leſt any ſhould deny the perſonal union of both natures in Chriſt, or think his Godhead comprehended within the limits of his body: but, in the fleſh, Rom. 8. 3. 1 Tim. 3. 16.

is of God] Is ſent of God, and preacheth true doctrine; as v. 6. Yet his perſon may be unregenerate, as Iudas was. Or, doth ſo far forth ſpeak from God, 1 Cor. 12. 3.

V. 3. And every ſpirit] Or, But every ſpirit; as Chap. 3. 2.

then he that is in the world] The Divel, Iohn 12. 31. 1 Cor. 2. 12. Epheſ. 2. 2. and 6. 12.

V. 5. They are of the world] Wicked and unregenerate men, Ioh. 15. 19. & 17. 9.

therefore ſpeak they of the world, &c.] Becauſe they are of the world, they ſpeak ſutably, and are heard readily: for, being ſenſual themſelves, 1 Cor. 2. 14. and ſpeaking to ſuch as themſelves, of things pleaſing to them, as they have learned by their ſenſes here; men readily hearken to them, Ioh. 3. 31.

V. 6. We are of God] Thoſe falſe teachers, v. 1, 3, 5. are not ſent of God to preach his truth, as we are, Iohn 3. 31.

he that knoweth God, heareth us] Aſſenteth to our doctrine, and not to thoſe falſe teachers, Iohn 10. 3, 5.

V. 7. is born of God] Chap. 3. 9. & 5. 1.

V. 8. God is love] He doth not call God Loving, but Love it ſelf: for love is eſſential to him, and cannot be parted from him.

knoweth not God] See on Chap. 3. 6.

V. 9. In this was manifeſted the love of God] In nothing more, then in giving Chriſt for us, Chap. 3. 16. Ioh. 3. 16. Rom. 8. 3, 32. Gal. 4. 4, 5.

his onely begotten ſon] And therefore moſt dear to him, Mat. 3. 17. Gen. 22. 2.

that we might live through him] Ioh. 3. 6. Under life, is contained all happineſſe.

V. 10. Herein is love] He loved us freely, doing good to us, and looking for no good from us: we cannot ſo love him, but muſt love him for his gifts, as well as for himſelf. Ours therefore is not worthy of the name of love, in compariſon of his, becauſe it cannot be every way ſo free. And the pure nature of love is more ſeen in Gods love to us, then in ours to him.

not that we loved God] So freely as he loved us. Or, firſt, as v. 9. Or, we were ſo far from loving him, as that we hated him, Rom. 5. 8, 10.

to be the propitiation for our ſins] See on Chap. 2. 2. His love appeared the more, in that he ſent his ſon, not onely to teach us the way to heaven, but alſo to dye for us.

V. 11. If God] Or, Seeing God. For he doth not doubt whether God loveth us or no, but infers from Gods love to us, that we ought to love others. See the like phraſe, 1 Pet. 4. 18.

ſo loved us] If he, being ſo great, ſo freely loved us, vile, wretched, unworthy and ungrateful perſons, as not onely to give his creatures to us, but alſo his Son to death for us, we ought to love others, that differ not ſo much from us, though they deſerve it not of us. See on v. 10. They may do us good hereafter, we cannot to God.

V. 12. No man hath ſeen God] I propound not God ſimply to be imitated in all things, becauſe he is inviſible, Iohn 1. 18. 1 Tim. 1. 17. Exod. 33. 10. but in his love to us, which hath been ſo fully manifeſted. Or, ye may more eaſily love your brother, whom ye can ſee, then God whom ye cannot ſee; as verſ. 20.

if we love one another] As we know we have a ſoul in us, by the working of it, though we ſee it not: ſo we know that God is in us, if his Spirit hath wrought love in us to his children.

his love is perfected in us] Chap. 2. 5. He makes us ſure that he loves us. or, he makes us love him more fully: or, to know that our love to him is true, ver. 17. or, our love to him is more fully manifeſted, 2 Cor. 12. 9. Iam. 2. 22.

V. 13. that we dwell in him] Chap. 3. 24.

of his Spirit] Some graces of his Spirit in our meaſure, John 1. 16. Numb. 11. 17. Not all of them, or without meaſure, as to Chriſt, Ioh. 3. 34.

V. 14. And we have ſeen, &c.] See Chap. 1. 1, 3. 1 Cor. 15. 5. 2 Pet. 1. 16.

dwelleth in him] See Chap. 3. 24.

V. 16. God is love] See on v. 8. He is love it ſelf; yet ſometimes he is called Loving, leſt we ſhould think him to be a quality, and not a living ſubſtance.

V. 17. Herein is our love] Gr. love with us, as 1 Cor. 15. 10.

that we may have boldneſſe] Or, freedom, or confidence, Chap. 4. 19, 21. Matth. 25. 34, 35.

as he is, ſo are we] Sincere in his love to us. See on Chap. 3. 3. Luke 6. 36. 2 Cor. 3. 18. Epheſ. 4. 14. Col. 3. 10. Hebr. 12. 10. 2 Pet. 1. 4.

in this world] Even while we abide here, John 17. 11, 15.

V. 18. There is no fear in love] If we know by love, that God is in us, and we in him, v. 16. we may well be fearleſſe of damnation, nation, and not give way to terrours of conſcience, timorouſneſſe, or deſparation. There is no cauſe of fear of hell, Rom. 8. 31.

perfect love] Sincere, without hypocriſie; as Chap. 3.18,19. Or, full, wanting no degree, James 1.4.

caſteth out fear] He that truly loveth God, doth not forbear ſin for fear of hell onely, but rather out of love to God; as a loving wiſe forbeareth all diſloyal and undutiful carriage not for fear of death ſo much, as out of love to her husband, 2 Tim. 1.7. Or, Servile fear doth not exerciſe his work, while love doth exerciſe his; but ſometimes it may be of good uſe in a good man, when the fleſh would prevail. Or, perfect love in heaven caſteth out all fear of hell.

V. 19. becauſe he loved us firſt] Verſ.10. Not only becauſe of his excellency, which is moſt worthy of love; but alſo becauſe he hath caſt his love upon us, and therefore is no way indebted to us for our love.

V. 20. How can he love God, &c.] If viſible objects move him not, inviſible will not, Chap.3.17.

V. 21. this commandment] Matth.22.37,38,39.

V. 2. We love the children of God, when we love God] Gods children bearing Gods Image; we cannot love God, but we muſt needs love them: And our love to God, ſhews that we love them in and for God.

his commandments] Whereof ſix, to wit, all of the ſecond table, require love of the brethren.

V. 3. The love of God] Wherewith we love him, not wherewith he loveth us.

his commandments are not grievous] Becauſe Gods Spirit gives us power and will to do them, Matth.11.30. Rom.8.2,4. Phil.2. 12,13. And becauſe we love him, we will readily obey him. And God removeth rubs, and maketh our way ſmooth before us, Prov.4.11,12. Eſay 26.7.

V. 4. is born of God] verſ. 1.

overcometh the world] See Chap.2.15. Or, Satans temptations, who worketh by the world. Or, that which ſavours of the world, againſt God, or right reaſon. Theſe he hath overcome in part already, and ſhall wholly, as ſure as if he had already done it. So the Scripture ſpeaketh of things to come, as paſt, to ſhew the certainty of them, Hoſ.10.7. Rev.14.8. & 18. 2.

the victory] The means whereby we have begun to conquer, and ſhall finiſh it.

our faith] Whereby we lay hold on Chriſt, and apply his victory to us, Joh.16.33. 1 Cor.15.57. Rev.12. 11. Chap. 4.4. and get ſtrength from him to go on in this ſpiritual warfare, till we have fully overcome all Satans temptations, Rom. 16. 20. 1 Pet.5.9.

V. 5. Who is he, &c.] Not that every one that believeth this, overcometh the world, but none elſe do it. See on Chap.4.2.

V. 6. that came by water and blood] That ſhed water and blood out of his ſide, John 19. 34, 35. Or, that obſerved the legal waſhings and ſacrifices. Or, that appointed two ſacraments, one in water, the other in wine, a type of his blood. Or, that waſheth away the filth of our ſins by his Spirit, and the guilt of them by his Blood. Of the firſt, the legal waſhings were a type: of the ſecond, the ſacrifices.

it is the Spirit that beareth witneſſe] By deſcending on Chriſt like a dove, Matth.3.16. Joh. 1. 32, 33. Or, by raiſing him from the dead, Rom.1,4. Or, by working miracles by him. Or, by aſſuring us of it in the word, and in our conſciences: for, the Spirit is of Gods privy counſel, John 14.26. & 15.26. & 16.13. 1 Cor.2.10,11.

the Spirit is truth] And therefore cannot bear falſe witneſſe of Chriſt to us, as being truth it ſelf.

V. 7. For there are three] The ſixth verſe may be in a parentheſis; and this verſe may give a reaſon of the end of the fifth verſe, that Chriſt is the Son of God: of which, not the Spirit alone, but the Father and the Son bear witneſſe alſo.

that bear record in heaven] Or, in heaven, that bear record; To wit, to us men on earth, that Chriſt is the Meſſias, or Son of God. The Father, John 5.32. & 8.18. by voyce, Matth. 3. 17. The Son, by miracles, John 5.36. The Holy Ghoſt, by cloven tongues, Act.2.3,4,33.

the word] Chriſt himſelf, Chap.1.1. John 1.1.

theſe three are one] In eſſence, though they be three diſtinct perſons, John 10.30. and agree in their teſtimony concerning Chriſt.

V. 8. There are three that bear witneſſe in earth] Or, There are three in earth, that bear witneſſe.

the Spirit, &c.] See on ver.6. Some underſtand it of the Spirit which he ſent forth on the croſſe at his death, Matth. 27.50. which, with the water and bloud coming out of his ſide, ſhewed him to be true man.

theſe three agree in one] Gr. are for one thing; or, are for that one thing: To wit, to teſtifie of Chriſt, as the heavenly witneſſes did, verſ.7.

V. 9. This is the witneſſe of God] Teſtified by the three heavenly and earthly witneſſes, ver.7,8. Of Chriſt, and of ſalvation by him, ver.11,12.

V. 10. The witneſſe] Or, That witneſſe, mentioned, verſ. 9, 11.

a lyer] Chap. 1. 10. He believeth that he doth, or at leaſt, that he can lye. He hath made him a lyer: To wit, in his heart: for he would not have doubted of the truth of his teſtimony, if he had not firſt ſuſpected the truth of God himſelf.

V. 11. And this is the record] Or, Even this is the record. So the particle is uſed, Mark 4.25. For the tenth verſe may be in a parentheſis, as not including the teſtimony, (which is recorded in this verſe) but ſhewing who have this teſtimony in them. See the like on ver.7.

this life is in his Son] The original of it is in Chriſt. We have it for his merits, and derived unto us from him by his Spirit, John 10.10.

V. 12. He that hath the Son] By faith dwelling in his heart, Epheſ.3.17.

hath life] Is raiſed from death to life, Chap. 3. 14. and hath in him a principle of eternal life, John 3.36.

V. 13. Theſe things have I written] John 20.31. On the Name of the Son of God, Chap.3.23.

that ye may have eternal life] A right to it, and earneſt of it, here, and the thing it ſelf in heaven, in perpetual joy and happineſſe.

and that ye may believe] That ye may perſevere, encreaſe and grow ſtrong in faith.

V. 14. This is the confidence] This faith, ver. 13. is the ground of our confidence in prayer. Or, we not onely believe, as verſ. 13. but alſo have confidence in prayer.

in him] In Chriſt. Or, concerning him.

he heareth us] And will give us what we ask, ver. 15. Chap. 3.21,22.

V. 15. We know that we have the petitions] That we ſhall have them granted, as ſurely as if we had the things already which we pray for. See on ver.14. John 14.13,14. & 16. 23, 24, 26. Gods hearing us, then, is granting our requeſts.

V. 16. his brother] Therefore he muſt pray for him, becauſe he is his brother.

a ſin which is not unto death] Which doth not neceſſarily bring damnation (though it deſerve it) as the ſin againſt the Holy Ghoſt doth, becauſe God will not give repentance to any that committeth that ſin, Heb.6.4,6.

he ſhall ask] Or, let him ask, Pardon for that ſinner.

he ſhall give him] Chriſt; mentioned ver.13.

for them] Not for one onely, but for many ſuch ſinners.

there is a ſin unto death] The ſin againſt the Holy Ghoſt, which is unpardonable, Matth.12.31,32. Heb.6.4,6.

I do not ſay that he ſhall pray for it] I do not adviſe him to pray for pardon for any that hath committed that ſin: or, I forbid him to do it.

V. 17. All unrighteouſneſſe is ſin] As Chap.3.4.

and there is] Or, but there is; as Chap.4.3. Or, yet there is; as Chap.2.1.

a ſin not unto death] Which may be repented, and forgiven. See on ver.16.

V. 18. is born of God] Chap.3.9.

ſinneth not] That ſin to death, ver. 16. Or, liveth not in a ſinful courſe; as Chap.3.6,9.

keepeth himſelf] From that ſin unpardonable.

that wicked one] The Devil, Matth. 6. 13. Chap. 2. 13, 14. & 3. 12.

toucheth him not] So as to bring him to that ſin, and to hell. Or, cannot do him the leaſt hurt, Job 2.5.

V. 19. We are of God] Chap.4.6.

the whole world lyeth in wickedneſſe] All men out of Chriſt, John 17.9,16. are altogether buried in ſin: or, lye in it, as in a deep dungeon, or a dead ſleep.

V. 20. And we know] Or, But we know; as verſ.17.

him that is true] The true God, verſ.19. as followeth in this verſe, oppoſed to Idols, verſ.21. Or, Chriſt, ſpoken of before in this verſe.

even in his Son] Or, and in his Son. We are in the Father, and in the Son, Chap.2,24.

this is the true God] Chriſt is the true God, John 17.3. Tit. 2.13.

Tit. 2. 13. and 3. 4. Jude verſ. 25.

and eternal life] The authour of it, ver.11. Chap.1.2. Joh.6. 68, 69.

V. 21. Little children] See on Chap.2.1.

keep your ſelves from idols] From image-worſhip; for, idol and image ſignifie the ſame thing, but onely the one is a Greek word originally, and the other a Latine. This overthroweth Popiſh ſerving God in images, and adviſeth men to be careful to avoid not onely palpable idolatry, but all dealing with idols.

Amen] See on Matth.6.13. Jude verſ. 25.

ANNOTATIONS

On the ſecond Epiſtle of Saint JOHN.

The Argument.

THis is the onely Epiſtle in Scripture written to a Woman. And to one eminent, no doubt, in favour with God, and reſpect in the Church: wherein after ſalutation of her, and her children, he ſhews his joy in their Gracious carriage, warns them to take heed of deceivers, and concludes with a promiſe of a pious viſitation, and ſalutation from her Siſters Children.

CHAP. I.

Verſ. 1. T*He elder*] Some conceive that the Apoſtle calleth himſelf ſo in humility, to equal himſelf with ordinary paſtours, as Peter doth, 1 Pet.5.1. Others think John called himſelf ſo, in reſpect of his age. See on 1 John 2.1.

unto the elect lady] Some think her name was Elect. Others, that ſhe was ſo called, becauſe ſhe was a choice woman for grace. Others, becauſe the Apoſtle knew by the Spirit that ſhe was one of Gods elect, 1 Theſſ.1.4. She was a matron honoured for her wealth and liberality to the poor. Or, one that had ſome civil title of honour above others.

whom I love] Both mother and children.

in the truth] With a true and ſincere love: or, according as God in his Word hath appointed, which is called The Truth, John 17. 17. Or, in Chriſt, who is called The Truth, John 14. 6.

but alſo all the, &c. Such of them as lived in thoſe parts, and knew her piety. This ſheweth, it was no private indirect love which John bare to her, ariſing out of particular ends; but a religious love, common to all Saints.

V. 2. for the truths ſake which dwelleth in us] The ground of my love, is the ſame lively faith wrought in us by Gods Spirit.

and ſhall be with us for ever] Which grace, where it hath once taken root, is never rooted out again, 1 Pet.1.23,24,25.

V. 3. Grace be with you, mercy and peace] Paul uſeth the ſame ſalutation, 1 Tim.1.2. 2 Tim. 1.2. Tit.1.4. He wiſheth them Gods favour to their perſons, mercy to pardon their ſins, and peace of conſcience.

the Son of the Father] John 1.18. & 3.16.

in truth and love] Or, with truth and love. So that particle is uſed, Mark 1.23. & 5.2. He wiſheth them encreaſe of the knowledge of the truth, and of love one to another.

V. 4. I found] By experience, if at any time he converſed with them; or by relation of others, if he did not.

of thy children] Some of thy children.

walking in truth] Sincerely, or, as the truth of Gods Word preſcribes. See on verſ.1.

V. 5. I beſeech thee, Lady] He intreateth, where he might command, as Paul doth, Philem. verſ. 9,10. It may be he had ſome reſpect to the dignity of the Lady, to whom he wrote.

a new commandment] See on 1 John 2.7,8. I teach you no other doctrine then what ye received at firſt from the apoſtles, John 12.34.

that we love one another] John 13.34. & 15.12.

V. 6. This is love] Herein it conſiſts. Or, this is that love, mentioned verſ.5.

that we walk after his commandments] Then we love God and our brethren, when we walk after Gods commandments: that is, according to them, John 14.15,21,23. & 15.10. 1 Joh. 5.2,3. Rom. 8.1. Luſt, then, and ſparing offendours whom we ought to reprove or puniſh, is not love, becauſe it is contrary to Gods commandments. Or, love is it whereby we are enabled to keep his commandments, John 14.21. & 15. 9,10. Chap.2.23. & 5.2,3. Love muſt not be idle, but employed in doing good, according to Gods word.

this is the commandment] Of walking in the truth, verſ.4. or of love, verſ.5.

from the beginning] 1 John 2.7.

V. 7. For many deceivers] I have reaſon to urge you to conſtancy, becauſe of falſe teachers, who ſeek to ſeduce you, 1 Joh. 2.18,22. and 4. 3. Theſe are impoſtours or juglers, who can deceive quick-ſighted-men, if they be not very careful, Matth. 27. 63.

that Jeſus Chriſt is come in the fleſh] 1 John 4.3.

V. 8. that we loſe not the things] We Chriſtians, or we that taught you, if ye continue not in good wayes; for the reward is promiſed to ſuch as continue to the end, Matth.24.13. others loſe it, Gal. 3.4.

we have wrought] Or, gained. Some copies read, which ye have gained, but that ye receive, &c.

V. 9. Whoſoever tranſgreſſeth] Gods command of hearing Chriſt, Matth.3.17. Or, by apoſtacy forſaketh the truth in doctrine and life, contrary to verſ.4.

hath not God] To his father, nor his Spirit to guide him.

V. 10. And bring not this doctrine] Received from Chriſt, verſ. 9. The meaning is, If he bring a contrary doctrine: elſe we ſhould refuſe the ſociety of many private men, who are not able to teach at all; which is not here intended, Gal. 1. 8, 9.

receive him not into your houſe] Lodge not a falſe teacher; nor have no familiarity with him, leſt he ſeduce you; and that ye may ſhew your zeal for the truth, and actually reprove him.

God ſpeed] Gr. to rejoyce. That was the ordinary ſalutation of the Greeks, Acts 23.26. as Peace be to you, was of the Jewes, Luke 10.5. That is, ſhew him no countenance, nor give him any encouragement.

V. 11. is partaker of his evil deeds] Seemeth to allow of them, by his familiarity with him, and ſo may further him in ſeducing others, who would not regard the falſe teacher for himſelf.

V. 12. Having many things to write] He excuſeth the ſhortneſſe of his epiſtle, not by want of matter to write, but by the hope he had of ſeeing her ſhortly. For all things were not fit to be written; and a lively voyce affects more then a letter.

face to face] Gr. mouth to mouth. Without any letter or meſſenger coming between, Exod. 33.11. Num. 12.8. 2 Cor. 12. 12. 3 John verſ. 14.

V. 13. The children of thy elect ſiſter greet thee] Verſ.1. Which were with John. So he ſendeth other ſalutations, 3 John verſ. 14. So doth Peter, 1 Pet.5.13. And Paul often, Rom. 16. 16, 21,23. 1 Cor.16.20. 2 Cor.13.12. Phil.4.22. Col.1.14. 2 Tim. 4.21. Tit.3.15. Philem. verſ.23,24. Heb 13.25.

ANNOTATIONS On the third Epiſtle of S. JOHN.

The Argument.

THis Epiſtle is inſcribed to Gaius, to whom the Apoſtle firſt wiſheth all happineſſe, then commends him for his zeal to the Truth, and hoſpitality to the Brethren, adviſing him not to be diſcouraged by the proud and perverſe carriage of Diotrephes , but to follow the good example of Demetrius. Laſtly, he concludes with a reſolution to ſee him quickly, and confer with him lovingly of theſe things ; and ſalutations from Gaius his friends with him, and to his friends with Gaius.

CHAP. I.

Verſ. 1. THe elder] See on 2 John verſ. 1.

Gaius] Not to Gaius of Derbe, mentioned, Acts 20.4. nor of Macedonia, ſpoken of, Acts 19.29. but of Corinth, as is commonly thought, 1 Cor. 1. 14. Pauls hoſt, Rom.6.23.

in the truth] Or, truly. See on 2 John verſ.1.

V. 2. I wiſh] Or, pray.

above all things] Gr. of all things. Or, in all things. He wiſheth that Gaius may proſper in all perſons and things belonging to him.

that thou mayeſt proſper] Gr. go well in the way, Rom.1.10. Our life is the way to heaven, and John wiſheth Gaius a comfortable paſſage thither, 1 Cor.16.2.

and be in health] In bodily health ; for ſpiritual health followeth.

as thy ſoul proſpereth] By peace of conſcience, through faith in Chriſt, Rom.5.1,2.

V. 3. I rejoyced greatly] See 2 John verſ.4.

when the brethren came, and teſtified of the truth that is in thee] The brethren ſent by John about the publick affairs of the Church, and commended to the Church of Corinth, where Gaius lived, by Johns epiſtle, ver.9. refuſed by Diotrephes, ver. 10. entertained by Gaius, ver.5,6. and now returned to John, teſtified of Gaius his ſincerity in religion, (John 3.21.) and his kind entertainment of them, verſ. 6. So Paul doth, Phil. 4.10, 18. 2 Cor.9.1. Heb.6.10. Or it may be underſtood of any Chriſtians that came from thence.

even as thou walkeſt in the truth] In the true way ſet out in the Goſpel. See on 2 John verſ.4.

V. 4. then] Gr. then theſe joyes. Or, then of theſe things.

that my children] Converted by my miniſtery, 1 Cor. 4. 15. 1 Tim.1.2. Philem. verſ.10. Gal.4.19. Tit.1.4.

walk in the truth] See on verſ.3.

V. 5. thou doſt faithfully] As becometh a faithful Chriſtian. Or, like a good ſteward of worldly goods received from God , 1 Pet.4.10.

whatſoever thou doſt] In entertaining the Saints. It was, no doubt, a great comfort to Gaius, that the Spirit of God commends his charity by Johns pen, which Diotrephes and his followers diſliked.

to the brethren, and to ſtrangers] To thoſe poor Chriſtians that live by thee, and to others that come to ſojourn there a while, Iſa.58.6. Matth.10 40.& 25.35. Rom.12.13. Heb.13.2. 1 Pet.4. 9. Or, to the brethren, yea, to ſtrangers; as this particle is uſed, Matth.26.60. Thy kindneſſe ſtayes not at thy neighbour-Chriſtians, but extends it ſelf to ſtrangers alſo. Or, by and, is meant eſpecially, as Matth.13.41. Mark 16.7. and elſewhere, where a ſpecial is put after his general. Thy kindneſſe to all Chriſtians, ſheweth thy faithfulneſſe to God, but eſpecially that which is ſhewed to ſuch as came to preach the Goſpel, or were driven from their own home for the profeſſion of it, verſ. 7. For ſuch being unknown there, and not able to recompenſe kindneſſe received ; this kind of charity is highly praiſed by God, Deut. 10.18,19. Luke 14.14. Or, to the brethren, even to the ſtrangers: To wit, ſent by John. See on verſ.3. So the particle is uſed, Mark 18.25.

V. 6. Which have born witneſſe] See on verſ.3.

of thy charity] To others. Or, of thy kind entertainment of them.

before the Church] In the aſſembly where John was.

whom if thou bring forward on their journey] It may be they might be ſome godly Chriſtians coming from beyond Corinth to John for publick advice, from the Churches, whom Gaius had kindly uſed ; and now he adviſeth him to do ſo in their return. Or, if it be meant of thoſe that had returned to John, being ſent from him before, he perſwadeth Gaius to uſe them kindly when he ſhall have occaſion to ſend them again. Or it may be underſtood of others ſuch like, verſ.5. whom John would have Gaius to go along withal ſome part of their way, as Chriſtians uſed to do to their brethren that were ſtrangers, eſpecially to miniſters, Acts 15.3. & 20.38. & 21.5. 1 Cor.16.11. 2 Cor.1.16. Tit. 3. 13. either becauſe they were ignorant of the way , or the way might be unſafe, or they ſubject to perſecution there ; ſo that rich men, and great ones, ſuch as Gaius ſeems to be, might be a great ſecurity to them , by going or ſending company with them. Or it might be done to honour and comfort thoſe ſtrangers, or that themſelves might get as mch good by their ſociety as might be. Others underſtand it of providing things needful for their journey, till they might come to other Chriſtians, who might take further care of them.

after a godly ſort] Gr. worthy of God. According to Gods command. Or, worthy of the profeſſion of Gods truth, as Chriſtians ought to do, to credite their religion. Or, honourably, as the miniſters and children of God ought to be received. Or, as they would receive God, Matth.10.40.

thou ſhalt do well] Or, thou ſhalt do them a good turn.

V. 7. Becauſe, &c.] Becauſe their wants come on them for their love to the true religion, they are worthy to be relieved by the true profeſſours of it.

for his Names ſake] God's, verſ.6. To make his Name known, by preaching it, or ſuffering for it ; as on ver.5.

taking nothing of the Gentiles] They took no reward of the Gentiles for preaching to them, Matth.10.7,8. that men might more willingly receive the Goſpel, 1 Cor.9.18,19. 2 Cor. 11. 9, 12. & 12. 14. Or , being perſecuted for their religion, they left all their goods to their perſecutours, and fled for their lives.

V. 8. We therefore] We Chriſtians, yea, we Jewiſh Chriſtians eſpecially, that they may preach to the Gentiles, to bring them in to joyn with us.

ought to receive ſuch] To offer and afford them entertainment voluntarily, before they ask for it, Gen.28.2,3. & 19. 1, 2. Luke 24.29. Heb.3.2.

that we might be fellow-helpers] Gr. fellow-workmen. By ſupplying them with means, that they may preach the truth, or ſuffer for it the more willingly. This is a great encouragement to help others, that we are accounted to have a part in the work, though it be a Prophets, and ſhall have a part in the reward, Matth. 10. 41. Alſo it may intimate, that as they were relieved by theſe now , ſo theſe may by them in the work another time, 2 Cor.8.14.

to the truth] Or, for the truth, or, in the truth.

V. 9. I wrote] To recommend theſe brethren to the Churches which they were to paſſe by.

unto the Church] Of Corinth, where Gaius was an eminent member.

but Diotrephes] But I fear, or, I hear, Diotrephes hath refuſed to receive them.

who loveth to have the preeminence] It ſeemeth he was paſtour there, and would not let ſtrange miniſters be received, leſt he ſhould be ſlighted.

receiveth us not] Acknowledgeth not our authority , by receiving our epiſtle. Or, receiveth not me, and ſuch as I am ; as verſ. 10.

V. 10. I will remember] Gr. I will make mention of. I will ſpeak of them publickly there, to his diſgrace.

prating] Gr. talking fooliſhly, or vainly.

againſt us] Againſt me John ; as v. 9. See on v.12. Or, me, and them I ſent.

and not content therewith] As if he were not ſatisfied with diſgracing my perſon, he refuſeth, and harſhly uſeth, ſuch as are ſent by me.

receive the brethren] He ſhould have entertained them kindly, becauſe he profeſſeth himſelf a brother to them, as being one of the ſame religion. See on v. 5.

forbiddeth them that would] This ſheweth great malice againſt them. He will not let any receive them.

and caſteth them out of the Church] Refuſeth communion with theſe ſtrangers, or thoſe that received them, Joh. 9. 34. No doubt this was a great diſcouragement to Gaius, from his paſtour; yet he obeys the Apoſtle, who had more power over him, v. 5.

V. 11. Follow not] Gr. Imitate not. for they that follow, go the ſame way. And, to walk after Gods precepts, or according to them, in Scripture-phraſe is all one.

that which is evil, but that which is good] Not the evil example of Diotrephes, v. 9, 10. but the good example of Demetrius, v. 12. Rom. 12. 9. Or, imitate not Diotrephes in any of his evil ways; but follow him nevertheleſs in any thing that is good, Matth. 23. 3.

hath not ſeen God] By the eyes of faith. Hath not known him to his good, 1 Joh. 4. 8. For God cannot be ſeen, Joh. 1. 18. 1 Joh. 4. 20.

V. 12. Demetrius hath good report of all men] Of moſt men, yea, of heathen alſo, 1 Tim. 3. 7. becauſe they got good by him, or heard him much commended by others. Or, of all the brethren that live in thoſe parts, and would have of all others, if they knew him.

and of the truth it ſelf] From his actions, Joh. 3. 21. Prov. 31. 31. Or, of God, who is the truth it ſelf, 1 Joh. 5. 6. Or, he is to be commended indeed, not for the ſpeech of the people onely, which ſometimes proves untrue.

yea, and we alſo bear record] I John do it, as v. 9. Or, we have found him kind to us, and do acknowledg it, as v. 6. This alſo might comfort Demetrius againſt Diotrephes, who took a contrary courſe. See on v. 5.

and ye know] Ioh. 19. 35. & 21. 24.

that our record is true] That we uſe not to flatter, but to ſpeak truly, John 21. 24.

V. 13. I have many things to write, &c.] See on 2 Joh. v. 12.

V. 14. But I truſt, &c.] See on 2 Joh. v. 12.

face to face] Gr. mouth to mouth. See on 2 Joh. v. 12.

peace be to thee] Joh. 20. 19, 21, 26. See on 2 Joh. v. 10.

our friends] The faithful Chriſtians with me here, who love both me and you.

ſalute thee] Wiſh thee all happineſs.

greet the friends] Our Chriſtian brethren which are with you; ſo called, becauſe of their great affection they bear one to another, Tit. 3. 15. Natural brethren may fail one another, before Chriſtian friends will, Prov. 18. 24.

by name] Severally. Either John knew all their names, or elſe they were as dear to him as thoſe friends whom he knew by name, Exod. 33. 12. Thus he ſheweth not a vulgar or common, but a peculiar paternal, paſtoral love unto them.

ANNOTATIONS

On the Epiſtle of St. JUDE.

The ARGUMENT.

THis Apoſtle ſurviving many of his Colleagues, as it ſeems, Verſe 17. writes this general Epiſtle, wherein after he hath wiſhed much good to all Gods people, he exhorts them to maintain Truth of Doctrine, with purity of life and converſation, leſt they ſhould be ſeduced by falſe Teachers, whoſe manners he deſcribes, and threatens damnation to them. Afterwards, he exhorts them to remember the Apoſtles doctrine, though they were dead; to build up themſelves in grace, to ſtick cloſe to God, to ſeek to ſave others, and concludes all, with the praiſe of God.

CHAP. I.

Verſ. 1. JUde] The name is prepoſed, not ſubſcribed, as the manner then was, Act. 23. 26. Of this name was Jacobs fourth ſon, from whom the Jews had their name. We read alſo of Judas of Galilee, an author of ſedition, Acts 5. 37. Judas called Barſabas, Acts 15. 22. Judas Iſcariot, Matth. 10. 4. And this Judas mentioned alſo, Luke 6. 16. He is called Thaddeus, Matth. 10. 3. He hath alſo the name of Lebbeus, Math. Matth. 10. 3. His fathers name was Alpheus, who is called the father of Iames his brother, Matth. 10. 3. His mothers name ſeems to be Mary, Matth. 27. 56. compared with Matth. 13. 55.

the ſervant] See on Revel. 1. 1. He might have written himſelf, An Apoſtle, as Paul doth, Rom. 1. 1. 1 Cor. 1. 1. 2 Cor. 1. 1. and Peter, 1 Pet. 1. 1. which was a more glorious title: or, a kinſman of Jeſus Chriſt, as indeed he was, Mat. 13. 55. but in humility he chuſeth the title of a ſervant. So doth his brother, James 1. 1.

of Jeſus Chriſt] See on Mat. 1. 1.

brother] Chriſt called ſome pairs of brethren to be apoſtles, See on Mat. 4. 18, 21.

of James] The ſame name with Iacob. See the reaſon of the name, Gen. 25. 26. & 27. 36. Hoſ. 12. 3. He mentioneth his brother, firſt, becauſe he was famous among the Apoſtles, gave ſentence in the Council of Ieruſalem, Acts 15. 13, 19. abode there much, Acts 21. 18. Gal. 1. 19. Secondly, to ſhew that he was no other Iude but the Apoſtle, Luke 6. 16. Act. 1. 13. Thirdly, to diſtinguiſh him from Iudas Iſcariot, who betrayed Chriſt, and was alſo an apoſtle; and from the other Iudes mentioned before.

to them, &c.] A general Epiſtle, not directed to any particular Church, as that to the Romanes, and many other.

that are ſanctified] Regenerate, and made holy by faith in Chriſt, Acts 26. 18.

by God] Gr. in God.

the Father] This work uſeth to be attributed to the holy Ghoſt, Ioh. 3. 5. Tit. 3. 5. yet the Father hath an hand in it alſo, Ioh. 17. 17. 1 Pet. 1. 3.

preſerved in Chriſt Jeſus] As v. 21. in the way. Kept true members of Ieſus Chriſt. Or, preſerved to Jeſus Chriſt. Kept by God the Father, Ioh. 6. 39, 40. & 10. 29. to be preſented to Chriſt blameleſs at the day of judgment, Epheſ. 5. 27. 2 Cor. 11. 2.

called] To the heavenly marriage-feaſt, Mat. 22. 2, &c. and that externally, by the preaching of the Goſpel: for internal calling is all one with ſanctification mentioned before.

V. 2. Mercy unto you] Compaſſion, in regard of your infirmities and miſeries, which ye are ſubject to in this world, as well as wicked men.

peace] A ſenſible perſwaſion of Gods love, or peace of conſcience: for they were at peace with God before.

love] He prayeth God to ſhew forth the fruits of his love, in doing them good ſpiritually and corporally. We may be merciful to enemies, and pity them in their miſeries. We may be at peace with ſtrangers, and do them no harm. But to thoſe we love, we do all the good we can.

be multiplyed] In the abundant fruits of each of them.

V. 3. Beloved] His love moved him to write this Epiſtle, and ſhould move them to heed it. Good miniſters love their people.

when I gave all diligence] Or, giving all diligence. Not as if the apoſtle were one while diligent, and another while negligent; but he waited always for a fit occaſion to write to them. The ſame Greek word ſignifieth haſte: for diligent men make haſte to diſpatch their work.

to write unto you] He was ſo carefull of them, that when he could not be preſent to teach them, he wrote to them. There was alſo an hand of God in it, as in all the other Epiſtles of the apoſtles, that ſuch in after-ages as could not hear them preach, might enjoy the benefit of their doctrine to the worlds end.

of the common ſalvation] That ſalvation in which all the Elect have a joynt part, Epheſ. 4. 4. Tit. 1. 4.

it was needful] For him as an apoſtle, 1 Cor. 9. 16. for them, becauſe falſe teachers roſe up among them, who might ſeduce them, v. 4. Acts 20. 26, 27, 28, 29.

that ye ſhould earneſtly contend] As Wreſtlers do for the victory.

for the faith] His care to ſave their ſouls,made him write to them to keep the faith, which is the way to ſalvation. Faith is not here taken for Faithfulneſs, as Deut. 32.20. nor for credulity, as James 2.19. nor for confidence, as John 3.16. nor for faith of Miracles, as Mat.17.20. but for the doctrine of the Goſpel, which is to be believed. So hope is taken for the thing hoped for, Rom.8.24. Col.1.5.

delivered] From heaven.

to the ſaints] Who live in the Church of God here on earth, v.1. Rom.1.7.

V. 4. crept in unawares] Beſide your expectation ; as ſouldiers that march by a town,and ſuddenly return and take it:or, as pioners, who enter by a mine while the ſouldiers defend the walls. Or, not ſent by God, but taking the miniſtery upon them of their own heads, Joh.10.1. 2 Tim.3.6.

of old ordained] That no man might be offended at their ſudden coming in, he ſheweth that God knew it before, and did ordain them to deſtruction.

to this condemnation] To hell,as the angels that fell,v.6.and the Sodomites, v.7. Or, to this judgment, 1 Cor. 11.29,31,32. To be permitted to fall into theſe ſins, that bring damnation.

ungodly men] Such as worſhip not God aright; or, have no fear of God at all, Gen.20.11. Pſal.30.1. Rom. 3.18.

turning the grace of our God into laſciviouſneſſe] The grace of God inviteth us to ſobriety, Tit.2.11,12., but they turn it to a contrary end.

denying the onely Lord God,and our Lord Jeſus Chriſt] Denying Chriſt to be God, who was their maſter by profeſſion (for they profeſſed themſelves to be of his houſhold) and their Lord by publike authority over them. Or, by their deeds denying Chriſt.

V. 5. I will therefore put you in remembrance] As miniſters are Gods remembrancers, Iſa.62. 6. ſo they are the peoples alſo: the former,by praying ; the later, by preaching.

though ye once knew this] He conceiveth, that, being Chriſtians, they were not ignorant of Gods judgements recorded in the Scriptures, 2 Pet. 1.12.

how that, &c.] Three examples are given : one in the Church, in this verſe ; another in heaven, v.6. another in the world, v. 7. ſhewing that ſinners can no where eſcape Gods judgements.

the Lord] The deliverance of the people came from God, Exod. 20. 2.

having ſaved] Some read, Though ye knew this, how that the Lord, having once ſaved. This is added, to make the judgement the greater,becauſe it came not on them while they were ſlaves in Egypt,but after they were ſet at libety. To this purpoſe the angels firſt condition is mentioned,v.6.

the people] Of Iſrael. He ſpeaketh to them, as men converſant in Scripture,who knew what people he meant, though he did not name them.

Out of the land of Egypt] From captivity and miſery,Exod.1.

afterward] Gr. the ſecond time : To wit, after he had once delivered them, he deſtroyed them. Or, they were once in a ſort loſt in Egypt, and now the ſecond time in the wilderneſs, Heb.11.19.

V. 6. their firſt eſtate] Gr. their beginning: The eſtate they were firſt made in. God made them good and happy, as he did men ; but they, by their fall, made themſelves wicked and unhappy. Or, principality: their glorious condition.

but left] Negligence is here attributed to the angels, in that they were not careful to keep ſo glorious a condition. They are not ſaid to be put out of heaven, but not to keep it, and to leave it ; to wit, by ſinning, 2 Pet.2. 4.

their own habitation] Gr. their proper habitation : Which God had prepared for them,as fit for ſuch glorious creatures.

He hath reſerved in everlaſting chains] As priſoners are kept in priſon bound till the aſſizes come ; ſo are they kept by Gods power,that they cannot eſcape. This ſheweth, their pains are not yet at greateſt. It ſheweth alſo, that they are unavoidable.

under darkneſſe] He hath kept them as it were in a dark dungeon, to be judged afterwards.

unto the judgement of the great day] In the end of the world, when all the world ſhall be judged ; as verſ.14,15. Acts 17.31. 2 Tim.1.18. 1 Cor.6.3.

V. 7. Sodom and Gomorrah] Fruitful places, and pleaſant, but very ſinful, Gen.13.10,13. & 18.20.

and the cities about them] Adma and Zeboim, Hoſ.11.8.

in like manner] Being corrupted by their bad example.

ſtrange fleſh] Gr. other fleſh: Mans fleſh, which they ſhould not have uſed in that kinde. Or, divers fleſh ; not created by God to that end,Rom.1.26, 27. This ſin hath the name of Sodomy from them.

are ſet forth for an example] Not to imitate, but to inſtruct others to take heed of their ſins, leſt they periſh like them, Revel.18.4. 1 Cor.10.6,11. Are ſent to hell, as an example of Gods eternal judgement on groſs ſinners. Or, being deſtroyed by fire from heaven, lye ſtill in the duſt, as a type of eternal deſtruction in hell ; ſo that thoſe cities, being drowned in the dead ſea, can be built no more, 2 Pet.2.6.

V. 8. Likewiſe alſo] They were like the Sodomites in uncleanneſſe, v. 7. like the angels that fell, in deſpiſing dominion, v. 6. like the Iſraelites who murmured againſt Moſes and Aaron, in ſpeaking evil of dignities, v. 5. No ſin is recorded in Scripture, but ſome practiſe it in after-times.

theſe filthy dreamers] They were ſo given to wantonneſſe, that they not onely practiſed it being awake, but alſo dreamed of it, and defiled themſelves in their ſleep. Or, dreamers, becauſe they vented their own dreams and fancies inſtead of Gods truth, Jer.23.25. to 28. 32.

defile the fleſh] Make their bodies abominable before God and men, as ſwine make themſelves filthy by wallowing in the mire, Gen.49.4. Levit. 20.12,13,14. 1 Cor.6.18.

deſpiſe] Gr. depoſe. Or, abrogate. To wit, in their hearts ; for they live as if there were no rulers over them, Pſal. 14. 1. They do as it were reject them, or put them off the throne, Luke 10.16. John 12.48.

dominion] Not the governours onely, as ſome do, for their weakneſſes, and abuſe of their power ; but the government it ſelf: they would have no authority to be in the world.

ſpeak evil of] Gr. blaſpheme. They hurt their fame by reproaches and ſlanders.

dignities] Magiſtrates, who were more honourable then others.

V. 9. Yet] Though theſe be thus bold to rail upon magiſtrates, yet the arch-angel would not rail on the devil, though he were greater then they, and devils far worſe then wicked magiſtrates ; and though he were greater then the devil, and they leſſe then the magiſtrates whom they revile.

Michael] Jude had this hiſtory either from ſome canonical book loſt,as ſome think ; or, as others, from ſome hiſtory, not canonical; for ſuch are cited in Scripture ſometimes: or, by tradition, which was in uſe before the Scripture was written : or, by inſpiration. No doubt it was true, becauſe Gods Spirit here owneth it.

the arch-angel] Some conceive him to be Chriſt : others, to be a principall angel, Dan.10.13.

when contending with the devil he diſputed] That is, he uſed might in deeds, as well as reaſon in words. Or, he diſputed earneſtly.

about the body of Moſes] Some underſtand it figuratively, of that contention about the deliverance of the people from captivity, Zech. 3. 2. becauſe there the devil, and the words following, are found. Others take it literally, that when God is ſaid to bury Moſes his body, Deut.34.6. he employed the arch-angel Michael to do it, that no man might know where it was laid ; but Satan reſiſted him, that ſo the people might know where it was, and worſhip it in after-times ; or, that Moſes might not be ſo honourably buried ; or, that his body might lye above ground, out of the land of Canaan, to be abuſed by the enemies of Gods people.

bring againſt him] Or, add : to wit, to Satans words, who, as it ſeemeth, ſpared no ill language.

railing accuſation] Gr. judgement of blaſphemy.

the Lord, &c.] Zech.3.2.

rebuke thee] Stop thy foul mouth : or,put thee to ſilence,as Mark 1.25. Luke 4.35. & 23.40.

V. 10. ſpeak evil of thoſe things which they know not] Ignorance ſhould keep them from cenſuring,eſpecially ſuch perſons as are above them, or ſuch things as are above their reach. But they are impudent, and ſpeak evil of the greateſt perſons on earth, and the greateſt myſteries of religion.

what they know naturally] They live not according to natural principles,but drown them by bad life, Rom. 1. 21. 1 Tim. 1. 7. Or, they know nothing, but what cometh within the compaſſe of their ſenſes, and follow ſenſual objects to their deſtruction.

as bruit-beaſts] By natural light and experience, which things the bruit-beaſts in part know.

in thoſe things] Or, by thoſe things. So, in the holy Ghoſt, v. 20. that is, by the holy Ghoſt.

they corrupt themſelves] Gr. they are corrupted. Such things they corrupt themſelves] Gr. they are corrupted. Such things they without choiſe abuſe,to ſatisfie their ſenſuality,2 Pet.2.12.

V. 11. They have gone in the way] So the Scripture uſeth to aggravate ſinners evil courſes, by comparing them with groſs wicked mens ways ſet out in Scripture to their perpetual diſgrace, 1 Kings 16. 26,31.

of Cain] They perſecute Gods ſervants for their goodneſſe, as he did his brother Abel, 1 Joh.3.12.

ran greedily] Gr. were poured out. They made haſte to ſin for gain, as water runneth apace out of a bottle. Or, they loſt their ſouls for gain,as water ſpilt on the ground is loſt, 2 Sam. 14.14.

the errour] Gain led them out of the right way.

of Balaam] Who would have curſed Gods people,and gave ill counſel againſt them, for mony,Numb.31.16.

periſhed] Were utterly loſt in this ſinful courſe, without hope of amendment. For they were not yet in hell,v.12.

in the gain-ſaying] Oppoſing magiſtrates, v.8.

of Core] Others joyned with him, but he was the ringleader, Numb.16.1.

V. 12. Theſe are, &c.] The apoſtle,to ſhame theſe ſinners, bringeth ſimilitudes from feaſts, where ſpots are bred on mens apparel, from the skie in the clouds, from the earth in the trees, from the ſea in the waves, from the heaven in the planets.

ſpots] Such as pollute mens garments in feaſts, ariſing out of fat or liquor falling on them. Others take it to be an alluſion to ſpots on the body, which diſgrace it. Others, to the ſpots on cattel, that made them unfit for peace-offerings. The ſenſe is, that they were a blemiſh to their feſtival meetings.

in your feaſts of charity] Made for the poor,as Luk.14.12,13. Or, for others of the ſame religion with us, 1 Cor. 11.33,34.

when they feaſt with you] They came without bidding, thruſt themſelves in, and defiled the tables with gluttony and drunkenneſſe,evil doctrine, wanton words, geſtures, looks.

feeding themſelves without fear] Impudent perſons, not fearing to offend God by intemperance, nor regarding what men might ſay of them therefore, Luke 18.4, clouds they are without water] Promiſing rain to the husbandman, but giving none : ſo theſe made ſhew of great learning and piety, whereby they might do good to others ; but were empty of both, and deceived mens expectations.

carried about of windes] Unſtable, and comming to nothing in the end, Eph.4.14.

trees whoſe fruit withereth] Gr. autum-trees : Such as put out in autumn, when they ſhould give fruit.

unfruitful] Becauſe blowing ſo late, the fruit cannot ripen.

twice dead] Having neither fruit nor leaves. Or, firſt loſing their fruit, and then dying themſelves, as trees blowing ſo late uſe to do : ſo theſe apoſtata's were firſt dead by nature, born in ſin, Eph.1.1,2. Secondly, having made a ſhew of ſpiritual life,by profeſſing the true religion, they loſt that alſo, by falling into errours and vices. Or, twice dead : that is, altogether or certainly dead,as Pſal.62.11. Job.33. 14. ſo theſe were ſure to go to hell, v.4.

plucked up by the roots] Paſt all hope of ſpringing up again. It is a bad condition for a tree, to bloſſom, and yet bear no fruit ; it is worſe to die, and have no hope of ever bearing any fruit hereafter : worſt of all, to be plucked up by the roots : then it is good for nothing but the fire. Such was the condition of theſe falſe teachers.

V. 13. raging waves of the ſea] Gr. wilde. For the waves roar like wilde beaſts in the wood. Hereby is ſignified, men given to extream luſts, or paſſion, or pride, triumphing and inſulting over others, as one wave in the ſea throweth down another 2 Pet.2.18.

Foming out their own ſhame] By their vain words revealing their internal corruptions, as the raging ſea caſteth out dirt and mire, Iſa.57.20. Phil. 3. 19. The Greek word is ſhames : that which doth moſt of all ſhame them.

wandring ſtars] Not conſtant, like the fixed ſtars, but paſſing from one courſe of religion or life to another, as planets remove : or rather, as blazing ſtars, which have no regular motion,and quickly vaniſh away, notwithſtanding their glorious ſhew for a time.

to whom is reſerved] See on v.6.

the blackneſſe of darkneſſe] The moſt black darkneſſe. So hell is deſcribed, Mat.8.12. & 22.13.

for ever] In hell.

V. 14. And Enoch alſo] Or, For even Enoch. So the one particle is tranſlated, Mat. 13. 21. and the other, Mark 3. 19. He foretold of their deſtruction, and therefore it is certain. Whence this hiſtory was taken, ſee in the like, on v.9.

the ſeventh from Adam] Including Adam for one. See the like, Mat.1.17. This is mentioned to ſhew the antiquity of this prophecy : for he lived ſome while with Adam. The worlds end is certain, and the day of the general judgment ; for it hath been fortold wel nigh from the beginning of the world.

propheſied of theſe] Of ſuch men as theſe, that ſhould trouble the Church in future times. Or, to theſe : that is, to ſuch as theſe in his time, whoſe deſtruction he foretold. So will theſe be deſtroyed now alſo.

behold] This ſheweth the certainty and gloriousneſſe of his coming, Iſa.7.14. Hab.1.5.

the Lord cometh] He will as ſurely come, as if he were now coming, Hoſ. 10. 7. Revel. 14. 8. & 18. 2. That manner of curſe which the apoſtle uſeth in that ſolemn curſe, Maranatha, 1 Cor. 16. 22. ſeemeth to be taken from the firſt words of this prophecie.

with ten thouſand] Divers millions, Dan. 7.10. Rev.5.11.

of his Saints] Holy Angels to attend him, Matth. 25. 31,32. 2 Theſſ.1.8. Or, holy men riſen again, as Mat. 19. 28. 1 Cor.6.2. 2 Theſſ.1.10.

V. 15. To execute judgment upon all] To adjudge all wicked men, eſpecially ſuch as are particularly mentioned in the words following, to eternal miſery, Mat.25.32,34,41,46.

to convince] To prove them not to be ſuch as they pretend, and to make them acknowledg the juſtice of their condemnation, Luke 19.22.

of all their ungodly deeds] Theſe falſe teachers did much hurt by bad life, as well as by evil words, and muſt anſwer for both.

ungodly committed] Ungodlily : after a wicked manner, without all fear of God, v.4.

of all their hard ſpeeches] Not to be born. Bold and impudent ones, 1 Sam. 2. 3. Pſal. 31. 18. and 75. 5. and 94. 4. Mal.3.13.

which ungodly ſinners] Irreligious men, who wilfully live in the breach of Gods commandements.

have ſpoken him] Againſt God himſelf, Pſal.73.9. & 78.19. Mal.3.13.

V. 16. Theſe are murmurers] Privy whiſperers, Mat.20.11.

complainers] Out of diſcontent and envy,not content with their own condition, and finding fault with other mens, Mat. 20.12. 1 Cor.10.10. James 5.9.

walking after their own luſts] After the corrupt motions of the fleſh, Rom.8.1. 2 Pet.3.3.

their mouth ſpeaketh] They not onely think ſo, but utter it aloud, Pſal.73.9,11.

great ſwelling words] Vainglorious words,riſing like bubbles in the water.

having in admiration] Looking on them, as on miracles, or high things.

mens perſons] Or, faces. Their external ſhew of wealth or greatneſſe, Prov.24.23. Acts 10.34. Gal.2.6.

becauſe of advantage] They reſpected not godly wiſe men, but flattered great men in the world, to raiſe or enrich themſelves, v.11. and made the profeſſion of piety a matter of gain, 1 Tim.6.5.

V. 17. But ye] Ye live amongſt theſe falſe teachers, take heed therefore that ye be not ſeduced by them.

beloved, remember the words] Charity teacheth us to judge, that the ſins of Gods ſervants come, out of forgetfulneſs, not out of evil purpoſes. So men judge of the errours of them they love.

which were ſpoken before] That they might not be offended at the riſing up of theſe wicked ones in the Church, he ſheweth that there coming was foretold, v.4,14.

of the apoſtles] That is, by the apoſtles. Not which others ſpake of them, but which they ſpake. It ſeemeth Jude was alive, when moſt of the apoſtles were dead, and therefore he putteth them in minde of their ſayings, that they might not die with them.

V. 18. mockers] A great part of the miſeries of Gods people come from mockers, 2 Pet.3.3. Gen.21.9. Gal.4.29.

in the laſt time] 1 Tim.4.1. 2 Tim 3.1.

who ſhould walk after, &c.] See on v. 16.

their own ungodly luſts] Gr. luſts of wickedneſſe. Moſt wicked ones. See the like phraſe, Dan.10,11,19. For the matter, ſee on v. 15,16. They ſhould live well who deride others, leſt they lay themſelves open to contempt : but lightly, they themſelves are evil and ſhameleſſe.

V. 19. who ſeperate] Themſelves, as Heb. 10. 25. Or, others, as 2 Pet.2.1,2. Acts 20.30. 2 Tim.3.6.

ſenſual] Men that follow their ſenſes, and loſe heaven for purſuing worldly objects, as v. 10. Or, natural, or animal. Men having nothing in them more then beaſts, but a reaſonable ſoul, remaining yet in their natural condition, and not new born, although they make much ſhew of godlineſſe. So the word is uſed, 1 Cor. 2. 14. and ſo the oppoſition following ſeemeth to interpret it.

having not the ſpirit] And therefore have no holineſs in them, nor nothing to do with Chriſt, Rom.8.9.

V. 20. But ye, beloved] They deſtroy the building, by ſeparating the parts one from another ; but do ye build it up, as the wiſe woman doth, Prov.14.1.

building up your ſelves] It is not enough that ye have laid a right foundation, but ye muſt confirm and advance your ſelves daily in your ſpiritual eſtate, on the foundation of faith in Chriſt; as a building aſcends. For Chriſtian men are not dead, but living ſtones, and help to build themſelves, 1 Pet.2.5. It may be underſtood of encreaſing their own graces ſeverally, as 2 Pet.3.18. or, of edifying one another, as verſ.22,23. Heb.10. 25. Acts 9.31.

on your moſt holy faith] Verſ. 3. Faith either of credulity, or of confidence, ought to have holineſſe attending on it.

praying in the Holy Ghoſt] That is, by the holy Ghoſt. See on verſ.10. Mark 12.36. & 13.11. Not putting up ſuch faint petitions as fleſh and blood ſuggeſteth, but ſuch fervent ones as Gods Spirit putteth into us, Rom.8.26.

V. 21. Keep your ſelves] See on verſ.20. 1 Tim.5.22.

in the love of God] Whereby ye love God. Perſevere conſtantly to love him, and do it daily more and more. Or, whereby God loveth you: by doing nothing that may make him take away the ſenſe of his favour from you, or cauſe him to frown upon you.

looking for the mercy of our Lord, &c.] Looking for that merciful ſentence of Chriſt at the day of judgement, whereby he will beſtow eternal life on us, that have deſerved eternal miſery, Matth.25.34.

V. 22. And of, &c.] It is not ſufficient to look after our own ſalvation, but we muſt promote other mens alſo.

ſome] Of weak, ſimple, ſeduced perſons, or men more flexible, and of a more tender nature then others.

have compaſſion] Out of mercy admoniſh them gently of their duty, when ye have lovingly ſhewed them their errours, Gal.6. 1. Rom.14.1. & 15.1.

making a difference] Not dealing ſo ſeverely with them, as with others that are more obſtinate.

V. 23. And others] Hardened ones; or, perverſe, or ſeducers themſelves.

ſave] That is, endeavour to ſave. It is not in our power to ſave, but it is often attributed to the inſtruments, to perſwade them to diligence, Rom.11.14. 1 Cor.7.16. & 9.22. 1 Tim.4. 15. James 5.20.

with fear] Gr. in fear, or, by fear; as verſ. 10,20. Out of fear of their ſudden perdition, if ye ſhould not preſently help them. Or, by terrifying them with Gods judgments, unleſſe they repent. Or, by ſharp cenſures, 1 Cor.5.5.

pulling them] Gr. ſnatching. That is, pulling haſtily, and with violence. As the mother, apprehending the danger of the child fallen into the fire, more then it ſelf doth, and fearing the death of it, though ſhe be tender-hearted, yet pulleth it out with violence, and, it may be, paineth ſome member, to ſave the life of the child: ſo do ye haſtily, with a kind of harſhneſſe, ſeek to ſave obſtinate ſinners, Tit.1.13.

out of the fire] Out of that danger, which is as great, as if they were in the fire. Terrifying them with the threats of hell fire.

hating even the garment] Not onely the pollution it ſelf, but even the garment wherein it is.

ſpotted by the fleſh] As cleanly perſons cannot endure ſpots of greaſe or blood on their garments, verſ.12. Or, as under the law men might not touch a menſtruous cloth, or as God in the law would not accept a ſpotted peace-offering: ſo do ye not onely hate their ſinful luſts, verſ.8. but alſo come not in their company. Or, avoid not onely groſſe ſins, but alſo the very ſigns and tokens of them, 1 Theſſ.5.22.

V. 24. Now unto him, &c.] The apoſtle, after inſcription, ver. 1. beginneth his epiſtle with prayer, verſ. 2. Now he endeth it with the praiſe of God. So God muſt be the alpha and omega of our actions.

that is able to keep you] He commendeth Gods power, but with reference to our good, ſhewing that we have cauſe to praiſe him for it, and thank him for the good we get by it.

from falling] A metaphor from runners, 1 Cor.9.24. wherein men haſting to the goal, and not obſerving the ruggedneſſe of the way, may fall. God onely can keep us from falling. The beſt have had their ſlips, when they truſted to their own ſtrength, Matth.26.35,70.

and to preſent you faultleſſe] Gr. to make you ſtand. At the day of judgment, to make you ſtand, without guilt or filth of ſin.

before the preſence of his glory with exceeding joy] Being free from ſin, to look upon Chriſt ſitting on his glorious throne without any fear, yea with great cheerfulneſſe, when wicked men cannot endure the ſight of his majeſty, Luke 23. 30. Revel. 6. 13.

V. 25. To the onely wiſe God] Rom.16.27. 1 Tim.1.17. Some men were wiſe, as Solomon; but God is onely wiſe: Firſt, becauſe he onely is wiſe originally: the wiſdome of the wiſeſt men is from him, Gen.41.39. Pſal.119.98. Gods wiſdome is from himſelf. Secondly, becauſe he onely is inſeparably wiſe: he ſheweth wiſdome in all his actions, 1 Cor.1.25. men do not ſo, Eccleſ.10.1. Thirdly, he is inſuperably wiſe: he overcometh the wiſdome of the moſt ſubtil men, 1 Cor. 1. 19. but no creature can go beyond him.

our Saviour] Tit.2.13. & 3.4. Gods wiſdom is uſed for our good and ſalvation: and every believer hath as much right to ſalvation by Chriſt, as the Apoſtles.

be glory] Let him be honourably accounted of by all, eſpecially by thoſe that ſhall be ſaved by him.

majeſty] Heb.1.3. & 8.1. 2 Pet.1.16. Let him be royally attended by all, as the ſupreme Governour of all.

dominion] Or, ſtrength. Let all acknowledge him able to do what he wil, and to over-rule all creatures, Pſal.115.3.

power] Or, authority. Let them confeſſe his juſt authority over all.

now] At this very preſent. We that now live, are ſubject to him. The Kings that had power over us, when they dye have no more; but God liveth ſtill, and hath as much power over us, as he had over Adam, when he had new made him.

ever] Gr. to all the ages, of the world. His dominion will laſt to the end; therefore is he called Eternal, 1 Tim. 1. 17. which in the Greek there, is, The King of ages, to diſtinguiſh him from all other kings, who rule but in one age; as David, Acts 13. 36.
